De Gaulle Stokes Flames Of 'Free Quebec' Squabble

Pearson Is Annoyed By French Statement

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson today was studying President de Gaulle's statement of support for Quebec's "freedom aims" and preliminary indications were that Mr. Pearson was not happy with it.

A government statement could come later today.

One source close to the prime minister, asked by a reporter for Mr. Pearson's initial reaction to Gen. de Gaulle's statement in Paris Monday, said: "I think you can guess."

When the reporter suggested the reaction was one of annoyance, the source added: "I think that is a pretty good guess."

Mr. Pearson was still considering the French statement. Asked about the possibility of a Canadian government reply, his office said there might be something later in the day.

In other parts of Canada, reaction to the de Gaulle statement differed.

While Opposition Leader Diefenbaker called for a strong protest, Quebec's Premier Johnson suggested French Canada does not need outside help to achieve its political aims.

"I think we can solve Canada's political problems in Canada," the premier said in an interview at Fredericton Monday night.

He added that he thought the "freedom aims" referred to in the French president's statement mean cultural agreements signed between France and Quebec.

In Fairmont Hot Springs, B.C., Mr. Diefenbaker said anything short of a strong protest note "will be a sign of weakness on the part of Canada."

De Gaulle's statement, issued with the full support of his cabinet after a lengthy meeting Monday, had been awaited keenly in Ottawa for signs of change in the French leader's position following his stormy visit to Quebec last week.

When it came, government leaders refrained from all public reaction pending close study of its shades of meaning.

Unofficially, the first government reaction tended to welcome some parts of the communique cautiously while questioning others.

Particularly welcome was de Gaulle's statement that the French government "has no pretensions to leadership nor a design to sovereignty over all or part of the Canada of today."

Sources said this eliminated a certain ambiguity resulting from the president's cry of "long live free Quebec" during his visit.

On the other hand, officials

Political War Seen Declared

NEW YORK (CP)—The Times says French President de Gaulle "has, in effect, declared political war against the integrity of Canada" as it now is constituted.

In an editorial, the paper says this is "the only interpretation that can be placed on the amazing communique" issued in Paris Monday in which the French government promised help to French Canada in achieving its goal of freedom.

"This renewed rude act of Gaullist intervention into Canada's internal affairs is a major escalation of the quarrel begun during the general's visit to that country," the morning newspaper says.

"Extreme pressure will now be put on Canadian Prime Minister Pearson's regime to break relations with France, though such a move would be a blow at the interests of both countries and would still further exacerbate the situation within Canada. . . ."

The Times says the result of the affair "is to harness bitterness against Gaullist France among many who have been France's staunchest friends in the past, and who have shed blood twice in this country to help liberate a country whose ruler now seems to suffer from amnesia."

Johnson Comments

We Can Settle Canada's Political Problems Here

FREDERICTON (CP)— Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec said Monday night "I think we can solve Canada's political problems in Canada."

He was commenting on a French - government statement that France intends to help French - speaking Canadians realize the "freedom aims" they have set for themselves.

Premier Johnson, who arrived here by air from Quebec City for a premiers' conference opening today, said he thought that by "freedom aims," the communique meant cultural agreements signed between the province of Quebec and France.

The premier said that if French culture in this country is to be "of good quality," cultural exchanges are necessary between Quebec and France.

When asked whether a communique from the French cabinet was correct in saying French - speaking Canadians had not been assured "liberty, equality and fraternity in their own country" by the British North America Act, the Quebec premier replied:

"Yes, if he's speaking o' French - speaking Canadian across Canada, he's right."

After being approached by two of his aides—Paul Chouinard, his executive secretary, and Deputy Minister Claude Morin of inter - governmental affairs of Quebec—Mr. Johnson refused further comment.

When a reporter tried to question him half hour later at his hotel, Mr. Chouinard said the premier was attending a reception and was not interested in reading and commenting on a

Aid Pledged To Quebecois

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle made clear Monday night it is not French policy to attack Canada's existing political system—but said France intends to help French-speaking Canadians realize their freedom aims.

The president explained his attitude in a 550-word statement drawn up by himself and unanimously approved at a full cabinet meeting.

A communique after the four-hour, 25-minute cabinet meeting —longest on record—said it is the French government's intention to support the aspirations for "liberty, equality and fraternity" of French - speaking Canadians.

For Text of de Gaulle's Statement See Page 5

In an apparent attempt to pacify Canadian government sentiments, de Gaulle said in the communique that France is not directing and not exercising any sovereignty over all or part of Canada.

Officials here said they hope this will remove any doubts in Ottawa that France is trying to interfere improperly in Canadian affairs.

Information Minister George Gorse said the ministers at Monday's meeting expressed from scratch at the violently critical reactions to de Gaulle's remarks.

The government statement said de Gaulle took the steps he did in Canada after noting the "indescribable wave of emotion and determination."

He unmistakably told "the French-speaking Canadians and their government that France intend to help them realize the freedom aims they have set themselves."

The statement said de Gaulle declared the present system of government in Canada does not ensure French-speaking citizens equal rights in their country.

"General de Gaulle took note of the immense French fervor which was seen everywhere he went," it said.

"He noted among French-speaking Canadians the unanimous conviction that after the century of oppression which for them followed the English conquest, the second century under the system defined by the British North America Act of 1867 had not assured them liberty, equality and fraternity in their own country."

Then He Goes On Holiday!

He will be gone from Paris most of August, but will return to preside over cabinet meetings Aug. 9 and Aug. 23. On Aug. 10 he will make a television address to the nation.

Russia Buys More Wheat From Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Trade Minister Winters announced today that the Soviet Union has purchased a minimum of 75,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and flour for shipment during the period Aug. 1, 1967 to July 1, 1968.

The contract, amounting to about $150,000,000, was concluded by the Canadian Wheat Board and the Soviet wheat agency.

It is part of a 9,000,000 ton, three - year trade agreement concluded last June in Moscow.

The trade agreement was signed by Mr. Winters and N.S. Patolichev, Soviet minister of foreign trade.

The new sale brings total Soviet purchases under the agreement to 5,000,000 long tons.

Mr. Winters told a press conference at Expo 67 that he looks forward to the Soviet Union as a continuing market for Canadian wheat.

Mr. Patolichev arrived in Montreal Monday and will visit Toronto, Niagara Falls, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Vancouver before departing for home Aug. 9.

The two ministers toured Expo today after making the wheat deal announcement.

Washington Joins List Of Riot-torn U.S. Cities

WASHINGTON (AP)—Roving gangs of Negro youths smashed store windows and pelted police and firemen with bottles and bricks early today after nearly a dozen fires broke out in a predominately Negro area within a mile of the White House.

Police reported about 30 arrests, "very little looting" and two minor injuries in the 24 hours of sporadic disturbances—first of the summer in the U.S. capital. Two-thirds of Washington's 750,000 residents are Negroes.

"They smashed windows with bottles and on several occasions set fires," said Police Capt. R. N. Hough. "There was very little looting—the only looting was done in show windows and in liquor stores.

"There was no pattern. It was purely hit and run."

Scores of policemen, some wearing white riot helmets and carrying shotguns surged into the northern reaches of Washington's main business district when the first fire attracted a crowd of 300.

Police dogs also were deployed in the area.

Police dispersed the crowd after a squad car was hit by bottles, but gangs of youths roamed northward along a honky - tonk section of 14th Street.

Some of the teen - agers shouted Black Power slogans.

Windows of an undetermined number of businesses were smashed. Burglar alarms clanged and broken glass littered the rain-soaked sidewalks. A 13-block downtown hotbed police clear the streets.

Police inspector M. C. Reed, in charge of the department during the early - morning hours, said the disturbances were limited primarily to vandalism and minor fires.

"I certainly wouldn't consider it a riot," Reed told a news conference. "This was not the start of a severe outbreak.

"This could not have turned into a riot."

Reed said 18 adults and 11 juveniles were arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

Eleven fires were reported in the trouble area. The largest of the blazes virtually destroyed a two-storey furniture store building. Reed said there was no evidence of arson in this fire. But another policeman said two partially-filled jugs of kerosene were found at the scene.

The Washington outbreak came as violence in Milwaukee and Portland, Ore., subsided.

In Milwaukee, some 4,000 national guardsmen appeared to have a firm hold on the disturbances that brought two shooting deaths and more than 50 injuries and 260 arrests Sunday and Monday.

City Takes Stand On Downtown Litter

The city public works department is in a litter fighting mood.

And this week the city accepted delivery of the tools which it hopes will make for a much cleaner downtown area.

Monday seven brightly painted and streamlined trash cans — value about $75 each — were spotted along Front Street, and early tomorrow morning a new sidewalk vacuum cleaner will go into operation.

The new trash cans will replace the now unsightly and rusty litter cans placed in the downtown area some years ago through the courtesy of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

The gasoline driven sidewalk vacuum cleaner will replace the man with a broom and cart who has been fighting a losing battle against the mounting volume of litter which seems to collect every day.

Public Works superintendent Al Durand says the sidewalk vacuum cleaner will go into operation at four o'clock each morning and by the time shops are open it is hoped the downtown sidewalks will have been swept clean of the overnight accumulation of cigarette butts, discarded cigarette boxes, and the layer of dust.

The cleaner operator will be responsible for Front Street and the intersecting side streets in the downtown area.

Litter won't be allowed to pile up in the new trash cans. Mr. Durand says the cans will be emptied regularly.

"We hope it will mean a cleaner downtown area," Mr. Durand says. "At least we are going to try and make it that way."

New Deck For Bridge In Tweed

TWEED — The old steel bridge in the village, which leads to the Tweed - Hungerford Community Centre, is currently receiving a new deck and other necessary repairs.

Traffic across this bridge is heavy, especially when the Community Centre is in operation during the winter months and also at the time of the Fall Agricultural Fair. It is a vital link with the township area.

While the streets connected with the old road leading to Sulphide have been turned back to the village of Tweed, by the County of Hastings, the County retained ownership of the bridge and is therefore responsible for its maintenance.

Traffic was detoured for almost two weeks, by way of the new bridge on Highway 37 and Moira Street, while the repair work was being done. The old bridge was open to traffic over the weekend, but today it is again shut off. Workmen are securing the steel part of the deck.

There was a decided rattle like thunder and flopping when a vehicle went over this old construction, but over the weekend, when it was open for two days, it was almost noiseless, and the residents near the bridge commented on the improvement.

Canada Celebrates Centennial But in Scandinavia It's 800th

Talking with people in Scandinavia about Canada's centennial, J. C. (Pat) Houston found he was likely to hear someone say "We have just celebrated our 800th anniversary."

The Belleville businessman also found cities with contemporary themes and much in common with Belleville's thinking for the future — such as the mall in the Danish city of Aalborg.

Extending for six or seven blocks, the mall is paved with black and white concrete blocks, giving a checkerboard effect. Potted plants line the area and there are no protruding signs or hanging wires.

And like Belleville's recent centennial parade, Mr. Houston came upon one in Oslo where boys and girls in uniform, headed by bands of about 100 members, each representing a different school, marched to the Royal Palace. The young people all waved Norwegian flags and Mr. Houston was impressed with their patriotic spirit.

"While I have no criticism of our own recent parade I wish you could have seen this one."

Mr. Houston was addressing Rotarians yesterday on the subject of "A Businessman in Scandinavia."

While he said he had not gone to Scandinavia solely on business, but rather on vacation, Mr. Houston said despite the high standard of living in Norway, Sweden and Denmark he found business in the whole was "not booming." Businessmen there anticipated the current year would not prove as good as 1966.

Scandinavian geography Mr. Houston found interesting. Copenhagen, for instance is on the same latitude as James Bay. And on a train journey from Bergen to Oslo, a 300-mile journey passing through the mountains and taking over six than eight hours there was eight feet of snow in the mountain areas. That was in May.

Visiting Copenhagen's famous Tivoli Gardens, which may be likened to an all-year round La Ronde or Expo fame, the Belleville visitor was told it attracted some 40,000 people every day.

Mr. Houston passed on a couple of useful tips to travellers. The colored ribbon on your baggage — advice he had been given by Rotarian Arnold Campbell — and it makes for easier identification.

And secondly, if you plug an electric razor into Scandinavia's 220-volt system (Canada it is 110 volts) you get a really swinging shave!

President James Marker announced the club is contributing $1,500 to Belleville General Hospital for the acquisition of hydrotherapy equipment for the treatment of crippled children.

The club is also contributing $250 to Rotary and 400 children to Expo. The children will travel to Montreal by Canadian National in September.

Town May Again Appeal Arena Road Decision

TRENTON — The town may go to the highest court in the land to settle a dispute over a strip of roadway about 70 feet long.

The Ontario Court of Appeal in June agreed that Trenton had no title to a 66-ip of Ontario St. extending alongside the Community Gardens. The appeal court upheld a May 31, 1966 ruling by Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Landreville had awarded the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company $1,125 in damages after the firm issued a writ against Trenton for opening the property to public thoroughfare.

Mayor James MacDonald told councillors last night they should consider taking the case to the Supreme Court of Canada because "our first approach to the courts' met have been wrong."

The town opened the roadway in September of 1964 to provide access to the arena area.

Council resolved to discuss the feasibility of continuing the case with the Williston legal firm of Toronto, which represented the town in the action.

Mayor MacDonald said council should consider how essential the road is to town operations.

"The idea was a good one," he said, "but it's been mishandled."

WILSON CAMPBELL
(Hastings)

BONARLAW — The funeral of Wilson Campbell was held in Trinity United Church, Hastings, Thursday, with interment in Trent Valley Cemetery.

Mr. Campbell, who was in his 64th year, died following a long illness. He was the son of the late Thomas Campbell and was educated in Bonarlaw. As a young man he worked in the Frood Mine in Sudbury and since returning to Hastings had been engaged in construction work.

He is survived by his wife, the former Verna McInroy; one son, William, at home; his mother, Mrs. Wallace McInroy, Marmora; and two sisters, Mrs. William (Mae) Simmons, Marmora and Mrs. Jean Spry, Toronto, a brother, Milton predeceased him.

ERIC HERBERT ROLFE

A long-time resident of Belleville, Eric Herbert Rolfe of 82 Bertram Blvd., passed away today in Belleville General Hospital. Mr. Rolfe, who was in his 65th year, was born in England to the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Rolfe.

Mr. Rolfe is survived by three sons, Frederick of Belleville and Leonard of Oshawa and two daughters, Mrs. Joseph (Gwen) Gibson of Belleville and Mrs. Kenneth (Linda) La Duke of Toronto.

He is also survived by his brother Fred in England and by sisters Mrs. Hugh (Rose) Legg of England and Mrs. Joseph (Florence) Bradley of Montreal.

Mr. Rolfe had been with Northern Electric as an estimator for 25 years and was a member of the Anglican Church. He was a member of the British Imperial Army for 9½ years during World War I.

Funeral services will be held Thursday from the chapel of the John R. Bush Funeral Home to Belleville Cemetery. Rev. Allan Lauder will officiate.

Canada Centennial Arena Gets Approval

Approval has been given by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs to the borrowing by the Township of Thurlow of $1,000,000 for the construction of the Canada Centennial Arena.

Reeve Ross Wannamaker said today that the township will now call for tenders for the construction of the arena.

The arena will be built on the property of the Thurlow Agricultural Society on Dundas Street.

Proposed Trenton Fire Hall to Cost 40 Per Cent More Than Estimated

TRENTON — The new Front St. fire hall, due to be constructed before year's end, is going to cost 40 per cent more than was originally estimated.

Councillor Edward Todd, chairman of the protection to persons and property committee last night told town council the lowest of four tenders submitted for the job was for $89,980 by Rollins Construction of Belleville.

Council had allotted $60,000 in this year's instalment of the capital budget for the project. The town parking authority, which will transform the existing fire hall site into a modern downtown parking area, will contribute $30,000 of the project's cost.

However, Councillor Todd said additional costs have arisen over and above the actual construction price.

Paving, engineering fees, soil tests, temporary financing and contingencies would push the total tab up to some $103,000, he said.

He told council $5,000 could be saved by substituting a steel roof deck for the planned pre - stressed concrete one.

Councillor Duncan McDonald again introduced his objection with the riverside site of the proposed new hall, which had been previously agreed upon by council after hearing reports on the practicality of the site by department of transport officials. The new hall is to be situated at the west end of the new D. James MacDonald bridge on Front St.

"I've been informed that this intersection will be the busiest in town, so we're only creating a problem," he said.

Councillor McDonald's protests were ruled out of order and council returned to the problem of paying for the fire hall.

Council agreed to prepare a bylaw asking Ontario Municipal Board approval of the increased prize tag of the new structure, pending which, no tender for the job will be accepted.

Bid for Radio Station Endorsed by Council

TRENTON — Town Council last night unanimously endorsed the establishment of a Trenton-based radio station. Council made the move on the request of Councillor D. B. Fraser, one of the principals in the venture. Councillor Fraser said his group has already taken option on studio space and although it was not necessary for council's endorsation he felt it would help the upcoming presentation to the Board of Broadcast Governors.

B.B.G. approval is required for the establishment of any radio station.

The endorsation was approved despite a request by CJBQ station manager, Frank Murray, that council defer the matter to enable him time to present a detailed submission.

Mr. Murray agreed when asked by Mayor James MacDonald, "Do you feel an endorsation by council now would be a little bad?"

Councillor Fraser said he sought town support last night because today is the deadline for any matters on the next B.B.G. agenda.

"I don't suppose CJBQ is unwelcome in Trenton. It is a simple matter of whether council is in favor of something in the community which is an asset," said Councillor Fraser.

He described a second area radio station as, "a potential small industry," capable of employing about 18 local residents.

"I don't think a Trenton station would interfere with CJBQ as far as broadcasting is concerned and the market is favorable," said Councillor Fraser.

Councillor C. V. Graham, said, "it is a good thing for Trenton if these people are willing to take a gamble on it." And Mayor MacDonald added, "We are all satisfied with CJBQ. It is not a question of competition — it is a good thing for the town." There were no dissenters in passing the endorsation.

Trenton Council Agrees To Hold Liquor Vote

TRENTON — Town residents will vote on the desirability of liquor dining and lounge outlets sometime this year.

Council decided last night to notify the Liquor Licensing Board of Ontario of its intention in the wake of a recent petition signed by about 30 downtown businessmen.

There are at present two lounges and one tavern licensed premises in Trenton, but they lie in areas which voted "wet" before being annexed by the town several years ago.

No date has been set for a plebiscite, but it will not coincide with that of this year's municipal election.

Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry told council the town would have to charge its polls located in schools for a liquor vote, under L.L.B.O. regulations.

Mr. Larry estimated the cost of the plebiscite at between $2,500 and $3,000.

Academic Coffee Break

Members of Loyalist Campus' first teaching staff meet over coffee after first general meeting with the boss — president J. Kenneth J. Bradford.

Opening of new community college unit is set for Belleville, Sept. 11.

Student Must Come First Loyalist Staff Advised

Seeds of the community college complex showed a first fruitful core for the Quinte district today.

The results went on display as Loyalist Campus president J. Kenneth Bradford called his first staff meeting at Centennial Secondary School and set preliminary guidelines pointing toward the campus opening Sept. 11.

And the president's first instructions to his teachers set human relations as the basic goal to be achieved in the new educational venture.

The staff had the task of training students to make their livelihood.

"But, within the development of the course . . . . bear this in mind: That the person is, after all, more important than the bread and butter," emphasized Mr. Bradford.

The meeting marked the culmination of two months' frenetic organizational effort, that laid the recently - hired members of the district's newest academic community.

"Time is definitely not our ally — although we are meeting its demands successfully, and I see no reason why we shouldn't continue to do so."

"I'm looking forward to swift and certain development of the college as you and the people of the community explore the potential of the college."

Exploration of the new educational concept was an operative word throughout the president's remarks.

While the basic curriculum has been drawn up, the emphasis is on "extreme flexibility," said Mr. Bradford.

"We are one unit and an important one in a different era and in many ways — a new, approach to total education in this province."

"We also have the opportunity of using a new approach to teaching. We may be able to adapt our courses so that more than one teacher can cover them. We may be able to have more than one point of view."

While this approach might mean more work for the instructors, it would also impart more variety and interest.

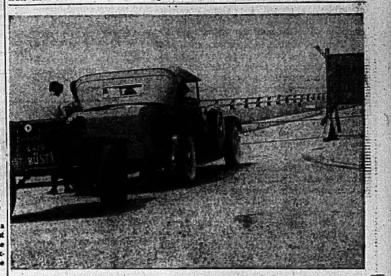
"I'm sure the students will get a lot more out of it," he added.

Other immediate results of the eight-week organizational period mentioned by the president include:

Applications from 120 students, 53 of which already have been accepted.

Newspapers and television advertising campaigns have been launched communicating the campus' concepts to the Quinte community.

A core 3,500 volumes are on order for the institution's library, planned as a public reference centre.



And, indications are the campus may become an Ontario-wide centre for one of the courses now on its curriculum — municipal assessment.

Mr. Bradford sees this as expanding to cover the entire range of local government administration — a level of public business where staff demands already are drawing senior government comment.

Information already is being requested from around the province so "it seems the idea is sound," commented Mr. Bradford.

But, overall, the campus environment must be dominated by community contact, the president indicated.

"The community," he cautioned his new staff, "is as much a part of this as ourselves."

Antique Cars Among First To Bridge Gap at Deseronto

PICTON (Staff) — Canada's Tina's centennial tour of antique cars en-route to Ottawa, and Expo from Picton Saturday "bridged the gap" and passed over the new Quinte Skyway bridge at Deseronto. An unscheduled event, it followed a royal welcome in Picton where the slower cars left by way of the Glenora Ferry and Highway 33 to Kingston and the faster cars decided to try for the bridge and the mainshore highway.

Workmen were adding finishing touches to work on the cement floor of the bridge, but in spite of this, construction supervisors were sympathetic with the purpose of the tour and let some 25 to 40 antique cars across.

The new "Skyway" is rapidly nearing its completion and is expected to be opened sometime next month.

Hundreds of interested spectators turned out at Picton as well as children from the Picton playground parks, to greet the visitors. An official welcome was given on the steps of the Picton Public Library, the town's centennial project. Present for the occasion were the warden of Prince Edward County, Robert Boyce; the Mayor of Picton, Ils Wurship H. J. McFarland; President of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce Donald Stanton and Manager of Picton's Canadian Tire Branch Store Jack Colden. Picton representatives of the Antique Car Club, Vince Gentile, acted as master of ceremonies for the occasion. Before the group left each driver was given a brass plaque to be fixed on the dashboard of his car.

At Picton the antique cars formed at the western outskirts of town and proceeded down Main Street where they parked on both sides of the street, the whole length of the business section. Some 85 cars in all were on display, the oldest a 1902 Dennis, the youngest a 1940 Packard.

Harbor Traffic

Belleville Harbor Master Donald Barrett said this morning the number of vessels docking in the city remains about the same as in previous years.

"So far this season we've had six ships use our facilities and about 75 per cent of this number were unloading oil." The harbor season in the city runs from April to December.

Mr. Barrett said he expected the number of ships using the docks to increase over the next few months. "Last year we had a total of 33 commercial craft dock in Belleville. Of this number 28 were carrying oil while the remainder were delivering coal."

During the fall season last year six boats docked in September; three in October; three in November; and two in the month of December.

Funeral

SGT. JOSEPH ALFRED GAUTREAU

Funeral services for Sgt. Joseph Alfred Gautreau of 49 Hosier St. in Trenton was held Saturday from Queen of Heaven Chapel, North Side, CFB, where requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. J. G. Savage. Interment was in Mount Calvary Cemetery.

The bearers were Cpl. Mc Donald, Cpl. Barr, Sgt. W. Sheppard, Sgt. C. F. Goodall and Sgt. M. Ryan. The late Sgt. Gaufreau rested at the Weaver Funeral Home until time of service.

Sgt. Gautreau, who was in his 47th year, passed away in the Canadian Forces Hospital in Kingston on Thursday. His health had been failing for the past year. He was born in Saint Paul, New Brunswick to the late Mr. and Mrs. C. Gautreau and had lived in this area for the past three years.

He is survived by his wife, Gladys Lillian Phillips and their three children, Marcel, Juliet and Herbert who are still at home. He is also survived by five brothers, Joseph, Millie, Edward, Gerald and Zoel and two sisters, Corrine and Trevina.

Sgt. Gautreau was a supply technician with the RCAF at the Canadian Forces Base in Trenton. He was educated in Moncton, New Brunswick and was a member of the Queen of Heaven Roman Catholic Chapel at North Side. He was also a member of the RCAF Golf Club.

Moira River Authority Gets $36,000 Dam Grant

A provincial grant of $36,000 has been approved for the Moira River Conservation Authority for land acquisition and construction of a lower Moira reservoir.

The proposed dam will be constructed in the north end of the city just above the old Lazier dam and will serve to raise the water level adjacent to the recently developed Fry Park along Camelton Road.

Authority secretary James McLeod said it was hoped tenders for the reservoir could be called in about three weeks time with construction to start in the late summer or early fall.

The announcement of the provincial grant was made today by W. E. Sanderock, MPP for Hastings West following word from department of energy and resources management minister J. R. Simonett. The grant was made under the provincial water supply reservoir program.

Foster Homes Needed

The Children's Aid Society in Belleville is looking for foster parents — especially for girls in the eight to 13 age bracket.

According to Mrs. Janette Thompson, supervisor of child care and adoption, the society also needs foster homes for teenage youngsters. The payment rate for children aged eight to 13 is $45 per month.

Mrs. Thompson said this morning the society is using more than 80 foster homes at the present time. "A lot of these foster parents are caring for two children but many are not available for adoption."

"Adoptions are in a bit of a lull at the moment," she said, "But we expect an increase during the fall months."

So far this year the society has placed approximately 35 children in homes throughout the Quinte area. This number is about the same as the previous year.

Dies of Injuries

SASKATOON (CP)— Carmen Neill, 28, of Oshawa, died in hospital Sunday of injuries suffered in a construction accident June 26 at a potash mine 30 miles southeast of here. Mr. Neill and Wilfred Bailey, 24, of Moose Jaw, were welding at the construction site when a pail of inflammable liquid spilled over them. Mr. Bailey died July 6.

Local Man On Tour

A former Foxboro resident, Professor Ralph Campbell of the University of Toronto, has returned home following a two-week, 10,000-mile tour across Northern Canada and Alaska sponsored by the Arctic Institute of North America.

Prof. Campbell was one of three Canadians in a party of 17 which toured Arctic outposts. American university presidents and Foundation representatives were included in the tour membership.

The party left from Ottawa flying to Fort Chimo and Frobisher Bay before turning west to visit Churchill and Thompson in Manitoba.

Highway Blocked 12 Hours Until Gasoline Removed

It took nearly 12 hours to open Highway 37 at Belleville yesterday as emergency crews cautiously labored to clear the wreckage of a gasoline tanker from the artery.

Provincial Police finally removed the cordon from entry and exit cloverleafs to the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway about 8 p.m. — ending a day-long vigil.

The Belleville traffic link was blocked at 8:20 a.m. when the tanker — bound from Cobourg to Tweed — slewed off a cloverleaf ramp and toppled on Highway 37, spilling its highly-inflammable cargo on the roadway.

Nearby residents were evacuated and fire trucks stood by as work crews began the tedious, wary job of neutralizing the thread from the 7,000-gallon tanker.

Sand was spread around the truck and leaking fuel sealed with foam.

It took several hours to pump the wreck's remaining cargo to a nearby tanker.

The damaged fuel tank was filled with foam and the wreck gingerly hoisted upright by a heavy construction crane, a

America's Problems

Between one thing and another the United States is having a hard time of it these days.

The Negro riots in Detroit and other centres have cast a shadow over the domestic scene, while in the far east a devastating series of explosions aboard the aircraft carrier Forrestal which killed 71 and left 112 missing compounded setbacks on the Vietnam scene.

Twenty-three U.S. marines were killed and 119 wounded last week after getting caught in a North Vietnamese ambush. Weighed down with tanks and other armored vehicles one wonders why the Americans use such tactics amid terrain that favors guerilla-type warfare. In this case an all-Vietnam U.S. force, backed by tanks, ran into a mined area and simultaneously was ambushed by communist troops concealed in thick undergrowth.

The explosion aboard the Forrestal was also caused by a tactical error. Aside from the nature of a freak accident, it nevertheless was one that revealed a dangerous practice in the operation of carrier-based aircraft. It occurred when a Phantom jet, about to take off on a raid on Vietnam shot a sheet of flame from its jets and ignited a rocket on another aircraft, touching off explosions that racked the vessel through six of its decks. Twenty-six aircraft were either destroyed or pushed off the carrier's deck.

U.S. naval strategists, as well as those of Britain and other nations using aircraft carriers will now have to revise tactics which hitherto have called for planes to be catapulted from the deck in swift succession. A slowing down of this process now seems inevitable, with a wider gap being allowed between armed aircraft up on deck ready for take-off.

Meanwhile there are other, more pleasant, avenues of thought available to the U.S. servicemen. The next best thing to going home on completion of a tour of duty is leave, and a report from Saigon says that the big 'in' spot for getting away from it all is now Australia.

Apparently there is a growing disenchantment with Hawaii, Formosa, Thailand and Malayasia, and a commensurate interest in Australia. U.S. troops have been hearing glowing reminiscences of the "down under" scene from fathers and relatives who were there during the last war. A common language, low prices, and girls "who look like the girls back home" are said to be the main attractions.

If large numbers of Americans take their leave in Australia it would not be surprising if many decide to settle there once their service in Vietnam is over. The way of life is similar, but not so hectic as in the States, and the climate is one of the best in the world.

Arctic Habitat

Can people work and enjoy living in a place where winter drags on for eight months of the year and the temperature often drops to 80 or even 90 degrees below zero?

In Canada? No, it seldom get that cold here. The situation has been put in a release by the Soviet pavilion at Expo and it has to do with economic and industrial development in Siberia. And what has been achieved there has a bearing on the possibility of similar progress in Canada's north.

As was pointed out in an editorial in The Globe and Mail reprinted on this page the other day, Canada has far to go in the establishment of transportation facilities before tackling the development of natural resources and the establishment of industry in the Arctic.

Noting that the Arctic region abounds in gold, diamonds, oil, coal and other natural riches, the Soviet bulletin says: "People have to work there — so why not make their life enjoyable?"

With this in mind, a group of young architects headed by Nina Bantz, an experienced designer of northern towns, planned the new community of Aikhal. Construction of the town, located near rich diamond deposits, begins this year.

The first stage covering 30 acres will feature five-storey apartment houses accommodating 5,000 people, and linked by streets which are in effect broad glassed-in galleries. The streets will connect the houses with all the other buildings, forming a single urban complex. Because of permafrost all the homes and streets of the town rest on piles.

The municipal centre will have stores on the ground floor and a club with a concert hall, movie theatre, library, gym, restaurant and winter garden on the first and second floors. Nearby will be a school and the community's administration offices.

The Russians have a clear lead in the creation of comfortable living conditions in an environment of extreme cold. If Canada does undertake similar development the experience of the Soviets will be incidentally, it has been viewed at first-hand by Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing) should prove useful.

Tanzanian Rebels 'Accept' Red-faced Canadian Aid

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Official faces were red in High Places here — especially in the East Block, the Parliament Hill headquarters of Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin, when Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa came to the Capital on a State Visit.

Everything stopped for Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa even though he is not Great and Allied Grand Vizier grom Versailles or the Elysee Palace, but only a Second Vice-President from the East African Republic of Tanzania.

Still, he made quite an impact, leaving some Very Important People squirming with embarrassment.

There were perhaps 9,000 tourists, most of them Americans, standing in the blazing heat of the brassy summer morning sun, waiting for the Canadian Guards with their great brass band to march up and parade on Parliament Hill.

The Guard was due at 10 o'clock to begin Ottawa's greatest daily show of the summer-long summer festival the Capital presents for its million visitors.

They waited and waited and waited, and at 10.30 along came a State Visit.

Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa and a long black limousine at the head of a State Visit motorcade.

But as Tanzania's guest — at least not to parade, with all the glorious splendor of British Army pomp and circumstance — but only to be inspected by Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa.

The thousands of disappointed American visitors drifted off The Hill, and Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa and entourage had a brief block with his escort of RCMP cavalry to a press conference.

So right off the top he says yes, Tanzania is accepting — that is his word, "accepting"— $15,000,000 of foreign aid from Canada in the form of military assistance.

And yes, Tanzania is committed to the violent overthrow of such "colonial" regimes, as he calls them, as the Union of South Africa, Rhodesia, Portugese Mozambique and any other territory still under the white man's oppression in Africa.

And finally, yes, of course, he realized that Portugal is one of Canada's NATO allies — and if Tanzanian "Freedom Fighters" as he calls them, are busy trying to whip up revolt in South Africa and Rhodesia and and Portugese rule in Mozambique — well, that is too bad, but that is the way the African cookie crumbles.

Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa was delightfully candid.

Of course, he beamed, amused that anybody should be surprised by his candor, "we would be enormously pleased if the native population of South Africa and Rhodesia rose and smashed white rule there."

Then when he seemed to sense that perhaps some of his hosts were a bit disturbed that the military aid Canada was giving Tanzania might just possibly be used to turn South Africa, Mozambique and Rhodesia into another Congo, he put-tutted such fears.

None of the aid from Canada, and none of the Canadian military training being provided Tanzania was being used against the white "colonial" regimes.

The Canadian Government "attaches no strings" to its military aid — "we wouldn't accept it if it did." Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa was quite blunt and reassured, he smiled, nothing from Canada was going into the making of revolution.

Among the helpful things Canada has been doing for Tanzania has been the training of pilots — civilian, not military, both countries insist.

But how, Conservative Opposition MP's have asked in Parliament, if no guaranteed protection of a pilot from a passenger flight deck to the cockpit of a fighter after the training is done?

Former Conservative Defence Minister Gordon Churchill was among those Parliamentarians who questioned before the Commons recessed for the summer, attempted to cut off Canadian military aid to Tanzania.

It did not make sense, pleaded Churchill, for Canada to be training pilots for a nation dedicated to the violent destruction of the territorial interests of an ally.

Nor did it make any more sense to Gordon Churchill that training of a partner in the training of the Tanzanian armed forces was Red China.

Oh, yes, beamed Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa, the bit we got from the Chinese People's Republic?

Merely some weapons and some Chinese technicians sent in to train Tanzanians in their use.

Canada is the only western country that has maintained friendships — by any standing of proving military aid — by communist countries.

"The government is," Veterans Affairs Minister Martin scoffed a worried Commons Committee when Gordon Churchill moved, without success, to cut off Tanzanian military aid, "what our forces will be used for training purposes in any way related to any outside operations of Tanzania."

And now along comes Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa with his frank talk of Tanzanian terror in Mozambique and Rhodesia.

PM's View

Doctors and Medicare

Montreal Star

Prime Minister Pearson has made it clear that time-worn arguments against social welfare measures will not dissuade the government from acting in the public interest. The members of the Canadian Medical Association, to whom he addressed his remarks, would do well to heed Mr. Pearson's words.

The medical profession performs a noble discervice with continued attacks on the government's desire to provide equal health and medical services for all Canadians. Certainly doctors are free to differ with the government on how this plan might best be implemented in fairness to all. But the opposition by some of its members to the basic philosophy of government-sponsored care seems at times as though medicine were a vested economic interest, rather than a profession in the public good.

The government's plan is not going to undermine doctor-patient relationships, it is not going to interfere with the right of every man to choose his physician, it is not going to dissuade young men and women from considering careers in medicine and it is not going to deprive doctors of a fair economic return for their services.

The prime minister conceded that, like many other government programs, this one must strike "the right balance between individual freedom and social responsibility." But what he rightly insisted was that "the different interests of our population must give priority to the general welfare, as opposed to the private, the sectional or the occupational good," and that "if medical care is the right of all citizens, the exercise of that right in some has a duty to provide for the expression in appropriate way."

The aim of the doctors should be to work with the government to effect the most possible plan that would benefit everyone — themselves as well as their patients. Rather than regard this scheme as a declaration of war. To insist, as some have done, that the government's efforts are leading this country down the path to economic subversion is sheer nonsense.

Montreal Mayoral Meeting

Montreal Gazette

Montreal is host to 600 mayors from across Canada while the 30th annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities meets here.

These men and women represent Canadians as few others do. And in the last few years, the responsibilities they carry have become more and more important.

There are few problems affecting higher governments which do not call for local government support and understanding. The agenda for the Federation meetings attest to this.

One of the major questions to be discussed is education. As Mayor Reginald Dawson of the Town of Mount Royal, president of the federation, put it one of the biggest current problems is the high cost of education which is putting municipalities across the country in a financial strait-jacket."

Other questions to be dealt with include pollution and low-income housing. In these cases, the ethics, financial help and encouragement must come from senior governments, but inevitably the local government is left to implement the programs.

Windsor's Lesson From Detroit

Windsor Star

Violence and terror have been very close to Windsor of late, but this city has been shielded from them by the location of the Detroit River. Those few Windsorites who have witnessed the horror in Detroit emphasize one thing: it must never happen here.

"If anyone thinks that rioting can solve anything, let him take a look at Detroit," said a Windsor man who spent Tuesday in Detroit. "Everybody suffered — the white and the Negroes alike. Nobody gained."

While there is little likelihood of a race riot in Windsor, the events in Detroit should act as a spur here to every effort to improve the already good spirit of inter-racial co-operation and good will. Detroit is an example of the terrible consequences that can spring from even a minor incident in a tense situation.

On Driving Defensively

Hamilton Spectator

If there is anything good arising from terrible accidents it is the lessons they teach other people.

There is a rule that says a driver should never trust another driver. He should never assume the other fellow is going to do the right thing. He should always be on the alert for changes of speed of the car ahead and the driver's failure to give proper signals.

There is another rule that says to avoid speed when driving at night, especially on winding roads, and most definitely when the environs of a large metropolis.

No situation has ever found him at a loss for words

Lesson for Canada

Britain's Costly Welfare Program

Montreal Gazette

The British Government is to make decisions in the next few months on fundamental issues affecting the country's social welfare program. They are painful issues for any government, but since the Labor Party was responsible for both the style and substance of much of the welfare program in Britain, the decisions for them are even more agonizing.

The British have built a "welfare state" which has become the model for many countries in the western world. They had the first comprehensive universal health plan in the west, which is now 19 years old. Other programs such as family allowances and benefits for the elderly and disabled date further back. But if the foundations for the present all-encompassing social welfare scheme were laid as long ago as the turn of the century, the brick and mortar was added mainly after the Second World War.

All of the programs were carried out with certain basic principles in mind. These principles were laid down by social planners of the 1930s, and one of them was that the programs should be available to everyone and applied universally. The fear was that if the services or payments were selective, the only way to be selective was to apply a "means test" which, was felt, would be an indignity to the individual and would create an administrative jungle.

The validity of the universality principle was accepted by most political leaders (including Conservatives) for several decades. Economically, also, the principle may have been arguable, but political and other considerations have always tended to counter-balance any economic argument. That of the counter-weight has proved too powerful until now.

At this moment, the Labor Government finds itself pressed very hard economically. The economy is unstable and the growth needed to sustain huge government expenditures (of which welfare payments have become a major part) has not materialized. On top of this, there are pressures to raise welfare benefits for the elderly and the poor as well as demands to revitalize the National Health Service. More doctors and more hospitals are needed to sustain the quality of the Health Service in some cases even to keep it functioning.

Faced with the realities of a tight economy, Labor intends to do something about pockets of poverty, the Labor Party as a whole, and the family in particular. Allowances be given an increase when the best research shows that only one million of them are needy?

One man who is fighting universal treatment in Britain is Douglas Houghton, who until earlier this year was the Minister responsible for social security. Among those who support him is Patrick Gordon Walker, the man who took Mr. Houghton's place in the ministry of social security.

The debate in Britain may not be resolved in a day or a week or a month. But it is a debate which Canadians, among others, will watch with interest. The questions being asked by Mr. Houghton and others are questions of concern to social planners everywhere, not to say to those who provide the money.

The crunch has come in Britain, as it is surely coming in Canada. The alternatives are being clearly set out for the political leaders. As Mr. Houghton put it in a pamphlet he wrote recently, the choice is "getting the worst of both worlds — the Government cannot find the money out of taxation and the citizen is not allowed to pay for it (welfare) out of his own pocket."

Some halting steps towards recognition of this reality have been taken in Canada. The latest round of increases for old age pensioners, for example, was given to those who needed help the most. Health and Welfare Minister Allan MacEachen, replying to criticism from those who wanted flat increases, conceded that the universal approach has a certain simple, surface appeal. "But, I ask, is that the most effective way to provide adequate income to Canada's older people who need help the most, and is it the most responsible and conscientious deployment of the Government's financial resources?"

Pressure on the Young

Regina Leader-Post

Children in the first years of school are the victims of many of the same pressures and tensions that plague the modern day business executive.

In fact, many children develop an illness which greatly resembles the "executive ulcerdromes" of later years.

So claims Dr. German child psychiatrist, Hubert Harbauer, in a current health bulletin.

Parental pressures share the blame with school pressures, Dr. Harbauer told the European Child Psychiatry Congress in Wiesbaden recently.

Parents usually believe that the first years of school are crucial to their child's entire future. As a result, they often make their children spend these early years in an atmosphere of "insecurity and conflict-inducing overemphasis on grades and reports."

France's Statement Supports de Gaulle's "Quebec Libre"

PARIS (Reuters) — An unofficial translation of the full text of the statement issued by the French government Monday on President Charles de Gaulle's recent visit to Canada:

General de Gaulle informed the cabinet of the impressions and conclusions he drew from his recent visit to Quebec.

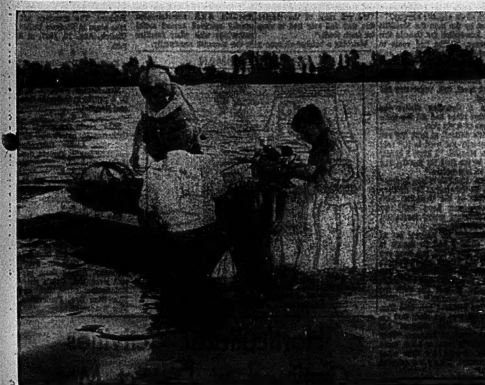
This visit, planned for a long time, took place at the invitation of the prime minister of Quebec, Mr. Daniel Johnson, and his government and on the occasion of the Montreal world's fair which the Canadian government requested the president of the republic to visit.

It was thus that the head of state—as had been planned and in company with Mr. Daniel Johnson—was able to make close contact with the authorities and population of French-speaking Canada throughout his visit.

General de Gaulle took note of the immense French fervor which was seen everywhere he went. He noted among the French - speaking Canadians the unanimous conviction that after the century of oppression which for them followed the English conquest, the second century under the system defined by the British North America Act of 1867 had not assured them liberty, equality and fraternity in their own country.

He was able to judge their determination to achieve, if possible, the evolution that Canada as a whole might eventually accomplish, to dispose of themselves in all respects, and in particular to become masters of their own progress.

He received from all sides fervent appeals addressed to France to organize and extend further and further its links with the French people of Canada, after 200 years of physical and moral separation. This is in any case foreseen by the agreements concluded in recent years between the governments of Paris and Quebec, the latter successively headed by Mr. Lesage (the former premier) and Mr. Johnson. These agreements are particularly concerned with cultural, economic, scientific and technical development which the French community needs to survive as a community on the American continent.



Noting this indescribable wave of emotion and determination, General de Gaulle unmistakably told the French-speaking Canadians and their government that France intended to help them to realize the freedom aims that they have set themselves.

At the end of his journey, after having travelled through the most moving popular enthusiasm in Montreal the second French city in the world and the magnificent universal exhibition being held there, the president as he had originally accepted to do.

Indeed, a declaration published by the Canadian federal government describing as unacceptable the wish that Quebec should be free, as General de Gaulle had expressed it, made this visit evidently impossible.

It goes without saying that France has no pretensions to leadership or a factor in sovereignty over all or part of the Canada of today.

But, since she (France) founded Canada and she alone for 1½ centuries administered it, populated it and developed it, since she owes the existence and strong personality there of a French community comprising 6,500,000 inhabitants, of whom 4,500,000 are in Quebec, she most certainly cannot either disinterest herself in the present and future fate of a population descended from her own people and admirably faithful to their country of origin, or consider Canada as a foreign country in the same sense as others.

Ford Sales, Net Income Show Gain

OAKVILLE (CP)— Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. has consolidated net income of $24,800,000 in the first six months of this year, compared with $15,-50,000 in the similar 1966 period.

Consolidated sales rose to $307,000,000 compared with $317,000,000.

Net earnings from overseas subsidiaries rose to $21,800,000 compared with $4,000,000, while Canadian sales profits were $15,000,000 compared with $11,-500,000.

Higher sales and a greater export volume for optional equipment in Australia and South Africa were the main factors in the improved over-all picture, president Karl E. Scott said in an interim report to shareholders.

The company increased its share of Canadian passenger car sales to 26.6 per cent of the total market from 24 per cent a year ago. The share of truck sales rose to 34.2 per cent from 29 per cent.

Canadian sales totalled $278,000,000 compared with $348,000,000, reflecting an increased share of the market and better sales of more expensive models, Mr. Scott said.

Red Tape Is Blamed For Shortage of Homes

TORONTO (CP)— Ernest W. Dempster, president of the Toronto Real Estate Board, Monday criticized the Ontario government's Home Ownership Made Easy program as implying, "wrongly, that private enterprise has failed and that government has had to step in."

He said private enterprise, given an end to government red tape and the slow installation of services, could meet the housing shortage. He added that real estate men would rather see more orderly and accelerated planning and more money available for speculative building.

looked askance at de Gaulle's observation that French-Canadians unanimously felt that they had not been assured liberty, equality and fraternity under Confederation.

Sources said the whole statement appeared to leave in doubt whether France sought some right to oversee Canadian policies or whether it recognized Ottawa as the government of the whole country.

While there was no objection to France seeking a special relationship with French Canada, the sources suggested that this relationship would have to steer clear of politics and stick to cultural, technical and human matters.

Earlier in the day, before the French leader's statement was issued, Prime Minister Pearson gave what appeared to be an obvious warning to France to stay out of Canada's internal affairs.

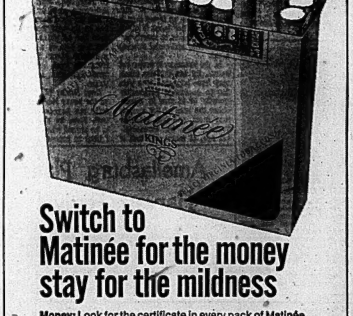
"In our country we have required neither revolution nor civil war nor outside intervention to settle our differences as Canadians," he said in a Parliament Hill speech to a Ukrainian group.

Outside Ottawa, the de Gaulle statement drew praise from a separatist leader in Montreal and condemnation from a Conservative leadership candidate in Calgary.

Pierre Bourgault, president of the separatist Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale, hailed the statement as an "example for all Quebecers of what is a sovereign government which stands up and which goes to the very bottom of things which it has started."

He praised the "courage of the French government which did not hesitate to support Gen. de Gaulle's attitude to the end."

In Calgary, Conservative Davie Fulton said the French statement meant de Gaulle was determined to do everything he could to meddle in Canadian internal politics.



"We have no control over what nonsense he may say in France, Mr. Fulton said. "I would think that from now on the proper course is for the Canadian government to ignore what Gen. de Gaulle may say in this matter and concentrate on solving our domestic problems in a manner acceptable to all Canadians."

Ottawa Housewife Not Prepared For Poverty, Dirt in Pakistan

RAWALPINDI (CP)—For six months Martha MacGill couldn't stand her own cooking. Neither could her family. .

That was when the young Ottawa housewife first arrived in Pakistan with her husband, Sgt. James MacGill, and son, Andrew.

"I just wasn't prepared for the poverty and dirt I saw when I got here. We cleaned the food three times in potash-alum permanganate before cooking it. It killed the bacteria and the taste.

"But after seeing where things came from I didn't have much of an appetite anyway."

But by the time the MacGills left Rawalpindi for Canada this summer, Martha had come to enjoy her overseas home and thought nothing about taking a weekly shopping trip through the run-down market place for fresh meat, fish, vegetables and bread.

To a Canadian visitor the market-place had all the trimmings of a pig pen.

"It's difficult at first, but you eventually get used to it," said Mrs. MacGill. "I know I hardly ate in the first six months and I'm all lost weight."

Mrs. MacGill, whose husband was on the staff of the military adviser to the Canadian high commissioner here, had only one constant worry throughout her two-year stay.

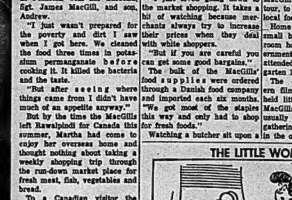
"I never let Andrew out of my sight. I had no reason to worry like I did, but once you hear the stories about beggars kidnapping white children, you just can't relax. And seeing the beggars in real life does not ease your worries."

What bothered her, said Mrs. MacGill, was the story that apparently while children are most prized by beggars. "They apparently can make more money begging than other youngsters. They're crippled first."

Aside from that and the constant care in preparing food, Rawalpindi was an enjoyable experience for the young family.

"I just loved going down to the market shopping. It takes a bit of watching because merchants always try to increase their prices when they deal with white shoppers.

"But if you are careful you can get some good bargains."



The bulk of the MacGills' food supplies were ordered through a Danish food company and imported each six months. "We got most of the staples this way and only had to shop for fresh foods."

Watching a butcher sit upon a wooden meat block, place a knife between his toes and then cut fish or meat to a customer's specifications made it difficult for some Canadian visitors, who accompanied Mrs. MacGill on a weekly shopping tour, to see why she bought any local food.

Home for the MacGills was a small but attractive three-bed room home. The Pakistan government supplied utilities. Andy attended an American kindergarten 18 miles away.

The crowded movies—Western films seldom are shown—held little interest for the MacGills and entertainment usually revolved around social gatherings with other families in the overseas community.

Successful Living

Actuarial Tables Support Marriage to Older Woman

Dear Doris: A close friend of my husband, a bachelor, recently met a lovely widow. I think they would marry, except for one thing - the age difference. She'is 43 and he is 36.

To me there is no obvious difference; she is young in outlook and they get along like a house afire. But the man worries about this; seems to feel it may make a difference later, when she is 70, say, and he is 61.

But don't men age more quickly than women? Have you any knowledge on this subject or any opinion from your learned friends?

— Matchmaker.

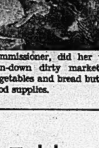
Dear Matchmaker: A girl tends to grow up faster than a boy - so in her teens a boy a bit older seems to match her in maturity and social develop ment.

In the twenties, it evens out better. By the thirties, much may have happened to a person to encourage personality growth or to slow it down; either the man or the woman may seem, and feel, older or younger than his chronological age. (I might add that if I don't want to be impolite and not answer M. but when R. sees us talking together he just turns the other way as though he wouldn't like to interrupt anything.

I'm quite sure B.'likes me. I'm 18. How can I show M. that I don't want him to ruin things, politely? I'm almost at the end of my rope.

—Natty Hung!

Dear Nearly: Loosen the noose with some slightly less eager politeness for M.; a broader smile for B. When you can, tell B. you had wanted to talk to him but couldn't get away from M. just then.



Most boys appreciate a girl who doesn't like to hurt other people's feelings.

Dear Doris: I would like to have your leaflet "Lovelier With The Years". I like the sound of that very much!

I liked your answer to the lady about the child who stole some money. You said to take the money back every week from her allowance. It was very good. — Growing Fifty.

Dear Crowding: You can be lovely as that title sounds, if you face your next half century with good cheer and follow our tips about certain beauty - backing techniques Maturity has its own special kind of charm.

Glad you approve of making the punishment fit the crime. Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster Universities, and has broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

a man reaches 36 and is still a bachelor, he is apt to be extremely choosy.)

Actuarially speaking, women live longer than men - a neat argument in favor of your friend's match. And seven years isn't such a great difference, at 35 or 40.

But the final answer simply has to lie with them: if he sees her as much older, or she sees him as a mere boy, marriage is out. I'm all for tying the knot, myself. Too much first class love goes to waste.

Dear Doris: M. (a boy) is on the heavy side and exactly my impression of "the one". Now, he always seems to be around when B. (the boy I like) is around. I find that

Ameliasburg Plans Harvest Festival

Another treat is in store for the people of Ameliasburg. Barbequed chicken, roasted corn, baked potato and pumpkin pie are on the menu for a harvest festival supper in September.

The township's Centennial Committee is planning a chicken barbeque and dance Sept. 9. Neil McMaster will oversee the outdoor cooking. Mountain View, Consecon and Redmersville Women's Institutes will help cater for the meal to be served from 5 to 9 p.m.

At 9 p.m., dancing to an orchestra under the outdoor lights will attract those with lively feet.

Tickets are available from Centennial committee members.

Horticultural Activities Outlined at District Meet

Horticultural Societies play an important role in the beautification of their respective communities.

This was revealed in reports given at the district meeting held in Gananoque Saturday. Membership in the eight societies in District three exceeds 2200 and many times that number are inspired by the example of the Societies to join in the campaign to beautify the face of Ontario.

Gananoque, Brockville, Kingston, Napanee, Collins Bay, Belleville, Picton and Stirling societies each report ed an advance in membership and accomplishments inspired by competition.

The first Horticultural Society was organized in Ontario more than a century ago and today there are 242 in the province with a membership of around 45,000. Their record of accomplishment and leadership is being compiled by Mrs. Howard Souther of Kingston, who told the gathering of society 100 at Grace United Church that the Association had been responsible for Ontario adopting the trillium as the provincial emblem.

District director Phil Dodds of Picton, urged a continuous clean-up, paint-up and plant-up campaign. Societies should seek to have councils revise and enforce anti-litter bylaws and thus help get rid of unsightly old buildings and used car bodies, he said.

Officers of the Association were unanimously re-elected with Mr. Dodds as director, Mrs. J. S. Shepherdson of Kingston and Mrs. Elsie Armstrong of Stirling as assistants and Mrs. J. McHarg of Napanee as secretary.

Major John Gilbert extended a civic welcome to Gananoque and the Society's welcome was extended by vice-president, Mrs. Gerald Scott.

The Gananoque Society provided coffee and doughnuts in the morning and there was a picnic lunch at noon. A boat cruise through the Thousand Islands and a visit to the town's beautiful Confederation Park climaxed a memorable day.

Activities of the various societies reported included a great deal of public planting, providing Royalty Crabs and other trees for public placing, placing flowers in church-es, bus trips, flower shows, placing benches in parks, distributing trees and plants to juniors, a Fragrance Garden for the Blind (Brockville), landscaping rose gardens and portable libraries of books and pamphlets on gardening topics in libraries, meetings with special speakers on a wide variety of topics, assisting other groups interested in beautification, and hanging baskets of flowers on Main street.

Ann Landers
Wonderful Girl Has One Bad Habit

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a college student (male) who feels more than a little ashamed writing to you. For years I used to die laughing at some of those nutty letters that arrived by the bushel. Now I am looking at a great girl who has just about everything in the world going for her. She is bright, attractive and has a terrific sense of humor. The only thing that bothers me about this girl is that she bites her fingernails way down to the cuticle. Her nails are so chewed up that her fingers look almost deformed.

ANN LANDERS

Would it do any good if I came right out and told her it would improve me greatly if she overcame this ugly habit? Yes or no? — JOHN.

DEAR JOHN: No. Asking her to overcome this ugly habit will not help. It would only make her more self-conscious. Nail-biting is a symptom of an unresolved emotional problem. The girl needs to unload her frustrations and anxieties — preferably on a professional ear. Let's hope she does so soon.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A faculty member at our university is a stamp collector. The only problem is he collects stamps from other people's mail before they get a chance to open it.

This sneaky little habit has led to considerable irritation among other faculty members of the staff people who frequently find personal and business letters ripped open at the upper right hand corner.

If a person who worked in a clerical capacity did this he'd get read off for his unconscionable conduct. I doubly disorderly should not exist. Several of us know who the guilty party is, but we are reluctant to incur his animosity. Any suggestions? — ANOTHER FIELD.

DEAR FRIEND: I am glad to note that you are a doctor of philosophy because your philosophy is unwell, and in need of a doctor.

Why don't you simply tell the clown to keep his hands off what doesn't belong to him? If he sees a stamp he wants he should have the courtesy to ask for it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: About the "mean" mother who insisted that her five children play in the rec room and declared the living room out of bounds because it was filled one room in perfect condition at all times. I observed a similar situation when I was a baby-sitter a few years ago. I, too, thought the mother was mean until I saw how she was doing her children a favor. Those kids grew up with a healthy respect for orderliness and the rights of others.

Those children are now grateful for the intelligence of their children. Kids, very young kids, do understand justice and respond to reasonable requests. Why also love and appreciate parents who raise them with discipline? — A.B.C.

DEAR A.B.C.: Thanks for your support. I've said it before (like a hundred times) and I'll say it again. Discipline is a special kind of love. It says, "I love you enough to put forth the energy to insist that you behave." Children should not be allowed to play in every room in the house just because they feel like it. Mothers have rights, too.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "We're so worried about Betty. We don't think she will ever learn to talk. She knows what I'm saying, but she simply won't answer me. All she will say is 'mommy' or 'daddy'."

Some children do not say a word, or not more than two or three, until they're around 3 years old. Then they may surprise everyone and start talking all at once in full sentences.

Children may understand and follow directions for months before they say even simple words. If the doctor says Betty is healthy and she seems happy and alert, don't worry. Just give her time.

On A Hot Summer's Evening, Rhubarb Sherbet Makes the Perfect Dessert

You can finish with 2 trayfuls of sherbet in your freezer if you follow along with me on this little enterprise.

It seems to me that every other garden in Canada must have a clump of rhubarb in its corner for we receive dozens of letters asking for ways of canning, jamming and dessert-ing rhubarb to use up the surplus.

My sherbet recipe produces a professional ice that is just the thing for dessert on a hot summer's evening.

RHUBARB SHERBET
(Serves 8 generously)

4 cups pink young rhubarb, washed and cut into ¼" pieces (packed)
½ cup warm water
1 cup sugar (first amount)
2 tbsps. honey
Grated rind and juice from 1 medium-large orange
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 large egg whites
1 tbsp. sugar (second amount)

In a very large saucepan, cook together, covered, 1 the cut-up rhubarb, water, 1 cup sugar, honey and grated orange rind until rhubarb is tender. Remove from heat, add orange and lemon juices and beat until smooth. I used a rotary beater. Turn into ice trays and freeze to a mush.

In a large bowl, beat egg whites with 1 tbsp. sugar until stiff. Turn rhubarb mixture out into a chilled bowl, beat with rotary beater to blend and fold into whipped whites. Turn into ice trays and freeze until firm. Serve in stemmed glasses.

Notes: 1) I tasted the sherbet before it was added to the whites and it was lovely and could be served this way but the whites make it into a proper sherbet of course. 2) This is an excellent way to use up leftover egg whites.

Newsman Says Cotnam Told Him Facts on Death 'Suppressed'

TORONTO (CP)— A Hamilton newspaperman Monday told the Parker royal commission that Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario Supervising Coroner told him in private last year that two Hamilton coroners tried to cover up the circumstances of the 1964 death of a Hamilton woman.

Peter Moon, a Hamilton Spectator reporter, was testifying about the death of Edith Somerdoles, 69, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital in Hamilton after suffering burns in a bathtub. Allegations have been made at coroner's inquest hearings that the woman died as a result of too large a blood transfusion.

Mr. Moon said Dr. Cotnam told him facts about the case were "suppressed," not by him but "as a result of the situation of Council and Dr. Rutford." Dr. W. S. Council, now retired, was chief Hamilton coroner at the time, and Dr. Harold Rutford was the coroner assigned to the death.

Mr. Moon said Dr. Cotnam also told him there was some suggestion of suppression of details of the death by the hospital.

The Parker royal commission is investigating allegations by Dr. Morton Shulman, former Metropolitan Toronto chief coroner, of government suppression of and interference with inquests.

Dr. Shulman has charged that Dr. Cotnam finally conducted an inquest into the Somerdoles death only when forced in, and that he directed the jury to return a verdict not consistent with evidence.

Dr. Cotnam has testified he did not think an inquest necessary in the death. The coroner's jury blamed no one in the death.

Mr. Moon said Dr. Cotnam told him the inquest, when held, did a great deal of good to "shake up" coroners in the Hamilton area.

Dr. Cotnam is also quoted as describing the Hamilton coroners' system as "a very serious problem," with five of 12 coroners over 70, one of them 83 and many of them clinging to "old-fashioned methods."

Earlier, Dr. Council denied recollection of several statements attributed to him in the minutes of a meeting of senior hospital officials reviewing the Somerdoles death.

The minutes indicated that Dr. Council had said neither he nor Dr. Rutford had mentioned the death outside the city. The minutes also indicated Dr. Council had stated he did not believe of the death be conveyed to the press.

"I don't say the minutes aren't right," Dr. Council testified. "But I can't remember that at all."

'Think Young' Is Hees' Advice To PC Party

TORONTO (CP) — George Hees, a declared candidate for the Progressive Conservative leadership, Monday urged the party to think young.

Mr. Hees said in a policy statement Canada is fast approaching the point where young voters will dominate the political scene.

He said he would call a conference of the party's youth leaders to discuss new ways of involving youth in Conservative activities and of attracting youth support at the polls.

Mr. Hees's proposed party budget would include a budget for youth programs, and he also advocates delegating a member of the party's parliamentary caucus to work with youth representatives.

He also called for changes in party organization, including a special election conference after the leadership convention, a national campaign committee, an annual fund-raising drive, a full-time Conservative research staff in Ottawa, an annual national policy conference open to all party members and the establishment of regional party councils.

Mr. Hees also promised a move in Parliament to make individuals' political donations tax-deductible.

CARACAS HOME WRECKED BY EARTHQUAKE — Two women step through rubble to look at ruins of home in older section of Caracas, Venezuela, that was destroyed by an earthquake.

Thousands Injured, 300 Missing In Earthquakes in Venezuela

CARACAS (AP) — The toll from earthquakes that rocked Caracas and northwest Venezuela rose to 120 known dead today with thousands injured and up to 300 estimated missing.

A devastating quake hit Saturday and a minor quake struck Caracas Monday. The only death reported in the latter was that of a man who leaped in panic from his third-floor apartment.

Tired rescue workers kept sifting through the rubble of buildings that crumpled Saturday, searching for victims. Damage was estimated at $100,000,000.

The earthquake Monday knocked down a garment factory and 10 persons were trapped in the wreckage. Panic spread temporarily among some of the 1,700,000 Caracas residents, but the tremor was not felt in some sections of the city.

The big quake hit Caracas Saturday night during a whirl of parties and celebrations of the city's 400th anniversary.

The Caracas airport reopened Monday and airlines said flights were back to normal.

Parley Urges Co-ordinated Farm Program

MONTREAL (CP) — Ministers and deputy ministers of agriculture from all 10 provinces Monday called for "a completely co-ordinated program on the part of federal and provincial governments" to deal with problems of farm income.

The officials made their statement after participating in the opening session of the annual conference of agriculture ministers and deputy ministers.

A joint statement after the closed session said the main topic of discussion had been low farm income.

Delegates had considered "the broad aspects of the farm income problem, including agricultural adjustment, rural education, the need of adequate farm management programs, marketing policies, the role of farm credit organizations and ARDA programs."

The consensus was that completely co-ordinated program on the part of federal and provincial governments was necessary, the statement said.

It added that provincial ministers and deputy ministers agreed that the problem of low farm income will be discussed in detail when they meet with J. J. Green, federal minister of agriculture, and his advisers on Wednesday.

Hospital Appoints New Staff Members

NAPANEE — The Lennox and Addington County General Hospital has two new staff members. William Malone of Smiths Falls now is on duty as chief lab technician Aug. 1, and William Clark of Maple Creek, Sask., will become the hospital physiotherapist Sept. 1. Each man is married and has two children.

Recently a third lab technician was approved for the hospital, and Mrs. Margaret Winter who has been heading the department since the untimely death of Harold Miller, said that a new department head be engaged. She stated her willingness to remain as senior technician. Mrs. Miller is the third member of the department.

Mr. Malone was trained in Trinity College, Dublin, and was a member of the Institute of Laboratory Technology before coming to America.

Mr. Clark also received his training in the U.K. and then took his training in physiotherapy in Glasgow, in the Western Infirmary School of Physiotherapy, and has taken post-graduate work in medical electricity and light electrical therapy.

When Miss Hazel Southard opened the physiotherapy department in this hospital last September, it was with the full understanding of the Board of Governors that hers would be only a temporary stay here while she was studying at Queen's University. She has completed her work there and is leaving August 11 to return to British Columbia, where she will be on the staff of the University of British Columbia, teaching physiotherapy.

Police Chief Sworn In

NAPANEE — Napanee's new police chief took up his duties Monday morning. Police Chief C. L. Boyer was sworn into office in by Magistrate R. C. Jackson at the Lennox and Addington Courts House.

Chief Paquette comes to Napanee from Tweed, where he had been chief of the two-man force for four years. Here he will lead a six-man force. He succeeds Police Chief C. L. Boyer, who resigned after seven months here to become chief of the 16-man police department in Wallaceburg.

Newspaper Moves to New Office

NAPANEE — The Napanee Beaver is moving this week to its new home on Dundas St. The Beaver has been in its present location in the Templeton Building on John St. for many years, possibly half a century, but the space there is now inadequate. The new building, purchased from the Perry brothers, will have plenty of space and will add to the comfort and convenience of the staff, and enable the paper to expand its printing business.

The only drawback is that the public may miss the convenience of the present location, which is next door to the Post Office. The new location is two blocks distant.

The Beaver will publish Tuesday this week, instead of Wednesday.

Help Asked To Locate Girl, 13

BRANTFORD (CP) — Police Monday appealed to the public for help in locating 13-year-old Gay Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Hayes, who had been missing from her home here since Sunday.

Police said the girl was last seen on Highway 24 near the northern city limits. When she left home she was wearing black shorts, a blue and white sleeveless jersey, and faded running shoes.

Ontario to Pay for Centre For Emotionally Disturbed

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government will assume operating costs of a new treatment centre for emotionally disturbed children at Sudbury, Health Minister Dymond's office announced Monday.

The new centre will be an expansion of a community psychiatric hospital operated in conjunction with the Sudbury - Algoma sanatorium.

The centre is one of eight planned in the province, some of which will be operated by the health department and some by local bodies such as the Sudbury Community Psychiatric Hospital.

Dr. Dymond's statement said the government would assume all "reasonable" costs for construction of the 65 - bed centre "because of the special nature of the services to be provided for this region."

A health department spokesman said similar aid is planned for new treatment centres at Hamilton and Ottawa, where the projects will be handled by local groups.

Other regional centres are under development in Kingston, Toronto, London, Windsor and Port Arthur. In all cases the government will foot all operating costs.

The new regional centres will provide out - patient day - care and in - patient services for mentally ill and mentally retarded children, including those suffering from related problems such as vision and hearing defects.

GAME COSTS MORE

NAIROBI (AP)—The Kenya government has announced 25-to-40-per-cent rise a big-game hunting fees. A rhino or elusive leopard—forget someone—will cost about $200. Small game such as Thomson's gazelle may still be had for $5.

Romney Rebuked For Riot Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mike Mansfield, Senate Democratic leader, has rebuked Michigan Republican Governor George Romney, saying political statements about rioting are "devoid of meaning and utterly useless."

Romney said Monday that President Johnson "played politics" when rioters took to the streets in Detroit and the governor sought federal troops to deal with them.

Neither Johnson, the White House or Democratic Party Ramsey Clark would comment directly on the Romney accusation. Thus, Mansfield became the top-ranking Democrat to counterattack Romney — but he did not mention his own party.

He urged an end to political talk about cities in turmoil.

"I think both sides are guilty of playing politics with an issue that is too explosive to handle in that manner," Mansfield said in an interview. "The playing of politics should not be toleriated and will be severely criciated by the American people."

Earlier at a news conference, Johnson avoided direct attack on Romney.

Johnson said he asked his newsconference on civil disorders to determine what happened in Detroit, why it happened, and what can be done to prevent a recurrence.

"Basically, I do not have knowledge of the whys and the wherefores and causes," he said. Johnson also said: "I don't think anything is to be gained by trying to justify or explain" his troop decisions. The White House said the president has no intention of criticizing Romney.

Asked for yes to the records, the White House press Secretary, George Christian, said when reporters asked for comment on the Romney charges. Christian said he did not know what Romney referred to in his assertion of "complete and absolute disregard" by the White House.

Clark, an administration adject man with Romney during events preceding troop deployment, declined comment on the governor's charges.

DEPLORES SPENDING

EDMONTON (CP)— The Canadian government has developed a dangerous "spending complex," Donald Fleming, former Conservative finance minister said Monday. Mr. Fleming, a candidate for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party told the Macdonald - Cartier Club: "Our spending has increased from $7,000,000 to $11,000,000,000 which is unheard of in peacetime."

Yacht Hotel for 9 Rangers

NAPANEE — Nine excited girls of this area left Napanee Monday morning for Expo, planning to return Wednesday evening. They are the Napanee Rangers, and are in charge of Mrs. J. Morden, their leader.

Not the least cause of their excitement is the fact that their headquarters during their stay will be aboard the Kayjay II, a yacht belonging to Allan Campbell of Napanee Industries, who will welcome them aboard and then leave them to their own devices.

Taking part in the adventure are Kathy Alkenbreck, Margaret Belair, Anne Barrett, Judy Mokenbeck, Barbara Russell, Linda Racine, Nancy Poole, Nancy Owen and Heather Dean.

Four of the girls returned only last Friday from two weeks at Heritage Camp in the Thousand Islands.

The Desoronto Rangers will visit Expo late in August.

Propane Gas Fire Quelled

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Firemen brought under control Monday what they said could have been a disastrous fire involving a 500-gallon propane gas tank in downtown Kelowna.

One man was badly burned. He was identified as Edward Arthur Lange, in his early thirties. There was no immediate damage estimate.

Police said the fire in a 500-gallon tank in the Okeefe Co-op cold storage plant could have blown up an entire city block if it exploded.

Sweden Takes Legal Guilt Out of Divorce Proceedings

By Sydney J. Harris

Apropos of my recent piece on taking the legal "guilt" out of divorce — which turns most divorce litigants into liars, bullies, spies or hypocrites — a sociologist at Harvard has called to my attention a brand-new book called "Sex and Society in Sweden."

Written by Birgitta Linner, a Swedish lawyer and founder of the Stockholm Family Counseling Bureau, the book clarifies many of the misconceptions and distortions we in America have had about family life and sexual standards in modern Sweden.

For one thing, the Swedish attitude toward sex is not as simply permissive as we have been led to believe by some sensational writers; indeed, the country's approach to sex, divorce, abortion and illegitimacy, is far more basic, thoughtful and relevant to actual conditions in the modern world than ours is.

In the area of divorce, Sweden has adopted precisely the attitude I suggested: Unless most countries, where one of the partners in a divorce proceeding must be found at fault, Sweden grants divorces without either party having to be considered culpable. Yet the divorce rate there is only one in six, while the U.S. rate is one in four.

"The Swedish system," she writes, "recognizes that marital conflicts may be irreconcilable, and termination of the relationship the best solution. Without the necessity to establish guilt, there tends to be less expression of bitterness or aggression, and fewer deep psychological scars for the persons involved.

"Partners," she goes on, "can come to understand, and not resent, each other's standpoints, even though reconciliation is impossible or undesirable. Two people who secure divorce under such conditions are better equipped to face their new situations and find fulfillment in life."

In situations where "primary blame" is customarily laid on one partner, infidelity is often the difficulty. But, as she says, "Swedes are increasingly aware that infidelity need not always be the fault of the unfaithful party. The blame can be mutual, even though the act is not. Infidelity is often symptomatic of a disturbance in the marital relationship which should not be dealt with by superficial condemnation of one partner alone."

Her long experience in family counseling has convinced the author that "people seldom get divorced irresponsibly." Rather, she is often amazed that some people have held on to their marriages as long as they have — largely because of fear of the social consequences.

Mobile Samaritans Use Two-way Radio To Aid Stranded Highway 401 Motorists

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The ancient spirit of the good Samaritan is abroad again, nightly plying the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway in the Quinte district.

It has received electronic-age impetus from two - way radio.

It is being manifested by a small band of individuals whose sole purpose is to seek out and assist travellers in difficulties.

They have much in common with that first, biblical, traveller's aid. Their task is a matter of human impulse, performed at their own expense and almost anonymously.

Collectively they are known under the radio call signal of RESQ.

Individually, they are nine local men whose shared interest is the growing network of citizen's band radio communications led them to innovate something new in human relations.

It started last fall when Willard Sauinier, of 134 Victoria Avenue — a flight engineer with the RCAF at Trenton since 1956 — conceived the idea of amateur automobile patrol on the freeway.

Together with several friends, he believed there was a need to help motorists in difficulties on a highway where the human factor rates second to the machine.

Willard says the group received little encouragement from other organizations which felt there was little demand for such a service.

However, the group decided to go ahead and in early June launched its first run.

The idea was for cars to start simultaneously from the Trenton and Marysville free way links.

Radio contact was maintained with operators in Belleville and Trenton ready to act on the requests of any motorists found stalled on the highway.

"That first night we helped six people," recalls Willard, "so we were convinced the service was necessary."

The service has been rolling ever since, with the mobile Samaritans patrolling the freeway each night and weekends while base operators sit waiting by their citizen-band sets.

The patrols are ready with jumper cables, to act as guides, call tow trucks or assist with on-the-spot mechanical problems.

"If a fellow even has a flat tire we'll stop and give him a hand," says Willard.

A night's patrolling could mark up as much as 100 miles between 7 p.m. and 10:30 p.m but the expense is met by the group.

However, members also recognize this isn't the most kindly of all possible worlds and have set up a radio procedure to guarantee their own safety.

When approaching an automobile that appears in difficulties, the mobile operator calls its licence number back to home base.

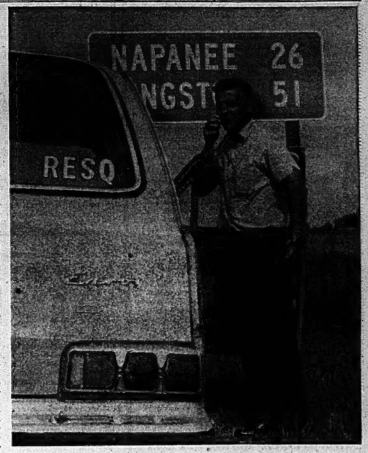
If he does not send a second message within five minutes, the base operator immediately calls police.

So far, there's been no emergencies — only pleasantness. We've helped numerous people," says Willard, "and everyone seems to be grateful for it."

A number of letters testify to the reaction of most motorists when presented with a helping hand.

"You can't imagine what great help you were to me . . ." wrote one car - owner. "I would have been in a real mess if you hadn't happened along."

Maintaining the service with a nine-man roster now has grown to demanding proportions but the group shows only vigorous enthusiasm, says Willard.



"We started it as a centennial project — but it's come to be a full time job," he muses.

But the sense of achievement comes in being of assistance— when it's most unexpected, most necessary.

As the stranded doctor from Hagersville, whom Willard took to his Belleville home to solve travel problems, later wrote:

"The idea of forming a voluntary patrol is certainly unique and without doubt a very worthwhile project. If every community could follow your example, directing their energies into some similar form of help to their fellow men, the world would be, indeed, a very happy place."

"Letters like that make it all worthwhile," concludes Willard.

Highway Help

Ready to offer a helping hand on the highway these days is RESQ — group of private individuals like Willard Sauinier who patrol Macdonald - Cartier Freeway seeking motorists with problems.

Seemingly lifeless, swimmers float on the surface of the pool. This practice, called drown-proofing, helps the person in the water to relax and rest.

Community Project

Swim Program Climaxed with Awards Night

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

If it is possible to pick a favorite summer sport, swimming is probably acknowledged as exactly that. In Belleville, despite the nearness of a number of lakes, rivers and excellent parks the Kinsmen Pool attracts a multitude of children and adults every afternoon and evening.

For the vacationing student who has no means of transportation to the natural swimming spots in the area, the pool is handy.

Built in 1951, the Kinsmen pool has been accommodating families for 16 years in the warm months of July and August. Community subscriptions started it off and the Kinsmen Club of Belleville has kept it going since then. The pool has annual capital expenditures of $3,000.

For six years it has been managed by Jim Celland from Sarnia. The pool's staff consists of John Seldon, the assistant manager, and seven swimming instructors. All are qualified for the chore of guarding children who visit every afternoon. All are holders of lifeguard medallions and teaching certificates for swimming.

The pool is open 10 weeks every year but it is suspected that the season will be extended to three months in the near future.

The advantage of a swimming pool over beaches and parks is the swimming instruction that is offered to people interested in water safety and care.

Beginner instruction is available to any Belleville youngster over seven years old. This course is offered free. About 175 children take advantage of the classes with one session beginning in July, the other in August.

Just recently inaugurated, the parents' and tiny tots' classes teach swimming skills to both age groups. About 40 adults and 40 children attend the courses.

This class allows the parents to enter the water with their sons and daughters and relay instructions from the swimming instructor. The lessons help the child become accustomed to motion and floating in the water.

The Kinsmen pool has advanced swimming classes leading to the junior red cross badge, the intermediate red cross badge and the senior red cross badge. These lessons allow for progression in swimming skills, endurance and overall aptitude in life saving.

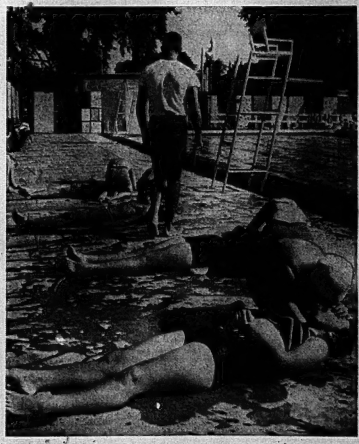
A minimum age of 13 governs the entrants trying for their senior red cross. After completing this the youngster takes his life-saving training at 14 graduating with a bronze medallion.

He then goes on to earn a bronze cross at 15 and an award of merit at 16. All the life-saving training is carried on under the supervision of the pool staff.

Two of the instructors at the Kinsmen Pool are members of Red Cross leader patrol. These members have earned the highest life saving certificate of the Red Cross.

All swimming and training classes are carried out under the Canadian Red Cross water safety division the, Canadian National Life Guard Association and the Canadian Royal Life Saving Society.

The Kinsmen Pool is the scene of many swimming shows and competitions. The Eastern Ontario open age swimming meet is held annually, sponsored by the Belleville Kinsmen Club and the Belleville recreation committee. Trophies are presented at these meets.



Awards nights are held at the end of July and August when about 400 various swimming diplomas, crests and medals are given to deserving youngsters.

The season ends with an annual water show when the pool invites some of Canada's top aquatic personalities to perform.

Sentries Supply Swimming Security

One of many swimming instructors at the Kinsmen pool stands atop a lifeguard stand beside the water's edge to watch for swimmers who might be in trouble. The pool was packed last night as children took advantage of the July awards' night free swim.

Life-saving Practice

Youngsters in the senior class are examined on direct artificial respiration by Ronald Post, a swimming instructor from Trenton.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Sports Editor

Gold medal winners at the Pan American Games in Winnipeg take the centre spot in the tri-pedestal; receive the kisses and/or congratulations of officials, listen to their national anthem then receive the plaudits of their fellow countrymen.

Some relax in tears; others in broad smiles of victory and triumph. This is the big moment. Behind them lie months of rigorous training. Ahead beckons the challenge to new triumphs.

The other day a tight-lipped unsmiling Canadian, Harry Jerome stood proudly on the centre pedestal and received a gold medal. He has won the 100 metres by the measurement of a hair on his dunky chest.

Few if any of his cheering countrymen knew what winning the coveted medal meant to Jerome. None but the winner knew what was going on in his mind.

It was a supreme moment for him and once was called a "quitter."

The gold medal second like a neck splendid more than the winning of the 100 metres. It was the climax to one of the most tremendous comebacks in the history of track and field, second only perhaps to the day when he tied the world record for the 100 yards.

Prior to the 1960 Olympics Jerome was the co-holder of two world records at the time, the 100 in 9.3 and 14 seconds for the 100 metres.

During the Olympics 100 metres run, Jerome pulled up suddenly and finished a poor last. The wolves in the critics bleachers pounced on him. They called him a "quitter." Again in the British Empire Games in Australia he pulled up in the 100 yards final and finished last.

Again the critics blasted "quitter." What they did not know at the time was that Jerome had suffered a serious injury and a few weeks later underwent surgery on a large muscle that had torn away from a thigh.

They said he would never run again. But they did not know Harry Jerome. Formerly an outspoken type with a touch of arrogance in his manner, Harry had plenty of time during a lengthy hospital stay to review himself and his past.

He decided to concentrate on a comeback. He knew much lay ahead of him. He knew that no one but a fellow named Jerome could achieve the seemingly impossible. He shed the personal traits that had embittered fellow athletes and the press. He became a dedicated young man who knew he had the potential to regain the honors he had lost and to quiet his critics by proving they were wrong.

The first milestone on the comeback trail was the 1964 Olympics when he won a bronze medal. He finished fourth in an off-beat event the 200 metres.

This was it, he thought. The comeback has started and with it a muzzle for the critics. Nothing truer could be said.

It was a new determined Jerome that flashed to a 100 yards victory in 9.1 seconds at Edmonton a year ago, regarded as a shot of the world record. He still holds the 100 metres world mark.

His sensational victory in the 100 metres at the Pan-American Games last week which he won by a stride-length margin marked the glorious climax of the comeback Jerome promised himself.

Today a sports-minded Canada salutes Harry Jerome, the critic-styled "quitter" who had the guts, courage, will and desire to win and is the doig stagod one of the most incredible comebacks in track and field History.

Defeat Clippers

Gray Sparks Ellis 3-1 Win

Belleville Ellis' kept their slim lead down the home stretch of the Quinte-KASA softball schedule, as they defeated Kingston LaFontaine Clippers 3-1 last night.

Eldon Gray jockeyed the locals to their win with a fine two-hitter, struck out eight and in the winning run. Grey, who has fashioned similar victories all season, faced just 30 men over the route. He threw third strikes past 11 and did not walk a man.

The win gave Belleville 25 points, good enough for first place ahead of Kingston's Lake Bus team.

The victory grabbed an early 1-0 lead in the second when second-baseman Ken Huff slammed a double and scored on a pair of long fly balls.

Paul Meraw banged a third-inning base hit with two out, and Terry Leagp advanced him to third with news of the same. A wild pitch enabled Meraw to race home.

In the same consecutive base hits by Ralph Plane and Carl Boomhower put Belleville in good scoring position. Eldon Gray took advantage of the situation with a two-out double that scored both runners, and won the ball game for him.

The home team's inability to mount any threats in the late innings made the two runs stand up.

Elwood Hughes tolled the distance for the Clippers. He gave up 10 hits, three of them for extra bases, struck out eight and walked two.

Larry Mavety smashed a triple and single, and Terry Leagp had a double and single, to pace the Belleville batsmen. Carl Boomhower had two base hits, while Ralph Plane, Jack Jury, Eldon Gray and Paul Merow also hit.

Kingston Nips Lombanks

Bags-Loaded Triple Won It

A bases-loaded pinch-hit triple in the fifth inning carried Kingston to a 6-5 decision over Belleville Lombanks in a EOBA senior contest marred by six-innings by darkness last night.

The first place Kingston team trailed in the early going but took advantage of errors by the visitors to grab the victory.

In the disastrous fifth, two errors and a walk by Lombank pilother Rodger Hunter loaded the bases. Darrie of Kingston came in as a pinch hitter and swatted the triller, and later scored himself.

Belleville jumped into a 1-0 lead in the second, and added three more tallies next frame, as Larry Mavety smashed a home run with two men on base. The losers added another run in the fourth inning, but in the fifth Kingston's four runs pulled them even.

Druce, Kingston first baseman, singled in the sixth and stole second. He raced all the way home when Belleville's shortstop errored on a ground ball; and that was the ball game.

Johnson hurled the first five frames for the winners, and Johnson relieved him in the sixth and struck out the side. Johnson allowed just two hits, including two homers. He struck out three and walked two.

Hunter gave up only four hits in taking the loss. Errors by his mates, and lack of control as he sent three players to first by hitting them, cost him the game. He struck out six and walked six.

Don Forsythe slammed a home run and double, Larry Mavety a homer, and Rodger Hunter and Pat Asselstine two singles each, for Belleville. John McMahon also hit safely.

Kingston hitters were Druce, Goodridge, McCready and Lehman.

Surtees to Compete

TORONTO (CP) — England's John Surtees will enter the grand prix of Canada Aug. 27 at Mosport, Ont., it was announced Monday. Other noted drivers who will compete here include Scotland's Jim Clark, England's Graham Hill, Scotland's Jackie Stewart, Mexico's Pedro Rodriguez and defending champion Jack Brabham of Australia.

Two For Canada

Unique?; But They're Gold Medals

WINNIPEG (CP) — Cycling strategy and two minutes of thrashing enterprise here brought Canada two unique Pan-American Games gold medals.

Never before in Pan-Am competition had a Canadian cyclist or a male swimmer hit for the big prize.

But that was before Marcel Roy, a 25-year-old rider from Lac Megantic, Que., blazed out in the 1,000-metre time trial and Ralph Hutton, the perennial bridesmaid from Ocean Falls, B.C., dived in for the 200-metre backstroke title.

It was Roy's medal and glory in the cycling, but it was Tyne Landry, 20 - year - old student from St. Romuald, Que., who fashioned the victory.

Landry blazed ahead of the pack, setting the pace and drawing out the other riders. Roy lay back. Then, with four miles to go, Landry reduced his speed by 30 seconds—almost incredibly — and Roy made his move.

The other riders were caught flat - footed.

"It was more or less like a training session," Roy said later. Vincente Chancay of Argentina finished second; the third - place medal went to Herberto Diaz of Mexico.

Landry? He finished sixth in the first international competition. Since Mont of Cookeville, Ont., was 11th in the field of 17. Jules Beland of Drummondville, Que., was 14th.

Hutton, who has hungered for years for just "one crummy gold medal," got it Monday night, upsetting Charles Hickcox of the U.S., who had the fastest qualifying time in the heats.

"I knew one of these days R was gonna happen," he said.

Five times in the last year, twice last weekend, the husky swimmer from Ocean Falls, B.C., has chased someone else to a world record and had to settle for a second - place silver medal.

Elaine Tanner, 18, of Vancouver, the darling of the wet set, scratched from today's 400-metre individual medley to concentrate on the freestyle relay with Marion Lay of Vancouver, Sandra Nash, Sandy Gilchrist, Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont.

Marilyn Corson of Parry Sound, Ont., will swim in the 400 individual medley.

Hutton goes in the 1,500-metre event along with another Ocean Falls flash, Sandy Gilchrist.

Out at the track, Canada's big guns will be Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver and Janet Maddin of Winnipeg in the women's 200 metres.

For the men in the 200, Canada will have Don Domansky of Port Arthur, Ont., and Harry Jerome of Vancouver. Jerome has been the only man to break into the U.S. clean sweep of track and field gold medals with his victory in the 100-metre dash.

Bill Crothers, the flying pharmacist from Markham, Ont., will go in the 800-metre run.

Canada went on the silver standard Monday, picking up five second - place medals. She also won two bronzes.

The Canadian men's relay swim team — Gilchrist, Hutton, Rob Keating of Lethbridge, Alta., and Ron Jacks of Vancouver - swam the 800-metre freestyle in 8:17.6, but were edged behind the U.S. which won the gold in 8:05.3. Argentina came third in 8:19.45.

Doug Rogers, 6-4 giant from Vancouver, lost a decision in heavyweight judo to Aden Coage of New York. The bronze medal two - way awarded went to Eulalio Domasco Nicolas of the Netherlands - Antilles and Jose Luis Turiotte of Argentina.

Pat Bolger of Dutton, Ont., took the silver in the judo featherweight division, losing to Akiro Ono of Brazil. Larry Fukuhara of the U.S. and Yvedom Lale Gaston Castro of Cuba hung in for the bronze.

Middle - heavyweight Paul Bjarnason of New Westminster, B.C., lifted 422½ kilos—821½ pounds—in weightlifting, but not enough to take the gold from Philip Grippaldi, the U.S. champ who hoisted 473 kilos—1,047 pounds. The bronze went to Andres Martinez of Cuba who totalled 417½ kilos or 920½ pounds.

Jim Elder of Aurora, Ont., rode Rare Doe to a total score of 49.80 points in the Three-Day Event, the most gruelling equestrian event on the program. Mike Plue of the U.S. won the gold with 52.4 points and his team-mate, Mike Page, took the bronze with 21.65.

Canadian swimmers have picked up 23 medals and divers two, accounting to almost half of Canada's 56 medals—seven gold, 24 silver and 25 bronze.

Shannonville Captures S. H. Pennant

Shannonville prevented Latta from jumping into sole possession of second place in the South Hastings league with a 5-1 win over Latta last night. The game was the final one in the regular schedule, and on Wednesday Read will meet Latta to decide second place.

The winners added six points ahead of Latta and Read in the standings.

Bob Detlor and Larry Lewis combined for a six-inning three-hitter on the Shannonville mound. The latter got up up just one hit, walked two and struckout two, while the latter allowed two hits, fanned three and walked a pair.

Bob Smith took the loss, giving up 11 hits, striking out two and walking two.

Rod Hill, G. Barberstock and Dave Lewis led the Shannonville lineup with a double and single each. Larry Lewis slammed a pair of base hits, Mike Brand clouted a homer, and Wayne Sager and Bill Barberstock had singles.

Doug Rollins doubled and Rose Parks and Garry Ray singled, for the losers.

Minor Softball

Belch Construction outlasted the Aces—15-11 in bantam and Vaughan Auto wiped out the Browns 20-1 in squirt, in BMSA contests that were formerly rained out.

In the tyke semi-final playoffs, Kinsmen Hawks whipped Pirates 31-7, Canadians edged Bowl-O-Drome 17-15, and the Bobcats clawed Tigers 18-11 and Rangers defeated Leafs 30-9.

Ottawa Over Saskys

Riders Unhorse Roughies 20-7

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders came to life with two fourth - quarter touchdowns to defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders 20-7 Monday for their first win of the CFL exhibition game schedule.

After three rather dull periods, Ottawa quarterback Dave Jackson finally started to hit the mark on his passes and improved blocking gave him more time to get the ball away.

Jackson passed to set up a 25-yard touchdown run by halfback Don Gilbert then threw a 30-yard touchdown pass to flanker Whit Tucker on the first play of the game.

Moe Racine booted both converts, added a 32-yard field goal and a single on a wide field-goal attempt. Bill Cline got two singles on 55 and 46-yard punts.

Place - kicker Jack Abendschan got all Saskatchewan points with 15 and 27-yard field goals and a single on a wide field goal attempt.

Neither team managed much in the way of offence until Ottawa started moving in the fourth quarter.

Ottawa wound up with 279 yards total offence, 104 on the ground, and 175 in the air. Saskatchewan got only 248 yards, 68 on the ground and 180 through the air.

Gilbert led Ottawa's rushing with 46 yards in eight carries, 38 of them on two fourth-quarter runs.

Jackson completed 14 of 30 passes for 183 yards, and was on the receiving end of a 12-yard pass from Gilbert.

Rookie Margene Adkins caught four passes for 56 yards and missed as many more when Jackson was off target early in the game. Tucker also caught four, for 40 yards.

Veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster had a bad day passing, completing only four of 15 for 85 yards and had three intercepted. His gave way to rookie Jesse Kaye of Tampa University in the middle of the third quarter. Kaye also had trouble locating receivers and was good on only four of 11 attempts for 35 yards.

Fullback George Reed carried the brunt of Saskatchewan's attack with 54 yards in 11 carries.

Rosary Wins Title

Defeating Peterborough 5-4 in the third game of the series, Belleville Holy Rosary won the EOBA Eastern league championship here last night. They have drawn a bye into the EOBA Major playoffs and will meet the winners of Oshawa - Peterborough in the finals.

A six-run explosion in the fifth innings tucked the win away for Rosary. They scored singles in the first and second but the Petes grabbed the lead in the third with a four-run outburst.

John Mulvihill hurled masterful 4t-hit, baseball inning six walks and striking out six even down. Neither team committed an error.

F. Hughes started on the mound for the Petes and lasted five innings when the Rosary bats got to him. Guthrie took over and stopped the rally.

The Rosary hitters came up with a dozen clouts with Ron Andrews leading the hit parade with two homers.

Harold Jones had a double and two singles with Mulvihill helping his own cause with a double and single. Mike Burke hit a double with Bill Coughlin, Danny Laplante, Dennis Coulson and Jim Richardson doing singles.

Hughes paced the Petes' hitters with two singles. Winslow hit a triple and single with Murray, Garvey and Evans doubling.

Score Was 2-1

Stinsons Nip Cheesemen

Stinson's jumped into sole possession of second place in the Quinte-Kingston Commercial softball league standings with a hard-fought 2-1 decision over Black Diamond last night.

The two teams were formerly tied at 22 points each with Lightfoots, six points behind front running City Hotel.

The victory moved the Tibi Club edged Stewart Warner 2-1.

Black Diamond jumped into a first inning 1-0 lead, but then found the going rough at the hands of Stinson's pitcher, Larry Hull.

The winners managed both of their runs in the fourth.

Sonny Hollway hurled as well as Hull, but his errors by wile mates were costly.

Both pitchers gave up only three hits in their seven innings duel.

Hull fanned two and walked one while Hollway struck out eight and walked a pair.

Frank Donovan, Paul Stinson and Ken Genereaux had single for the winners while Ross Empey, Jack Francis and pitcher Holiway hit for the Cheesemen.

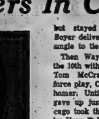
Pakistan Plays Well

LONDON (CP) — Pakistan, whose Hanif Mohammad scored 187 but not in nine hours, Monday scored 354 in reply to England's 369 at Lords. When England went in again, aggressive bowling enabled Pakistan to capture four wickets for only 66 runs. At the close England was 121 for 4. Today is the final day of the match.

Colavito Homers In Chisox Debut; McCormick First 14 Winner



By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rocky Colavito delivered his first hit for the Chicago Sox Monday night and made a two-run homer in the 10th inning that beat Cleveland 4-2.

Before the game, Lolo Tiant was saying he hoped to stick pitches to throw to Colavito, who was traded by the Cleveland Indians Saturday. Tiant apparently didn't.

"I would imagine he would," said the Cuban, who has played on the same team for three years. He was throwing me all kinds of stuff all night. Finally, I hit his fast ball. I knew it was gone immediately."

In the other American League games Tuesday, Boston blanked Minnesota 4-0 and Kansas City upended New York 8-6. California, Detroit, Baltimore and Washington were not scheduled.

ROCKY COLAVITO

The White Sox were trailing 2-1 with two out in the ninth, when Ken Boyer delivered a run - scoring single to tie it up.

Then Wayne Causey led off the 10th with a single and, after Tom McCraw bunted into a force play, Colavito hit his sixth homer, high, yet manageable, to left field to put four hits as Chicago took the lead on a homer by Vern Fuller and a run-scoring single by Leon Wagner.

Lee Stange pitched masterfully for the Red Sox, retiring the first 20 batters to face him before Harmon Killebrew ended his no-hitter dreams with a two-out single in the event. In all, Stange gave up three hits and didn't give up a walk while striking out three.

Carl Yastrzemski provided most of the Boston power, hitting a three - run homer in the third. Stange himself accounted for the other Boston run with a sacrifice fly in the fourth.

Charlie Smith, turned from here to goat for the Yankees, first hitting a homer that tied the game 6-6 in the eighth, then fumbling a grounder in the ninth that paved the way to Kansas City's winning runs.

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mike McCormick became the National League's first 14-game winner Monday when Jack Hiatt's grand slam pinch homer gave him an 8-4 victory over Pittsburgh.

Bo Belinsky held the New York Mets to two singles and beat them 3-1 Monday night with ninth inning help from Larry Sherry as the Houston Astros stretched their season-high winning streak to seven games.

St. Louis - Cardinals, meanwhile, ran their league lead to 4½ games by drubbing Chicago Cubs 8-3; Atlanta trimmed Cincinnati 5-2 and Philadelphia downed Los Angeles 4-2 in 11 innings.

McCormick, 14-5 is tied for to a 4-4 standstill through eight innings.

In the bottom of the eighth Hiatt pinch hit for McCormick and cleared the bases with his homer off reliever Elroy Face.

McCormick, 14-5 is tied for the major league victory lead with Jim Lonborg of the Red Sox.

Belinsky brought his record to 3-6 and lowered his blown-up ERA to 4.76 by stymying the Mets despite a shaky start.

He was clipped for two runs in the first inning on two walks, an error, Tommy Davis' single and a base - loaded wild pitch.

Belinsky issued a two - out walk in the second, then set down 19 straight batters before Davis singled to open loading off the ninth. After walking Ron Swoboda, Bo was lifted and Sherry came in to snuff out the threat.

Ron Davis' leadoff homer triggered a two - run Houston burst in the first inning and Bob Lillis' run - scoring single in the fourth broke the 2-2 tie.

Lou Brock and Orlando Cepeda knocked in four and three runs, respectively, powering The Cards to their sixth straight victory. Right - hander Ray Washburn was the winner with relief help from Hal Woodeschick.

Brock smacked a three - run homer, Cepeda hit a two-run blast and each stroked a sacrifice fly in St. Louis' 13-hit barrage.

The Braves struck for three runs in the fourth inning and added two more in the fifth on Clete Boyer's 15th homer in snapping a three - game losing string and moving past Cincinnati into third place. Knuckleballer Phil Niekro went the distance for Atlanta, scattering nine hits.

Pinch hitter Tony Taylor singled home the first - breaking run in the 11th inning at Los Angeles and pinch hitter Billy Cowan's sacrifice fly gave the Phillies an insurance run as they ended the Dodgers' four-game win string. Gene Oliver homered for Philadelphia and singled to start the 11th inning rally.

Enters Metric Mile

Hutton Eyes 2nd 'Crummy Gold Medal'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ralph Hutton, with the "crummy gold medal" he's been seeking for a year tucked away in his duffle bag, swims the metric mile tonight in hopes of getting another.

He goes against Mike Burton, the 19 - year - old Carmichael, Calif., boy who held the world record for the distance and will have probably to cut at least 46 seconds off his best time ever the distance to do it.

But after upsetting Chuck Hickcox, 18, Vancouver, Ariz., in the 200-metre backstroke final at the Pan - American Games, Hutton's spirits are sky high.

"I knew I had a chance in the 200 back, anyone in the final has that. But of my last events I figured I could do better in the 1,500."

Beaming like a chubbie cat as he walked to the presentation stand to receive his first individual gold medal in four major international swim meets, Hutton was given the biggest cheer of the Games by a standing - room crowd of more than 3,000 fans.

Five times in the last year, twice last weekend, the husky native of Ocean Falls, B.C., has chased someone else to a world record. After seconds, and three times at the British Empire Games in Kingston, Jamaica, last summer, he made no bones about wanting to cut the bridesmaid role and win a gold.

At Kingston he said: "All I want is one crummy gold medal."

After his weekend activity, the 19-year college student, remarked:

"I know one of these days it's gonna happen. I'm swimmin' every . . . but let's face it, the competition here is a bit better, too."

The fun - loving swimmer, pure, product of the mixed, popular among team-mates and opponents at the Games, couldn't contain himself after his gold-medal swim.

"I just kept thinking all day about the race.

"I've been working a long time for this. You wouldn't believe how much I thought about winning the race and telling myself I could win it.

"I knew Hickcox was a tough boy. I was nervous at the start. The only time I was more nervous was last Sunday night at the start of the 400 freestyle. I figured I could win that one. I don't think I might have had kept my eye on the Americans.

"Tonight it was different, they were both on one side and I could watch them with no trouble. I knew how Jim Shaw of Toronto would race because he told me."

Belleville Track, Field Club Results

The Belleville Playground Track and Field Club held the first of three series in Picton last night. The second meet of the series is scheduled for Trenton tonight.

In boys under eight class, Allan Brooks was second in the long jump, third in standing jump.

Greg Hoofford won the under ten standing jump and second in the long jump. In under 12 Keith Parry won the long jump and standing jump. Under 14 Dan Hoofford was second in standing jump and under 16 Frank Johnston won both standing and long jumps.

In the under eight girls division, Wilma Wimpey won the standing and long jumps; under 10 Leslie Crowe took the standing and long jumps; under 12 Robin Mann won the long jump and was second in the standing jump.

Team selections are made by Alan Cutler and Bernard Howe coach at the Belleville Track and Field Club.

Departmental Softball

Electric Motors took advantage of early errors and survived a four - homer slugfest to edge The Intelligencer 8-7 in the final regular - scheduled game for the Departmental Softball League last night.

Seven postponed games are to be played, including Fire Department at Police tonight and Electric Motors at Police Thursday before playoffs.

None of the four playoff positions have been settled. Following is the point standings, with games left to play in brackets: Fire Department 16 (2), Combines 15 (4), Intelligencer 14 (2), Electric Motors 12 (2), Police Dept. 7 (4).

In last night's tilt, the Motormen fell behind 3-0 in the top of the first but scored four in their half and led 6-3 after four innings. The Intell sprang to life, getting three of their four homers, all solo blasts, in the fifth and adding another in the seventh before the tying run died on second.

The losers outhit the winners 10-8, with Ted Wells clinching the victory and John Edwards the loss. Wells fanned six and Edwards five.

Wells paced the Electric Motors hitters with three hits while one each went to R. Davis, Glynn Reynolds, Pat Brown, Rick Rosebush and Billy Tufts.

Merv Thompson boosted the Intelligencer home runs, Don Wood and Gerry Wood each getting a home run and single. Steve Ling and Edwards also had two hits each.

OASA Zone 4 Playoffs

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association has announced the 1961 playoff schedule for Zone 4 clubs.

Belleville Ellis' face Kingston Lake Bus in the first round of the senior "B" division's playoffs. Initial game is on August 19.

On August 21 Trenton Cairn's meet Peterborough in the first game of the intermediate "A" playoffs. Batterson Elzamen have gone Intermediate "B" in an effort to repeat their 1954 championship. They will meet Cobourg in the first round on the 10th of August.

Point Anne Cementmen begin their Intermediate "C" playoffs against Batterson or Parbean on the 21st. Trenton's RCAF team will battle Oshawa in the intermediate "AA" zone finals, commencing August 19.

Madoc meet Verona in the first round of the junior "C" division on August 13, while Trenton has entered a team in juvenile "A" and will go against Belleville on August 21 in the first game of a best-of-three Zone 4 final. Stirling will represent Zone 4 in the juvenile "C" division.

Stirling and Trenton both have teams in the midget "B" division. The former will meet Norwood in the first round beginning August 19, while the latter meet Picton on the same date.

Belleville's bantam softball teams will meet Oshawa in the zone finals starting on August 19. In the "A" class, in bantam "B" Amelisburg and Trenton clash on August 8 and Hastings and Marmora will begin their playoffs on the same day.

Belleville and Oshawa will play a best-of-three zone final in peewee "A" with the first game slated for the 19th. Trenton will fight either Cobourg or Warkworth in peewee "B" beginning on the 19th and in squirt Belleville and Brockville commence firing on August 12.

Nicaragua

One Man Contingent

WINNIPEG (CP)—It's doubtful that any of the 1,000 athletes at the Pan - American games had a tougher time training than Jose Esteban Valle, Nicaragua's one-man contingent.

"Nobody but nobody ever runs in Nicaragua, so when I started training through the village people would throw stones at me and yell, "pig thief."

"You know, when I would train I'd be followed by a pack of dogs, maybe 20 of them. I had to carry my kid brother's little cap pistol to scare them off while I did the mile.

"And the bugs. Oh, you wouldn't believe it. I'd get my mouth so full of bugs while running my teeth would be black. So then I had to wear a net over my face while I ran."

The 23-year-old American-educated Valle, who has lived in the U.S. more than half his life, is Nicaragua's national representative, team manager, trainer, coach and athlete all rolled into one. He is Nicaragua's national track star.

"You see there was almost no track done in Nicaragua at all," he explained when he started his workout Monday while training for the 1,500 - metre event on Friday.

"People thought I was loco when I ran. But I'm the track star, I guess. They asked me for a list of my times in various events, so I became the record holder in them all even though I run the mile and the 1,500 metres."

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—In a stride-for-stride battle with Rough Record in the featured mile - and - ¼ - yard Friends of Canadian Furs Maudsy, English import Cambusdang carried Avelino Gomez to his second winning ride of the afternoon.

Gomez moved into third place in the leading rider standings on Cambusdang and earlier with a win on Erin Fan in the second race.

Worry of FALSE TEETH
Slipping or Irritating?
Don't be embarrassed by loose plate teeth slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, laugh or talk. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a remarkable degree of added comfort and security by holding plates more firmly. Helps check "denture breath" (odor) that fit's are inclined to cause. See your dentist regularly. Get FASTEETH at all drug counters.

Bombers Put Four On Waiver

WINNIPEG (CP)— Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference placed four players on waivers Monday to reduce the number in camp to 70, the maximum allowed for the football season.

On waivers are end Gary Plumlee, who played with the New York Jets in the American Football League; halfback Jerry Beach from Mississippi State; defensive halfback Rene Riopelle, acquired from the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a deal involving former Bomber Barry Hansen, and defensive halfback Roman Kopchuk of Winnipeg. Bombers also placed tackle Charles Brandon on the 30-day injury list.

Lifters Win Silver, Bronze

Price Morris Was Fourth

WINNIPEG (CP) — Weightlifters have rewritten the Pan-American Games record book, breaking 16 Games marks and setting one world-record.

The United States walked off with the lion's share of the gold medals, winning the featherweight, middleweight and three heavyweight class gold medals. Puerto Rico and Cuba each got one gold in the bantamweight and lightweight classes respectively.

In the windup Monday night, 25-year-old Joseph Dube hoisted a total of 1,063¾ pounds to win the prized heavyweight gold medal. Cuba's Ernesto Varona took the second - place silver with a total lift of 1,040¼ pounds. The third - place bronze medal went to Brandon Bailey of Trinidad - Tobago, who hoisted 1,014¼ pounds.

Canada picked up two weightlifting medals. Paul Bjarnason, New Westminster, B.C., hoisted a total of 921½ pounds for the silver in the middle - heavyweight class.

Sunday night, Pierre St. Jean of Montreal, gold medalist at the 1956 British Empire Games, won the bronze in the light - heavyweight class.

Robert Santanoy of Sarnia, Ont., competed in the middle-heavyweight class Monday, but was eliminated when he failed to complete his press after three attempts.

Price Morris, Belleville Athlete

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching—Les Stange, Boston Red Sox, fired 7-2-3 perfect innings and wound up with a three - hitter in blanking Minnesota Twins 4-0.

Batting — Jack Hiatt, San Francisco Giants, crashed a pinch-hit grand slam homer in the eighth inning for an 8-4 verdict over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Brock, Canadian heavyweight champion, finished fourth in his class with a total of 904 pounds.

Elaine Pulls Out Of Medley

WINNIPEG (CP) — Elaine Tanner of Vancouver has pulled out of today's 400-metre individual medley to save herself for the women's 400-metre freestyle relay at the Pan - American Games.

Swim coach George Wiskin of Toronto said the move will pinch-hit grand slam homer in Parry Sound, Ont., as the only competitor in the 400 medley.

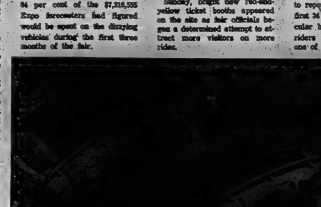
La Ronde Rides Not Paying; Expo Takes Second Look

MONTREAL (CP)—La Ronde, Expo's enchanting entertainment world, drawn crowds in honey from flies—but somehow lacks the knack of getting money from their pockets.

When night falls and pavilions close, the foot-weary and mind-weary head in droves for the magic atmosphere of the adult-lit amusement park.

They wander in the night air, moon over bottles of wine in French-Canadian restaurants or stoop and stag in the Bavarian beer parden.



But they don't go on the rides. . . .

Monday, an average evening, a crowd of several thousand stood to watch acrobatic skiers in the free water show while the little cars of the sky ride swung half empty on long cables overhead.

There were 30 people on the 120-seat ferris wheel, six on a whizzing thrill ride and one third of the bumping cars were empty.

Unlike the restaurants and games which are let to concessionaries, the 25 rides that make up the heart of the amusement park are owned and operated by Expo. It was through them that the corporation hoped to make big money on La Ronde.

But, so far, the rides have brought in only a disappointing 54 per cent of the $7,316,555 Expo forecasters had figured would be spent on the dizzying vehicles during the first three months of the fair.

Rides Are Fun But Revenue Is Down

'It calls for changes and . . .' Art Gibbon, public relations officer for La Ronde, was able to report happily that in the first 24 hours after the new circular booths were installed, riders more than doubled on one of the least popular thrills.

Price changes are also planned to offer reduced fares on rides during slack morning and after-midnight periods. Details of the reductions are still to be worked out but one La Ronde spokesman said the changes will be announced at a news conference later in the week.

Meantime, a more subtle change is quietly getting under way—an enhanced schedule-ling of some free entertainments. What with free log-rolling and water skiing in the afternoon, strolling queue entertainers and the spectacular midnight water and fireworks display, many visitors find La Ronde offers more than enough fun without spending money on the thrill rides.

This is why, operations director Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien told a recent news conference, certain of the free entertainments are to be rescheduled so as not to conflict with peak busy hours for the rides.

Monday, David Allen, entertainment co-ordinator for the amusement park, confirmed that a new schedule for free attractions in the pavilions starts Thursday. But he would not comment on the pressures behind the changes.

Theatre Ticket Costs Are High Because Crafts Overpaid: Producer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Remember when 50 cents to a dollar bought a ticket to the movies?

"They're charging $3 for The Dirty Dozen, which is absolutely ridiculous for something that isn't a reserved - seat show," says Ross Hunter.

"Dr. Zhivago on second run is $2. Roadshows like Grand Prix and The Happiest Millionaire are $4 on weekends."

Hunter, producer of another $4 entry, Thoroughly Modern Millie, offers the ticket buyer little but sympathy:

"For the studios to break even, they have to charge those prices. All the wasfa expect too much income. People are way over-priced. I think I am."

Hunter, 41, has been called Universal studio's boy wonder. Also, for his contagious enthusiasm, which he admits is probably his greatest asset, a Pollyanna.

"I'm not any of those," he says. "I just love my job.

"And that's to me that all the money that's spent shows on the screen."

Hunter, who started at Universal 16 years ago as a $125-a-week associate producer—after a fling as an actor in 10 movies—won't say what he's paid except that it's "too much." As for others in the film-making process—

"The cost of sets, manpower and creative talent have gone so high. In 1954 I made magnificent Obsession with Jane Wyman and Rock Hudson for $838,000. Today it would cost $3,000,000.

"My writer cost $450 a week then. Today he would get $5,000 to $7,500 a week.

"The average set decorator in 1950 got $275-$285 a week. Now he gets $500. An extra worked for $13 a day but now gets $20 or $40. Art directors have gone from $300-$400 to $1,000 a week.

"Some stars get $1,000,000 a picture, semi-stars $300,000 to $400,000. But I don't know of a star who can sell a bad picture."

To Your Good Health

Bad Disc Can Cause Pain Elsewhere

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss disc trouble. I am letting the questions I have in mind. — E.H.

You have quite an imposing list of questions. Well, disc trouble can be an imposing problem. So'll take your questions in the order in which you posed them.

Q — Exactly what is a disc? Is it the same as a vertebra?

A — A disc is a fibrous cushion-like structure. It is not the same as a vertebra, which is bone.

Q — What is a slipped disc? A collapsed disc?

A —The terms slipped, collapsed, herniated or ruptured all mean that the disc, the protective pad between the bones of the spine, has been flattened or become misshapen in some manner.

Q — What causes these conditions?

A — Injury or degenerative changes are the usual causes. Or a combination of them.

Q— How do the symtoms progress in severity? What symptoms are serious enough for one to consult a specialist, and what can one just "grin and bear it?"

A — Pain in the back or cavity, the back itself, that is understandable enough.

But patients often are surprised at pain in the extremities. They forget that nerves branch out from the spinal column. These branch nerves must pass through the small space between the bones of the spine.

A damaged disc can permit pressure to bear on these nerves. Therefore the pain may seem to come from the area served by the particular nerve which is being pinched.

Sciatica is a common example of this. The patient has pain in the lower back and down the backs of the thighs — one or both. Yet at times the real cause of the trouble is in the spine. The patient wonders why the doctor pays no little attention to the place where the pain seems to be, and so much to the area (the spine) where the pain does appear to be.

In such a case, however, the treatment has to lie in removing the pressure from that nerve, and salves or liniments on the painful thighs don't do a bit of good.

In general, this sort of trouble tends to get gradually worse unless it is corrected. There is no way of telling by yourself when you should get medical attention, and when you should "grin and bear it." Rely on a specialist to evaluate the situation.

The rest of the questions tomorrow.

Dear Dr. Molner: My granddaughter, who is 4, was bit by a car last year. She keeps pulling her right leg up, and her right shoe is worn way over. I was wondering if we should have X-rays taken of her leg and spine. It worries me. — Mrs. J.H.

Most definitely I would have her examined. Doubtless your doctor will want X-rays along with other tests, but let him decide what is necessary.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is capping teeth? Could it be done to any kind of teeth? Would you recommend it? What specialist would do it? — T.Y.

"Capping" is an everyday word for putting a crown on a tooth, which may be done for various reasons — because a tooth has broken off, or is badly decayed, or sometimes because (as with show people) they want teeth which are better shaped than their own.

This is a dental rather than medical problem so talk it up with the expert on the subject, your dentist.

TV Specials Now in Demand

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Network television's interest in special programs for the coming season dramatically illustrates the flexibility of programming.

A couple of seasons ago, the theory was that a special program—perhaps more expensive and intellectual than the broad and-butter shows—was a good buy for a sponsor who wanted to identify his name with something classy and it gave the network something to brag about in terms of public service.

During the past season, however, so many special programs logged high ratings in the Nielsen charts and received such acclaim from critical notices sponsors now are as interested in underwriting them as the networks are in handling the properties.

The old theory was that a show needed a continuing hero to persuade audiences to tune to the same network spot each week.

If you weren't getting the full treatment by the hero, as in the Andy Griffith Show, it was a good idea to have a weekly host as bait, which was Bob Hope's introductory function in his departed anthology series.

During the past season there was a number of highly successful programs aimed directly at audience subdivisions.

A household appliance manufacturer was delighted with results of sponsoring a musical show starring Herb Alpert and his Tijuana Brass because it attracted a big young - married audience. A soft drink manufacturer was completely happy with swinging, youth - oriented special event though the audience was shy of Lawrence Welk and Liberace fans.

Woman and Two Men Arrested For Great Mail Truck Robbery

BOSTON (AP) — A major break has occurred in the great Plymouth mail truck robbery with the arrest of a woman and two men in the $1,551,277 cash haul.

The women, the mother of four children, and the two men are accused of committing with "other persons unknown" what is believed to be the largest cash robbery in U.S. history.

A federal grand jury charged the three with the 1962 robbery in indictments returned Monday —two weeks before the five-year statute of limitations ran out for the federal government to prosecute.

Named in the indictments were Thomas R. Richards, 42, of Weymouth, an electrician for New England Power Co.; John J. Kelley, 31, of Watertown, unemployed; and Mrs. Patricia Diaferio, 28, of Boston.

Richards was arrested at his home by U.S. marshals. The other two surrendered themselves by arrangements made through their lawyers.

The two men, both represented by noted criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey, were released on bail of $50,000 set by U.S. Commissioner Francis H. Farrell. Mrs. Diaferio, represented by lawyer Joseph Balliro, was freed after posting $5,000 bail.

The indictments charge that the three, and others unknown, robbed two postal workers of the money in Canadian and U.S. currency. They also charge them with putting the lives of postal employees in jeopardy. Convictions would carry a minimum sentence of 25 years in prison.

Two months after it occurred, about 20 U.S. marshals and post office inspectors tore Richards' $18,000 home apart.

They ripped out ceilings and walls, pried up floor boards and took panels off outside walls and eaves. A search warrant said they sought $1,000,000 of the mail loot.

In the search of Richards' home, $350 in cash was found hidden beneath a bathroom floor, authorities said. Richards said it was gambling winnings.

The searchers said they found a shotgun and a .45-calibre pistol, two bullet - proof vests and two bolts of the type worn by policemen.

A power shovel was used to dig up a cement patio Richards had built the summer of the robbery.

Kelley had accosed post office inspectors of harassing him in their investigation.

Mrs. Diaferio was called before the grand jury last week.

The mail truck was en route to the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston with shipments of cash from Cape Cod banks. As the truck entered a lonely stretch of Route 3 in Plymouth, a man in what looked like a policeman's uniform set up highway construction signs on the limited-access road, detouring traffic behind it.

Then the gang of robbers held up the truck, unobserved by any other traffic.

The bandits took over the truck, tossing the bound mailmen into the rear, finally abandoning the emptied truck in Randolph.

The previous record for the largest U.S. cash robbery was the $1,219,218 taken from the Brinks Inc. office in Boston in 1950. Six years after the robbery, eight men were convicted in state court and sentenced to prison for life.

Carnival Man Within Rights When He Pointed Loaded Rifle

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Magistrate C. E. Perkins ruled Monday that carnival concessionaire Ivan Soens, 35, was within his rights when he used a loaded .22-calibre rifle to defend himself and his property during a riot in the nearby town of Wallaceburg July 22.

The magistrate dismissed charges of pointing a weapon and carrying a firearm for a purpose dangerous to the public peace brought against Soens, whose home is in Ayton, Ont.

Following the decision, acting Crown attorney Robert Rankin withdrew an offensive - weapon charge filed against carnival supervisor Ronald McGhee, 40, of Hanover, Ont.

Complainant in the case was Ivan Bilsdean of Wallaceburg, who is to appear in court in his home town today to face charges of carrying an offensive weapon, obstructing police and taking part in a riot.

In acquitting Soens, the magistrate said he rejected Bilsdean's testimony that Soens first set a watchdog on him.

Soens told the court the midway had closed for the night and that he was in bed in his trailer when he was told of the melee taking place on the carnival site.

He said he took his gun and his dog and went to the grounds to protect three booths he operated.

The police on hand, he added, were unnecessarily trying to hold back the mob while waiting for reinforcements sent in eventually by the city of Chatham's police department and provincial police.

After his rifle was taken from him by Wallaceburg constable Jack Gauley, Soens rolled beneath a tent where he was kicked and punched by a number of men. Both he and McGhee were subsequently given medical attention for injuries.

McGhee, called as a defence witness, admitted firing a shot over the heads of the crowd with his 12-gauge shotgun.

He said Wallaceburg detective John Zandbergen gave him permission to get the weapon when the mob was rampaging in front of the midway and appeared likely to destroy the entire carnival.

In all, 27 persons were charged with a variety of offences as a result of the disorders.

One of that number, Charles Fields, 23, of Wallaceburg, pleaded guilty and got a six-month jail sentence plus a $300 fine, or an additional three months in custody. Other actions are pending.

GETS NEW FORCES POST

OTTAWA (CP)—Group Capt. E. N. Henderson, 46, of Edmonton and Ottawa has been appointed director of nuclear weapons at Canadian Forces headquarters here, the defence department announced Monday. He was posted to the nuclear weapons directorate in 1966 after serving as senior staff officer in the armament and photography sector of air defence command.

Ten-million Contract With Bramalea Opens HOME Program

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government will launch its Home Ownership Made Easy program today with a $10,000,000 cheque to Bramalea Consolidated Developments Ltd., developers of a satellite city 20 miles northwest of Toronto.

The contract between the government and the private developers calls for Bramalea to build homes on half the 2,000 lots at price tags ranging from just under $14,000 to $15,000.

The deal, rumored for some time on Bay Street but not mentioned in long-term plans by the provincial economics and development department for the HOME program, has yet to win approval of Ottawa for federal loans.

But Premier Roberts told a news conference Monday that Ontario will go it alone if need be and place 621 of the Bramalea lots on the market with first sales next Tuesday.

Stanley Randall, Ontario's economics and development minister, said Monday that Ottawa balked at participating in the purchase of fully-serviced lots in Bramalea despite a prior agreement to advance a loan toward purchase of the 30 lots in Waterloo, all of which are fully serviced.

OHC managing director H. W. Solara said Ottawa has taken the stand that it will make loans toward the remaining 1,045 Bramalea lots only if it can be shown public development of the land will speed sales.

Terse Response

'Our Position Clear' PM Tells de Gaulle

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has early informed France that Canada will not accept any outside interference in its internal affairs.

In the latest move of the Canada-Quebec ruckus, the prime minister issued a terse, 46-word response Tuesday to President de Gaulle's pledge to help French Canada achieve its freedom aims.

While it stopped short of directly accusing the French leader of interference, the Pearson statement was unmistakably pointed:

"The government of Canada has noted the statement by the president of the French Republic regarding his recent visit to Canada," it said.

"It has already made its position clear on the unacceptability of any outside interference in Canadian affairs and has nothing to add in present circumstances."

The statement came more than 24 hours after de Gaulle, in a statement backed by his full cabinet, said France is touched to help French - Canadians "realize the freedom aims they have set for themselves."

Mr. Pearson was reported "very unhappy" about the French move but was said to have decided on the brief response in hopes of toning down the controversy that grew out of de Gaulle's shortened visit to Quebec last week.

Before issuing the statement, the prime minister talked it over with several cabinet colleagues, including External Affairs Minister Martin, Justice Minister Favreau and Manpower Minister Marchand.

Mr. Marchand, leader of the Liberal party's Quebec wing, was reached after some difficulty while on a fishing trip in Quebec.

While the prime minister conferred with several colleagues over the response to de Gaulle, a spokesman said there was no formal meeting on the question and that the decision was primarily that of the prime minister.

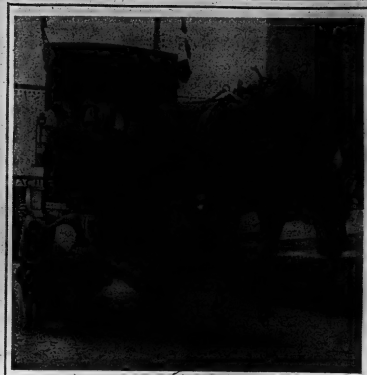
A source close to Mr. Pearson said the prime minister favored the terse comment over the alternatives of ignoring the French statement or engaging in a long "dialogue" with Paris.

"It is hoped by the Canadian government that this whole silly situation will boil down," he added.

Observers noted the latest statement did not repeat any of the sentiments about friendship for the French people and a special relationship with France included in Mr. Pearson's statement of a week earlier.

That statement, following de Gaulle's use of the phrase "vive le Quebec libre," made no mention of outside interference.

It said only that certain statements by de Gaulle "tend to encourage the small minority of our population whose aim is to destroy Canada; and, as such, they are unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government."



'Pussyfooting' Says Dief

FAIRMONT HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker Tuesday condemned the federal government for "pussyfooting" over statements by French President de Gaulle regarding French government attitudes toward Quebec.

The Conservative leader accused the federal government of "backing down" during federal - provincial arguments over protocol during President de Gaulle's recent visit to Quebec.

"The failure to send a strong diplomatic note over this matter surprises me greatly," he said.

"The repetition by de Gaulle calls for a strong statement from that issued by Mr. Pearson. I cannot understand why the government takes to pussyfooting on this matter."

Black Power Head Suggests Assassinations

HAVANA (Reuters) — U.S. Black Power advocate Stokely Carmichael Tuesday was quoted by Cuban sources as seeing the possibility of U.S. President Johnson and British Prime Minister Wilson being assassinated in revenge for the murder of Negro leaders.

The Trinidad - born Carmichael, an honorary delegate, also included as possible targets U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and Defence Secretary Robert McNamara in his comments at a press conference from which American and British correspondents were barred.

A former chairman of the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, Carmichael was quoted as saying that if the CIA continues assassinating liberation fighters and guerrillas, vengeance must be taken.

4 Feared Dead As Two CN Trains Collide

TORONTO—(CP) — Ontario provincial police today said one crew member is dead and three others are missing in the head-on crash of two Canadian National Railways trains near the community of Dunrankin, 45 miles northeast of Polyet in Northern Ontario.

Polyet is 175 miles northwest of Sudbury.

Canadian National and police officials were proceeding to the scene by helicopter and a special train.

The week occurred about 4:36 a.m.

A spokesman for the CNR said the trains were the westbound Super Continental passenger train and a freight eastbound out of Winnipeg.

Three locomotives and 36 of 84 cars in the freight train, and three locomotives, one coach, a mail and two baggage cars of the passenger train, were derailed.

The spokesman said no passengers were killed or seriously injured. Some passengers were shaken up, however.

At Least One Dead In BC Hotel Fire

SALMON ARM, B.C. (CP)— One person is dead and others feared dead in a fire that levelled half a business block early today and threatened the entire downtown section of this village.

Police identified the victim as a visitor to the Monticello Hotel where the blaze broke out. Positive identification of the person was not available.

At one point, the 85 firefighters, who converged on the Trans-Canada highway community about 200 miles northeast of Vancouver, feared the entire downtown area would be engulfed in flames.

The blaze levelled the wooden hotel after starting in the basement.

Even Dobbin Insists On Shorter Work Week

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The way a trio of Hamilton policemen see it, most old horse — grey or otherwise — ain't what they used to be.

The three officers passed through Belleville yesterday riding a replica of a horse-drawn, turn-of-the-century paddy wagon enroute to Ottawa and Expo.

So far, the policemen's lot has not been a happy one.

The centennial trek means hauling the load a horse which, so far, has left the trio untouched. Only problem is the horses can't keep the pace.

"What we need is a good milk man's horse — one that's used to working every day", said Constable Rockridge.

But work horses apparently age just an expression, nowadays.

As a result, the project is lagging three days behind schedule.

The expedition started well, rallying out from Hamilton 10 days ago with Little Jack, a standard-bred carriage horse.

However, west of Toronto Little Jack developed a rope burn and had to be returned to Hamilton for treatment.

The officers acquired a substitute in the Toronto area and pressed on.

However, the substitute wouldn't be pressed and near Bowmanville another replacement was passed.

Sunday, the paddy-wagon made it into Trenton, but behind schedule.

This time the problem nagging the horse appeared to be a case of home-sickness.

"At Trenton she just quit," said Constable Gene Lucas. "She was lonesome. We got a trailer and took her back to the farm. You'd think it was old home week when we got there."

The little expedition stayed over an extra day in Trenton and sent for Little Jack, by now recovering from injury.

The reliable original arrived yesterday, but by then the officers feared for their deadline, which demanded they be in Ottawa Aug. 7.

"We're at least three days behind. We should be further along than this," worried Sergeant John Rrabbs.

Also Little Jack still is showing his injury and the men are reluctant to push a willing horse too far.

The solution is to ride the paddy wagon through communities along the way — transporting Little Jack and the wagon by horseless carriage between towns and cities en route.

Yesterday they dropped in on Police Chief J. R. McLauchlan and his force, then drew all eyes along main traffic routes as they headed for Highway 2 - and Little Jack's trailer somewhere in the suburbs. Napanee was the next stop.

Clark Says Troops Ready Before Romney Sought Them

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney - General Ramsey Clark says federal troops were ready to be dispatched to riot-torn Detroit last week hours before Michigan Governor George Romney asked for them.

Clark told a news conference Tuesday Romney did not ask for federal troops to help quell the Detroit riot until 11 a.m. July 24, eight hours after the governor had said he requested them.

Outlining events during what Clark called that "tragic morning in American history," the attorney-general said the first direct contact he had with Romney was at 3:45 a.m. He said the governor telephoned then and termed the situation in Detroit "very bad."

He said Romney reported 80 untended fires and widespread looting and said he thought he might need about 5,000 army troops. But Clark said it was only after hours of back-and-forth telephoning between him and Romney that the governor finally sent a 10:46 telegram requesting the troops.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Some heavy thunderstorm activity will move across Lake Huron and Lake St. Clair into southwestern Ontario this afternoon.

A severe thunderstorm warning of possible hail and briefly strong wind gusts today has been issued from Lake Huron eastward into the cottage country and as far south as Lakes Erie and Ontario.

Thursday, the thunderstorms will move eastward to most of southern Ontario. However, showery weather is expected to continue in the north.

Romney has said he requested the troops in a telephone call before 3 a.m. He said also Clark told him at first that an oral request would be satisfactory, but later demanded a written request and directed that he specify there was an insurrection in Detroit which he was unable to control.

Sniper Fire Breaks Milwaukee Curfew

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)— Sniper fire erupted in several locations Tuesday night, shattering Milwaukee's curfew.

Gunfire pinned down police and national guardsmen in the vicinity of their north side command post during a three-hour outburst of gunfire in the predominantly Negro inner Core district.

Mayor Henry Maier lifted the curfew during daylight hours again today but said it would be restored tonight.

Police said one man, questioned about sniping, was charged with disorderly conduct. No serious injuries were reported.

Arrests continued for curfew violations. Police reported nearly 540 arrests since Sunday night, 318 since midnight Monday.

Guardsmen and police fired at will.

The sound of small arms fire mingled with the heavy thud of 12-gauge police shotguns. National guardsmen shot round after round of .30-calibre ammunition with Second World War M-1 rifles.

Along Third Street, in a business district, police took cover behind an armored truck and tried to hit snipers who appeared to be moving from roof to roof.

Police pursuing a sniper buried tear gas canisters into a home and ran in. Inside, they found only a woman and a seven-year-old child, coughing and crying.

A group of 25 persons connected with Inner Core leadership groups issued a statement in which they accused Maier's administration of ignoring advice from grass-roots groups and individuals who could help most.

$350,000 Project

Two Moira Control Dams Await ARDA Approval

With Ontario cabinet approval given this week, two proposed dams on the Moira River watershed to cost, an estimated $350,000 have but one more hurdle to cross before construction can go ahead.

Still required is ARDA approval for the water level control dams, one on Stoco Lake and the other at Deercck Lake which empties into the Skootsmatts River north of Flinton.

Cabinet approval for the two Moira River projects was announced Tuesday. The two schemes would be completed under the Federal-Provincial Agricultural and Rural Development Act.

An ARDA official said the dams at Deercck and Stoco lakes have still to receive their approval. If approved the schemes would be subsidized to the extent of $137,500 each by the two senior levels of government. The remaining $35,000 would be paid by the Moira River Authority and chief benefiting municipalities.

Government grants would cover 90 per cent of the total cost.

James McLeod, secretary of the Moira River Conservation Authority said authority officials were anxious to get the Stoco Lake project under way this year.

"We have the tender documents all prepared and are awaiting ARDA approval so we can go ahead," he said.

The Stoco Lake project is actually two weir type water level control dams, one on each of the two branches of the Moira, draining the lake at Tweed.

The two low dams, to cost an estimated $80,000, would control the summer level of Stoco Lake and would be a boon for cottage owners.

Mr. McLeod said government grants would cover 90 per cent of the cost with Tweed village and Hungerford township as the chief benefiting municipalities to pay 90 per cent of the authority's share of the cost.

The Deercck Lake dam on Partridge Creek, a tributary of the Skootsmatts, will cost an estimated $270,000 with the two senior governments again to pay 90 per cent of the cost, leaving 10 per cent as the authority's share.

This dam would be a reservoir project aimed at maintaining the summer flow in the lower reaches of the Moira River.

If the project receives ARDA approval the river authority would proceed with land acquisition and road development this year in readiness for a start on construction of the main dam project in 1968.

Moira authority officials have been working on plans for the Deercck Lake project for at least two years but the project was delayed when it was learned a 90 per cent grant might be available through ARDA.

Boy, 8 Drowns At Outlet

PICTON (Staff) — Tragedy struck a Toronto family yesterday. An 8-year-old Toronto boy was drowned on the beach at Outlet Provincial Park about 1:45 Tuesday afternoon. Dead is James Fredrick Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Calvin Wilson of 218 Westwood Ave., Toronto.

The youth was swimming with his 10-year-old brother Robert, while the parents who were camping at the outlet, were in Picton shopping. The accident occured near the park's main camping area.

The water depth where the child was brought to shore was only two feet. Artificial resuscitation was applied to no avail. It is believed the child may have been wearing a swimming mask (for the face) which may have filled with water causing him to drown.

Picton Coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond along with OPP of the Picton Detachment were on the scene shortly after the mishap. The body is resting temporarily at Hick's Funeral Home in Picton.

New Concrete Floor for Arena

Belleville's 40-year-old arena has a new ice surface floor today following a 10-hour non-stop concrete pouring job yesterday. The new concrete covers plastic brine pipes laid directly on top of the old floor. Two hundred cubic yards of concrete was required for the five-inch layer covering the 85 by 190 foot ice surface.

Yachts Leave Presqu'ile For Freeman Cup Race

PRESQUILE PARK — This scenic provincial park area today marked the starting point of a marathon sailing race down Lake Ontario.

About 70 yachts, some modestly trim, others valued at upwards of $100,000, were expected to vie for the annual Freeman Cup event. This year's race is charted for 104 nautical miles from Presqu'ile to the Hamilton Piers in Burlington Canals.

Boats handicapped or classed by design left in 10 divisions beginning at 10 a.m. this morning. Race committee officials said the winner should cross the Hamilton finishing line in under 20 hours.

The record time for the annual Lake Ontario competition is 14 hours, but weather conditions have prolonged the event to as long as 40 hours.

Plans will climax at Hamilton with three days of racing events over the holiday weekend.

Methodists Hold Conference

The Wesleyan Methodist Church of America in Canada met for its seventieth annual conference at Silver Lake Camp Ground, Maberley, July 25-29.

Rev. C. Wesley Lovin, of Marion, Indiana, general secretary of church extension and evangelism, conducted the business sessions and presented denominational interests. He was assisted by Rev. James S. A. Spearman, Trenton, president of the conference, Rev. Wesley B. Massey, registrar of Houghton College, gave the educational address. An added feature of the conference was the presentation of the work of world missions by Prof. Warren Woodsey, returned missionary from Sierra Leone, West Africa, and Miss Florence Glass, Reg. N., returned missionary from Haiti.

Mr. Spearman in his conference address reported a number of major developments through the year which included the building of a new church in Oshawa.

Conference officers re-elected were: Mr. Spearman, president; Rev. M. E. Summers, Ottawa, vice-president; Rev. J. H. Wearer, Waltham, Quebec, treasurer; and Rev. F. S. Irish, Arnprior, secretary.

The Woman's Missionary Society Conference was conducted in conjunction with the annual conference. Officers elected were: Mrs. James S. A. Spearman, Trenton, president; Mrs. Fred Irish, Arnprior, Vice-president; Mrs. M. J. McKnight, Brockville, secretary; Mrs. Bert Locklin, Belleville, treasurer; and Miss Clara Strutt, Shawville, Quebec, Y.M.W.B. superintendent.

Early Morning Caller

Harry Harris, building superintendent at Victoria and Grey Trust Company, surveys damage done to plate glass window shortly after midnight last night. An auto crossed the sidewalk and hit the building. Three large twin-glassed window sections on McAnanny Street worth over $3,000 were broken. Driver of car was Walter LeRoy Conch 75 Victoria Avenue.

Churches Hold Vacation School

TWEED — The Anglican and United churches recently sponsored their third annual vacation church school for the North Addington area.

Children from Harlowe, Northbrook, Flinton and Kaladar came by school bus.

IN MEMORIAM

COXON, Edith — In loving memory of a devoted wife and mother who passed away August 2, 1962. Sadly missed and always remembered by her husband Bert, daughter Breth ell. —Always remembered by husband and family.

COXON — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Edith Coxon who passed away August 2, 1962.
Sometime passes, shadows fall,
But memory remembers outside all;
And though the years be many or few
There are filled with remembrance of you.
—Ever remembered by husband Tom, sons John, Roy and families.

COXON — In memory of a dear mother who passed away August 2, 1962.
Five years have flown, one by one,
Left us lonely, but not alone;
Memories fade, leaving only pain,
But there is a home where we will meet again.
—Ever remembered by son Roy and family.

SCHNEIDER — In loving memory of a very dear wife Violet Schneider who passed away August 2, 1966.
We know that she is happy,
With our Saviour's home above,
Growing fairer as she prayers,
In the sunshine of His love.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by husband Bert.

SCHNEIDER — In loving memory of a very dear mother who passed away August 2, 1965.
There is a memory fond and true;
There is a token of affection, too;
There is a heartache still for you,
Ever remembered by daughter Mae Price.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Charles E. Brimacombe wish to express their sincere thanks to the nurses and Dr. Bruce Crozier, the nurses and staff of Belleville General Hospital, the John R. Bush Funeral Home, Rev. Gordon Hobbs, and relatives and friends for the cards, beautiful flowers, memorial gifts and donations to the Cancer Society, and to the neighbors for their many acts of kindness and sympathy.

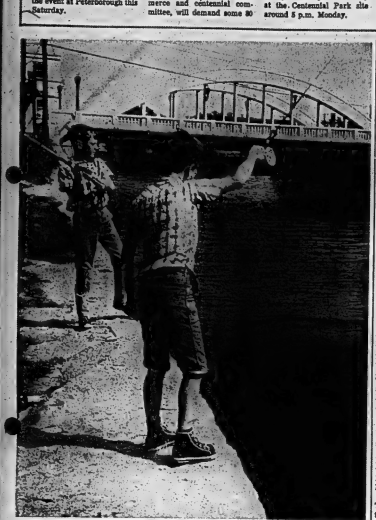
The Great Canoe Race Draws at Least 21 Entries

TRENTON — At least 21 paddling duos, including a Kingston female entry, will play voyageur this weekend in the great canoe race.

Chamber of Commerce manager Jack Wilson says the deadline for entries has been extended right up until the 8 a.m. starting time for the event at Peterborough this Saturday.

The winning pair of paddlers will each receive a 16-foot fibreglass canoe and a share of $100. Other cash prizes are also being offered for lap winners and second and third-place over-all finishers.



The race, sponsored by Trenton's Chamber of Commerce and centennial committee, will demand some 80 miles of paddling and 15 portages around locks.

Competitors will stop overnight in Hastings Saturday, and the second leg of the event will take paddlers to Campbellford.

The grand finale to the holiday weekend of paddling is expected to get under way at the Centennial Park site around 5 p.m. Monday.

The public is invited to join the festivities, which include games of chance, rides for the kiddies, a steer barbecue, and music by the 80th Field Artillery Band of Oshawa.

Every service club and fraternal organization in Trenton had a part in organizing the Aug. 7th entertainment agenda.

Land O'Lakes Beauty Contest To Highlight Civic Holiday

TWEED — The Miss Land O' Lakes Beauty Contest sponsored by the Tweed Kiwanis Club will highlight the midsummer season on Aug. 5.

All young women in the Tweed and Land O' Lakes tourist area are welcome to compete for first prize. The sole restriction is that they must be at least 16 years old and single.

As in the past four years the contest will be held at the Tweed Memorial Park in conjunction with the Kiwanis Club's Holiday Dance. This year dancing will be to the sound of the Lavlo' Brothers orchestra.

First, second and third prizes will be awarded and all contestants will receive a memento of their participation.

Girls entering the bathing beauty contest may be sponsored by a tourist resort or business organization or they may enter as private individuals.

Entries must be received by Aug. 3, by Harold Gall, Box 310, Tweed.

Last year's winner was Miss Christina Retallack, of Woodlands, Quebec.

JACK IRELAND JR.

Jack Ireland has announced the appointment of Jack Ireland Junior to the sales and administration staff of Ireland's Furniture and Appliances. Made necessary due to the ever increasing volume of sales of General Electric and other name brand products since moving to their new low overhead location, this will enable Ireland's to maintain even closer personal contact with their customers.

Although one of the youngest members of the staff, Jack Junior has had nearly ten years' experience in delivery, installing and servicing appliances and is a particularly well qualified technician on freezers, refrigerators and air conditioning.

Broadcast by 1968: Trenton Applicants

TRENTON — The group of businessmen seeking government approval for a Trenton-based radio station say they can have the station in operation by the first summer if their application for a licence is granted.

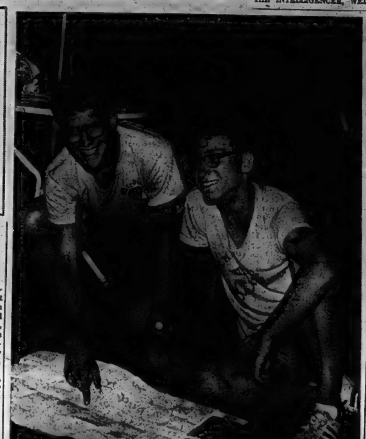
Town council Monday night endorsed establishment of the station on request from Councillor D. R. Fraser, one of the venture's principals.

Other major shareholders in the proposed broadcasting company are Eben and M. Fraser of Trenton, and two Toronto television film producers and distributors.

A presentation will be made for the station to broadcast on frequency 1320 at a public hearing of the Board of Broadcast Governors in November.

B.B.G. and federal department of transport approval must precede the establishment of any radio station.

The group has taken an option on studio space at 53 Quinte St. in downtown Trenton.



Councillor Fraser told council Monday night the local market was favorable for establishment of a second ares radio station, which he said could employ 16 or 18 local residents.

Tweed Tax Rate Rises

TWEED — The village's nearly all-female council kept the 1967 budget down but the tax rate is up due to increased county rates. Hastings County Council jumped their rate from 20 mills to 22.5 mills.

Education costs have skyrocketed. On the residential rate the high schools rate has increased from 20 to 22.5 mills, the public school from 13.5 to 14.5 mills and the separate school from 14.5 to 19 mills.

The five member council, which includes one man, cut back the street and roads budget but the savings may be used in improving the heating system in the municipal building.

CAMPING CYCLISTS Paul Mingo and Alan Armstrong studying Ontario road map for route they will use on their bicycle trip to Expo.

Cycling Tourists Visit Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Two adventurous youth — one a high school student, the other in first year university — arrived in Picton last night en route to Expo by bicycle. The near 700-mile journey from Farrington, Michigan began last Friday afternoon. The boys 16-year-old Alan Armstrong and Paul Mingo, 17, were held up in Toronto one day for bike repairs, but appear to be in good spirits in spite of some rain they have encountered and the delay.

They have averaged 100 miles a day while they have been travelling.

Although the journey via Picton is somewhat longer, they wanted to see as much of the countryside as possible and decided on the scenic water route via Highway 33 to Kingston.

The boys carry their own sleeping accommodation with them including tent and sleeping bags but no excess baggage. Although they can set up camp anywhere along the route in a matter of minutes, last night they chose to camp on the "Front doorstep" of Picton's Sportsman Motel, where although they did camp they had all the comforts of home.

The Michigan cyclists, hope to make Prescott by this evening and expect to visit relatives there. They stayed Monday night near Pickering.

The Playgrounds

HILLCREST

A city - wide Christmas in July was held on the Belleville playgrounds last week. Hillcrest Playground was decorated for the occasion with holly, bells, candy canes and streamers, all made by the children. The week's events were wound up on Thursday with a Christmas Parade. Floats were decorated, costumes secured and over sixty children paraded around the block singing Christmas Carols.

Winners for best costumes were 1. Billy Thompson, 2. Christine Belch, 3. Lindsay Belch, 4. Sandra Vesterveit, 5. Kelly Brant, 6. Perry Tracey. Prizes for best floats were won by Debbie and Benny Howard for their lion cape and Stella Lucas for her dog Pal. Other awards were: best majorette, Valerie Hughes, best clown, Jackie Hughes, best cowgirl, Carol Ibbotson, flag bearers were Joseph Masterson, Todd Lucas, Don Lasher.

Special assistance was given by Leah Harper, Cathy and Eva Ibbotson and Harry Palmer.

PROCLAMATION

CIVIC HOLIDAY

MONDAY, August 7th, 1967

I hereby proclaim Monday, August 7th, 1967, as a public civic holiday for the City of Belleville, and I respectfully request that it be observed as such.

Last year, many persons were killed on the Ontario highways over the civic holiday weekend. If travelling, please drive carefully.

J. R. ELLIS,
MAYOR.

Support For Trip Mounts

Four railway labor groups have united in an effort to support the community project to send 250 children to Expo '67.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Pensioners' Club of the Canadian National Railways have joined forces to support the centennial project.

Posters will appear on bulletin boards today requesting volunteers to man trains and to act as chaperones. Financial assistance from union members is also requested.

Spokesman Gerald Cunningham stated "the men are proud and happy to have the opportunity to co-operate with railway management," which is supplying the transportation.

The project started when a Belleville industrial concern donated money to send 25 children to Expo. The idea was adopted by other businesses and service clubs in the area. The goal is now to send 250 children to Expo for a day.

Access Roads At Bypass Are Posted

MADOC — The Highway 7 bypass here opens later this year, but motorists officials already are orienting local residents to potential stepped-up traffic hazards.

Local access roads now intersecting the bypass have been posted with stop signs. Provincial police here caution all motorists must obey the signs even though the new highway link is not yet open to traffic.

Police say traffic using the bypass will be trailing at highway speeds. Posting the area now will help educate local residents to the new situation and anticipate possible mishaps when the highway is first opened.

Whipping Boy

It is one of the anomalies of our time that the United States whose generosity toward other countries and whose fundamental desire for peace in the world (enough not peace at any price) are well-known, should be the whipping boy of all and sundry.

American forces are fighting the communists in Vietnam on the one hand, believing that to hold such a confrontation would allow Asia to fall in its entirety to the Reds. On the other hand Washington is trying to raise the standard of living in other regions, on the premise that a country that is prosperous, and whose people are gainfully employed, will have no truck with communism which thrives on discontent and poverty.

Yet on every hand the United States itself is threatened, from both within and without, by fair weather friends and enemies alike, and all with their hands out grabbing what they can from the material wealth of the country, while at the same time plotting and campaigning for its overthrow as the western democratic world's super power.

And who are the people who with considerable ingenuity and energy are working toward the undermining of the United States and of western democracy in general?

They are revolutionaries like Fidel Castro in Cuba, his former economics minister and guerrilla expert at large Ernesto Che Guevara, now believed to be organizing revolutionary activities elsewhere in Latin America — and closer to home, the young Black Power leader Stokely Carmichael.

Carmichael is in Havana for a meeting of Latin American revolutionaries, and their rallying cry is Castro's call for guerrilla warfare "from Detroit to Cape Horn." This would certainly be an interesting spectacle, but it is one which Washington should strive to avoid if the goal of such destructive demagogues as Castro and Carmichael is not to be largely realized.

Just as Castro's puppets in Latin America are echoing the Cuban leader's revolutionary theories, so Carmichael, who at the age of 25 is one of the most dangerous subversives in the United States today, has been reciting parrot-fashion Guevara's call, from the pulpit out or other, for the creation of more Vietnams for the United States. He says racial upheavals in Detroit, Newark and other U.S. cities should be considered Vietnams.

So it goes on. China has its internal troubles too, but the Soviet Union, while still largely a closed society where the enemies of the state languish in prison or in labor camps, maintains at least an outward appearance of a nation at peace and untroubled by domestic unrest. This affords Russia the opportunity to pursue its own political whims which we may be sure are not designed to give aid and comfort to the United States in this its hour of difficulty.

Birds, Bees and Wigs

While love, as ever, makes the world go round, the eternal theme even in these supposedly (and perhaps overly) enlightened days still has a hard road to hoe.

Over in Ireland district judge Murtagh de Burca (who sounds like a real Bossa Irishmen Salvador de Madariaga says originally were Spaniards who went north with the Armada and got lost) fined one Mary McCarthy, 19, the equivalent of $5.60 for kissing her boy friend on a Limerick street.

The poor suffering Irish — and they a people who have been described as the most chaste in the world. It is too bad if a girl cannot give a fellow a peck on the cheek even if it is in public. The case was brought under a public morals act passed in 1935, and this is believed to be the first time it was invoked.

Miss McCarthy sounds no different from any other affectionate young woman. Her error was the old one of getting caught — by Sgt. Michael Browne begorrah, and at the behest apparently of neighbors who had complained about public kissing.

As for Judge de Burca, he has a drop of Spanish blood in him at all he would surely not have been so ungallant as to fine the poor girl.

In any event, love continues to find a way — as is revealed by the fact that in the United States last year there were 1,844,000 marriages, a number surpassed only in 1946 and 1947. This is all the more remarkable considering that in the United States women aged 19 and 20 outnumber men of 21 and 22 — the age group they prefer to marry — by 800,000.

And also surviving the shortage of males is the current teenage craze of matching His and Her wigs. They are the rage for steadies, as witness the fact that a New York hair stylist and wig manufacturer reports he has sold 25,000 of the wigs this summer at $29.95 apiece.

This interesting piece of economics affords yet another — you'll pardon the pun — hair latch on to some new idea to catch the imagination of the teen set and you can make a fortune.

Case for School Area Merger

Old Skills Are Becoming Obsolete as New Ones Emerge

Amalgamation of school administrative areas is a truly terse in the Quinte area at the moment.

While some townships are against the proposal — they believe it will mean a loss of local autonomy with perhaps higher school costs, and are somewhat in the dark about all benefit — many school board officials favor the plan because it will offer a wider range of educational facilities to students as a whole.

The controversy took a fresh turn recently when Hastings County Council defeated a surprise motion to upset the high school amalgamation bylaw passed only three months before. The vote was 34-9.

The plan is to join Stirling-Marmion and Centre Hastings school districts with the Bay of Quinte district.

In the following article, MACDONALD SMITH, chairman of Belleville Public School Board, gives his views on the subject, and reviews progress on the local educational scene.

If our children are our first consideration, we will have amalgamation, and have it soon," says Mr. Smith.

All citizens are responsible for the training and direction of our children. It is true that in the field of education people delegate most of their responsibilities to their elected or appointed representatives. This is as it should be.

However, every citizen should have the opportunity to become informed about education and the direction it is taking. The intelligencer is to be commended for the part it plays in keeping citizens of the Quinte area "in the picture".

Science, business and politics are moving at a pace without parallel in the past. We cannot predict with any certainty the exact the speed of change will have upon the society of the future; but it must be apparent to everyone that we must be prepared for change, and more change, and be prepared to adjust ourselves.

The role of the schools of the past was relatively uncomplicated. The content of the curriculum of 'our' day consisted basically of known facts that would last a lifetime. Today old skills are becoming obsolete, and a wide variety of new skills is emerging. Science and technology have created new high grade jobs and occupations and have made thousands of present low-grade jobs obsolescent.

Educators are moving to meet these challenges. They have accepted a complete change in attitude toward the educational process. Awareness of the child as an individual, with individual differences, is increasingly emphasized in our schools. The aim of the school program is to educate for change, to prepare our youth to adjust themselves to the necessities of tomorrow.

The program of education in our communities must be constantly subject to review in relationship to our local needs, in particular to our program adequate to meet the needs of our society! I hasten to assure the community that Belleville schools have kept pace; that we have a well-qualified staff; that our buildings are substantial and functional; and our program compares favorably with any system of our size in the province.

However, we are hampered on two counts: First, our program is limited by the size of our enrolment. Many desirable methods and practices could be introduced only at relatively high cost for our limited numbers.

The second limitation is the division in the school process by the operation of two authorities; the elementary school board and the secondary school board. Several administrations are an unnecessary expense, and the cooperation under two authorities creates the regrettable fiction that the educational program comes to an end in the middle years of adolescence, only to commence again two months later.

Our children can have many of the advantages that are available to children in larger municipalities through the integration and amalgamation of the elementary and secondary school boards in the Quinte district.

I realize that a small measure of opposition exists to this amalgamation, but I believe this is a result of incomplete knowledge of the situation. It has been suggested that amalgamation of the school boards will increase cost. I do not say that costs of education will not rise. As long as the number of children continues to grow; as long as salaries continue to increase; as long as material costs advance, the costs of education will rise. The sharing of materials, supervision and special services; the economies of a single administration and the advantages of bulk purchasing and distribution will ensure that the tax payer will get the most for his tax dollar. Money spent wisely on education is not a cost, but is an investment in our children and in the future.

Meanwhile, it is not guess work or supposition to point out that the school district of the cities of Belleville, or of the size anticipated for a Quinte board of Education, is the most economical to be found in the province. We have statistics to prove it. Nor is it debatable that in this proposed development, increased and improved services can be made available to our children. Belleville cannot provide the services available in a city of 70,000 and the ordinary rural township can do no better at best than the village or small town. Moreover, the Belleville Public School Board can demonstrate, without question, that, although as stated previously we have kept pace, our costs per pupil are not above those of the average village and rural area and are much below the costs of most other cities in Ontario.

Amalgamation and integration will give all of us more value for our money, but, what is more important, it will provide a better education for our children.

I believe that a mutual concern and helpfulness and willingness to work together for improvement of education for our children is the wish of the citizens or all communities in the Quinte area.

Belleville City Council is to be commended for its action in inviting other municipalities to deal with the question of amalgamation. It is only when we are adequately informed that we are capable of making the right decisions. Many other aspects are possible to relate here will undoubtedly be discussed when council representatives meet.

If our children are our first consideration, we will have amalgamations, and have it soon.

In Britain

High Schools Go Beyond Grade 13

Letter in Globe and Mail

As a British teacher who emigrated only two years ago to Canada, I have read with astonishment the article, A Class of Guinea Pigs, in The Globe Magazine, by Alan Harvey (June 17).

Mr. Harvey wrote that "... the middle class musicians (in Britain) his position of authority because its children are given a boost up the literary ladder while working-class children are left behind."

Commencing with the 11-plus test, the teachers who carry these papers do not even know what school the papers came from; still less do they know anything about the family origins of the pupils. The pursuit of the article leaves the unknown ed with the impression that the examiners are supplied with the information and tell those coming from a working-class family. This implication has no substance.

The fact that "children attending merged schools may find their chances going to classes two blocks apart" is not the consequence of "... comprehensive schooling is made without any massive injection of government funds." It is the consequence of the difference in intellectual calibres of teachers as well as students. Mr. Harvey is apparently unfamiliar with the fact that in England the first university year is comparable to the secondary school, an extra year beyond what is now Grade 13 for the advanced certificate.

After having taught such classes in England and here in Canada, I am satisfied that the standard of this course is equivalent to a degree at any North American university. Imagine that this state of affairs exists at high schools in Canada, which is equivalent to the merged schools in England. Obviously a teacher looking a simple certificate is not qualified to teach at this level so that within the common walls of the comprehensive schools the separation continues.

Like so many others, I have been initially myself a support, or of the comprehensive idea; and like most of its initial enthusiasts, I am against it today. The simple unassailable fact is that socialist equality, above bottom, does not work at intellectual level. While heredity always pays its part, middle-class children develop at much higher rate because parents create a suitable intellectual environment for their development.

Finally, while separation remained, the new school system will not solve social problem. At most comprehensive schools there are separate staff rooms for academic and non-academic teachers. Even there where they are together, contact rarely if ever goes beyond "business and the academic staff fools, not entirely without justification, that they are superior to others.

Boost for The Arts

(CANADA COUNCIL)

Canada is reaching towards adult status in the arts, but we are just beginning to give the humanities and social sciences something approaching adequate support. These are the messages of the Canada Council's tenth annual report, for 1966-67.

Highlights of the report are a ten-year review of achievement at the arts in Canada and a look at the recent emergence of advanced research in the humanities and social sciences, both from under the shadow of the natural sciences.

With a 1966-67 budget of $11 million, as compared with the previous year's $7 million, the council was able to step up all its programs of assistance. For the second consecutive year, aid to the social sciences and humanities was roughly doubled to $3.36 million from the previous year's $1.85 million. Aid to the arts went up to $4.35 million, from $3.44 million.

Tourist Rates At Expo

Ottawa Journal

The only dismaying thing about the latest fiasco leveled on two more violators of Quebec's lodging laws is that they were not up to that dumping $1,000 imposed on the first man convicted of goading Expo visitors.

The two fines totalled only $1,200 though perhaps the offences were not as serious. It is reassuring that Quebec authorities appear to be vigorously prosecuting the minority of businesses who are giving a bad reputation to the whole Quebec tourist trade. Soon 50 per cent of Expo visitors have said they were unhappy about accommodation they found — a figure which keeps Expo operations director Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien "really sighing."

Heavy fines won't put money back in anyone's pocket, but they will have a salutary effect in knowing that considerably more is coming out of the pockets of those who have been charging more charges yet to be disposed of and satisfaction may be widespread.

De-Gaulle Will Look to Quebec and Not Ottawa

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President de Gaulle's pronouncement on relations with Canada tacitly claims the right to intervene in Canadian politics.

The claim is based on his personal view of Canadian history and his interpretation of what French - speaking Canadians want. The most fervent Quebec separatist might find de Gaulle's supporting arguments over-simplify the Canadian situation.

De Gaulle reduces Canada's past and present to a black-and-white case of French-speaking Canadians against the British.

His reference to "the century of oppression" (le siecle d'oppression) that followed the British conquest ignores such developments as the Quebec Act of 1774. In that act, the conquerors did more to preserve French law, religion and custom in Quebec than did French leaders who abandoned the habitant.

De Gaulle likewise ignores the effects in the last eight years to work out a more satisfying system of federal-provincial relations, dismissing Canada's century as a failure to assure French - speaking Canadians of "liberty, equality and fraternity."

Quebec leaders and intellectuals made the "quiet revolution" as much a struggle against features of the Quebec establishment as against Anglo-Saxon domination are likely to see the Gaullist interpretation of Canada as too simple.

But if de Gaulle the government spokesman, Georges Clouet, de Gaulle has denied that his "Vive Quebec libre" cry in Montreal was intended to blow the separatist movement's sails, only to have the idea of freedom of spirit, the government says, Had de Gaulle intended more, he could have said "Vive Quebec independent."

However, in pledging France's help to French-speaking Canadians seeking "liberating objectives," de Gaulle has not ruled out support for any group, separatist or constitutional.

De Gaulle has thus announced a foreign policy unique in relations between governments. The statement makes clear that France's relations with Ottawa are to be governed by the wishes of Quebec.

De Gaulle already has made clear that he will be the one to interpret those wishes in an attitude that could cause concern among Quebec politicians.

The French president was regarded during his Canadian visit by what he described as "an indescribable wave of emotion and popularity."

Emotion may guide de Gaulle to support Premier Johnson's Union Nationale today, perhaps Liberals or separatists in future.

Ontario Doubles Number of Lots Available Under HOME

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's Home Ownership Made Easy Plan will offer 7,045 lots more than originally intended for sale next Tuesday, Economics and Development Minister Stanley Randall announced Tuesday.

Mr. Randall said the lots, all at Bramalea, Ont., five miles west of Metropolitan Toronto boundaries, are being offered because of a particularly heavy public response.

The new lots will bring the total number of HOME lots to be offered across the province to 2,194, instead o fthe original 1,149 announced Monday.

Mr. Randall said the extra lots — all unserviced — will be sold on a first - come, first-served basis, as will the original lots at Bramalea and at six other Ontario locations.

Original plans called for 62 lots at Bramalea, and other lots to be sold or leased through the Ontario Housing Corp. at Arnprior, Brockville, Peterborough, St. Thomas, Trenton and Brunetville, near Kapuskasing. The OHC also plans to build 30 model homes at Windsor, Ont.

There are 90 lots for sale in northeast Trenton Aug. 8.

Trenton clerk - comptroller G. W. Larry said inquiries were being made personally and by phone about the lots.

"We're not overwhelmed," he added, "but there is interest."

Actual delivery of the new Bramalea lots will be when servicing is completed in the next few months.

After visiting Bramalea Tuesday, OHC managing director H. W. Suters said, "If today is any indication of how it is going to be, then we are in for a tidal wave."

An increase in field staff because of the flood of applications was announced by Mr. Suters. He also said the OHC office in Bramalea will remain open Saturday and Sunday, contrary to original plans, but will close Monday because of the civic holiday.

The 1,666 Bramalea lots will sell for from $9,300 to $9,900, or may be leased for from $43.50 to $48 a month.

Prospective home owners must make their own mortgage arrangements, start construction within six months, complete it within 18 months and not spend more than $15,000 in the process.

However, in addition to the vacant lots at Bramalea, the developer of the land, Bramalea Consolidated will build 319 single and semi-detached houses and OHC will provide another 60 houses for sale under the HOME plan.

An OHC spokesman stressed Tuesday these houses will not be sold until after construction are promptyes purchasers will have the opportunity to select a model they like.

Arrangements aimed at giving all prospective homeowners an equal chance to buy lots were described Tuesday by the OHC.

Prospective buyers will be given numbered forms in the order at which they arrive at the various offices. Appointments will then be made with OHC agents, at which time the buyer may state his lot preference and pay his first rental or agreement - for - sale instalment.

The HOME plan, first announced Jan. 23 in the speech from the throne, is designed to make home ownership possible for families of moderate income by removing or reducing the initial down-payment.

At Bramalea Tuesday more than 50 persons lined up in front of Bramalea Consolidated offices, some of them appearing at 5 a.m. No OHC officials appeared in the office until 10 a.m., one hour after the scheduled opening time.

An OHC spokesman said later the delay had been caused by last-minute inserts needed to brochures describing prices and locations of HOME lots.

Tweed Adds Color To Village

TWEED — This village's near all-female council has added color to more than just the council chambers.

The community's 80-foot water tower has been painted green with tweed being printed in bright yellow letters. It replaces the faded aluminum color of the past years.

The new color scheme was selected by Mrs. Barbara Allen, who heads the council of three women and one man.

And the resulting know s bargain when they see one. They got the task painted for $475. The village furnished the paint. Last autumn when the painting was put up for tender bids ranged up to $2,200.00.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES HENRY MORTON

Morton — Hetherington

The marriage of Marian Geraldine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace C. Hetherington, to James Henry Morton, took place in Dublin St. United Church, Guelph. Centre, with Rev. Malcolm Johnston officiating. Miss Betty Ashbridge played the wedding music, and Mr. Terry Atkinson sang three selections during the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk crepe, having a train from the waist, a bodice fashioned on Empire lines and bell-shaped sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a flower shaped headpiece and she carried a cascade bouquet of cymbidium orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Joyce Ruddle, London, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, Mrs. Dianne Reed-son, Ottawa and Miss Mary Ann Deese, Niagara Falls, Ont., as bridesmaids, were powder blue frocks of silk crepe fashioned on Empire lines with bell-shaped sleeves. They carried bouquets of pink chrysanthemums.

Leonard Carlson, Winnipeg, was groomsman and the ushers were John Morton and Bill Morton, brothers of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Hetherington, the bride's mother, was in a gown of blue brocade with matching coat and hat and a corsage of a bliss orchid encircled with stephanotis.

Mrs. Morton, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of pink georgette over beaded lace, white accessories, and a corsage of a pink orchid encircled with stephanotis.

Following the reception held at the Guelph Country Club, the couple left for Ottawa and Quebec, the bride travelling in a dress of white lace over yellow crepe, white accessories and a corsage of green cymbidium orchids. Upon their return they will reside in St. Catharines.

COWS WILL BE WARNED

TIVERTON ,R.I. (AP) — Cows on the dairy farm of Dennis Costa will get advance warning of nearby highway construction blasting. Costa complained to superior court that a number of his cows were injured when they jumped to their feet after being scared by blasting. In future an employee of the contractor will notify Costa before any charges are set so the dairyman can get the cows on their feet.

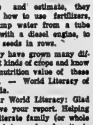
Successful Living

Sheep-skin Mattress Covers Are A Comfort To Elderly Bedridden Patients

Dear Doris: Three years ago you certainly helped my father out so much. Mother noticed in your column about sheepskin pads for bedridden patients. She phoned you direct and was able to find out the address to purchase these.

Believe me these pads really helped. Father used them for a long time, and after he passed away they were given the V.O.N. to be used by some other suffering person.



This will indicate to you just what a great service you are performing.

I read where you had a list of suggested reading for a family approaching their teens. I do not want to fall my teen-agers but I feel most inadequate. Sex was never mentioned in my home and I am so fortunate to have married such an understanding man. — Mother of Four.

Dear Mother: The list is on its way. If parents get off on the right track about Sex and the Facts, their young people have a head start.

Glad about the synthetic sheepskin. Any other bony oldsters want to know where to get this lovely soft mattress covering?

Dear Doris: The first class of graduates from the Young Farmers Institute (Literacy House, Lucknow, India), have returned to their villages as changed people with a new purpose. They are reading and writing, they are able to figure and estimate, they know how to use fertilizers, to pump water from a tube well with a diesel engine, to plant seeds in rows.

DORIS CLARK

They have grown many different kinds of crops and know the nutrition value of these foods. — World Literacy of Canada.

Dear World Literacy: Glad to have your report. Helping an illiterate family (or whole village) to read and write is as exciting a miracle as helping the blind to see. If you can read you can learn anything.

Note to readers: You can get details of how to help by writing to World Literacy of Canada, 376 Dundas Street West, Toronto 2B, Canada. Ask about selling beautiful Indian embroidery which is coming to Canada, if you want this kind of project.

Confidential to More Independence: Nobody grows up without practice. For my money, you are more than carrying your weight at 15, and deserve a little leeway when it comes to hats.

I'd suggest that temper of yours flares because Mom frustrates you so. But don't this get you anywhere? As an exchange student you will have new experiences to share with her later; and some fresh ideas which will help her see that you are growing up.

I repeatedly hear the cry "My mother criticizes all my friends!" So you aren't alone. Maybe can be just too blessed anxious, to make good sense.

Dear Doris: I'm taking my grade ten and have failed some subjects. Would you please tell me how many subjects a person is allowed to re-write and how to get permission?

If I quit and go to a business school for a stenographer, would I be able to get a job?

Dear Lynn: Regulations vary from province to province. If you can't ask your own teacher, write to your department of education, at your provincial capital. They will have all the answers.

A typist with grade ten can have a job, yes; but the more grades you have the better. You'll handle English more capably, spell better, think better, with more general education.

If the studies are just too much for you - and if your teacher thinks so too - before you take the business course do some other practical training.

(Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Glowing Coals, Not Flames, Needed To Barbecue as Professionals Do

By MARY MOORE

Be a professional barbecuer. Don't be like a certain acquaintance who gets his fire blazing, throws a couple of strips of frozen spareribs on the grill, burns one side then turns them over and burns the other. Meanwhile he keeps himself busy by blindly dashing on the ribs all the spices he can grope for on the bench beside him. If you are predict you can chip off some of his burnt crust and get down to a little bit of meat.

Over glowing coals, not flames, grill

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Pot Roast of Beef with Vegetables; Brown Gravy; Mashed Potatoes; Combination Salad; Rhubarb Sherbet (see Tues.); Chocolate Chip Cookies; Coffee.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS (Serves 4 to 6)

Simmer 4 pounds spareribs for 45 min. Cut into serving portions. Dip in Barbecue Sauce: Mix together 1 cup catsup, ½ cup water, ½ cup vinegar, 1 tsp. garlic salt, 3 tbsps. brown sugar, 2 tbsps. Worcestershire sauce, 1 tsp. salt, 2 tsps. dry mustard. Dip ribs in sauce. Cover grill with foil, arrange ribs on it and cook about 6" from hot coals for about 20 minutes, turning frequently and basting sparingly with sauce. Heat left over sauce to pass when ribs are served.

BARBECUED CURED PICNIC SHOULDER

Note: This picnic shoulder was not smoked and weighed 4 lbs. After flames subside and brickette coals are greying, barbecue a picnic shoulder. Depth of fire should be about 1½ to 2 layers brickettes. Insert spit at dead centre. Wrap in foil, double-fold seam and completely enclose meat. Adjust spit to 6" level above coals, turn on power and go for a swim. Two-and-one-half hours later remove foil and apply this glaze: One 4-oz. jar pineapple-orange baby food mixed with 2 tbsps. brown sugar and 2 tbsps liquid — could be maraschino cherry juice or other fruit juice. While meat turns on spit sparingly and patiently drizzle glaze over top, until all surfaces have been coated — glazing period requires about 15 min. NOTE: Glaze will drip onto coals, so skip foil under revolving meat hallway to catch drips. Remove spit from brackets and meat and cut a thick slice for everybody.

Leggy Styles

With mini-skirts so popular, designers have turned their attention to the legs revealed by the short skirts — hiding them again. Models at the American Designer Series yesterday in New York wore, left, black leather boots to match the medieval black leather tunic and belt, and, right, jewel-encrusted stocking boots and matching dickey worn under a black tunic. Both outfits were creations of designer Oscar de la Renta. (AP Photo)

Paris Designer Scorns Mrs. Kennedy's Taste

PARIS (Reuters) — Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel, doyenne of the Paris couturiers, says Mrs. John F. Kennedy's fashion taste is "horrible," but that of Britain's Queen Elizabeth is "perfect." She thinks France's President de Gaulle is a "ye-ye swinging general," but says durable movie star Maurice Chevalier "ought to retire."

Miss Chanel, who will be 84 Aug. 19, was interviewed by the international Herald Tribune, published here, on the eve of the Paris winter fashion show.

The interview included comments on some of the world's notables.

Of Jacqueline Kennedy, widow of the late U.S. president, she said:

"Her love for publicity is distasteful. She has got horrible taste and she is responsible for spreading it all over America. Look at the way she was dressed when she went to London to accept the monument dedicated to her husband. Ridiculous. She is trying to look like her daughter."

But Queen Elizabeth, Miss Chanel said, is "perfect."

"She has no business' promoting fashions. She is an employee of the state and she does her job beautifully."

Miss Chanel said she had been asked to sponsor a party for Chevalier, who will be 79 Sept. 12, but I would not dream of it."

"He is ridiculous singing at his age with that stupid boater straw hat. He is plain awful—at his age. He ought to retire."

By and large, Coco thinks "everything is ye-ye."

"Even our chief of state de Grulle. He is a ye-ye general because he likes (Georges) Brassens' songs."

Brassens is a troubador who sings with a guitar. His songs are largely social critisisms.

Ann Landers

Odd Names Cause For Consternation

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I laughed over the letter about B (only) N (only) Jones who wound up in the Army with the name Bonly Jones. I had enough when such things happen by accident, but what do you think about parents who intentionally give a child a crazy name?

ANN LANDERS

I read recently where someone who researched odd names through Social Security listings came across Tin Case, Safety First, Never Gamble, July Bonus, Fork Chop, True Story and Born Young. The one that took the cake was the name Mr. and Mrs. Arround hung on their newborn son. They christened the boy Stick.

Why would parents do this to a child? Doesn't it mean they have a perverted sense of humor? — JUST ASKING.

DEAR JUST: Not necessarily. Some parents want to give their child a name no one will forget. If I ever meet Stick Around I'll never forget him. How about you?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What a relief to see a letter in your column from a woman who has the same problem I have. For years I thought I was the only wife in the world whose husband collected pornography, hid it under the rugs, in the trunk of the car, and even in the rafters of the attic.

When I first discovered my husband's "hobby," I was disgusted and shocked. He confessed that his intense interest in pornography began in adolescence and I realized he was ill. I begged him to get psychiatric help but he refused. When our son found part of his collection he agreed to see a doctor. Although he is far from cured, he now understands his illness and is trying to get better.

I hope other wives who share this problem will recognize it is a sickness. Please tell them it takes a great deal of strength and courage to live with somebody else's problem, but it can be done, and I know it can be done, because I have been doing it. — DES MOINES.

DEAR D.M.: Cheers for you. And for the thousands (yes, I said thousands) of other women who wrote to say they, too, are living with husbands who collect pornography. A problem understood is a problem half solved. Thanks to all of you who wrote to say, "Me, too."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 18 and going steady with a fellow 19. Jamie dated a girl for three years before I knew him. He says it was kid stuff and his love for me is much greater than the feeling he had for her. He did admit that she broke off with him, however.

Jamie is very fond of this girl's parents. When we first began to date he used to take me over there at least twice a week.

They are nice people but I was awfully uncomfortable in their presence and told him so. A few times his ex-sweetheart was at home when we arrived and I wanted to die. Finally I refused to go anymore, but he still goes at least once a week.

Jamie wants to marry me next year but I'm afraid he is still in love with his ex-sweetheart. What do you say? — MONTREAL.

DEAR MONTREAL: It sounds as if he is still torching, Honey. Date others and urge Jamie to do the same. If, in a year, he still wants to marry you, and has knocked off his visits, reconsider.

Shulman Says Probe of Hernia Clinic Halted by Wishart

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Morton Shulman levelled his guns at Attorney-General Arthur Wishart and was himself branded a "psychopathic personality" during Tuesday's action-packed session of the Parker commission inquiry.

Centre of discussion during the day was a Toronto hernia clinic operated by the late Dr. Earle Shoaldice, internationally known in the surgical treatment of hernia, where a man died in 1963.

A confidential letter from Dr. Shoaldice to Premier John Robarts concerning Dr. Shulman, then Metropolitan Toronto's chief coroner, said the coroner was "a psychopathic personality who constantly publicizes himself as the great emancipator of the medical profession and hospitals in Ontario."

The letter, written in January, 1963, said Dr. Shulman "should be removed from his position of persecution."

The inquiry was ordered by Premier Roberts after Dr. Shulman was fired as chief coroner by the attorney general in April after charging that government officials were suppressing or interfering with information relating to inquests.

Dr. Shulman Tuesday charged Mr. Wishart with suppressing his investigation into medical facilities at the Shoaldice clinic and his attempts to improve them.

After the death of Horace Earnest in the clinic in 1963, an inquest jury recommended additional facilities for the clinic.

A Supreme Court judgment later quashed the jury's findings on the grounds that Dr. Shulman had sat in on the inquest with the presiding coroner, but Dr. Shulman continued to press Dr. Shoaldice to carry out some of the jury's recommendations.

Dr. Shulman said that late in 1964, he received a telephone call from Frank Wilson, assistant deputy attorney - general, who said Dr. Shoaldice was upset and had got in touch with Premier Roberts.

The fired coroner quoted Mr. Wilson as saying Mr. Wishart had told him to tell Dr. Shulman "to take no further action and not to bother Dr. Shoaldice any more."

Later in the day, Mr. Wilson said he could not remember talking to Dr. Shulman about the case.

George Walsh, counsel for the Shoaldice clinic, accused Dr. Shulman of trying to blackmail Dr. Shoaldice into implementing the jury's recommendations.

He told the commission Dr. Shulman said to Dr. Shoaldice, saying he could order a new inquest into the Burnett death, but that he had not done so in order to avoid unfavorable publicity for the clinic.

Dr. Shulman wanted to know whether any of the jury's recommendations had been or were to be put into effect, Mr. Walsh said.

"This letter was pure and simple blackmail," he said.

Dr. Shulman denied the charge, saying the letter was "purely an attempt to bring the hospital up to modern standards."

Quakers Urge War Boycott

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Representatives of the world's Quakers indicated agreement Tuesday on an appeal to the United States to halt its military operations in Vietnam on the ground the war is unwinnable unless fired upon" basis.

The document also calls for a mass movement among people to get governments to "withdraw all support" from the war and bring it to an end.

Only minor revisions remained to be made before formal approval today by the 200 delegates from Quaker units in 35 countries, their first international gathering in 15 years.

They also indicated broad agreement on siding with Negroes in what was termed a "revolution" against "discrimination, exploitation and injustice," now causing violent outbursts in the United States.

Veterinary Subsidy Urged

TORONTO (CP)—A Saskatoon veterinary professor Tuesday proposed government-subsidized veterinary care for farm animals because veterinarians specializing in large animals are finding it difficult making ends meet since the horse disappeared from farming.

C. M. Fraser, head of the department of veterinary medicine and surgery at the University of Saskatchewan also told the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association that there is a greater need for reducing disease among livestock with the increased demand for food coming in the years ahead.

He supported a government salary for veterinarians.

Nations Grow More Barbarous

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It was exactly 50 years ago this summer that the great "civilized" nations of the world ratified the Hague Convention of 1907, which was widely hailed as a tremendous step forward in "humanizing" warfare.

Under the terms of the Hague Convention, all the great nations agreed that the "laws" of war did not allow unarmed civilians to be killed and that belligerents did not have unlimited rights to injure the enemy by any means at their disposal.

Since that time, of course, the civilized nations of the world have become more, not less, barbarous. The First and Second World Wars were bad enough, in terms of civilian atrocities; what has been going on since then is enough to make Attila the Hun seem like Florence Nightingale.

War is now nothing less than wholesale murder. Nuclear weapons make no distinction between fighting men and their women and children. The latest weapons permit us to press a button and annihilate millions of people halfway across the world. Wars are no longer "declared", battle lines mean nothing; and "international laws" are laughed at, both by those who espouse them and those who flout them, when it suits their diverse purposes to do either.

I repeat these truisms at length, because their truth has not yet been absorbed by the millions of people who are now sleep-walking to their own possible — nay, probable — destruction. Most people still think and talk about war as though the old conventions and restraints were still operable. But they have long since been morally repealed.

As Lt.-Gen. E.L.M. Burns of the Canadian Army has remarked in his new book, "Megamurder," the nightmare of the Western World and of the Soviet Union is that at any day instantaneous death may come to millions upon millions of our population, with the simultaneous destruction of our cities, structures, machines, and the stored knowledge upon which civilization depends.

"The military profession," this general points out, "derived whatever respect it enjoyed (in the past) because it was supposed to protect the lives and property of the noncombatant populations. Now, in the conception of nuclear war, the armed forces of each side take the civilians of the other side as their targets, and are unable to safeguard the lives of their own people."

In 1907, he observes, it was declared to be against the laws of war for armed forces to take hostages whose lives would guarantee submission. Now, whole populations are hostages. Does anyone suggest we have made "progress" in the intervening six decades?

Seamen Will Hold Meetings On Strike in 6 Port Cities

MONTREAL (CP)—The Seafarers' International Union of Canada has scheduled general membership meetings in six cities Thursday morning amid growing indications the 5,400-member union is heading toward a strike against Great Lakes shipping.

Leonard B. McLaughlin, union president, said after an executive board meeting Tuesday certain recommendations would be made by the executive to the membership meetings.

The recommendations will concern a conciliation board report which turned down union demands for an immediate 40-hour work week.

Mr. McLaughlin said the executive's directive "will go further than an acceptance or rejection of the report as such."

"It will require further action by the membership over and above that."

This could involve a vote on possible strike action against 32 inland shipping companies and involve some 120 vessels. The membership meetings are planned in Halifax, Quebec City, Montreal, Toronto, St. Catharines and Fort William.

Jail Sentence Refused Man

TORONTO (CP)— Magistrate George Gardhouse Tuesday disregarded the plea of a 30-year-old man for a jail term and remanded him to Aug. 9 on a charge of possessing marijuana.

John Frederick White, of no fixed address, was set free on his personal bail of $1,000.

"My family has deserted me, and I am afraid that I might get into more trouble if I am free," White said.

Michigan Boy Held as Killer

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 16-year-old New Haven, Mich., boy is expected to appear in London juvenile court today on a charge of capital murder in the Sunday shooting of a 16-year-old London man.

The youth was charged in London, Ont., following questioning after another youth was found sleeping in the dead man's car. He was brought to London Tuesday night.

Inspector Archie Ferguson of the provincial police criminal investigation branch in Toronto said Tuesday night the boy would probably appear in London juvenile court today.

Two other persons, a 13-year-old boy and a 28-year-old man, both of Windsor, whom the first youth said were his companions, were released Tuesday night after questioning.

The body of George Shaver was found at a pond near the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway where he had gone Sunday to fish. There were two bullet holes in his chest, and his 1967-model car was missing.

Chief Inspector A. T. Eady of the provincial police investigation branch said the boy was the youngest person charged in Ontario for a murder offence since Steven Truscott of Clinton, 14, was arrested in 1959 for the rape-murder of Lynn Harper.

Insp. Eady said that although the Michigan boy is to appear first in juvenile court, the Juvenile Delinquents Act provides that he could be tried in adult court "in the interests of the community or for the good of the child."

The ruling applies to children between 14 and 18 and the decision as to where he is tried is made by the juvenile court judge.

Ontario Research Body Tests Growing of Rice

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of agriculture and the Ontario Research Foundation are experimenting at growing rice in Ontario.

Lyman Chapman of ORF said Tuesday some small plots of rice were planted May 27 last year on the flat clay land near the mouth of the Grand River.

The crop was harvested Sept. 20 and three varieties—one of Chinese origin and two of Japanese—matured.

Mr. Chapman suggested it should be possible to grow rice in Ontario because of a similar climate in the rice-growing regions of southern Japan and southern Ontario.

This year, rice is being grown at Dunnville and at the Western Ontario Agricultural School at Ridgetown where the project is headed by Dr. Robert Thiphawong, a native of Laos.

Isle of Man Complains Of Colonial Oppression

LONDON (AP)—Already harassed by problems accompanying the dissolution of its far-flung empire, Britain now faces a revolt in its own back yard.

Charging "colonial oppression," the Isle of Man, in the Irish Sea 70 miles off northern England, is threatening to take its case to the United Nations.

The 24 members of the holiday island's Parliament will vote next Tuesday on an emergency resolution calling for a UN investigation into an attempt to enforce British domestic policy on the 50,000 islanders.

The Isle of Man — known chiefly for its annual motorcycle races and the Manx cat — has a government and constitution of its own. Britain handles foreign affairs for its parliament, the ancient Tynwald.

Man's people, customs and way of life are as British as neighboring Cumberland on the mainland. But the islanders have always been fiercely jealous of their right to manage their domestic affairs.

The dispute was brought to a head by British legislation banning pirate radio stations which beam non-stop pop music from ships just outside British waters. One of the biggest stations is anchored just off the isle.

Prime Minister Wilson's government made clear the ban will apply to it despite the rejection of a similar bill by the Tynwald.

The islanders say they are defending constitutional principle, not just the radio stations.

The bill's author is a former wing commander in the RAF, Roy MacDonald, chairman of the Tynwald's broadcasting commission.

"The British government is treating us just like it treated the American colonies before it lost them," he said. "I hope this will force a showdown."

"Manxmen don't like dictators—least of all dictating governments," said lawyer Howard Simcocks, another leader of the protest movement. "We may be a small island under Britain's wing on international things, but we are determined to retain our domestic independence.

"The island is being repressed by a colonial power."

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

What is a proper charge for professional real estate services? The question is becoming more important because the public is calling local users of these professional services. The following, based upon current guidelines.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: How much are professional services worth? Apparently, real estate people have an exaggerated opinion of their worth. . . .

I engaged a realtor to advise me on real estate investment. He investigated four properties that I was considering purchasing. In each case, property, he recommended that I do not buy. I was grateful when he showed me how the income and expense statements had been doctored to present an untrue investment picture.

My happiness turned to gloom when I received the bill. I was billed at the rate of $10 per hour. It's too much! I'm also a professional person. I'm employed as an engineer, but I am only paid about $5 an hour. Why is a professional in real estate worth twice as much as in engineer? — Mr. J. I.

ANSWER: Nobody that I know of advances the claim that a professional in real estate should be paid twice as much as an engineer. However, neither a real estate consultant nor an engineering consultant charging $10 per hour could stay in business. The reasons are as follows:

Approximately 50 per cent of the gross income of a small professional office is for expenses. Also, approximately 50 per cent of a professional person's time is non-money producing. Therefore, a professional person billing at the rate of $10 an hour for work done will net himself about $5 an hour on an average overall weekly basis. Most people agree that this is hardly a proper sum for competent professional services.

Based upon a survey I have made, it appears that the minimum rate for competent professional real estate services is from $15 to $25 per hour. Senior men of extensive experience and background usually charge somewhere at the rate of about $50 per hour. The rate charged by outstanding persons is about $100 per hour.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Our neighbor recently installed a new driveway. Part of it is on my property. The contractor made a mistake.

Our neighbor has apologized for the contractor's mistake. He tells me it would cost him about $300 to move the driveway. I would like to forget the whole incident. My wife, however, won't let me. She keeps reminding me of one of your columns wherein you stated that a situation like mine can have a detrimental effect on value. How can I be a good neighbor without hurting myself? — Mr. M. H.

ANSWER: Your neighbor's driveway on your land may, with the passage of time, give him an easement or even an adverse claim for ownership. The value of your property could be rather substantially affected.

You can accomplish your objective of being a good neighbor without hurting yourself if you get your neighbor to acknowledge that he is using the ground with your permission, and agrees to vacate it at any time upon your demand. Since you are dealing with complicated legal rights, it is strongly recommended that your attorney prepare this type of agreement.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a large closet, approximately 4 by 5 feet. I have been told I can convert it into a full bathroom. It looks like an awfully small space to me. Am I kidding myself? — Mr. B.

ANSWER: I'm afraid you are! The minimum size required for a full bathroom is approximately 5 by 7 feet. The best arrangement for a space 4 by 5 feet is a two-piece powder room.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A recent issue of my favorite decorating magazine stated that a roof should never have black shingles because this color tends to absorb heat. I think I now have the reason why the second floor of our house is like the inside of a bake oven in summertime. Although I have faith in the magazine, I thought it prudent to check with you before I install new roof shingles. — Mrs. H.W.

ANSWER: I admit that a black shingled roof will absorb more heat than light shingles, but its effect on the livability of your second floor is relatively minor. What is more important is the type and thickness of roof insulation, provision for air circulation and size and placement of louvres. The proper evaluation of the above factors will do more to make your second floor liveable than mere change of color.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Walkie Talkie Police Radio Latest Link In Belleville's Role as Enforcement Innovators

Radio – 1967 Style

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Tuned in to the electronic age, Belleville's police are being turned into walking radio links.

It's a revolutionary concept, with the big-bang walkie-talkie virtually abolishing any vulnerability of the lone constable on his beat. Now the entire force is only a transistorized radio call away.

However, innovation in communication is nothing new to the department.

A forgotten fact of local history is that the force is believed to have pioneered police-radio hookups in Canada — away back in 1926 and costing all of $30.

The feat of enforcement and finance was personally achieved by one man — a senior officer, inspired by the tinkerings of his teenage son.

He was Sergeant Arthur Booth, who served 38 years on the force, at a time when Canadian police communications were still in the electronic twilight zone.

Among his family was a son Howard, whose obsession with radio and its mysteries later was to be parlayed into a leading Belleville business enterprise.

Mr. Booth says his teenage hobby caught the interest of his police father who in turn became something of a practical genius in medium.

The time couldn't have been more propitious.

Need for police radio systems was becoming apparent but experience and cost were two stumbling blocks.

A National Police Review published in the thirties tells what happened in Belleville:

". . . Sergeant Booth got busy with wires, transmitters and other paraphernalia of the expert electrician, and started to build a home-made radio system . . . The system cost but $30, doing the work of equipment that would have cost at least $150 to purchase new. The device was made chiefly from used radio parts."

SGT. ARTHUR BOOTH
Police Pioneer

For his transmitter, the sergeant strung an aerial 287 feet from the then headquarters on Market Square to the city hall clock tower. It had a 10-watt output and was licensed as Radio Station CJBC."

A receiver was installed in the city's police cruiser.

It was an instant success.

"The very first night they tested it," recalled Mr. Booth, "they caught a window peeper at the (Belleville General) hospital!"

Three nights later — March 6, 1926 — town council, the police commission and visiting police chiefs gathered at the station for the official on-the-air opening.

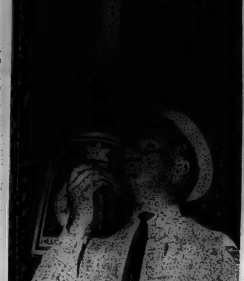
Signals were picked up as far away as Port Hope and police departments elsewhere immediately signified intentions of imitating the innovation.

Commented the Ontario Intelligencer of the day:

"The success enjoyed by Sergeant Booth's short-wave police radio last night doubtless will pioneer police shortwave radio hook-ups through the Dominion."

It was the beginning of today's sophisticated police communications network, although Sgt. Booth apparently was never completely satisfied with his one-man revolution.

Sgt. Doug Ellis, now the force's veteran officer and then a constable, recalls Sgt. Booth as "a whizz" who was continually taking down his transistor to seek out flaws.



By today's standards it was a fairly simple system — the transmission was only one way, with officers unable to contact headquarters from the cruiser.

However, reports indicate it added a new dimension to enforcement, allowing police to swoop with surprising swiftness unexpected by miscreants.

Yet all revolutionary concepts — no matter how seemingly simple — often are difficult to grasp by contemporaries.

Sgt. Ellis recalls one headquarters despatcher using the Booth one-way system, who always signed off radio messages to police patrols with the nervous admonition:

"Did you get that? If you're not receiving me, phone in!"

Drive to Power—I

China Stretches...and World Shudders at H-bomb Threat

China's hydrogen bomb explosion last June meant a big step forward in its drive to become a major nuclear power. This is the first of three articles by Associated Press writers Ian L. Blakelee and William L. Ryan on the implications of a growing Chinese nuclear arsenal.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Writers

In one startling moment June 17, the world changed suddenly and drastically—China had exploded a hydrogen bomb.

Within 30 months China may have 100 of the mammoth bombs, estimates Ralph Lapp, U.S. nuclear physicist who played a role in developing the atomic bomb.

Within that same brief time, it could be stockpiling the missiles to lob city - obliterating bombs at targets near and far—as far as North America.

The possible consequences of China's dealing itself in as a nuclear power player are widespread and discouraging, an Associated Press study finds.

There are these possibilities:

—China might donate a few A-bombs to Arab countries. Israel then could be impelled to build, beg or borrow bombs of its own.

—It might use bombs in black-mail weaker countries into keeping hands off "people's liberation" wars of rebellion within their own borders.

—Japan, India and other countries could decide to make their own bombs, killing all hopes for a nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

—China's possession of the H-bomb could start the U.S. on an anti - ballistic missile program, which, some argue, would only send the arms race into a new, dangerous and useless spiral.

China must be reckoned as a first-class power.

The H-bomb gives a soaring boost to Chinese morale, says one top adviser on China to the U.S. government.

It took China only 32 months to leap from its first atomic explosion to detonation of an H-bomb. How swiftly may it acquire significant nuclear muscle?

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara predicted China may test-launch an ICBM before the year's end and put a weather satellite into orbit, signalling progress in control and guidance skills required for pinpointed nuclear missiles.

The estimate that China could have 100 H-bombs by 1970 is made on the basis of published information and other sources by Dr. Lapp. He credits China with current ability to produce annually 1,000 pounds of uranium 235, the atoms that split to make A-weapons.

U-235 is the most expensive ingredient in the big bombs. Others, such as lithium 6 and heavy water, are relatively cheap.

U.S. Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Wash.) predicts China, by the end of 1967, will have a capability for intermediate - range ballistic missiles and will begin deploying them.

These can zoom 1,000 to 1,500 miles or more, and so could menace Soviet Asia and Southeast Asian countries, says Jackson, a member of several military and nuclear affairs committees.

By the mid-1970s, China "will have enough bombs and missiles to be a real threat to life in the United States."

When China exploded its H-bomb, it was at least 2½ years ahead of the schedule estimated for it by westerners.

The U.S. spent seven years moving from A-bomb to H-bomb. It took Russia four years, Britain seven, and France is not yet there. China required only two years and eight months. The reasons are intriguing; the record impressive:

Oct. 16, 1964: The first A-device is detonated from a tower near Lop Nor-Lake Lop—in the remote northwestern province of Sinkiang. Its force: 30,000 tons of TNT, equal to the Hiroshima bomb 19 years earlier. U.S. experts figured China might have H-bombs by 1975. Little official concern was expressed.

May 17, 1965: An air drop of an A-bomb about double the earlier force. U.S. officials scoff in terms of a Chinese H-bomb by 1970.

May 9, 1966: Test tower detonation of a device of over 200,000 tons of TNT. Ingredients needed for an H-reaction were detected, says Representative Craig Hosmer, Republican member of the joint committee on atomic energy.

Oct.-Nov., 1966: A missile - carried an A-warhead 400 to 500 miles to detonation. The explosive force was perhaps 20,000 tons. Major Asian cities were coming within range.

Dec. 27, 1966: Probably a proof test of an H-bomb trigger, Hosmer reports. Explosive force, a few hundred thousand tons of TNT.

June 17, 1967: Proof test for an H-bomb. Its force, "several" millions of tons of TNT, said the Atomic Energy Commission. Furthermore, says Hosmer, it was an air drop, something unsupportable even if only in one of China's limited-range bombers.

Experts analyzing China's unclear hasty point to numerous factors:

—Its leaders put top priority on this goal.

—Russia helped directly for a time; the United States indirectly because it had educated some of China's key nuclear and missile experts.

—The Chinese were very smart people, as evidenced by their impressive share of outstanding scientists in many fields.

—They profited hugely from U.S. and Soviet pioneering.

—China worked simultaneously to develop bombs and missiles, then to marry the two. U.S. and Russian weapons were carried first with bombers, then ICBMs.

—There are conflicting reports as to whether China discovered a quicker and cheaper way to concentrate U-235.

—China's scientists and engineers in nuclear missile work were "insulated from the frightening and deleterious ardor of the cultural revolution," says a China authority who advises the U.S. government.

—China spent heavily in skilled manpower, resources and foreign exchange at a cost of other needs.

Hosmer estimates China is spending about $1,000,000,000 annually on nuclear and missile development, or some four per cent of its gross national product.

In China with this new kind of might, says a China-watcher, "maybe we are seeing the manifestation of a giant waking, and stretching, and kicking."

Driver Training on Increase

By ROY PEACOCK
(Staff Reporter)

Today's more rapid driver testing, along with increasingly congested traffic conditions is a boon for professional driver training in the Belleville area.

Whereas taking such professional instruction was the exception for the would-be driver only a few years ago, today the new way of learning to drive is fast becoming the rule.

And for the sake of driving proficiency — as well as for safety — it all adds up.

For instance it would be unthinkable for an aeroplane pilot to receive his licence after only a few evening lessons. Yet driving two tons of automobile around city streets, or down the highway can also be dangerous.

Anyway driver training instruction is fast becoming the rule for housewives fast learning to drive and also for an increasing number of teenagers.

All of this is indicated by the number of driver trainer cars seen about city streets.

The oldest of these is Central Driving School which now has three such cars in use and according to a firm official, "they are on toe 10 the time."

Other firms offering driver instruction are Checker Driving School and Quinte Driving School.

Central officials said they hadn't noticed any marked increase in the number of people taking driving training instruction although they did admit there was more opposition in this field.

On the other hand, Checker offering driving instruction for the past two years, took a different view.

"There has been a big increase in the number of people taking professional training before trying out for their driver's permit," stated Arnold Duffy, firm proprietor.

"What with all the regulations, more and more traffic and the stiffer driving tests, getting an operators licence is not what it used to be."

Both firms said there had been a big increase in the number of housewives taking driver training courses.

The feeling here was that many husbands either didn't have the time or the patience to give driver instruction to their better halves.

The same holds true for an increasing number of teenagers.

One instructor said a big percentage of teenager students were boys or girls who had failed a first driving test.

In such instances it seems the parent wonders what has gone wrong and hasn't the patience to continue the training and correct the teenagers' driving mistakes.

In any event the driving training schools are getting more and more customers And the customers range all the way from 16 to 66.

One instructor said the latter figure was the milestone reached by one housewife who took lessons recently.

For the older person trying for a first driving permit it usually takes from eight to 10 lessons before they are ready for their official test.

On the other hand alert teenagers can usually get by with four or five lessons.

Chief instructor for Central Driving School, Eddie Lott, has a driver teaching role with the Ontario School for the Deaf. One day a week he gives instruction when regular classes are in session.

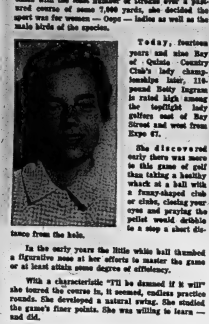
Mr. Lott holds a certificate from the Ontario department of transport and is the only man in the city with the qualifications to teach driving in secondary schools.

In some areas driver refresher courses aimed at bringing drivers up to date on traffic regulations and driving techniques, are becoming fairly popular. But so far there apparently hasn't been any demand for this type of course here.

In Belleville this summer there has been a marked increase in the number of foreign - born people taking driving lessons.

Instructors didn't have the answer for that one.

She Made It With Ease



Student driver taking lessons from local driving school demonstrates ability in backing into cramped parking spot. Stiffer driving tests and increased traffic is resulting in more beginners taking professional driving lessons.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Fourteen years ago a splinter of a gal looked at a set of golf clubs and posed the question "What are they used for?"

Told they were the propellants necessary to smack a small white ball into a slightly larger hole 18 times with the least number of strokes over a purchased course of some 7,000 yards, she decided the sport was for women — Cops — ladies as well as the male birds at the species.

Today, fourteen years and nine Ray of Quinte Country Club's lady champs bombips later, 116-pound Betty Ingram is rated high among the topflight lady golfers east of Bay Street and west from Expo 67.

She discovered early there was more to this game of golf than taking a healthy whack at a ball with a fussy-shaped club or clubs, closing your eyes and praying the petlet would dribble to a stop a short distance from the hole.

In the early years the little white ball thumbed a figurative nose at her efforts to master the game or at least attain some degree of efficiency.

With a characteristic "I'll be damned if it will" she toured the course in, it seemed, endless practice rounds. She developed a natural swing. She studied the game's finer points. She was willing to learn — and did.

So much so she won her first club championship some nine or ten years ago; her second two years later.

The other day she won her seventh ladies title in eight seasons (nine all told) defeating Ena Corke in the final. In her march to the 1967 title Mrs. Ingram defeated Allen Stuart, Betty Walmsley, Lis Black and Mrs. Corke.

And an item for the record is that during the four rounds of championship golf she lost only three holes.

While her aim is the elusive par or under, Betty has carded under 80 scores eight times. She holds the ladies record at Bay of Quinte with a 76 and has shot 75's twice on the tough Waterlevu N.Y. Golf and Country Club course.

While I have no definite record, I think it is safe to assume that Betty has more district or club's Ladies Invitationals than any distaff side golfer in this Eastern Ontario neck of the golfing woods.

On the Picton course a few weeks ago I asked a lady golfer from Little Spain (her husband was listening) if she knew a gal called Betty Ingram.

She laughed and replied — and there wasn't an iota of catiiness in the remark — "Betty? Why she's Little Folens in as gals an us ladies field day tour."

She has won the Watertown Ladies Invitational on three occasions, the latter coming last week. She was teamed with the American club champion Lois Galloway, and teed off in foursomes with the famous Kingston gal ace Cookie Cartwright and another American, Win Harberson.

There's an arch — but friendly — rivalry between Betty and Miss Cartwright. Tooled the Quinte gal has beaten the Kingston queen four out of five times. She defeated her at Watertown on the extra hole after the pair had tied with 79's.

She has won three or four district ladies-field day titles this season, the latest at Brockville last week with an 82. Anne Acton was the title loser set. At Watertown Betty Walmsley won third low gross in "B" Flight.

Mrs. Ingram will take an enforced rest from her golfing activities for an indefinite period of time. She entered Belleville General Hospital yesterday where she expects to undergo surgery for an abdominal trouble. The 1967 Festival is definitely out for the diminutive golfer. Or it appears to be.

Meanwhile other golfing gals are picking up prizes on the district greenswards. At the Trenton RCAF Mr. and Mrs. Tournament, eleven couples came home with swards. These were the Gregorys, Ingrams, Glovers, Bowermans, Bannons, Lewis's, Bud Gills, Ketchesons, Actons, Flahertys and the McCoys.

Add Silver And Bronze
Judo; First Gold Medal For Canada

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ali Mike Johnson wanted was a drink of water.

The 24-year-old Hamilton fireman had been gulping pints of it all through the light - heavyweight judo finals at the Pan - American Games Tuesday night.

When he received his gold medal, the first ever taken in judo by a Canadian, it didn't stay his thirst.

Frank Hatashita of Toronto, referee - in - chief of the competition and Canada's liveliest advocate of the sport, handed the sticky 187 - pounder his medal. Then, reverting to his role as manager - coach of the Canadian team, he presented the new champion away from reporters and autograph seekers toward the nearest faucet.

Canada had been knocking at the door since the judo competition began Monday. Pat Bedger of Dutton, Ont., took a second-place silver medal in the lightweight class. Heavyweight Doug Rogers of Vancouver lost a close decision in his last bout for another silver.

Gordon Buttie, a 19-year-old Toronto middleweight, kept the medal string unbroken earlier Tuesday by getting a third-place bronze. Brian Johnson took over.

His victory was a fitting climax to a day in which Canada reached its highest medal total in the Pan-Ams. With four days of competition left, Canadians had stood on the rostrum 65 times—twice more than in the 1963 Games in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., picked up his fifth silver of the Games for chasing Mike Burton of the United States in the 1,500 - metre freestyle, last individual event of the eight-day swim program.

Another silver was earned by four of Buttrey's taxi-mates— Jim Shaw of Toronto, Bill Mabury of New Westminster, B.C., Remi Arsko of Vancouver and Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls —for finishing second to the U.S. in the 400 medley relay.

It was the fifth medal for Gilchrist, who has two silver and three bronze. Hutton's Victory in the 200 backstroke Monday night brought his total to six.

Elaine Tanner swam a strong third leg in the women's 400 freestyle relay and brought her personal medal total to five, two gold and three silver, with Canada's second - place finish.

The mighty moose from Vancouver shattered world records in both backstroke events, then again broke her own 100-metre mark in the opening leg of the 400 medley relay in which Canada finished second to the U.S.

Seventeen - year - old George Smith won five gold swimming medals and broke world records in both butterfly events. Claudia Kolb bettered world marks in the 200 and 400 individual medley and Debbie Meyer, an incredible 14 - year - old, carved great chunks out of the world standards in the 400 and 800 freestyle.

In all, the U.S. took 34 of the 29 gold medals in swimming, swept all four in diving and bettered listed world records 11 times.

The Americans also grabbed pretty well everything that wasn't nailed down in track and field Tuesday, winning all four finals at stake and placing second in three.

The only track final of the day was the 400-metre hurdles, won by Ron Whitney in 50.7 seconds as the runners were slowed by brisk winds. Bob McLaren of Victoria just failed to catch Russ Rogers for second place.

Canada also won bronze medals in two field events. George Face finished third in Gary Carlsen and Rink Babka in the men's discus and Judy Dahlgren of Vancouver was next in line behind Barb Friedrich and Rae-Rae Batz in the Javelin.

Miss Batz's winning heave of 174 feet five inches was a games record but the discus throwers were hampered by the wind with Carlsen achieving only a relatively modest 188-4.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting — Ken Boyer, White Sox, lashed four hits and scored two runs, leading Chicago to a 11-5 victory over Cleveland Indians.

Pitching — Jim Maloney, Reds, shut out Atlanta Braves, 3-0, allowing just three hits and striking out eight.

Morris Breaks Record

WINNIPEG (CP)—Peter Morris of Frankford, Ont., Canada's heavyweight weightlifting champion, broke his own Canadian marks yesterday in the clean and jerk at the Pan-American Games Monday with a lift of 392¼ pounds.

Morris, a 26-year-old surveyor who was born in Belleville, finished fourth in the heavyweight class with a total lift of 964¼ pounds.

Jose Dube of the United States won the gold medal with a Games record total of 1,102 pounds.

Morris hopes to become the first Canadian to lift 400 pounds in the clean and jerk, a feat his coach, Ken Carr-Brazet of Belleville, says is as tough as running a sub-four-minute mile.

Morris's old Canadian native mark in the clean and jerk was 386¼ pounds. He won the Canadian heavyweight title this year with a 386-pound total lift.

Lifters Protest Decision

WINNIPEG (CP)— Canadian officials were unhappy but resigned Tuesday over the elimination Monday of Bob Sanitary of Sarnia in a preliminary round of the weightlifting competition.

Sanitary was eliminated when the judges ruled he failed to complete one lift out of three attempts at the press, the first of three lifts which determines the winner.

He was one of the first eliminated in his class, middle heavyweight, though team officials had expected him to come close to the top in the event.

Ken Carr-Brazet of Belleville coach of the Canadian weightlifting team, protested the ruling of the No. 1 referee who declared Sanitary lifted his head on his final attempt to press 303 pounds.

Sanitary would say only he was certain he made the lift correctly. The jury of appeal, under revised international regulations, cannot upset a ruling of the referees but it can remove the referee. The jury not requested by Canada.

Philip Grippaldi of the United States won the gold medal in the event and Paul Bjarnason of New Westminster, B.C., took the silver.

Lions Peewees Bow to Cobourg

Cobourg defeated Belleville Lions Club 5-3 in the first game of the Peewee "A" ZOBA playoffs, at the local arena last night.

Clarey buried a four hitter and struck out nine for the winners, while Ron McTaggart took the loss. Belleville's Barker struck out nine hits and fanned a pair.

Lewis, Sweet and Stevenson led the winner's attack while Grant Goegan, McTaggart, Blaine Mullins, and Tom Coughlan replied for Belleville.

FAST QUALIFIER

WINNIPEG (CP) — Marilyn Corson of Parry Sound, Ont., second in her heat in the women's 400 - metre individual medley, was the fourth-fastest qualifier. Her time was 5:43.1.

Western Opener

Stamps Twist Lions' Tails

CALGARY (CP)—British Columbia Lions got what they expected Tuesday night when they lost to the Calgary Stampeders in the Western Football Conference season opener here before 19,436 fans.

The Lions had said earlier they expected a rugged game since they were facing the Stampeders with nine newcomers, seven of them rookies, in first - string positions.

Peter Liske, slim behind strong Calgary blocking, completed 21 of 36 passes—three of them for touchdowns—for 261 yards. Larry Robinson kicked two converts.

Calgary held quarter leads of 13-0, 13-0 and 20-0 before B.C. quarterback Bernie Faloney—hit game muzzled by a tight Calgary defence—finally got untracked and hit Larry Eilmes with a TD pass late in the fourth quarter. Ted Gerela converted the Lions score.

Fullback Lovell Coleman opened the WFC's 1967 scoring derby early in the game when he grabbed a swing pass from Liske and scampered 12 yards to paydirt. Terry Evanshen's first of two TDs came just over four minutes later when he took Liske's three - yarder at the goal line and dove into the end zone.

Up to that point, Calgary's defensive unit and its offensive blocking had dominated the game, constantly snuffing out B.C. attempts to move the ball in the air or along the ground while providing Liske with lots of time to throw the ball or generally pick the Lions defensive setup for weaknesses.

The rookie - packed Lions finally began making headway after the half-time intermission with former Queen's University star Tom Young one of Faloney's favorite targets.

But the die had already been cast and the Lions could do little but hold Calgary from the scoreboard.

Tonight, Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Edmonton Eskimos make their 1967 WFC debuts at Edmonton's Clark Stadium. The game will be televised on the CTV western network.

Marichal Wins 14th

Willie's Cudgel Breaks Hill Duel!

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays raised another pitcher's dool in the National League Tuesday, leading San Francisco Giants 3-1 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Willie walloped his 146th home run of the season and No. 556 of his career helping Juan Marichal win his 14th game.

Mays' blast was the first and only homer of the night as the pitchers shut off the power in the National League.

In the other National League action Tuesday, Chicago Cubs rout St. Louis lead in 3½ games by clipping the Cardinals 3-2, Cincinnati Reds shut out Atlanta Braves 5-0 on Jim Maloney's three - hitter, New York Mets topped Houston Red 5-1 and Philadelphia Phillies nipped Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

Marichal hurled a six-hitter and drove in the game's tie-breaking run with a sixth-inning single following hits by Hal Lanier and Tito Fuentes.

WILLIE MAYS

Roberto Clemente had tripled home a run for the Pirates in the third but Jim Hart's two-out single in the fifth following an error by Gene Alley, tied it for the Giants.

Ferguson Jenkins hurled a six-hitter and won his 14th game for the Cubs, as the Cardinals' six-game winning streak came to an end.

Ron Santo and Clarence Jones smacked run - scoring doubles, helping Chicago to an early 3-0 edge. Jenkins, a native of Chatham, Ont., was counting on a two-hitter until the eighth when the Cards rocked him for both their runs. But the young right-hander pitched out of the jam and hung on for the victory.

Maloney, 8-7, hurled his second complete game of the season and was in control all the way against the Braves. He weakened three singles and struck out eight.

Maloney protected a 1-0 lead awarded him when Tony Perez rapped into a bases - loaded double play in the fourth. Then doubles by Pariseiah and Chico Ruiz gave him an insurance run in the eighth.

Ed Charles drove in three run with a pair of singles and Don Shaw balled Don Cardwell out of a bases - loaded jam in the fifth inning as New York ended a six game losing streak and a seven game Houston win string.

Charles singled John Sullivan across with the tying run in the second inning and then followed hits by Tommy Davis and Ron Swoboda with a two-run single in the third.

Tony Gonzalez drove in both Philadelphia runs with a single and a sacrifice fly as Larry Jackson outdueled Claude Osteen.

Jax Suns Win Two From Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four relief pitching cost Toronto Maple Leafs a chance to hold third place in the International League Tuesday.

Toronto dropped a pair to the visiting Jacksonville Suns 5-4 and 3-2 and found themselves tied for third with Toledo Mud Hens, a game ahead of fifth - place Jacksonville.

In other games, first-place Rochester defeated Toledo 7-6 in the first game of a doubleheader and lost their second 6-5, Richmond edged Buffalo 3-2 in 11 innings and Syracuse shaded Columbus 6-5 also in 11 innings.

Jacksonville capitalized on the ineffective relief pitching by Fred Wenz and Bob Myer to come from behind twice and defeat Toronto.

Minor Baseball

In the BMBA Tyke playoffs, DeMille defeated the Lions Club 16-8 while Little Owen racked up Rollers Little Giants 12-2. The tadpoles are playing a round robin series, in which CNR edged Watkins Tobacco 5-4.

Tim Whelan, Pat McKinney and Steve Kirby shared DeMille's pitching chore while Tony and Paul Meagher hurled for the losers. Both teams gave up six hits, but better control by the threesome gave them the edge. DeMille's moundsmen fanned 11 and the Meagher brothers had one less.

Steve Kirby homered, Pat McKinney doubled and singled, Mark Boyd doubled and Scott Sturgess and Tim Whelan had base hits, for the winners. Jack Cole paced the Lions Club, while Tony Meagher, Rick Hutchinson, Dave Wessels and Fred Gilpin also hit.

Randy Hotchinson gave up seven hits and struck out 17 in CNR's tadpole win. Andy Lupenetts and Gary Stapely took the loss. They allowed nine hits and fanned 17.

Bernard Trumpour, Randy Hotchinson, Glen Andrews and Brian Coughlin stroked two base hits each for CNR, and Mike Wessels added one. Mike Potts slammed a homer, and Tom Donovan doubleted, for Watkins. Also hitting were Lapenette, Terry Kiesgman, Steve Landon, Allan Peacock, and Kenny Kingman.

Pan-Am Yachting

Winds Wreak Havoc

GIMLI, Man. (CP) — High winds that bowled the waters of Lake Winnipeg into a frothy turbulence wrecked havoc Tuesday with boats competing in the yachting competitions of the Pan-American Games.

Only 12 of 50 yachts entered in the four events finished. Rescue boats had to tow 47 yachts to shore after most of them capsized or were unable to tack to safety. There were no injuries.

All were expected to be ready for the seventh and final race in each event, scheduled to get under way today.

Winners were expected to be ready for the seventh and final race in each event, scheduled to get under way today.

Winners were declared in all events Tuesday—lightning, Flying Dutchman, snipe, and Finn—despite winds that reached a velocity of 42 miles an hour. Winds whipped the water into waves of four to six feet.

Harry C. Melges Jr., 37, of Zenda, Wis., skipper of the United States entry in the Flying dutchman class, was the only one to finish in his event in which nine countries were entered.

Four yachts out of nine finished in the Finn class, won by Carl Van Duyne, 32, of Short Hills, N.J. Second and Jorge Bruder of Brazil followed by John Hooper of Bermuda and Leon del Rosario of Cuba.

In the lightning class, the winner was Renato de Mata of Brazil followed by Bruce Goldsmith of Northfield, Ill., Donald Allen of Clarkson, Ont., and Ray Meyers of Trinidad-Tobago. Fifteen yachts failed to finish in this event.

Canadians who failed to finish were Howie Richard, Oakville, Ont., in the snipes; John A. Clarke, Toronto, in the Finns and Peter Byrne, Vancouver, in the flying dutchman.

Officials late Tuesday were still busy compiling points totals. Yachts with the least number of points will be declared winners after today's medal races.

Roy Hofheinz president of the Houston Sports Association said his association is looking ahead to expansion of the NHL to include Houston.

Lightfoots, Cheesemen Win Three Share Second

Lightfoot Construction and Black Diamond shared last night that they have no intention of allowing Stinson's to remain alone in second place in the Commercial softball league.

Lightfoot's notched the winning run in the bottom of the final inning to edge league leading City Hotel 5-4, and Sonny Holoway beat Doug Ellis in a pitching thriller as Black Diamond stipped Stewart Warner 1-0.

The wins gave the Cheesemen and Lightfoots a share of second place with Stinson's, four points back of the Hotelmen, who head the pack with 14 wins and six losses.

Trailing 4-2 in the top of the seventh, City scored two runs to tie the game. Meeker walked, and Dave Feeney and pitcher Gerry Genereaux slammed singles. The first two runners both scored, but Genereaux was cut down at the plate for the third out.

Rusty Garvis started things in the bottom of the seventh with a lead - off single. He moved to second on a long fly ball and came home when Bob Smith cracked a double.

John French gave up seven hits, walked four and did not fan a man, on the Lightfoot record. Genereaux hurled a 10-hitter, walked one and struck out three for the losers.

George Perry and Bob Smith paced the winning batsmen with 4 hoster and two singles, and a triple and double, respectively. Rusty Garvis stroked two base hits, and Paul Goodfellow, Doug Rose and Don Smith had one each.

For the losers, Genereaux had two hits, with singletons going to Dave Feeney, Bob Brooks, Bob McLeod, Bob Lloyd and Ken McLeod.

Black Diamond pitcher Sonny Holoway needed only one run support by his mates to grab the win over Doug Ellis. The former pitcher gave up three hits over the route while Ellis allowed one more.

The winners scored the deciding tally in the second frame, when Stan Akrens slammed a run scoring single.

Holoway walked two and struck out nine while Ellis passed one and threw third strikes past seven.

B. Fraser, Pug Kellar, Jack Gilbey and Ahrens had the hits for the Cheesemen, and Chuck Donoghan, Cliff Hineman and Ellis for Stewart Warner.

HALL JOINS ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS (AP)— St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League announced Tuesday veteran goalie Glenn Hall has signed his contract for the 1961-62 season with the Blues. The 35-year-old native of Humboldt, Sask., was goalie for Chicago Black Hawks last year.

Boyer, Colavito Blast 7-Hit Barrage; Chisox Whip Tribe 11-5

Chicago White Sox gained the reputation as a good-pitch, no-hit team. But that was in their NSC-ers—Before Boyer and Colavito.

Ken Boyer, whose pinch-hit single tied the game in Chicago's 4-3 victory over Cleveland Indians' Monday night, got a double and three singles in five times at bat and scored twice in the White Sox' 11-5 drubbing of the Indians Tuesday night.

Colavito, who won Monday's game with a two-run homer in the 10th inning, collected three singles in five times up, scored three runs and drove in one Tuesday night.

Since being acquired from New York Mets July 22, Boyer has gone 16-for-31 for a .452 average, with four RBI. Colavito, picked up from Cleveland last Saturday, is 4-for-13 for a .333 mark, with three RBI.

Elsewhere in the American League Tuesday night, Boston Red Sox lost 4-3 to Kansas City before beating the Athletics 8-3, Minnesota Twins edged Washington Senators 5-4, Detroit Tigers topped Baltimore Orioles 4-2 and New York Yankees bronced California Angels 6-1.

Cleveland scored three times in the seventh off starter Gary Peters and tied the game with a pair on Lee Maye's single in the eighth off reliever Hoyt Wilhelm, who had driven in the Sox' fifth run with a single in the top of the inning.

Kansas City scored four times in the third inning on Bert Campaneris' three - run triple and John Donaldson's singles and Chuck Dobson survived a three - run homer by Carl Yastrzemski, his 27th, in the ninth for the first - game victory over Boston.

Jim Lonborg, on pass from two week's active duty with the army reserve, ran his record to 15-4, with relief help, in the second game.

Boston wiped out a 3-0 Kansas City lead with four runs in the fifth inning. The fourth and six - breaking run scored when Reggie Smith's pop fly dropped for a double as second baseman Donaldson and outfielders Rick Monday and Jim Gosger collided.

Donaldson was carried from the field, but suffered only a pulled muscle above his right knee.

Boston clinched the nightcap with four runs in the seventh, three coming on Mike Ryan's homer.

Tony Oliva tripled home two runs in a three-run first inning and Ted Uhlaender drove in two with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the fifth for Minnesota's victory.

Dean Chance picked up his 13th victory against eight losses, but he needed relief help from Al Worthington when Washington scored twice in the eighth to pull to within one run.

Earl Wilson, backed by solo homers from Don Wert and Bill Freehan and a two inning relief stint by Mike Marshall, made his record 14-8 for Detroit. Wert also drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

Mel Stottlemyre broke a scoreless tie with a two-run single in the seventh inning when New York scored five times. The right - hander lost a shutout in the eighth when Jim Fregosi beat out an infield hit with the bases loaded.

Departmental Softball

The Fire Department lengthened their first place lead in the Departmental softball league last night, as they defeated the cellar - dwelling Police Department 7-2.

Bob Davenport was the main factor in the Firemen's win. He hurled a three - hitter and fanned eight, and also slammed a homer and double at the plate.

Craig Rump homered and singled, and Grant Parks had a double and single, for the winners.

Scott Reid pitched for the Police and allowed 10 hits while fanning five. He also had one of the losers' three hits.

Harold Reid and Godwin shared the Policemen's other two hits.

Dixie Lee Gals Defeat Ellis 13-1

Dixie Lee bounced into a share of first place with two other teams in the Women's softball league as they whipped Ellis' 13-1 last night.

Sandra Claus was the winning pitcher, hurling a six - hitter. Ryvonne Mandle toiled for the losers.

Sharon Drummond led a solid team performance at the plate for Dixie Lee with a home run. Jackie Holland scored Ellis' only run.

Minor Softball

Bantam ballplayers battled last night in a rescheduled game, as the Jets blanked AC Travellers 9-0.

In the previous semi - finals ANAF Vets edged Barrett's Furniture 8-4 and the Cory Grill barbecued Bosch T.V. 9-5.

The tykes also played last night in their semi - final playoffs. Klausen Hawks tore apart the Pirates 40-20, while in two close games the Tigers clawed the Kinsmen Bobcats 13-12 and the Canadians struck down the Bowl-O-Drome 11-8.

Lombanks Twin Bill Tonight!

The Belleville Lombanks, local entries in the KOBA senior loop, will have two chances to prove their worth tonight. Teams from Peterborough and Little Britain will journey to the Fairgrounds in an effort to finish wins under their belts.

The Peterborough outfit will be in action at 7 p.m. and the Little Britain nine will follow immediately.

Next in line are the playoffs, in which Belleville will likely play Peterborough and Brockville play Kingston. Little Britain and Kendel are intermediate teams while Oshawa is junior.

Don Masters is the likely candidate to start for Belleville against the Pete's, while Smannonville's Dave Lewis will get the starting role against Little Britain.

Both games are scheduled for seven innings, with the first starting at 7 p.m. and the second following immediately.

Flori Goegan's boys can finish the season over the .500 mark with two wins, and the more fan support, the greater the chances are for a good result.

Mighty Mouse Sets Three World Records; Team Has 28 Medals

WINNIPEG (CP)—When the Pan - American Games opened, the United States was favored to take the first two spots in virtually all 29 swimming events staged at the new $3,000,000 Pan-Am pool.

Canada was rated as the No. 3 team almost across the board.

On that basis the 14 men and 13 women who comprised the Canadian aquatic squad did better than expected in 18 events and failed in only five.

The youthful Canadian swimmers won three gold, 13 silvers, 13 bronze medals—28 of the 65 accumulated by the entire Canadian Pan-Am team so far in the two-week competition which ends Sunday.

All three times Elaine Tanner, possibly the world's best all - around woman swimmer, came up with three world-record performances. She won the 100 - metre backstroke in one minute, 7.3 seconds and the 200 backstroke in 2:34.4. As lead swimmer on the women's 400 medley relay team, the 16-year-old Vancouver girl lowered her world mark in the 100 backstroke to 1:07.1.

Ralph Hutton, 19, of Ocean Falls, B.C., won a gold medal with an upset in the 200 backstroke.

Joss Fiolo of Brazil, who won both the 100 and 200 breaststrokes, was the only other non-American winner in swimming events as the powerful Americans went home with 24 golds in 29 events. The defeats administered by Hutton and Fiolo were the first suffered by American men in the last three Pan-Am Games.

Aside from the swimming, Canadians came up with a silver-medal performance by Bev Boys of Pickering, Ont., in the women's tower diving and a bronze by Kathy McDonald of Vancouver in the women's springboard.

While the Americans were smashing 11 world marks, the Canadians slashed native records with reckless abandon. The men broke nine—four by Hutton—while the women smashed six—three by Miss Tanner.

Hutton, who lost a gallant bid to upset world record-holder Mike Burton, 19, of Carmichael, Calif., in the 1,500-metre freestyle Tuesday night, and Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls were the biggest winners among the 14 Canadians who won medals.

Hutton won a gold and five silvers, Gilchrist two silvers and three bronze. Miss Tanner's harvest was two golds and three silvers.

Freestyler Marion Lay of Vancouver, butterfly expert Marilyn Corsen of Parry Sound, Ont., and the surprising Angela Coughlan, 14, of Burlington, all won four medals.

George Wilson of Toronto, coach of the men's team, said:

"We set pretty high targets for the boys in the Games and I think the fact we broke nine native records indicates our success in reaching them."

Only in the breaststroke did Canadians slow a weakness.

Of the five events in which Canada failed to win a medal, four were in the breaststroke. In the medleys, the big difference between the winning Americans and the second-place Canadians lay in the lack of a strong breaststroker.

Every winner in the games swimming established a Pan-Am record.

Three American girls won two gold medals with world-record performances.

Claudia Kolb of Santa Clara, Calif., did it in the 400 individual medley Tuesday and earlier in the 200 individual medley; Debbie Meyer, the 14-year-old American whiz, did it in the 400 and 800 freestyle and Katie Ball of Jacksonville, Fla., in the 100 breaststroke and as a member of the 400 medley relay.

The biggest gold medal win was at 42 was Mark Spitz, 17, of Santa Clara, who won both butterfly races in world record times and won three more golds as a member of Winnipeg relays.

Golf Gals Whoop It Up!

HAMILTON (CP)— A round of parties, luncheons, barbecues and practice sessions for members of four teams in the Commonwealth Women's Golf Matches ends Thursday with the opening of the tournament at nearby Ancaster.

The tournament festivities started last Thursday when the girls from Great Britain, New Zealand, Australia and Canada attended a flag-raising ceremony and a party, followed by a practice round and a barbecue Friday.

A visit to Niagara Falls and a luncheon were among the weekend festivities combined with more practice sessions.

The first foursomes matches of the tournament start Thursday morning and the singles open in the afternoon. The first day will see Australia battle Canada and Great Britain against New Zealand.

THE DAY—IF WEATHER OK

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The biggest civic holiday of the year here and one of the unique celebrations in Canada — Regatta Day—is scheduled for today if weather permits. The 142rd annual event is centered on a 16-race program of rowing competitions and is believed to be the oldest continuous sporting event in North America.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Great Britain Tuesday reversed decision not to compete in next week's first North American rowing championships and entered a coxless four crew in the August 10-13 regatta here. The British had been invited to send a full seven-boat team, but declined to the flight arrangements.

Boxing Merry-Go-Round

"Peace, Aint It Wonderful"

HOUSTON (AP)—Four heavyweights meet Saturday in a boxing doubleheader in the Astrodome in contrast with past fights in the domed structure, there has been nothing but harmony among the participants during training.

In the two 12-round matches—part of a World Boxing Association elimination tournament to select a successor to Cassius Clay—Ernie Terrell meets Doug Spencer and Leotis Martin fights Jimmy Ellis.

There has been no name calling during training as there was before the Terrell-Clay title bout last February in the Astrodome. Clay and Cleveland Williams also exchanged pointed remarks before their November title match.

None of the four this time has bolstered the fighting ability of the other.

The only person all four have published is Joe Frazier, currently the No. 2 rated heavyweight who shunned the eight-man tournament which the WBA set up when it stripped Clay of his title after Clay refused to be inducted into the armed services.

Clay is appealing a June 20 conviction for which he receives a five-year prison sentence.

In the other quarter-finals of the WBA tournament, scheduled later this year in Germany and Los Angeles, Karl Mildenberger of Germany meets Oscar Bonavena and Floyd Patterson fights Jerry Quarry.

Summer Playground Program Replaces Banned Swimming

DESERONTO — Only about 25 boys and girls turned up at Centennial Park Monday morning to register for the summer playground, but once the word got around, there were many more Tuesday morning.

Jimmy Sharpe looks after the boys in the morning, and Judy Huffman is responsible for the girls. In the afternoon, so far, Carol Kinnaird, Stitches, crafts to the whole group, boys and girls together. As this is the first week of the project, plans are very fluid.

Monday, once registration was complete, the youngsters played ball, and planned what they would do the following day. Everybody seemed to want to go on a hike in the woods, and so that plan was carried out. Evidently the rules regarding age are not being observed to the letter, as so many tiny children showed up that volunteers drove the smallest ones to the woods, feeling that the walk both ways would be too much for them.

Deseronto children were lost for a week or so once the water was put out of bounds. They roamed about complaining they had nothing to do, but now it looks as though the problem is sloved. The three young supervisors seem to be having even more fun than their charges. All of them have a "way" with children.

Stanfield Would Study Revising Constitution

MONTREAL (CP)— Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, a candidate for national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, said Tuesday "there is sufficient interest to justify giving consideration to rewriting the constitution, or part of it."

This is not something to be accomplished overnight, he said, and meantime "we must make the best of what we have."

He told a press conference he is not ready yet to take a stand on a possible special status for Quebec within Confederation.

Mr. Stanfield discounted the idea the Conservatives are hopeful of attracting Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal into the national party.

There also were no prospects for any formal association between Quebec's Union Nationale party and the Conservatives, he said.

NUMBERS DECLINE

Canada's sheep population in 1967 is about one-quarter of the country's 2,000,000 animals in 1932.

Guides Express Thanks

DESERONTO — Mrs. Joyce VanVlack has received a note of appreciation from Mrs. Mary-Jean Brown, leader of the bus-load of Girl Guides who spent a day in this area last weekend. They were from the Parkland area of Metro - Toronto.

Mrs. VanVlack is division commander of the Lennox and Addington division, which includes not only Lennox and Addington, but also Deseronto and the Tyendinaga Reserve.

School Official Honored

DESERONTO — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Reid were host and hostess Saturday evening at their cottage at the Outlet, to members of the Deseronto Public School Board, the past secretary - treasurer, Mrs. William Schell, and her successor, Mrs. Neville Frewer. Not all board members were free to attend, but those who did so were accompanied by their wives or husbands. The enjoyable evening included a barbequed picnic supper.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of luggage to Mrs. Schell, who expects to leave Deseronto in the near future.

Johnson Is Astonished His Remarks Taken as Comment on Paris Statement

QUEBEC (CP)—A statement issued in French Tuesday on behalf of Premier Daniel Johnson expressed astonishment that remarks attributed to him Monday night at Fredericton were related to Monday's statement from the French government.

It said Premier Johnson clearly established to newspaper men that he had no comment.

A similar statement in English was issued in Fredericton by an aide of Mr. Johnson.

Tuesday's statement issued by Jean Desrosiers, news editor of the Quebec Office of Information and Publicity, said:

"Mr. Daniel Johnson, who arrived at Fredericton last night to discuss common problems with other premiers, is astonished that The Canadian Press applied to the statement of the French government comments he made about the interprovincial meeting.

"Mr. Johnson clearly established to newspaper men that he had no comment on the statement of the French government."

CP's Monday night report of Mr. Johnson's comments was based on a tape-recorded interview broadcast by Fredericton radio station CFVB. The interview was held in noisy airport surroundings. A partial transcript of the interview follows:

Reporter: Have you seen the statement made by President Charles de Gaulle and the French cabinet today?

Mr. Johnson: No. I just barely got it when I boarded the plane and I didn't have time to reflect on it.

Reporter: Would you agree with this statement that the present system of government in Canada does not ensure French-speaking citizens equal rights?

Mr. Johnson: Yes, if he's speaking across Canada he is right. I think that's what he means.

Reporter: Does he include Quebec in that?

Mr. Johnson: No, I don't think so. Mr. Johnson laughed.

Reporter: Sir, he also said he wants France to help these people realize the freedom aims they have set for themselves. What does this mean?

Mr. Johnson: I think this is in line with the agreements that were signed in '65 under Mr. Lesage. One of them was on education matters and the other one was on cultural matters.

Reporter: What about political problems?

Mr. Johnson: Well, that's another problem. We can settle our political problems within Canada.

De Gaulle's Statement Absurd States Trudeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau says President de Gaulle's statement Monday was "absurd."

It was difficult to take seriously the French government statement, he said in an interview.

"It is absurd that the French cabinet should agree to say that the British North America Act of 1867 has not assured Quebecers in their own land, liberty, equality and fraternity."

"It is as though the Canadian government allowed itself to say the present French constitution . . . does not provide justice for the Basques, for Britany and for the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon."

Jean Baptiste Society Regrets Federal Stand

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Federation of St. Jean Baptiste Societies sent a message Thursday to President de Gaulle of France regretting the "unconvenient" of the Canadian government and its attitude toward the president and Mme. de Gaulle.

"Members of the federation's executive council . . . have discussed the attitude of the Canadian government as well as that of the official and public declaration of the federal cabinet.

"All agree that this act is cavalier and that it is unacceptable to the French - speaking population as well as to Quebec's guest."

Expo Unites Tribes

Explaining Indian Point of View Chief Task of Pavilion Staff

MONTREAL (CP)—Micmacs, Montagnais, Swampy Cree, Blackfoot and Haida. . . .

Canada's Indians are traveling to Expo from all points of the compass this summer to find a new sense of unity and spiritual understanding at their popular, teepee-shaped pavilion.

The only knowledge my people once had of other tribes such as the Sioux, they got from white men's magazines," Chief Andrew Desdiale of the 3,000-member Caughnawaga Iroquois band near Montreal said Tuesday.

Those magazines made us believe the Sioux were a bad people. Now we get to meet them here and we can see they're not."

As commissioner - general of the controversial pavilion, soft-spoken Chief Desdiale has made his comfortable pavilion office an informal meeting place for Indians from British Columbia to Prince Edward Island.

Tuesday his office was jammed by a friendly troupe of Blackfoot entertainers from Cluny, Alta., making their first trip ever to the East to dance and chant at Indian Day celebrations, scheduled for Friday afternoon in Place des Nations.

They staged a drum-thumping war song on the sunny pavement outside the pavilion, which represents Plains' Indians with its large teepee; the West Coast with a totem pole carved for Expo by Kwakiutl craftsmen; and the East with birchbark canoes resting on a quiet pond.

For two years before Expo opened, Chief Desdiale travelled to tribes across Canada asking Indian people what they wanted their pavilion to look like and to say.

The result is a hard-hitting demand for Indian control of Indian affairs that Chief Desdiale figures makes Indian visitors feel "they are at last saying something of what they feel."

"I doubt any Indian had ever before gone across Canada like that, finding out what other Indians were all about. White investigators have done it before, but never an Indian."

Staffed by 14 pretty hostesses from tribes across Canada, the pavilion was built and is managed entirely by Indians.

An advisory board of eight Indian leaders, including Chief Max Gros - Louis of Quebec's Huron Indians, meets to settle tough problems. Chief Desdiale and deputy commissioners Russell Moses and T. R. Kelly, Lately Mr. Kelly, a Haida from British Columbia, and Mr. Moses, a Delaware from the Six Nations reserve near Brantford, Ont., have found that, like Chief Desdiale, they are being increasingly called on to explain the Indian point of view.

"I wouldn't call us spokesmen for Canada's Indians," Mr Moses says. "But Mr. Desdiale, at least, has come to represent what this pavilion is asking for."

Stratford's Last Play Magnificent

By ROBERT TANNER

With the opening Monday of Shakespeare's great tragedy Antony and Cleopatra, the Stratford Festival completes this year's repertoire. It was originally intended that this play should open the festival, but previous commitments on the part of Christopher Plummer forced its postponement. It therefore became one of the most eagerly awaited openings, even in this busy centennial year.

The first question then is whether the production lived up to the expectations which had been aroused by the promise of Christopher Plummer and Zoe Caldwell in the title roles, and of Michael Langham's swan song as artistic director (he leaves shortly to take up a similar position in Los Angeles.)

The answer is — very nearly.

Faced by a performance of superb range by Miss Caldwell, the company gave of their best, and the result was better than anything else they have done for several years. The chief failing was a tendency to drag, a failing which is all too familiar in this theatre, and towards the end of the long evening (over three hours) the capacity first night audience showed signs of restlessness during the less meaningful passages.

But when this has been said, praise must be given not with a lavish hand; to Michael Langham for his production, which perhaps did not reach the imaginative heights of his Government Inspector; to Tanya Moiseiwitsch for what are certainly the loveliest costumes of this season (though surely the queen of Egypt could have afforded more than one costume during the period covered by the first act; to the principals; and to the rest of the cast.

As already suggested, the acting palm must be awarded to Miss Caldwell. One moment cooing as softly as a dove, the next roaring in a fury that makes even the stouthearted Antony quail, she brings out to the full the fatal attraction that kept him so firmly at her side when the fortunes of his third of the world were trembling in the balance.

At times, no words were necessary to convey her emotions; one flashing glance was enough to bring him to his knees. Christopher Plummer had perhaps a more difficult role, of less range and scope, but he took full advantage of it, and the two of them made a noble pair.

The scene in which he regains the friendship of Octavia Caesar was one of his best, while his demonstration of the "Egyptian Shuffle" nearly brought the house down.

Among the supporting cast, William Hutt gave a most sharp performance as the dry Enobarbus, always ready to prick the bubbles of the great ones around him. Octavius is an unrewarding role, humorless and unsympathetic; Kenneth Welsh succeeded in making him convincing. Even more believable was Bernard Behrens as Lee Caldwell. One moment cooLepidus the third triumvir, a slight, unmartiable man, meet to be sent on arrande". Down Greenhalgh, as Cleopatra's friend and confidante chairman, gave another pleasing performance, sympathetic and always thoughtful for her queen's best interests, no matter what mood she might be in.

A little gem of characterization, only a couple of minutes long, was given by Eric Christmas as the countryman with the basket of figs, and the poisonous "worm".

In a large and hardworking cast, there were few if any weak links; space does not allow any more individual acknowledgements in summary, this is a magnificent production, which will continue to delight audiences for the remainder of the season. It is a very great pity that it could not have been given a longer run.

Thus the fifteenth season of the Stratford Festival is now fully launched, with its four plays, two operas, and concerts. It continues until Oct. 14, after which Antony and Cleopatra and the Government Inspector will be presented at the world festival at Expo '67.

Combat Replacement Stars Four "Convicted Criminals"

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those tone-tired, dirty, unshaven lieutenants on ABC's long running Combat who have been crawling through mud and wiping out nests of Germans so realistically will march off the network screen at the end of the month, They'll be succeeded by a jolly band of supercriminals of the television wars.

The new series is called Garrison's Gorillas, and centres on the exploits of four convicted criminals—a con man, a thief, a killer and a card sharp—serving as a sort of special Allied commando group of the Second World War.

The format resembles the plot of a new film, The Dirty Dozen, and has some kinship with Mission: Impossible, and last season's ill-starred Jericho.

Generally speaking, war stories built around more or less contemporary conflict have not been overwhelmingly successful in television. Even some good shows, like Convoy and Wackiest Ship in the Army, rarely lasted more than a season, although McHale's Navy, and Hat Patrol have done well.

Garrison's Gorillas will be in the currently popular daring-do mould and the four Gorillas with their commanding officer will play their roles straight. The tongue-in-cheek approach that swept such action shows the last two seasons now is dead.

Ron Harper plays the leader. A tall, good - looking blonde Princeton graduate, and veteran of such ill-fated series as 87th Precinct, Wendy and Me and as Jean Arthur's leading-man in a highly-touted comedy series that was the 1966 season's first casualty.

Treatment for Bad Disc Can Vary

Let's continue yesterday's topic of questions on damaged discs in the spine.

Q — Why do some general practitioners and patients with disc troubles to orthopedic surgeons and some to neurosurgeons?

A — Referral depends on symptoms. Often the orthopedic surgeon and the neurosurgeon must work together.

As I explained yesterday, the centre of the spine is the channel for important nerve trunks, with branches emerging between vertebras.

If the problem involves the spinal cord or its branches, this requires the specialized skills of a neurosurgeon. If the nerves are not damaged, but the problem is simply one of the bone structure, the skills of the orthopedic surgeon are required.

Q — How do specialists treat disc trouble?

A — Sometimes by traction — drawing the bones of the spine apart to relieve pressure on nerves. Sometimes by back braces or other supports. Sometimes by removal of loose segments, if such removal will not relieve distress. Sometimes by splinting; that is, by grafting pieces of bone so they hold adjacent vertebras in proper position.

Q — How successful is traction in curing the difficulty?

A — This depends on the extent of the damage. Traction and back braces often succeed in milder disorders, but cannot cope with more serious cases.

Q — Please discuss the operation in which bone is taken from the hip and used to strengthen the spine.

A — This is the grafting, or "fusion" operation discussed above. The graft is placed in proper position and the back is held in correct position until the grafted bone knits firmly to the vertebras.

This means that two (conceivably more) vertebras will then be rigid as a single bone. The spine, at that point, will no longer be flexible. This, however, is a small price to pay for eliminating pressure on nerves (and hence pain) averting the risk of the damage becoming more extensive as time passes.

Q — As you have gathered, I have a collapsed disc. My doctor sent me to a neurosurgeon who recommended traction at home for three weeks. As I don't know whether to return to the neurosurgeon, as it is quite some distance to his office — 50 miles.

A — Yes, return to the neurosurgeon if the traction does not provide relief. There is no way to guarantee in advance whether the conservative methods will suffice. The only way is to try them. —

If surgery seems to be the only method promising success, the neurosurgeon will tell you so. If you do not returns to him, but go to some other doctor, you will have it all to do over, again — the tests and examination to establish the diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any cream or lotion that will remove brown spots from hands, arms, neck and face? — Mrs. E.R.N.

This is a cosmetic rather than medical problem. The spots are of no significance, healthwise. Some readers tell me they have had good results with some of the commercial creams, sold for this purpose; others, using the same cream, say that they still have the spots. All I can suggest is keep trying them.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is "cracking" your knuckles bad for them? Does it enlarge them? I have got into this habit and am told it will enlarge them when I get older. — N.A.

It doesn't damage or enlarge your joints, but it can have a very annoying sales for others to listen to. Find some quieter way to vent your nervous laudness.

Mrs. Ann Pomeroy, Kingston, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Lake.

Miss Penny May is holidaying with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Ketchenson.

Agent of Union Sorry Strike Is Not Settled

TORONTO (CP) — An Iron Workers union spokesman expressed disappointment Tuesday after Teamsters union officials turned down a settlement that could have paved the way for an end to the two-month-long sheep of Toronto's construction industry.

Jack Teamsker, a business agent for the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, said the failure of the 6,000-mix truck drivers to accept a settlement will prolong the stalemate between employers and his own union.

Political Storm Is Gathering Over Revision of Labor Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — A political storm is brewing for this fall over a cabinet proposal to revise the rules under which labor unions win federal certification to bargain on behalf of groups of workers.

The issue has a locale familiar to most federal controversies of recent years: Quebec.

It stems from nearly two years of furious Ottawa lobbying by the Confederation of National Trade Unions to allow Quebec workers the right to split off from national bargaining units and form CNTU-affiliated bodies.

The CNTU, with about 200,000 members, has been campaigning to oust international and national unions from Quebec. But it has been consistently stymied by decisions of the Canada Labor Relations Board refusing to splinter existing national units.

Unable to sway the board, the CNTU has been putting pressure on Quebec members of the federal cabinet to change the 1948 legislation which brought the board into existence and set the rules under which it operates.

The Canadian Labor Congress, representing international and national unions with 1,250,000 Canadian members, has tried to counter the CNTU lobbying with some of its own. In June about 200 CLC delegates from across Canada staged a mass lobby on Parliament Hill to seek the support of MPs for the retention of the status quo.

The CLC maintains a breakup of national bargaining units would cause chaos in labor relations and reduce wages of Quebec workers.

This stand is backed by most big corporations, which dread the prospect of the CNTU gaining separately with competing unions, one for Quebec and one for the rest of the country.

In the spring of 1965 the cabinet set up a special committee of ministers to look into CNTU complaints that the labor relations board was denying Quebec workers their right to a union of their own choice.

The full makeup of this committee was never revealed but it was known to be heavy with Quebec ministers, notably Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, former president of the CNTU and the man who shaped the policies it still follows.

Things simmered behind the scenes, with only occasional hints of turmoil, until last week when Labor Minister Nicholson issued a four-paragraph statement.

It announced that "certain amendments" to the law on labor relations had been adopted by the cabinet and would be introduced in Parliament this fall.

CLC reaction to the announcement was swift and angry. Joe Morris, executive vice - president, accused the cabinet of acting to appease the CNTU for political purposes.

He noted that the statement came only three days after the labor relations board refused, for the second time, to certify the CNTU as bargaining agent for a group of CBC workers in Quebec who already are covered in a national unit represented by an international union.

The CNTU welcomed Mr. Nicholson's statement. Its president, Marcel Pepin, said in Montreal that a more precise definition of the law and how the board take account of regional differences among workers. These have been "brutally crushed," he said.

Mr. Nicholson said the proposed amendments would be submitted to a Commons committee which would hold public hearings. These hearings are certain to become a major battleground for the opposing sides.

One vital question is how the opposition political parties will line up on the issue. They face a delicate decision because of the Quebec involvement but most observers expect the major parties, Conservative and NDP will oppose the amendments.

The Conservatives likely will use the issue as another weapon in their campaign of arousing the Liberal government of going too far in bending to Quebec demands. They see it as a sure-fire vote-getter in English Canada.

The NDP obtains a good part of its financial support from CLC-affiliated unions and has little choice in the matter, much as it would like to steer clear of its anti-Quebec stand.

There is little doubt among labor observers the CNTU would make major inroads in national units if the barriers were removed.

One Ottawa labor executive estimates a change in the board's policy would put into CNTU ranks at least 10,000 workers now tied up in national bargaining.

Among the first to go would be railway shop workers and section gang crews, made up almost entirely of French-Canadians, more than half of whom already have signed CNTU cards.

Premiers to Study Carter Tax Report

FREDERICTON (CP) — The controversial Carter royal commission report on taxation is expected to top the agenda today as six provincial premiers conclude two days of talks behind closed doors in New Brunswick's new centennial office building here.

The report received some attention from the premiers as their eighth annual conference opened Tuesday. But Premier Louis J Robichaud said it is so "complex" it was difficult to even begin to discuss it.

The premiers devoted more time during the opening round to several other items, at least two of which are highly controversial.

They discussed possible modifications to the federal government's proposed medical care insurance program and took another swing at Ottawa for turning the long-debated off-shore mineral rights question over to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The decision on whether the federal government or the provinces hold rights to under-the-sea minerals off the coasts is expected this fall.

Premier Robichaud, chairman of the conference, said a Supreme Court judgment would be recognized "but then there are other avenues that can be taken to overcome the difficulties created by a judgment."

Mr. Robichaud, acting as a spokesman for the premiers, said he believes most premiers are in favor of "some modifications" to the medical care insurance program, but it had not been determined which forms these modifications should take.

There were some reservations in some areas as to whether the federal government and the provinces will be ready by July 1, 1968, to operate the plan as submitted by Ottawa.

Premier Daniel Johnson, who missed last year's conference in Toronto because of the Quebec hospital strike, said he was finding the talks "pleasant."

"It's good to feel you're not alone if you have certain objections," he said.

The 83-year-old head of Quebec's Union Nationale government, caught in an international furor over French President Charles de Gaulle's recent use of a separatist slogan in Montreal, said the session provide an arena for a "frank exchange of views."

Indications that this "exchange" would include views on de Gaulle's Quebec visit were wiped out by premiers John Roberts of Ontario and W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia who said the province would not be discussing the "federal" matter.

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island had said in an interview earlier the de Gaulle - Quebec - Johnson controversy would be raised at the conference.

Topics discussed included cultural exchange programs — it was the general consensus that programs instituted for Centennial Year by conference - provincial co-operation on highway matters and licensing, uniformity of securities legislation, education and health and welfare agreements concerning Indians.

Camp Hits CBC Record

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP)— Dalton Camp, president of the Progressive - Conservative Association of Canada, criticized CBC Tuesday for what he called its massive failure in the public affairs field.

Mr. Camp was speaking to a session of the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs at the Couchiching conference which is jointly sponsored by the CBC.

He charged the CBC with misunderstanding politics and with failing to bridge the gap in understanding between French and English - speaking Canadians.

Soldier, 18, Deserts U.S. Army Camp Twice---to Go to Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP)—Louis Melendez wasn't supposed to be in Vietnam—but the U.S. Army says the chances he'll be published for deserting basic training are slight indeed.

After all, how many soldiers go about without leave to fight in Vietnam?

That's what the 18-year-old Melendez did—twice. The native of Bayamon, Puerto Rico, is at Walter Reed military hospital here, undergoing treatment for shrapnel wounds suffered during his second stint on the front lines.

Melendez joined the army last November and was assigned to training at Fort Benning, Ga. After three weeks of training and he had seven more weeks to go, he deserted camp and took a plane to New York.

He reported to Fort Hamilton in Brooklyn, and there told officers he was home on emergency leave from Vietnam and was due back the next day but had lost his orders.

Fort Hamilton authorities, not wanting to see a soldier get in trouble by failing to report as scheduled, drafted what they thought were duplicate orders, he said. Melendez flew to San Francisco, where he boarded a Vietnam-bound plane.

Arriving in Vietnam, he showed his Fort Hamilton-drafted orders and was assigned to the 5th Special Forces.

He served and fought with the unit for three months before his past caught up with him and he was shipped back to Fort Benning.

But he stayed only a week before going absent without leave again. Using the same scheme, he said he not only made it back to Vietnam but back to the same unit in the Mekong Delta, where he was wounded May 15.

His repeat runs were uncovered during his subsequent stay in a hospital in Japan.

Vive le Canada Libre Cries Jovial Johnson

QUEBEC (CP)— Premier Daniel Johnson returned Wednesday night from the premiers' conference at Fredericton, launching into lighthearted banter with reporters at the airport.

When Mr. Johnson stepped out of the Quebec government jet he broke into a big smile, threw both hands over his head and said: "Vive le Canada libre."

This gesture and the remark, which means "Long live free Canada," mimicked the now-famous "Vive le Quebec libre" cry of French President de Gaulle who cut short his Canadian visit last week after being rebuked by Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Johnson did not comment on Gen. de Gaulle's statement Monday that France intends to support the Quebec government and French-Canadians in their "freedom aims."

The Quebec premier was shown a copy of a Canadian Press story about his remarks in Fredericton Monday that "we can settle our political problems in Canada."

Mr. Johnson insisted that this was not a comment on the de Gaulle statement as reported but was rather a comment on "Canadian problems."

He agreed, however, that the tape-recorded transcript of his remarks on which CP based its story was a faithful reproduction of the interview.

Asked whether he intends to take up the challenge by Liberal Leader Jean Lesage to declare whether the Union Nationale party is separatist, he said: "Wait and see."

He indicated he would comment on the Lesage challenge and the de Gaulle statement in the legislature which resumes sessions today.

Canada Accuses Nuclear Powers Of Seeking Privileged Treatment

GENEVA (AP) — Canada accused the nuclear powers today of introducing "unnecessary discrimination" in the proposed draft treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

The United States and the Soviet Union currently are working on a draft, under which non-nuclear weapon countries would have to submit to international inspection to prevent cheating.

Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief Canadian delegate to the 18-nation disarmament conference, said that so far it does not appear that the nuclear powers themselves also are willing to accept international control.

"Canada is of the opinion that this particular kind of discrimination is not necessary in the treaty and that the nuclear powers as well as the nuclearly-unarmed states should accept control over their peaceful nuclear activities," he said.

Burns repeated Canada's support for a set-up to permit nations without nuclear weapons to go ahead with peaceful nuclear development.

Violence Subsides

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The tide of violence continued to ebb today while congressional investigations into the cause of the racial rioting gained momentum.

Congress debated Wednesday over the importance of the role of militant Negro leaders in the recent violence.

Senator James O. Eastland (Dem. Miss), cited the rioters "follow tactics used by the Communist party the world over."

Vice - President Hubert H. Humphrey called in Detroit for a Marshall plan for U.S. impoverished areas as one means of preventing recurrences of the rioting.

Quakers Encourage Anti-war Protests

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Quakers today encouraged protests against government war machinery such as the draft—and cited as an example of protest the "ride-in" of Jesus into Jerusalem.

Referring to the Vietnam war, a memorandum issued at the Friends World Conference here urged Quakers to "go as far as their consciences dictates in withholding support from their governments' war-making machinery."

It was suggested that Quakers "oppose not only the drafting of men" but also special taxes for war, such as the telephone excise tax and President Johnson's proposed surcharge on income tax payments.

The advisory noted that some Quakers object to such taxes, but said that throughout history many individuals who were condemned and even killed for defying the established system later were "revered as national heroes."

"Indeed, the most significant protest action in history was the 'ride-in' to Jerusalem, the great act of challenge to the establishment that led to the martyrdom of the Prince of Peace," the statement said.

Congo Rebels On Move

KINSHASA, The Congo (AP) Congolese army reinforcements flew to Kivu province today to intercept a powerful force of white mercenaries, and Katanga mutineers moving eastward toward the border of the Rwanda Republic.

About 150 Congolese soldiers flew to Bukavu to bolster the strength and morale of Congolese forces routed by the rebels 80 miles northwest of the city Tuesday.

The Congolese lost at least 50 dead in the Tuesday engagement and three of their small force of armed cars were destroyed.

A Congolese communique said Pinza and Lobutu, stronghold of rebel commander Jean Schramm, was captured in bitter fighting. However, reliable sources reported the rebels abandoned the two towns of their own accord.

The sources said present indications were that the rebel group, comprising about 300 mercenaries and some 1,000 trained Katangans, was stronger than anything the Congolese could deploy in the remote almost inaccessible forest area near the Rwanda border.

Military observers in Kinshasa said it was still uncertain whether the rebel force was heading for Bukavu or Goma. Congolese cities almost astride the Rwanda border some 75 miles away.

The small army of the Rwanda Republic was reported to be on the alert in case the rebels try to break out of Congolese territory. It is also possible that the Rwandans could put up much effective resistance against the demoralized and heavily-armed rebels.

South Vietnam Civilian Candidate Urges Peace

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's presidential campaign officially opened today as a leading civilian candidate for vice-president called for scaling down of the war and negotiations with the Viet Cong.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, the ruling military junta's vice-presidential candidate, also talked about a peace settlement but spoke in terms of the Communists giving up "someday." He said there would be no pause in the bombing of North Vietnam until South Vietnam and its supporters are sure Hanoi will respond to such a pause.

Phan Quang Dan, running mate of presidential candidate Phan Khac Suu, told a news conference: "It is impossible to fight the Communists like we are now. It would be better to have a shooting cease-fire and a shooting war."

He proposed negotiations with the Communists "at all levels, including the National Liberation Front — the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The provisional assembly July 18 banned peace candidate Au Truong Thanh from running in the Sept. 3 election. Thanh's ticket was one of three cast out for "pro-communism, neutralism or suspicion of having Viet Cong contacts." Thanh a former interior minister under Ky, has denied the charges.

Suu is president of the provisional assembly. He sat alongside as Dan said their platform calls for leasing parcels of land to all peasants on an equal basis and cancelling peasants' taxes until the war ends.

LBJ Proposes Income Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson proposed today a 10-per-cent surtax on U.S. individual and corporation income taxes because of the high cost of the war in Vietnam, and said he is authorizing an increase of 45,000 troops for Vietnam.

The additional troops would raise the commitment in Vietnam to 500,000 men.

Gold Crown Stolen From Christ's Tomb

JERUSALEM (AP) — An ancient gold crown encrusted with diamonds was stolen early today from a statue of the Virgin Mary in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in the Arab quarter of Jerusalem, police reported.

The theft occurred between midnight mass and early-morning prayers when only a few worshippers were in the church, investigators said.

The crown, described as small but extremely valuable, was on a statue in a small second-floor crypt in a wing of the church under repairs.

Police said they believe the thief may have been a boy or a small person since the opening through which the crypt was entered is narrow.

There have been other thefts from the church, but this is the first reported since the Israelis took control of the Old City after the Arab - Israeli war.

Police said they planned to increase the guards around the church, where tradition says Christ was entombed and resurrected.

20,000 Chinese Battle With Sharpened Rods

HONG KONG (AP) — Travellers from China reported today bloody fighting between more than 20,000 supporters and foes of Mao Tse - tung in Hunan, Mao's native province.

"Both sides fought with sharpened wooden or steel rods, but occasionally a gun shot was heard," one informant said. "The clash has been going on for seven days and has greatly affected train traffic between Canton and Hankow."

Chinese sources here said clashes between pro- and anti-Mao elements in Hunan, Shantung and Kwangtung provinces and struggles in Shanghai and the Wuhan district indicate that China is in a state of anarchy.

The anti-Communist newspaper Min Pao says the rail line between Hong Kong and Canton had been sabotaged repeatedly by anti - Mao train workers. There has been a marked decrease in trains coming into this British colony from China. A Hong Kong official said 13 freight cars arrived Wednesday instead of the usual 80.

Ming Pao, quoting visitors from Canton, says many storage depots were occupied by anti-Maoists in that city after bitter fighting between Red Guards and train workers. The paper said bodies still littered the streets in Canton and hospitals were jammed.

The Peking correspondent of the Tokyo newspaper Yomhori Shimbun said Wednesday that Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, and Lin Piao, Defence Minister and Mao's heir apparent, have been out of the public eye for more than a month.

Peking's official New China News Agency has been silent on the whereabouts of Mao, Lin and Chiang since June 16.

Western diplomatic sources say Peking's Revolutionary Committee—the organ Mao's highest provincial authority — has ordered all provincial party headquarters to oust Premier Liu Lin Shao - chi from his home and hand him over to the committee by Saturday noon.

The report said the party presumably would comply and Liu would be hauled before a

Belleville, Trenton Welcome Area Welfare Talks

By ROY PEACOCK
(Staff Reporter)

Belleville and Trenton would welcome any move to establish a Hastings county or area system of welfare administration in which their municipalities could be included.

"We would welcome such a move with open arms," noted Belleville mayor Jack Ellis last week after learning that the county of Hastings will further investigate the idea of a county of area welfare system.

The county investigation will include both the operation of a county welfare unit and also the possibility of including Belleville, Trenton, and eventually even Prince Edward county.

Prince Edward county now has a county welfare administration.

Mayor Ellis said with new legislation providing special grants to county welfare administration it would be "the best possible thing" for Belleville to join in with Hastings.

By joining in with Hastings the city would be eligible for a 80 per cent grant on welfare administration. "It would be a good advantage to the city," said the mayor.

Mayor Ellis cited existing examples of county-city cooperation in joint ownership of Belleville General Hospital, and the county health unit of which the city is a member.

The Belleville mayor said that the idea of area welfare had already been discussed by the Quinte area executive committee which meets periodically to discuss matters of area or regional importance.

Trenton Mayor James MacDonald today said:

"If we co-ordinate the social services in an area everyone is better off".

He noted that by co-ordinating such services the community is able to secure specialized personnel which otherwise would be impossible.

He said his town was optimistic of the results to be obtained through Trenton's joining with the area health unit which takes in Prince Edward, Hastings, Belleville and since July 1, the town of Trenton.

"It's a bit too early to assess the results but we are confident it will work out," he said.

Hail Storm Bypasses Tobacco

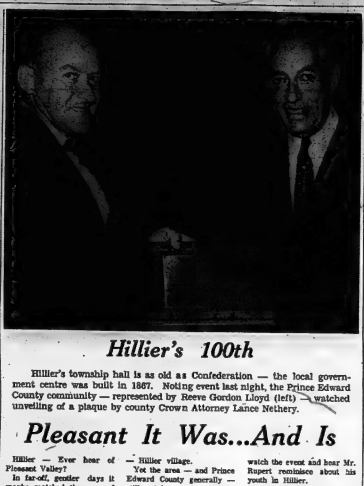
Tobacco farmers in the Colborne area were literally shaking in their boots yesterday in fearful anticipation of a hail storm that could have destroyed thousands of dollars worth of tobacco. According to Andy Watson, agricultural representative in Brighton, no reports of damage have come in yet but Mr. Watson commented, "this is not to say we won't be getting any."

Late Thursday a storm of hail cut a swath one mile wide and 16 miles long through the area completely ruining corn crops. Three or four farms growing tobacco suffered a 100 per cent loss and a 10 per cent loss was suffered in the apple orchards.

It is a particularly dangerous time of the year for farmers, especially those growing tobacco which can be harvested in full leaf. It does not take much hail to shred the leaves and destroy the crop.

Auto Damage Set at $1,350

Two automobiles involved in a collision near Madoc late yesterday afternoon incurred a total of $1,350 damage.



The accident occurred about three miles west of Highway 62 on No. 10 Concession road when a car driven by Harrison V. Lackey of Peterborough was in collision with a vehicle driven by Edna Holland of Madoc.

The Lackey vehicle received $750 in damages. Damage to the Holland car is estimated at $600.

Madoc detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated.

Hillier's 100th

Hillier's township hall is as old as Confederation — the local government centre was built in 1867. Noting event last night, the Prince Edward County community — represented by Reeve Gordon Lloyd (left) — watched unveiling of a plaque by county Crown Attorney Lance Nethery.

Pleasant It Was...And Is

Hillier — Ever hear of Pleasant Valley?

In far-off, gentler days it maybe matched the pace of life enjoyed by its residents.

In modern, less-loosely organized times, it goes by the name assigned it on the map — Hillier village.

Yet the area — and Prince Edward county generally — still retains an attractive aura for the visitor — as spectators at a Centennial event were told here last night.

"Prince Edward County a hundred years ago was looked on as a place of beauty," said one-time resident Ford Rupert, now a school principal in Kapuskasing. "And a drive through the county in any, or all, directions is to be delighted with it.

Mr. Rupert was participating in ceremonies unveiling plaques here marking the 100th-anniversary not only of Confederation, but of Hillier township hall.

Nearly 300 residents and invited guests turned out to watch the event and hear Mr. Rupert reminisce about his youth in Hillier.

A second plaque, unveiled by county Crown Attorney Lance Nethery, contains the names of Hillier township councillors in 1867 and will be mounted inside the hall, enlarged and renovated as a municipal centennial project.

Among groups participating was the Canadian Legion Wellington branch.

Fire Call Monitor Hired

FRANKFORD — Mrs. G. C. Partington, wife of the village chief of police, will be paid $15 a month to operate the police radio and answer fire calls.

Village council agreed to the arrangement whereby Mrs. Partington would look after the fire department's telephone in the event no one from the department itself was available.

Big Rubber Raft Found Off Beach

Provincial police at Belleville are trying to trace the owner of a large, rubber life raft, found floating last night at Mohawk Island in Tyendinaga township.

Police believe the raft drifted after breaking its moorings and that no mishap was involved.

It can be recovered upon identification at district OPP headquarters Belleville.

Day Nursery in Public Eye But Standing Unaffected

The operation of the Belleville Day Nursery has seen mixed reception on the part of city residents in the past two weeks, but despite admitted staffing problems, the nursery is in good standing with provincial authorities.

Just over two weeks ago the nursery director Mrs. A. Durand was given leave of absence over what was stated to be a staff problem, and at the same time a resignation from Mrs. Lea left her job because of nervous tension.

Since then there has been little official word from city hall on the issue although letters to the editor appearing in The Intelligencer have demanded a public enquiry.

Mayor Jack Ellis has stated a report on the matter is forthcoming.

In the meantime the administration report of city manager J. R. Reynolds covering the period May 1 to June 30, says that favorable public reception to the day nursery program appears to have identified the need for such a service and also gives recognition to a major social milestone.

Elected municipal representatives from the city of Kingston have visited the Belleville day nursery with the view to establishing a similar unit in that city.

Similarly, four major municipalities in the province were directed to Belleville by the director of the child care branch of the Department of Public welfare to obtain first hand information on day care centres.

The visitors were provided with a detailed list of regulations on day care centre formations and governmental procedures by city welfare administrator Daniel Aitkens which it is hoped may assist other centres overcome long difficult department procedures.

Also in connection with the city welfare department, the city manager's report noted that Mr. Aitken, welfare director, had been granted a certificate from Ryerson Polytechnical Institute on completion of a two year course including welfare services, applied psychology, economics and sociology.

During the past year four staff members of the city welfare department have successfully completed correspondence courses with Ryerson discussing welfare services, psychology and sociology.

Miss Provost will leave Aug. 9 from Brockville.

Armory Facelifting May Take Two Years

PICTON — A $300,000 remodelling task will be necessary to give this town its latest commercial centre.

That's the sum which Standard Trust of Toronto estimates is needed to renovate the former armory here into a business - office block, says Mayor Harvey McFarland.

The mayor hopes the Standard Trust will be open for business early next year. What space is then left unoccupied inside the converted building will be rented and the mayor says he knows of about eight local businesses interested.

However, renovations may be spread across two years.

The project sparked a pocket of controversy in town affairs earlier this year, when council sold the armory without calling tenders.

The town purchased the building from the federal government in 1966 for $7,500. Standard purchased the building for $22,500.

Among renovations planned is a car park for 150 to 200 cars.

IN MEMORIAM

COLDEN — In loving memory of our father-in-law and grandfather Samuel Colden who passed away August 2, 1963.

Treasured memories we hold dear,
Sad thoughts we often shed a tear.
But this we know and will not sever
The memory of those happy days.
When we were all together.
The memory remembered by daughter-in-law, Doris grandchildren Allan and Brenda.

MAY — In loving memory of Mrs. Ralph May (Cora) who passed away three years ago today, August 3, 1964.

Gone dear mother, gone forever,
How we make your memory fast,
But you left us to remember,
That memory can take your place,
A happy smile we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory is,
The memory of those happy days,
The world can never fill.
Lovingly remembered by husband Ralph and children.

JENSEN — In loving memory of Marguerite May (Cora) who passed away three years ago today, August 3, 1964.

Dad's memory is dearest to us,
Precious memories of days that are gone.
Lovingly remembered by Yvette and family.

JENSEN — In loving memory of Marguerite May (Cora) who passed away August 3, 1964.

It never will be forgotten,
The sorrow the day would bring,
The memory of a mother dear,
And a heart of love for each.
And God beloved by all,
Sweet memories we cherish,
Dear one, I know not when,
We'll meet you in heaven's bar,
But meet you we will,
Meet a chapter of memories,
Sprayed by a million tears,
You gave the years of happiness,
And we the years of memories,
When the ways of life divide,
Lovingly remembered Nieta.

The littlest playground on Belleville's recreation roster may also be the most significant.

Not that the youngsters using the small back lawn at 281 John Street, are aware of the fact.

Which, effectively, is just as it should be. For most of the year the patch of green is the regular playground attached to the Retarded Children's School.

Each summer it is annexed into the municipal recreation program where neighborhood moppets may while away their vacation in supervised, creative companionship.

However, three times a week the togetherness at John Street playground takes on a subtler shading.

Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, the regular attendance of about 30 children is joined by around a dozen of the school's pupils.

Here, both groups mingle naturally, sharing common fun and interests under the supervisors.

The neighborhood youngsters have their own supervisor — Debbie Moher. The school group has its guides too, including Mrs. Audrey Parkhurst who is enlisted as a regular playground supervisor.

Both groups benefit from the contact, Mrs. Parkhurst feels.

It also means an exercise in responsibility for the local children who aid the young pupils of the school when necessary.

"They really seem to enjoy it," she says.

Although the groups may divide for some pursuits — like arts and crafts — most of the time they are involved together.

But the moaning extends beyond immediate involvement.

Maxine Little, who drives the school's bus and helps out on the supervision when the students attend the playground, explains it.

Regular contact between the little pupils and their summertime playmates may make a social contribution to the future.

"If our children don't learn about this kind of situation now they won't be interested when they're older," she surmises.

Sing-song Shows Harmony

Playground youngsters and their chums from city's School for Retarded Children relax together as supervisor Debbie Moher leads them in sing-song at John Street playground. Children from the school use the summer recreation centre three days each week.

Village Office Changes Hours

FRANKFORD — Council this week decided to open the village office over the noon-hour on weekdays.

Councillors also agreed that the office should close Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

In future, weekday hours for the village offices will be 9.30 until 1.30.

Stoco Lake at Tweed Still Contaminated

TWEED — Since the water at Tweed Memorial Park has been found to be contaminated, swimming instruction classes under the direction of Miss Jan Poole of Napanee, were moved to Greenwood Park on the east shore of Stoco Lake where tests showed the water to be satisfactory for swimming.

The owners of the Greenwood Park, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Goulah, offered the use of their property free of charge during the morning hours. Busses are taking the swimming classes at intervals during the morning to Greenwood Park from Tweed.

The Tweed& Park Board is paying the cost of transportation.

Reeve Barbara Allen said a technologist from the Water Resources Commission took 30 to 40 samples of water from all areas of the lake during the last week of July, while the water was found somewhat improved, it definitely is not safe for swimmers.

The cause of the contamination is still a mystery. At first it was blamed on an open ditch or a brooklet running in from a n earby sawmill, but these have been ruled out for the time being as sources of pollution.

Enquiries About Lots Total 30 at Trenton

TRENTON — About 30 enquiries have been received at the Trenton Municipal offices concerning the 60 local lots being offered for sale or rent under the provincial government's new Home Ownership Made Easy plan.

The Trenton lots are among 2,000 in eight Ontario communities which initiated the Home program earlier this week.

Located in Burtidale Heights Subdivision in north Trenton off Reid St., the 60 lots are being offered at prices ranging from $2650 to $3150. They may be leased for monthly rentals from $16.50 to $19.50, or purchased over 25 years at monthly rates from $17.50 to $20.50.

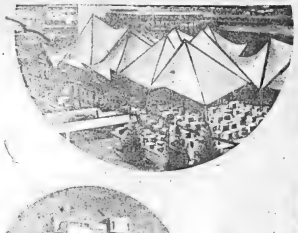
Under the terms of the scheme, designed to provide homes for persons in lower income brackets, persons who lease or buy the lots must being building a residence within six months, and complete construction within 18 months' time.

Ontario Housing Corporation agents will be at municipal offices in Trenton and the other centres next Tuesday to accept offers for the lots.

Monument To Honor War Dead

A monument built out of 46 tons of granite will honor members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment who gave their lives for their country during World War II.

The idea to erect a monument for these men has been discussed for many years. It was felt the names should be honored in Belleville as most of them are buried in various cemeteries in Europe.



Money for the $8,000 14 foot high monument was donated by members, ex-members and friends of the regiment. It will be in front of the Armory facing the corner of Bridge St. and Pinnacle.

Dedication will be on Sept. 10, the date coinciding with Canada's Declaration of War on Germany in 1939. The names of the 346 men who died on active service and the 21 battles the regiment participated in will be inscribed on the monument.

De Gaulle's Statement

The French government's statement on President de Gaulle's Canadian visit, reportedly drawn up by the president himself, is suggestive of the thin edge of the wedge as far as the degree of interference de Gaulle may be contemplating in the internal affairs of Canada.

Patronizing in tone, the statement notes: "It goes without saying that France has no pretensions to leadership nor a fortiori to sovereignty over all or part of the Canada of today."

Then it adds: "But since she (France) founded Canada and for two and a half centuries administered it, populated it and developed it, since she sees the existence and strong personality there of a French community comprising 6,500,000 inhabitants, of whom 4,500,000 are in Quebec, she most certainly cannot disinterest herself in the present and future fate of a population descended from her own people and admirably faithful to their country of origin, or consider Canada as a foreign country in the same sense as others."

There is a clear implication there that France, or de Gaulle at any rate, is claiming the right to influence the future of Quebec — and not merely on the basis of a cultural or special relationship because of ties of blood. No, de Gaulle's earlier cry of "Long live Quebec" was nothing short of an inflammatory statement which ignored the fact that the province, like any other in Canada, has its own free democratic institutions and government within Canada.

Quebecers should remember they are Canadians like anybody else who was born in this country or has taken out citizenship. And unless their memories are short and they fail to remember the virtual dictatorship and the strictures of the Duplessis regime, they will treat with the contempt it deserves the de Gaulle statement suggesting freedom is lacking in the province.

The president has spoken of a "unanimous conviction among French Canadians that after the century of oppression which for them followed the English conquest, a second century under the system defined by the British North America Act of 1867 had not assured them liberty, equality and fraternity in their own country."

To which it may be said, if it comes to that, even Ottawa is not entirely free in the decisions it makes. Some decisions still must be ratified by the British parliament, and even though this is merely a formality it has long been a bone of contention. One day presumably the Canadian constitution will be totally Canadian, but thus far the technical difficulties of repealing an act that is so bound up with our political affairs have proved insurmountable.

Quebec, however, is as free as it wants to be. Its people should have done with their collective persecution complex, and their sense of deprivation as a socially motherland that hitherto has scarcely lifted a finger to assist it in any material way — and concentrate on being Canadians.

The Adventurers

Adventure seekers are as busy as ever these days — and particularly since Sir Francis Chichester completed his lone round-the-world cruise.

Alec Rose, a 59-year-old English grocer and expert yachtsman, left Portsmouth recently in his 36-foot cutter in a bid to sail around the world along the same route used by Chichester. The two men are old friends and like Sir Francis, Mr. Rose has sailed the Atlantic single-handed.

Another who has taken to the sea again is Lee Quinn, an American who makes a practice of taking along an all-female crew. Mr. Quinn, who is 40, completed a 38,000-mile trip around the world July 2 during which 59 women sailed with him.

Now Mr. Quinn is en route to Honolulu from San Francisco with a crew of six young women. They include five Americans — among them a hairdresser, a health studio manager, a former stewardess and a high school teacher — and an Australian legal secretary.

And of course there are any number of people building their own boats for journeys long or short. Frank Madrick, a Toronto Island resident, recently completed a 13-ton, 40-foot sailboat, and here in Belleville a Herchimer Avenue man, George Weymark built himself a 37-foot sailing craft.

Then there is the group of women mountain climbers who have been tackling a peak in Alaska, but at last reports had been forced to give up the attempt. But successful or otherwise, the words of Sir Francis Chichester come to mind: "It's the effort that counts."

Pseudo Dignity Hides George Hees' Natural Charms

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — While there is still time, will Conservative leadership candidate George Hees' handlers please take their shotty hands off him?

For, given any kind of a sporting chance to be his swinging self again, he might just be able to finish, nose out front, in the big September stakes.

But he can't do it now.

Not when he is packing all that stuffing with which his managers — correction, ex-managers — have managed to fill his shirt.

Read his speeches — he has been making plenty of them, goodness knows, rattling them off at a minute-a-day pace sometimes escalating the rate to two or three policy pronouncements.

Kind of dull. No sing. Just not George.

Makes him sound something like an ersatz Davie Fulton, an imitation Senator Wallace McCutcheon or a counterfeit Donald Fleming.

Fulton's claim to leadership seems based largely on the claim that he is the leading Conservative thinker, the resident intellectual, and perhaps he just may be.

George Hees is many things — and most of them grand and a credit to the many own characteristics — but an intellectual is not one of them.

Senator McCutcheon believes he qualifies for leadership material because of his understanding of business and finance — and only the taxpayer knows how urgently the management expertise of such a statesman is needed in the federal government.

George Hees is a wealthy man in his own right, gave a bang-up go-go performance in his years as Conservative Trade Minister, and did well enough in Toronto-heading the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges — but financial wheeler-dealer or big-time moneyman he is not.

Donald Fleming is a hard-headed, realistic, budget-balancing, Right-of-Centre — in fact, cutis far right — former Conservative Finance Minister who believes, as an article of personal political faith that governments, like taxpayers (who have no choice) must pay their way.

George Hees is a middle — on the-financial-road sort of administrator, never sot-bearded than hard-headed, and a large "C" rather than small "c" Conservative.

But being none of these things that Donald Fleming, Senator McCutcheon and Davie Fulton are, George Hees in recent months has tried to be all of them.

Friends — and no leadership candidate has more of them — are dismayed that some, or perhaps all of his campaign handlers seem to have persuaded him that being George Hees, the old, gay, wise-cracking, back-slapping Hi-Ya Boy great guy, simply is not dignified.

It may not be all that long on dignity, but it is "George Baby," and it packs powerful public appeal.

George Hees the intellectual, the cool manager, the Mr. on-the-Right, simply is not credible.

Not when you remember, fondly, the real, the enormously likeable George Hees.

Like the time, covered with mud, uniform in tatters, arm in bandage, he vaulted onto the Grey North byelection platform in Owen Sound's Capitol Theatre — just like it was the Argonaut football field — to campaign dramatically, as a fighting man best back from the trenches, against General A. G. L. McNaughton, in the conscription crisis 23 years ago.

Or like the afternoon, when making his way to their seats at a football game, he turned to his wife Mike, as a wave of cheers swept across the field, and grinned, "Guess they recognize me, eh honey?" Then, joyously interpreting his acclamation in the stands yelled "Hi-ya Stockdill" and Mike laughed, "Guess they do, honey."

Maybe like the time when he had the Trade and Commerce Department rolling as it never had geared up before, he called in the departmental c o m m issioners from posts around the world for a Go-Go-'Em pep talk and presentation of those ties and buttons proclaiming it "Export Year."

Or like the time he was Minister of Defence Production, and, in the course of a visit to Belleville, he was asked to present a football trophy to the Belleville Bulls, and grinned, "Guess they recognize me, eh honey?" Then, joyously interpreting his acclamation in the stands yelled "Hi-ya Stockdill" and Mike laughed, "Guess they do, honey."

Maybe like the time when he had the Trade and Commerce Department rolling as it never had geared up before, he called in the departmental c o mmiss

Freight Rate Adjustment Announced

MONTREAL (CP)— Increases in some railway freight rates for traffic carried within Canada under competitive commodity rates were announced Wednesday by the Railway Association of Canada.

The association, which represents Canadian railways, said the rate adjustments filed with the Board of Transport Commissioners in Ottawa, will go into effect Sept. 5 on 13 railways in Canada, including the CNR and CPR.

A statement said about one-third of freight traffic handled by the railways between points in Canada is carried under competitive commodity rates. For most shipments in this category, the increases will range from one-quarter of a cent to 12 cents per hundred pounds.

The adjustments were designed so that long-haul shipments bear a proportionately lower increase than short-haul shipments.

The rate adjustments are expected to produce about $8,000,000 in additional freight revenue on a full year and will help offset higher material prices and labor costs, the statement said.

The adjustments do not apply to export grain and flour, livestock carried between Western Canada to markets in the East common carrier piggyback movements, international traffic or freight carried under agreed charges between individual shippers and the railways.

Profit Sharing Not Issue Auto Bargainer Claims

DETROIT (AP)—A top United Auto Workers bargainer says the union will not strike to get profit sharing from U.S. automakers this year.

Douglas A. Fraser, director of the union's Chrysler department, said Wednesday the union had found rock-hard resistance to the idea from management and would wait until later to press its demands.

Profit sharing or "equity sharing" as UAW President Walter P. Reuther called it, was a surprise demand when the union opened new contract negotiations July 12.

Reuther told Ford, Chrysler and General Motors that bargaining without including profit sharing was "primitive nonsense."

Fraser had a reporter Wednesday, however: "If profit sharing were the only issue, it would not be a strikable issue."

Pressed for explanation, he said the reporter could "reasonably draw the conclusion" there would be no strike over profit sharing this year.

Fraser added, "It's a need we've sown."

"We'll be back another year.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The auto industry's offensive for wage parity for Canadian auto workers will be waged over Detroit bargaining tables, United Auto Workers Union Canadian Director George Burt said here Wednesday.

As contract negotiations opened with Chrysler Canada Ltd. in Windsor, he said wage parity will cost the big three automakers only about four cents an hour more over the North American market.

Chrysler is the last of the big three to begin bargaining with the UAW on a new three-year contract. General Motors of Canada Ltd. and Ford of Canada Ltd. began their negotiations with the union in Toronto earlier this week.

Postal Strike Definite Says Union President

OTTAWA (CP)— The 12,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers has voted 70 per cent in favor of staging a one-day protest strike over the government's refusal to compensate 2,500 postal clerks who missed out on any benefits from the Dominion Day public holiday July 3.

William Kay, president of the union which represents workers inside the country's post offices, announced the figure Wednesday after emerging from a 90-minute conference with Post-master-General Cote.

Both he and Mr. Cote declined to discuss the talks.

Mr. Kay said no date for the strike has been set. Revenue Minister Benson, head of the treasury board which handles all federal salary matters, has warned that a walkout would be illegal and penalties would be imposed.

Pressed by reporters as to whether a strike was definite, Mr. Kay stated that a strike was definite in view of the membership decision.

At issue is the government's action in calling a public holiday Monday July 3, because the official Dominion Day observance July 1 fell on a Saturday.

Federal employees who worked July 3 were given overtime pay or another day off. But those who normally had that day off and did not work were required to work Tuesday to Saturday without added compensation.

Mr. Kay said the strike date will be selected by the union executive at a meeting still to be set. The walkout would take place "unless we get justice."

Quebec Labor Group Supports Strike Bid

MONTREAL (CP)—Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, Wednesday expressed his full support for proposed strikes by Great Lakes seamen and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

The seamen, members of the Seafarers' International Union, are to meet in six cities today for special deliberations on strike action they will take following government postponement for 18 months of the enforcement of the 48-hour week on the Great Lakes.

Postmen have planned a one-day walkout in protest against what they said was government failure to designate July 3 as a full holiday for them.

Mr. Laberge said he finds it "inadmissible" that a conciliation board report supports a new 18-month delay before implementing the 40-hour week for seamen.

The Canada labor standards code granting all Canadian workers the right to a 40-hour week was passed in July 1965 but special deferments were given companies which would find it hard to adjust to it immediately.

As for the postmen, he said he believed the government was thinking of a "big stick" approach "repression" to break a strike which could be avoided through mediation.

Vancouver Designers Win World Rights To Use Eskimo Art Motifs in Fabric

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver fashion designers flew home from England Wednesday after signing a mammoth contract for their designs that will bring them $4,000,000 each over five years.

Lea Lavers and Inga Nielson have parlayed their Eskimo-oriented designs into a fast-growing fashion empire that has brought them a $125,000,000 contract from which they will get five per cent.

The contract was signed in England with the Crossley Carpet Co. which was given world rights to the Eskimo designs for the next five years.

Two years ago they decided to join forces in manufacturing men's shirts. Both felt there was a need for bright styling and vivid colors.

They kept their hopes secret. On the advice of Northern Affairs Minister Laing they discussed their designs with the federal department of trade and commerce in Ottawa. As a result they obtained world-wide registration on using Eskimo art in their fabric designs.

During their own $6,000-mile promotional trip they opened offices in London and Paris to handle their European interests.

Mr. Lavers was born in Montobe, grandson of a full-blooded Eskimo. His first job was in a factory where "I helped make candles for $7 a week."

He was Inga who got me started," he said, "the canoe crew from Denmark nine years ago and couldn't figure out why nobody was interested in developing the Eskimo and Indian arts."

Mrs. Nielson spent four years at an art and design school here. Her only claim to Eskimo heritage is a great-great grandfather who was an Eskimo from Greenland.

Family Reunions

WELLMAN FAMILY

The Wellman reunion was held July 29, 1967, at Greenwood Park, Tweed, beginning with dinner at 12.30 p.m.

Officers presiding over this year's reunion were: Roscoe Garrison, Corbyville, president; Earl Wellman, Otaw, vice-president; Audrey Frappier, Otawa, secretary-treasurer, and Don Wellman, Otawa, games convener.

Swimming and games were enjoyed. Some members brought very old articles of clothing and snapshots to be viewed by all attending.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Wellman, R.R. 2, Belleville won the prize for being the longest married couple (47 years).

LUNCHEON MEAT topped with pepper rings and pineapple is a quick summertime supper dish that won't heat up the kitchen.

Summertime Supper Of Fruited Meat

In every kitchen there is a shelf containing an assortment of canned foods for emergency meals.

What better time to dip into the supply than for a summertime supper when it is too hot to eat! This is the moment when a fruited meat loaf broil will tempt lagging appetites. It will please the women of the kitchen too because it is ready for the table in a matter of minutes.

Luncheon loaf with fruit added is one of the most convenient of the shelf stable canned foods. The meat loaf is fully cooked and needs no further attention when served right from the can.

Chances are the kitchen shelf also contains crushed pineapple and an assortment of spices. No doubt the brown sugar is nearby too. These simple ingredients are the basics for a quickie main dish to be served hot from the boiler.

Fruited Meat Loaf Broil

Cut beef and pork luncheon loaf into ½ inch slices. Top each slice with a ring of green pepper. Fill centres of green pepper rings with drained canned crushed pineapple. Top each with a sprinkling of brown sugar, curry powder, or caraway seeds. Broil 5 to 10 minutes, or until heated through and brown lightly.

To eliminate some dishwashing, arrange canned green beans in the bottom of the broiler pan and tuck under the broiler for a few minutes without the tray rack. When beans are almost hot, replace rack with fruit-topped meat slices and return to the broiler. Meat and vegetable will be ready to serve together. Sliced tomatoes and crispy potato chips are easy go-withs.

The Experts Say

Only Cause of Overweight Is Eating Too Much

TORONTO (CP)—People are overweight because they eat too much, says Dr. Barbara McLaren, dean of the faculty of food sciences at the University of Toronto.

She is a crusader who contends people eating habits can help take weight off and keep it off. She dismisses big bones and physical and psychological problems as mere excuses in most cases with which overweight people hid themselves. She says, too, that people too often think of a diet as something unpleasant to be undertaken for a short time and then dropped.

"I don't think people who are overweight are essentially, mentally disturbed, and only about one per cent have hormonal problems.

"Overweight is not a short-term problem. It is not a three- or four-week deal. It's a rest of your life deal."

Since 1956, the faculty of food sciences has been running a continuing experimental program begun in co-operation with the Women's College Hospital.

Volunteers from the Ontario Heart Foundation agree to follow a balanced diet of 1,100 to 1,200 calories a day and keep score on themselves. They are given training in nutrition, menus and shopping planning, and are encouraged to step up physical activity.

They don't count calories—the scores are kept on diet and menus units of five and 10.

The idea is to break bad eating habits and adopt good ones.

Dr. McLaren says the program works when people are strongly motivated. Its enemy is human nature. She says people cheat on their food scores, they say they get more exercise than they do, and, free from the discipline of the clinic, they backslide.

In general terms, a balanced breakfast would include fruit, bread or cereal, protein, skim milk and a non-calorie beverage. For lunch, protein, vegetable, bread, skim milk, non-calorie beverage. For dinner, protein, vegetable, fruit and non-calorie beverage. A glass of skim milk at bedtime is allowed.

There are a few helpful hints in the program.

One is to eat slowly. If you do your senses will be satisfied and will let you know when you have had enough food. If you eat quickly it is easy to eat too much and still feel unsatisfied because your senses are cheated.

You can use some of the skim milk allowance or some of the vegetable allowance in the form of dill pickles or cauliflowerettes to help delay hunger.

Plan attractive meals and use spices and condiments to give them definite, zoo-fatting flavor.

You may also use consomme, bouillon, clear broth, plain gelatin, non-caloric desserts, rennet tablets and artificially sweetened beverages to perk up meals.

You should drink tea and coffee black and avoid sugar-sweetened soft drinks and alcohol.

Broil, bake, roast, simmer or pan-fry meats without fats.

You can help yourself, too, by choosing the lower calorie foods within various categories. Chicken and fish are lower than many meats.

Salad vegetables and asparagus are lower than most other vegetables.

Feelings of Inadequacy Are at Root Of Wife's Unreasonal Jealousy

Dear Doris: I believe that besides giving advice to people, you are also very kind.

I am a young woman, not beautiful, but attractive. I have a wonderful husband and three fine boys. This sounds as if I should be very happy, and I was until a short time ago when I began to be jealous of my husband. If I see him looking at another woman, I know it is just curiosity, but I get this terrible feeling and I actually get a pain in my stomach.

I believe I am going overboard, because now I am jealous of my best friend. She is four years younger than I, and more beautiful. She says she can't fall in love with anyone, but she could with someone like my husband, who she thinks is perfect. Sometimes she says, "Why should I settle for just anyone? I am good looking, and I can have anyone without marrying him."

It upsets and terrifies me, Doris. I know that she doesn't mean any harm to me, but I guess I am so jealous that everything bothers me. — Upset.

Dear Upset: Have you forgotten that beauty is in the eye of the beholder? The dear familiar faces of one's beloved is more precious than that of any beauty queen. When a man loves his wife, he finds her beautiful, and indeed she is. There are all-important inner values which shine through and a loving smile can beautify any face.

DORIS CLARE

Your friend sees sex appeal and physical expression as the ultimate. Pity her, but don't be jealous of her. Mature love forgets to be jealous, losing itself in working towards the happiness of the one who is loved.

You only betray your own feelings of inadequacy, human, but not valid. Keep believing in that fine husband of yours.

Dear Doris: My steady has five friends who always go along. None of them have girl friends or even any girls who like them. If my steady and I plan a picnic, sure enough, when we arrive at our destination, there are the five fellows, who "just happen to be there."

My steady has talked to them about this, but after being very close friends for 18 years, I guess it's hard to change.

Doris, what should I do? I don't want to be a friendship wrecker nor do I want to be over-possessive. I don't really hate the boys or anything but I'm getting kinda sick of being followed around every where we go. — Concerned.

Dear Concerned: Round up five girls next time to everything up. Or call off going steady, explaining that you don't want to date a sextet.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "You're the one who is unreasonable! Are you trying to drive me away from home?"

Mother: "I won't listen to you anymore. Besides I don't want to argue in front of the children. They're too young to understand."

Children can cope with considerable conflict and upset if they don't feel they have caused it.

Children may not understand, but they cannot help but be aware of family discussion. Offer them a simple explanation and make it clear that they are in no way responsible for the trouble.

Seafood Frosted with Aspic Perks Up Hot Weather Meals

By MARY MOORE

It was the day before we were to take off for the North. A huge Air Canada truck rolled up to my house and the driver handed me a long carton. On opening it I found an ice cold Red Spring salmon from British Columbia weighing about seven pounds. (That salmon had been swimming in the Pacific Ocean approximately 12 hours earlier, I learned later.)

What to do with it?

It did not take long to decide. It was too long for my roaster so I cut off the head and tail, wrapped it in large double sheets of cookery parchment and boiled it gently for 30 min., turning it over after 15. Then I skinned and cooled it as quickly as possible, turned the refrigerator control as low as I dared and chilled that wrapped salmon in the bone. I had it thoroughly to take it with us in the trunk to Kawartha.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Barbecued Spareribs; Glazed Sweet Potatoes; New Green Beans; Celery Hearts; Melon Fruit Cup; Currant Cakes; Tea.

SUNDAY

Roast Stuffed Turkey (large enough to have left-overs for Civic Holiday tomorrow); Cranberry Sauce; Corn on the Cob; Broccoli au Gratin; New Asparagus; Fresh Wholemeal Bread (see Sat.); Coffee.

For our first dinner in the North it was crested with mayonnaise aspic (see below) on a huge ironstone platter and bordered with devilled eggs, tomato and lemon wedges, gherkins and ripe olives. The next day was the Sunday of the "massive power failure" through which the Queen severely sat in church in Quebec. That aspic, if leftovers included, was used meant no Sunday roast of beef for dinner. It came the precious salmon again. On Monday we had enough left for lunch so I mashed it with mayonnaise, lemon juice and salt and made it into salmon sandwiches with homemade bread.

MAYONNAISE ASPIC

NOTE: This is commonly used for coating cold boiled or baked salmon or other large fish that have been skinned. It is excellent for canapes as a jelling base in which to fix tiny shrimp or sliced stuffed olives or water thin slices of smoked salmon or anchovies or sardines.

In a cup soak 1½ tsps. plain gelatine in ¼ cup cold water for 5 min. Heat the cup in a little boiling water and stir until the gelatine is dissolved. Cool to room temperature, but do not allow it to set. Stir into 1 cup genuine mayonnaise — not salad dressing. This amount will coat completely a seven pound salmon but you should spoon and spread it on fairly quickly or it will begin to set as soon as it touches the cold flesh of the fish or canape toppings.

Ann Landers

Drinking Party Ends In All-night Fighting

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is 2:30 a.m. Mom and Dad are still shouting and name-calling and screaming at each other. The last guest just left. I helped shove her out the door. Before leaving she managed to drop her drink in the vestibule and I had to clean up the broken glass. My parents were too smashed to notice.

I am writing because I know I won't be able to sleep until dawn. After a party like this Mom and Dad fight all night. She accuses him of making passes at other women and he says she is crazy and he is going to put her in a mental institution.

I am a 17-year-old boy and have been offered two full scholarships in another state. But I'm afraid to leave home because I don't know what will become of my brothers and my little sister if I go away. Yet I know I must get a college education because at the rate my parents are going they will be dead of alcoholism before the younger kids are grown. I have to get myself educated so I can take care of them.

I am not writing for advice. I know you can't help people who won't help themselves and my parents insist they are not alcoholics. They call themselves "social drinkers." But thanks Ann, for letting me get this off my chest. I needed someone to talk to. — KEN.

DEAR KEN: I am printing your letter in the hope that the thousands of "social drinkers" who stagger around and fight until dawn will recognize themselves. In the meantime, I hope you will write to Al-Anon for literature.

The address is Al-Anon Family Group Headquarters, Inc., P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, N.Y. 10010. Kids with booming parents need to know a lot of things and this organization can help them. Good luck, fella.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an 11-year-old boy in the 5th grade. I called a girl who is in my room at school and asked her if she would accept a roller skating date with me for Saturday afternoon. She said yes.

That night my mother told my father about it and he said no 11-year-old kid should go on a date. He made me call the girl and cancel.

I was going to use my own money which I earned. My Mom was going to drive...me and the girl to the rink and drive us home. This would have been in the afternoon. A man supervises the kids and the rink at all times.

Please tell me if you agree with me and my mother or if you agree with my father. If you agree with me and my mother, I will show my father your answer and try for next Saturday. — STEPHEN.

DEAR STEPHEN: Sorry, but I'm with your father. Eleven-year-old kids should not be dating even if it is only an afternoon at the roller-rink.

After you've four to six dates, you'll want to go to the movies. Then you will want to make a lunch date. Next you will want to take her to dinner. When you reach the age of 16 you will want to go steady. By the time you're 18 there'd be nothing left to do but get engaged.

Stick to the fellas for a few more years, Steve. You won't regret it.

Man and Dog Walk Across Canada in 129 Days

VANCOUVER (CP)—"It was a long walk, boy."

That was the terse comment of 45-year-old logger Filip Andreas Moen of Smithers, B.C., who arrived here Wednesday completing a 4,232 mile jaunt from Halifax to Vancouver. It was his personal centennial project.

The "boy" to which he referred was his German shepherd Bruno, who crossed the Vancouver city limits at sundown with his master on the 129th day of the walk.

They left Halifax March 26 and averaged 33 miles a day.

The jovial prince of the road was given no official welcome and said he was happy he wasn't. A reporter who accompanied the walker over the last five miles said he was hard-pressed to keep the pace.

"It's the first dog to walk across Canada," said Mr. Moen of Bruno. "Five times he saved my life by trying to push me out of the ways of cars. I spanked him for it before I knew what he was trying to do."

In a brief description of his journey, Mr. Moen said he was never lonely.

"There was always the trees, the birds singing, the frog choruses at night, especially in Ontario.

"Quebec was not too good to me. Too much politics and French against English. B.C. motorists haven't anything to be proud of. They are road hogs.

"But you can't beat Canada. I'd order a meal and the man would say it is already paid for. I'd go out and come back and there would be $5 under the plate. And there was no one to give it back to."

Mr. Moen said he planned to get on a train immediately for Smithers, 430 miles north of Vancouver, for a few days of sleep and swimming.

'Peace Walk' to Expo Under Way

MONTREAL (CP)—About 50 members of the New York-based Committee for Non-Violent Action today start a 46-mile "peace walk" from the Canada-U.S. border to Expo 67.

Their ranks are expected to be increased by about 50 persons along the route prior to their scheduled arrival at Montreal Saturday.

A Montreal spokesman for the group said he had applied to National Harbors Board police for permission to lead the march across Jacques Cartier Bridge, connecting Montreal with the south shore of the St. Lawrence River, but had been turned down.

The group planned to march down St. Catherine Street, a main shopping artery, to Dominion Square carrying placards.

They would visit Expo 67 Sunday when the fair celebrates World Youth Day but planned to leave their placards behind because of Expo's regulations banning demonstrations on the site, the spokesman said.

Delegates would attempt to call on the commissioners-general of the U.S. Soviet, British and French pavilions to explain their opposition to nuclear weapons. Others would sing peace songs outside the buildings.

Stirling Personals

STIRLING — The Senior Citizens group enjoyed card games recently at the Masonic Temple and journeyed to Oak Lake afterwards for a picnic supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Reynolds and William Reynolds are holidaying in England and Europe. A Reynolds reunion was held in Dover, England, where all the family of nine brothers and sisters were in attendance for the first time in over 40 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sager (the former Sharon Matthews) were honored at a presentation party given by the River Valley community.

John L. Svoboda jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. John Svoboda, Mill St., has been awarded the French baccalaureate in philosophy and letters at the Academy of Toulouse, France. He is returning to Canada to continue his studies in September at Carleton University, Ottawa.

Percy MacMillan was given a birthday party by his wife and his daughter, Miss Dorothea Marmora, at the regular meeting of the Senior Citizens Club.

Gasoline Price Cut

MONTREAL (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd.'s announcement of a reduction in the retail price for gasoline in the greater Montreal area has roused the wrath of gas station dealers and even other oil companies.

Reported cut in prices last Friday to 41.9 cents a gallon for regular grade and 46.9 cents for premium grade.

Standard Oil Company (Canada) Ltd. said it is not at present decreasing its prices.

De Gaulle Snubs Own Nationalists

PARIS (AP) President de Gaulle is waving the flag for Quebec separatists but completely snubbing several nationalist movements in his own country.

France, in fact, is the home of six movements calling themselves nationalist, separatist or autonomist: The Bretons in the northwest, Basques in the southwest, Flemish in the northeast, Alsatians in the east, Corsicans in the Mediterranean, and the Occitans, who are a story in themselves.

Perhaps de Gaulle does not take these movements seriously. Few French people do. But Breton activists plant bombs, start fires or block railways to reach the public eye.

The Bretons are Celts with a language similar to Welsh or ancient Cornish. They claim nationhood since defeating King Charles the Bald in 845, and now number 300 to 400 patriots to Independence Day outings at the site of the battle.

The latest Breton bomb wrecked a telephone relay station when de Gaulle was in Montreal shouting "Long live free Quebec."

"Free Quebec—free Brittany" signs quickly cropped up in Brittany and elsewhere.

For 50 years the Bretons agitated for the Celtic language in schools, without success. Today they concentrate on the chronic economic malaise of Brittany, seen largely as the supplier of sailors and maids for the rest of France.

The Bretons do not oppose government policy as much as the centralized system. They say the "state structure chokes the arteries before the juice arrives.

The solution sought is therefore a federalism, similar to that of West Germany or Switzerland, with vastly more autonomy for schools, taxes, foreign trade, television and culture.

The Bretons have recently won a legal point. Celtic names now qualify children for family allowances instead of only those of saints or historic personalities. Tim-y was when the strange - sounding names were not legally accepted by birth recording officials.

The Basques community, astride the French - Spanish border, claims cultural origins so old their language defies tracing. Like the Bretons, they feel the urge for cultural preservation, but their economic needs are not so acute.

About 3,000 belong to the movement called Embata, whose goal is "the reunification and autonomy of the Basque country within the framework of Europe under construction."

The Basques were quick to seize on the de Gaulle incident to plaster walls with "Long live free Quebec" and "Long live the free Basque country."

The other movements are as small as private clubs. The Flemish support their Belgian brothers, the Alsatians cast a dive down their Germanic origins, and the Corsican movement is largely a family affair.

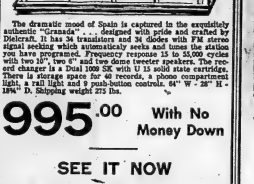
That leaves the Occitans, who favor saying "oc" for "oui."

Greene Hears Farm Plea

MONTREAL (CP) Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene Wednesday attended the third day of a conference of provincial agriculture ministers and deputy ministers, and heard delegates call for greater federal-provincial co - operation to increase farm incomes.

The three-day meeting, with Quebec minister Clement Vincent as chairman, called for a federal "task force" to look into the major problems facing Canadian agriculture.

A statement issued after the closed session added that the fundamental consideration was the "adequate farm income in this period of rapid technological change."



The conference also agreed to establish a five - member committee to consult with the task force, and report back to the provinces. The Atlantic provinces, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairie provinces and British Columbia would each be represented by one member.

Delegates agreed that a meeting of provincial marketing officials should be called to discuss problems arising from shipping farm products between the provinces.

In addition they agreed to continue the current federal-provincial system of support for the Canadian Agricultural Economic Research Council for another two years.

War's Toll Drops

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. combat deaths in the Vietnam war dropped to their lowest level in six months last week with 114 Americans killed and 993 wounded and five missing, the U.S. command announced today.

But the sharpest decline last week was in the number of South Vietnamese troops reported killed in action—76 compared with 193 the week before.

The number of Communists killed dropped to 1,389, the lowest since the week ended June 10, the U.S. command said. But U.S. headquarters said the kill ratio of 6.8 to one for forces supporting South Vietnam last week was the highest this year and possibly one of the highest of the war.

The low casualty figures reflected a lull in the ground war. They did not include the casualties in the disastrous fire aboard the carrier Forrestal Saturday.

The Forrestal casualties increased to 132 dead today with the death of two injured men. There are missing and 62 others were injured.

U.S. pilots flew 161 missions against North Vietnam Wednesday, their biggest day since July 13, when 170 missions were flown.

A Viet Cong bombardment wounded 87 Americans and set some fuel stores on fire at the U.S. Navy base and petroleum storage area at Nha Be, 10 miles southeast of Saigon.

The raid on North Vietnam cost the United States an air force reconnaissance jet downed by ground fire. The two crew members were listed as missing in action.

The Viet Cong also ambushed a U.S. marine minesweeping unit on a dirt road 25 miles west of Da Nang Wednesday, killing 15 marines and wounding one. A U.S. spokesman said the Viet Cong were known killed.

Viet Cong mortar and 82-millimetre shells and 40-millimetre anti-tank rockets rained down for 20 minutes on the Nha Be fuel depot and the base from which the navy directs river boats in attacks against guerrillas.

Reports from the scene said three South Vietnamese navy men, one woman and two children also were wounded in the shelling.

AP photographer Al Chang reported from the naval base that about 25,000 gallons of fuel went up when two mortar rounds reportedly landed directly on a cache of 1,000 drums.

In aerial attacks on North Vietnam Wednesday, navy pilots reported destroying or damaging two surface-to-air missile sites, eight anti-aircraft sites and 3 missile and the trans porter.

The carrier force in the Gulf of Tonkin operated at its normal strength of three as the Constellation joined the Intrepid and the Oriskany. The carrier force had been reduced to two by the fire on the Forrestal and withdrawal of the Ron Somm Rich.ard &.. normal leave.

Wilson's Problems Piling Up

LONDON (CP) — Problems are piling up for Prime Minister Wilson as he prepares to leave London for a holiday.

At the top of the heap is the report from the public accounts committee, government financial watchdog, accusing a dozen government departments of careless handling of government contracts involving hundreds of millions of pounds. Involved are a clutch of state projects ranging from new police headquarters to the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic airliner.

Another headache is the news that Britain's gold and dollar reserves fell by £15,000,000 ($45,000,000) in July to $397,- lowest since September, 1963.

Wilson summoned senior ministers Tuesday to discuss the official report on the disaster in Aberfan, Wales, last Oct. 21. It is believed to pull no punches in condemning the national coal board for negligence causing the landslide of coal slag that engulfed a school and killed 144 persons.

The report goes on sale to the public today.

Bodies of Two Train Crewmen Still Missing in CN Collision

DUNBARKIN, Ont. (CP)— Two crew members are dead and two others missing after a head-on crash Wednesday between a Canadian National 84-car freight and the Super Continental passenger train near this community about 90 miles west of Timmins.

The bodies of W. Stanley Hodgson, engineer on the passenger train, and James Hay, his fireman, were found in the wreckage. Both were from Hornepayne, Ont.

Missing are W. K. Vaughan, engineer on the freight train, and A. E. Lawrie, a brakeman on the freight. Both are from Hornepayne, although Mr. Lawrie was formerly of North Vancouver, B.C.

A CNR spokesman said no other crew members or any of the 150 passengers on the Super Continental were seriously injured, although some were shaken up.

The bodies of the two dead men were flown to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Wednesday night. Coroner W. E. Sullivan said autopsies will be performed and an inquest held in about a month.

A witness said the trains collided about 5:30 a.m. EDT as the freight was leaving a siding and entering the main track. The Super Continental, which left Toronto at 4:45 p.m. Tuesday was bound for Vancouver.

Donald J. Messinger, a weekly newspaper publisher from Arcade, N.Y., said he was thrown out of bed by the crash.

He praised William MacRae, the conductor, and M. W. Hamilton, a member of the CNR's sales staff who was on vacation for keeping the passengers calm.

Diesel oil from the derailed engines caught fire, Mr. Messinger said, and three section hands quickly organized a bucket brigade for sand to avert a serious situation.

The railway flew in a doctor and a coroner by helicopter and the Canadian National and OPP officials were taken to the crash site by a special train. There are no roads to the scene of the accident.

Three locomotives and 26 of 84 cars in the freight train, and three locomotives, two coaches, a mail and two baggage cars of the passenger train were derailed.

The spokesman said there was a 10-hour delay in transcontinental rail services as all traffic was rerouted around the wreck. It will take 36 hours to clear the wreck from the tracks, he said.

Passengers were being taken back east to Capreol where they were to board westbound trains rerouted along CPR lines.

Toronto Firemen May Quit

TORONTO (CP)— Leaders of Metropolitan Toronto firemen are dangling the sword of possible mass resignations over forthcoming wage and pension negotiations.

Jack Jessop, president of the Toronto Firemen's Association said Wednesday Toronto firemen will demand $6,100 a year — an increase of about $1,500 a year—when bargaining opens this fall with Metropolitan Toronto Council.

Richard Chambers, president of the Federation of Ontario Professional Firefighters, and himself a Toronto fireman, said morale in the department is surging.

Unless standards are improved, he says, firemen will resign in large numbers. Mass resignations of Toronto policemen have been reported over similar low wage and work standards.

Kenneth Ley, vice - president of the Toronto firefighters, says pay has not been commensurate with heightened risks in firefighting caused by contact with unusual plastics, radioactive substances, hydro vaults, subways and ship fires.

Mr. Jessop criticized the Toronto firemen's pension scheme which he said was set up about 24 years ago.

"Everybody gets the same pension—$3,330.96 a year after 30 years' service," he said. "Chief Frank Cockwell gets a salary of $17,500 a year and his pension is the same."

Oil and Coal Wages Highest

OTTAWA (CP)—Men working in the petroleum and coal products manufacturing industry had the highest average wages and salaries paid any industrial group in Canada last year—and got the biggest raises.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics today released the results of its annual survey of average hours and earnings for manufacturing, taken in the last week of October which it says is a typical work-week.

Among wage - earners, the highest pay was again for men in the petroleum and coal plants, $144.13 a week. Women's highest wages were in tobacco,

We Don't Learn From Young

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS
Thoughts at Large

We try to make our children more like us, instead of trying to become more like them — with the result that we pick up more of their faults, and they pick up most of our bad ones.

Real evils can be either cured or endured; it is only imaginary evils that make people anxiety-ridden for a lifetime.

The revolution in the churches reminds me of Christian Morgenstern's prophetic remark at the turn of this century: "We are not at the end but at the beginning of Christianity" — at least at the beginning of recognizing what Jesus' message was all about, and that it had nothing to do with "religion" in the narrow sense.

"It was fascinating to see how the doves of Vietnam became hawks of Israel, and how the hawks of Vietnam became doves of Israel — which only proves the truth of the old adage that birds of a feather flock together."

Nobody would even try to play the piano without study and patient preparation, but everyone thinks he is equipped to discourse on the most profound and complicated subjects without having made any serious attempt to master even their rudiments.

The man who thinks he is relying on "pure reason" is exhibiting as much blind faith in his reason as those he accuses of relying on blind faith.

If we took a picture of the molecules comprising a chair, it would look very much like "modern art"; therefore, what is the "reality" of the chair — the object we grossly see with our eyes, or the object revealed by the penetration of the microscope?

The best reason for implementing the UN in international disputes was given many years ago by Whitehead, when he observed: "The only justification in the use of force is to reduce the amount of force necessary to be used."

In life, unlike theatre, there are no villains: there are only heroes who mistake their goals.

The people most eager for "new experiences" are generally those who haven't even known how to utilize the old ones.

Everything that is in the world is also in your head, and everything that is in your head is also in the world; until we learn to abolish the artificial (and crippling) distinction between "inner" and "outer," the human race will not begin to understand itself.

X-Ray Potato Sorter

This X-ray scanning unit was developed to separate potatoes from stones and clods of earth at high speed. The system, claimed to be the first in the world, was shown recently at the Royal Show at the National Agriculture Centre in Kenilworth, England. The X-rays distinguish the difference between stones and potatoes by their density.

Wishart's Deputy Ordered Dr. Shulman 'Not to Cause Any Further Trouble'

TORONTO (CP)— Ann Worobec Wednesday told the Parker royal commission she heard Frank Wilson, assistant deputy attorney - general of Ontario, tell Dr. Morris Shulman he should not "cause any further trouble."

Mrs. Worobec, Dr. Shulman's secretary, testified she had listened in on a telephone call from Mr. Wilson to Dr. Shulman while Shulman was chief coroner of Metropolitan Toronto.

She quoted from notes she had made after the call which took place on Dec. 23, 1964.

She testified Mr. Wilson told Dr. Shulman he had been asked by Attorney - General Arthur Wishart to fall him (Dr. Shulman) "not to cause any further trouble."

At issue was Dr. Shulman's demand that the late Dr. E. Earl Shoudice, a Toronto heroin surgeon, improve facilities in his private clinic in line with the recommendations of an inquest jury.

The jury had been investigating the death at Dr. Shoudice's clinic of Horace Leslie Burnett of Toronto following a hernia operation in 1962.

Its verdict, criticizing equipment and procedures at the clinic, later was quashed by the Ontario Supreme Court on the ground that Dr. Shulman, while not the official coroner, had guided the inquest.

However, Dr. Shulman continued to ask Dr. Shoudice to implement the jury's recommendations.

The commission inquiry was ordered by Premier John Robarts after Dr. Shulman, fired as chief coroner early this year, charged that government officials interfered with the suppressed evidence relating to inquests.

Mr. Wilson testified Tuesday he did not remember having made the call to Dr. Shulman. Wednesday was the 30th day of testimony before Mr. Justice William D. Parker of the Ontario Supreme Court, the commissioner.

Dr. Gerald Lynn - Davies, a Kitchener coroner, said an inquest into the death of Arthur U. Magee, 51, of Brantford had been delayed six months because "to set an inquest in Kitchener and Brantford requires a touch of genius."

He was referring to the many arrangements to get police, witnesses, medical experts and court stenographers together on one day.

Dr. Shulman had said earlier the inquest was unduly delayed.

He testified that on the night of the inquest a member of the Magee family telephoned him to complain that the jury foreman was the president of the local Progressive Conservative Association.

The foreman was Havelli Hilchon, a Brantford insurance man.

Dr. Lynn - Davies said there was no rule in Brant county that you cannot sit on a coroner's jury if you are a Conservative. "It would be a sad day if there were," he said.

He testified after a letter from Mrs. Mary J. St. Louis, Mr. Magee's sister - in - law, complaining about a delay in the holding of the inquest, was read into the inquiry record.

Dr. Lynn - Davies said Mrs. St. Louis had told him at the inquest she was satisfied with the way the circumstances of Mr. Magee's death had been brought out.

He had not answered a letter from Mrs. St. Louis asking him when the inquest would be held "because I didn't think it would be proper for me to write a letter."

Mr. Magee died last Oct. 2 in Brantford General hospital. He had cut his nose severely while installing an overhead garage door.

Evidence at the inquest was that the anti-tetanus shot had been ordered but not administered. The inquest jury attached no blame to the doctor or hospital, but recommended new hospital record forms for ordering such treatment.

Stanfield Says Party Policy Should Not Be Set by Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia said Wednesday he will not have much to say about policy matters during his campaign for the national Progressive Conservative leadership, even if the task of being "ratified" today.

Mr. Stanfield told a news conference on his arrival here from Montreal on a cross-country tour, that party policy should be a product of long study and consultation among party members rather than simply a result of an individual's initiative.

Instead of making policy pronouncements, he planned to concentrate on "the long-term objectives and principles of the Conservative party."

Asked for his stand on the Carter report on taxation, he replied that while he had some reservations "we shouldn't be too summary in our consideration of it."

What was his stand on medical care?

"In Nova Scotia, we are proceeding on the basis that we have expressed our views and are making every effort to put a plan into effect by July 1, 1965. We are quite confident we can achieve that," he said.

What we are quite concerned about is federal government backing down on many conditions which will make the plan more costly for the provinces."

Mr. Stanfield said the two greatest problems facing Canada are relations between English- and French - speaking Canadians and the need to maintain economic growth.

He described as "interesting" the proposal of Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta that Social Credit and the Progressive Conservatives form a new party to represent conservative principles.

"I wish to emphasize that I wouldn't want to see us become a far right-wing force in the country," But he didn't necessarily consider Mr. Manning's position too conservative.

Would he be surprised to see John Diefenbaker seek re-election as Conservative leader?

"I don't presume to know what Mr. Diefenbaker plans to do," he replied carefully. "When you have been in politics for 30 years it takes a great deal to surprise you."

Asked whether he felt Mr. Diefenbaker's defeat in a bid for re-election would split the party irreparably, he said the question was hypothetical.

"But I don't think this would be the case." He wouldn't be drawn out on the two-nation theory of Confederation, which he termed "a question of semantics."

Was he as confident of his chances in seeking the party leadership?

"I'm very encouraged at this point."

Folly, Ignorance, Bungling Blamed for Welsh Mining Disaster

LONDON (CP) — The Aberfan slag - heap disaster resulted from folly, ignorance and bungling ineptitude in Britain's state coal authority, says a judicial tribunal's report made public today.

The government - appointed tribunal's report categorically blames the National Coal Board and a string of named officials for the slag - slide that struck the Welsh mining village last Oct. 21 and killed 144 persons, including 116 children.

The report distills into 131 pages of sagacity, often moving, language more than 2,500,000 words of testimony from 135 witnesses, plus the evidence of 21 maps, 208 photographs and visits to the disaster scene.

"In truth there were no villains in this harrowing story . . . but the Aberfan disaster is a terrifying tale of bungling ineptitude by many men charged with tasks for which they were totally unfitted, of failure to heed clear warnings, and of total lack of direction from above," the tribunal says in an introduction.

"Not villains, but decent men, led astray by foolishness or by ignorance or by both is combination, are responsible for what happened at Aberfan.

"That, in all conscience, is a burden heavy enough for them to have to bear without the additional brand of villainy."

SPORTS SLICES

Counter attractions to the contrary, the Bay of Quinte Country Club's Fourth Annual Festival of Golf slated for the coming holiday weekend, should nudge or equal the record-breaking entry lists of a year ago.

Last year some 476 entries in the four tournaments, "A", "B" and "C" Flights, Mixed Doubles and the professionals set a Festival record.

This year, says games captain John Gee, entries to date number approximately 444. By tee-off time Saturday, this number could be augmented to a new record or at least a close approach.

The galleries also reached a new high last year with the largest attendance coming on Monday when the professionals and "A" Flight took over the course.

The Festival gets under way Saturday morning with the B and C Flights raising the curtain starting at eight o'clock.

As of this writing 143 entries have been submitted representing clubs from St. Catharines on the east to Montreal and ten other districts represented. John Lomas won the event last year with a four-over par 75.

On Sunday it is expected some 190 couples will tee off in the Mixed Tournament. Entries hail from Chandlers on the east to Toronto and Hamilton on the west and a dozen in-between district clubs represented. Last year Stan Hebden and Bud Gill of Quinte topped a field of 95 couples to win the glory with a low net score of 61.

Golfers from Chandlers, Sarnia and Toronto will vie with 82 others (at this writing) in the "A" Flight event which gets under way Monday at 8 a.m. Lucy Mitchell, of Hamilton Goderich captured the honors last year with a 74.

A number of low handicap golfers are entered in the amateur events including being the Cataraqui family of Al McMillan. McMillan senior has a five handicap with Al junior boasting a three. Another member of the family, Neil, has a one handicap.

Wilf Hemenuik of Winnipeg, last years Festival professional winner, who shot a two-under par 69 to nose out Moe Norman and Al Balding will not be here. Nor will Norman and Balding due to tour commitments. Quinte pro George Balzes has attracted a star-studded galaxy of Ontario professionals.

The prize will shoot for a purse of $1,550 with $50 added for the low scoring amateur professional. The winner will claim $350 (compare Northern Pro Golfers Association Tournament top money of $1000) and for the first time will receive a handsome plaque commemorating the victory.

The professionals will tee off on Monday likely around twelve noon or as soon as "A" Flight play is completed.

As of the moment some 43 pros are entered but Balzes predicts this number will be augmented by tee-off time.

Two former Festival winners will be here to repeat in the professional event. These are Frank Whibley, Scarborough, first Festival winner and Bob Dean, Cornwall, who won it two years ago. Other well-known pros entered are Murray Tucker, Board of Trade, Gordon DeLaat, Gary Bowerman, assistant pro at Maple Downs, Bob Rose, John Hendrick, John Davis, Wilson Patterson, not forgetting George Balzes. Patterson was the runner-up in the recent Northern Golf Association pro tourney.

Under games captain Gee hard-working directors and members have placed the Festival under organizational control.

Looking after B and C Flight activities will be Doug Bennett, Bob Strachan and Bob Melbourne. Mrs. Phyllis Dyble, ladies division president will be on the tee. Gee, Jack Hatfield and Ralph Bridge will take care of "A" Flight with Stan and Sara Armstrong and Jack Dyble in charge of the Mixed Tournament activities. John Gee and Jack Hatfield will assist pro George Balzes with the pros.

Games captain Gee predicts the course will be in fine condition come tee-off time.

The draws appear elsewhere in this edition.

Five-Medal Day

Crothers Wins Silver; Jerome Hurt

WINNIPEG (CP)—Bill Crothers may not always give good advice—but he certainly knows how to profit from experience.

He had nothing but the best of intentions, of course, but . . . well, let track coach John Minichiello of Vancouver tell the story.

"Jerome had complained he wasn't getting good footing."

(Harry Jerome, world recordholder from Vancouver in the 200 metres, had run two miserable qualifying heats for the 200-metre run.)

Jerome changed to shoes like ballet slippers with spikes an eighth of an inch long.

Then, just before the Pan-American Games 200-metres final Wednesday, it rained. The rubber - composition track was covered with water.

Jerome was off the blocks well, then slipped on the turn, caught his balance and slipped again, jogging home dead last in 21.1 with a strained leg muscle.

Crothers quietly changed into track shoes with spikes like sharks' teeth, went out and won a second - place silver medal in the 800.

Both Canada's hopes died in the 200 — Jerome with his strained muscle and Don Domansky of Port Arthur, Ont., scratched by Minichiello with a pulled hamstring muscle.

Brian MacLaren of Winnipeg was also reported suffering from a sore leg, but it didn't hold him back as he bettered Crothers home for the bronze medal. Wade Bell of the U.S. won the 800 in 1:49.2, Crothers' time was 1:49.9, MacLaren's 1:50.8.

John Carlos broke the Games record in winning the 200 gold medal for the U.S. in 20.5. The old mark of 20.6 was set by Ray Norton of the U.S. in 1963.

Jerry Bright of the U.S. won the silver medal in 20.9. He was followed by P. Montes Cancova of Cuba in 21.0.

Wednesday was a five-medal day for Canada. In addition to the silver medal for Crothers and the bronze for MacLaren, third-place honors were picked up in yachting by Peter Byrne of Vancouver and John Clarke of Toronto.

The Canadian women's hot footing team captured another bronze on the swordplay of Lucie Agosno and Sigrid Cheriet of Montreal and Donna Beamyer of Toronto. They topped Argentina 5-3 in the four-country pool.

The U.S. team took the gold with Cuba second.

Jerome was philosophical about his defeat.

"This time I thought I had done everything right. I was prepared mentally for the race. I knew I had to relax but my right foot went out from under. I wanted to do well but you can't help a stupid mistake."

Jerome said he had a tiring summer working in at Vancouver department store and trying to train.

"I had only about six 300 races this year and that's not enough."

Canada was also blanked in the women's 200 metres as Wyomia Tyus of the U.S. took the gold medal in 23.7, ahead of Barbara Ferrell, U.S., who had 23.8. Miguelina Cobian of Cuba was third, also in 23.8. Irene Piotrowski, Vancouver, ran 24.9 for fourth while Jan Meddin of Winnipeg was eighth and last in 24.5.

And there was no glory for Canada in the women's long jump, won for Cuba by Irene Martinez Turebiel with a leap of 20 feet, nine inches, breaking the Games record of 20-3 set by Willye White, U.S., in 1963. A. G. Vidal Barroyo, Venezuela, did 20-4½ for second while Miss Wiyrie did 20-3 for third. Joan Hendry of St. Leonard, Que., was fifth with 20 feet, ¾ of an inch; Jenny Meldrum of Toronto jumped 19-2½ for ninth place.

Records fell in the 5,000-metre run and in the decathlon Wednesday. Gil Dodds breaking them both and Canada running out in both cases.

Van Nelson took the 5,000 in 13:47.4—previous mark 14:25.8 by Oswaldo Suarez, Argentina, in 1963. Louis Scott, U.S., and Juan Maximo Martinez of Mexico were both clocked in 13:54 but Scott got the silver.

Bob Finlay of Toronto was fourth in 14:15.2; John Rockstone, Edmonton, ninth of the 11 starters in 14:51.

Senators Nip Twins

Tigers, Birds Split; Chisox Beaten

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Relief pitchers Casey Cox and Moss Drabowsky reaped the rewards of their trade Wednesday as Washington Senators broke a tie for a 3-4 victory in the bottom of the 10th inning.

Drabowsky worked the ninth-with Baltimore trailing Detroit Tigers 3-4 and posted his seventh victory against one loss when Brooks Robinson homered in the 10th game in six decisions when a 2-1 triumph and a doubleheader split. Detroit won the opener 4-2.

Gladding, 3-4, in relief, made his first start of the season for Detroit in the nightcap and was working on a five-hitter and a 1-0 lead through five innings.

But then he tired in the heat and rookie Pat Dobson came on in relief to hold the lead until Robinson's homer.

Cleveland Indians beat Chicago White Sox 8-1, Kansas City Athletics outslugged Boston Red Sox 8-6 and California Angels edged New York Yanks 5-4 in other American League action.

Hank Allen's two - out single sent home Ed Stroud across with the winning run for Washington which had blown a 4-0 lead.

Consecutive homers by Al Kaline and Norm Cash—Kaline's coming with a man on—in the first inning knocked Detroit's first - game victory.

In the nightcap, consecutive singles by Jim Northrup, Mickey Stanley and Jim Price gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead in the second inning, and the run stood up until Frank Robinson walked to open the ninth and Brooks followed with his homer.

Steve Hargan set down the league - leading White Sox on seven hits. He got all the offensive help he needed in the first inning when three singles and a throwing error produced two Indians runs.

Gary Bertron collected four singles and Leon Wagner hit his 15th homer for the Tribe.

Commonwealth Golf

Scores Ace In Practice

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP) — Bare-foot and blistered, 23-year-old Glennis Taylor of New Zealand gave herself a hard standard to match Wednesday with a hole-in-one while practicing for the Commonwealth women's team golf matches starting today.

Using a seven iron on the 139-yard par-three eighth hole, the 1965 New Zealand amateur match play champion was playing the hole without her shoes.

The tournament, involving six-member teams from New Zealand, Australia, Great Britain and Canada, will be played at the 5,837-yard Hamilton Golf and Country Club course.

The teams play two-ball foursomes in the morning and singles in the afternoon. Each team meets the other once with the championship decided on a points basis — one point for a win and half a point for a tie.

In two-ball foursomes, members of each two-women team play alternate shots using the same ball.

The British and Canadian teams are favorites in the tournament.

The Canadian captain is Rae Milligan of Calgary and Toronto.

Second Game Called

Masters Hurls No-Hitter

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Don Masters is just a casual easy-going type of guy who pitches for the Belleville Lombards. His fastball doesn't usually zip, his curve just curves, and occasionally his drop takes a nosedive.

Last night at the fairgrounds, however, the Don Masters of old underwent a remarkable transformation, as everything started to click for him. Masters scuttled Peterborough 7-0 with a seven inning no-hitter, as Belleville won the first half of a doubleheader home stand.

In the second game against Little Britain, the Lombardmen flashed into a seven run lead before the game was called after four innings because of a downpour.

Masters choked the visitors with a great 14 strike out performance. He allowed only two base runners, one on a walk in the fourth and another on an error. At one point of the game six consecutive Tyke batters trudged back to their dugout with their bats in their hands after striking out.

Belleville's batters gave their pitcher overwhelming support early in the game. Big catcher Larry Mavety powered a line-drive homer scoring three runs, and John McKibbon copied the feat with one less man on base later in the inning. So after the first frame the score read 5-0.

The winners added more runs later but they had no bearing on the game, as the situation had already been "mastered" in Belleville's favor.

Doug Stabler and Rollinson handled the heavy pitching chore and gave up six hits while striking out six.

John McKibbon's Lombank first baseman, added a single to his homer, Mavety had his homer, while Moe Hosier, Larry Soule and Don Masters each stroked a base hit.

The second game began much like the first, with Belleville pouncing on the visitors from Little Britain for three runs in the first, one in the third, and three more next inning.

Bill Latchford breezed along for four innings with a shutout under his belt. He blew down a consistent two batters per inning on third strikes, and gave up two singles. One was a bunt single and the other a solid smash to centrefield.

Ted Hallett and Bob McMillan shared Little Britain's pitching and gave up four hits. Two were singles by Pat Assetsine, while Moe Hunter and Larry Soule added one each.

On Saturday the Lombanks will begin a best-of-three series against Kingston to decide the right to play Brockville for the league crown. The second game will be here on Monday.

Commercial League

Second-Placers Close In

Stinson's and Black Diamond simply refuse to let one gain an advantage over the other in the Commercial softball league.

The two teams remained neck and neck as they churned into second place, two points back of league-leading City Hotel, with wins last night. Stinson's whipped third-place Lightfoots 12-5 while Black Diamond defeated the Tiki Club 4-1.

Lightfoot's have 24 points, while the fifth team in the battle for a playoff position, Stewart Warner, have 20.

Bob Boyle gave up seven hits, walked three and struck out four for Stinson's. John Preich and Don Smith shared the loser's pitching chore. They allowed 10 hits, fanned three and walked six.

Paul Stinson slammed a home run and a single to pace his team at the plate. Frank Donovan tripled, Larry Potter and Jack Whiting had two base hits each, Jacs O'Neil and Lyle Thompson doubled, and Harold Werkeven singled.

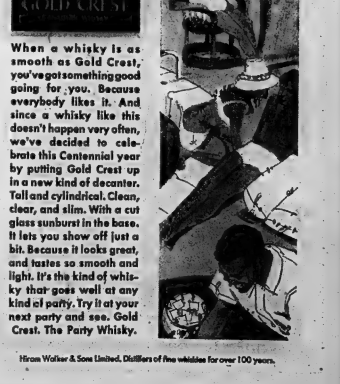
The losers were led by Don Smith's triple and two singles. Terry Casselman doubled a triple, Don Wood a double, and Paul Goodfellow and Rusty Garvin a single each.

Sonny Holoway continued his string of five wins as he threw a four-hitter for Black Diamond. He struck out 12 and issued two passes to first.

Mike Healey buried for the Tiki and gave up six hits, struck out seven and walked two.

The Cheesemen grabbed an early lead with two first-inning runs. They added two more in the fifth, as two Tiki errors helped them along.

Gene and Jack Francis, Sonny Holoway, Doug Archer, Stan Ahrens and B. Fraser hit for the winners.



Steve White had two of the losers base hits, with singlelans going to Dale Durvall and D. Olsen.

Handsome new decanter. Smooth, light flavour.

Now you know why Hiram Walker's Gold Crest is the hit of every party.

When a whisky is as smooth as Gold Crest, you've got something good going for you. Because everybody likes it. And since a whisky like this doesn't happen very often, we've decided to celebrate this Centennial year by putting Gold Crest up in a new kind of decanter. Tall and cylindrical. Clean, clear, and slim. With a cut glass sunburst in the base. It lets you show off just a bit. Because it looks great, and tastes so smooth and light. It's the kind of whisky that goes well at any kind of party. Try it at your next party and see. Gold Crest. The Party Whisky.

Cards Twin Wins Dim Cub Hopes!

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lou Brock and Curt Flood turned off the electricity in Chicago while Pete Rose was switching on the power in Cincinnati.

Brock and Flood clicked for 11 hits between them as St. Louis Cardinals dimmed Chicago Cubs' pennant hopes Wednesday with a 4-3, 7-1 doubleheader sweep over the second - place Cubs.

The two victories, a usher-roomed the Cards' National League lead to 5½ games—the biggest spread of the season.

Rose, meanwhile, became the eighth player in NL history to hit home runs from each side of the plate in 4 games as Cincinnati Reds drubbed the fading Atlanta Braves 7-3.

The Reds' triumph lifted them within 5½ games of the Cubs' while the Braves' fifth loss in their last six starts dropped them 10 games off St. Louis' pennant pace.

Willie Mays drove in three runs leading fourth place San Francisco Giants past Pittsburgh Pirates 7 - 3; Houston downed New York Mets 5-3 and Philadelphia Phillies shaded Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 in 10 innings in other NL games.

Brock slapped out six hits in the Cards' twin bill sweep—four of them in the nightcap—and lifted his batting average to .291.

Mickey Mantle is the all-time switch hitter blast, having connected from each side 10 times for New York Yankees.

Mays hit his second homer in two games following a first inning single by Jesus Alou and drilled a run - scoring double after another Alou single in the Giants' five-run third.

Given the early lead, Gaylord Perry breezed to his eighth victory in 20 decisions.

Right - hander Dick Hughes and southpaw Steve Carlton pot together successive complete games for their league leaders.

Switch - hitting Rose started a five-run rally in the third inning of Cincinnati with a right-side homer off southpaw Denny Lemaster, then connected from the left side against reliver Cecil Upshaw in the eighth.

Ron Davis's RBI double snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth at Houston and buyed a three-run explosion that carried the Astros to their eighth victory in nine games.

Left - hander Mike Cuellar went the route for Houston and stopped the Mets on six hits for his fifth triumph against six losses.

The Phillies got by Los Angeles on a run - scoring single in the 10th by Rich Allen, whose ninth inning throwing error had enabled the Dodgers to tally the tying run.

Read Wins Seventh In Row

Read made it seven wins in a row last night with a 5-1 victory over Latta in the game to decide second place in the South Hastings baseball league.

The remarkable streak has taken Read from the lowly cellar position only a few weeks ago into sole possession of second place.

On Saturday Read commence their playoffs against the fourth-place finishers, Camden Place's, a team that Read has defeated in their last three meetings.

Read jumped on Latta starter Howard Meeks for four runs in the first frame before Lorne Crockright relieved him. Latta got one back in the third, but their inability to bring an abundance of base-runners home cost them the game.

Frank Farrell hurled the win, sprinkling nine hits over the route. He struck out three and walked one.

The losers' mounderman fanned four and walked three while giving up eight hits.

Four "Dougs" shared in Latta's hitting. Doug Chisholm, Geen, Rollins and Rowsome had extra-base hits, while Ross Parks, Lorne Crockright and Gary Ray singled.

Harold Pascoe paced the winners with a double and single, and Pete Enright, Wayne Pascoe and Carm Milligan added two doubles. Larry Brennan, Ken Abrams and Ed Lader singled.

On Sunday the Shannonville-Latta series begins.

IBEW exploded for five runs in the first inning en route to a 14-7 decision over Fountain Park in a BMBA peewee roundrobin playoff game. Tip Top defeated Barriage the easy way in another scheduled playoff contest, as the latter were unable to field a team and lost 9-0 by forfeit.

Mike Burley and Allan Wood stopped the Park on nine hits in their 14-7 win. They struck out 13 and walked eight.

John Mulvihill and Jim Richardson took the loss. They were clouted for 11 hits, fanned four and walked four.

Pitchers Wood and Burley led the winners at the plate with a double and two singles, and a double and single, respectively. Terry Madden and Bill Coughlan slammed two singles each, and John Ashley and Mike Wager one.

John Mulvihill and Dan Lupsenets stroked two hits each, Tom Barriage doubled, and Fred Mason, Ted Eves, Sandy Cairns, and Dale Volkenburg singled, for the Park.

Bombers Roll Through Eskimos' Defensive Igloo For 20-0 Win

EDMONTON (CP)— Edmonton's defensive line, the alleged key to success for the club, unchoked few doors Wednesday night as Winnipeg Blue Bombers trounced the Eskimos 20-0 in a Western Football Conference game before about 15,000 fans.

Former Edmonton Bomber Pressley found big holes in the Eskimo line as he rolled up 103 yards along the ground in 15 carries. Pressley's backfield mates, particularly Dave Ralston, also found running room.

The Edmonton defensive front wall lacked consistency, especially when the offence sputtered under the guidance of quarterbacks Frank Consolino and Terry Baker.

It was the first game of the regular season for both teams, but Bombers looked strong with veteran Kenny Ploen at the helm.

Ploen tossed a 15-yard touchdown strike to end Noel Dunford at 4:53 of the first quarter and another to flanker Ken Nielsen at 12:33 of the third quarter.

Back - up quarterback and safety men Bill Van Burkleo got the third Winnipeg touchdown in the last minute of the second quarter when he intercepted a pass from Consolino and ran it over from 19 yards out.

Major Hamelin converted two touchdowns, but didn't get a chance on the third when Van Burkleo fumbled the snap from centre and could not place the ball for the kick.

The win put bombers in a first-place tie in the WFC standings with Calgary Stampeders, who opened the season Tuesday with a 20-7 victory over British Columbia Lions.

Winnipeg rolled up 22 first downs to Eskimos' eight and gained 182 yards passing and 147 on the ground to Edmonton's 61 rushing and 89 passing.

Nielsen caught all four throws his way for a total gain of 56 yards. Ralston also caught four of four tossed his way for a total of 32 yards.

Halfback Jim Thomas was the top ball carrier on the ground - gainer with 39 yards in nine carries.

Ploen completed 14 of 19 pass attempts to run up Winnipeg's total aerial gain of 182 yards.

On the Edmonton side, the quarterbacks had difficulty. Consolino, who came to Edmonton from Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern conference in an off-season trade, completed only three of nine pass attempts for 37 yards.

Baker, who came to Eskimos from the U.S. completed two of six pass attempts for a total gain of 53 yards.

Near Record Entries

Corbin Gold Trophy; 25th Anniversary

The largest entry in several years will be present on Civic Holiday Weekend for The Silver Anniversary (25th) renewal of the Corbin Gold Trophy Tournament for Men's Rinks which will be held again this year on the greens of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

In keeping for this year's renewal for this popular one day tournament the committee in charge of this annual event at the local club have planned an entire weekend of festivities commencing at the Silver Anniversary of the Tournament. In order to make the weekend enjoyable for all members of the family, the Belleville Club has arranged for the Watkin Memorial Mixed Pairs Tournament held on Saturday, August 9th, followed by the Corbin Tournament for Men's Fours on Sunday, August 9th and this will be followed by a Ladies Committee luncheon to accomodate those visiting ladies who have been too late in submitting their entries, in the event of cancellation by any of those already accepted.

The Men's Four Tournament to be held on Sunday has attracted an entry list of 48 teams coming from as far east as Kingston, Cornwall and Ottawa and as far west as Niagara Falls, London and Galt. Each other centres as St. Catharines, Burlington, Hamilton, Port Colborne, Port Credit, Agincourt, Streetsville, several clubs in Toronto, Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Peterborough, Madoc, Campbellford, Trenton, Kingston and Prescott are also represented among the entry lists.

Among those attending with entries to this year's event are all of the teams who won the several trophies up for competition in this Tournament last year and those included

Dick Edney of Kingston, whose rink has won the Corbin Gold Trophy for the past three consecutive years; John Henderson's rink from Montreal, the winners of the Calvert Trophy last year; Bill Fuller's rink from Trenton who were the winners of the Bells Cleaners Gold Trophy in 1966; and Dak Tossell's rink from Toronto Balmy Beach who have finished in fourth position for the past 2 years and on both occasions have been winners of the Gordon Watkin Memorial Gold Trophy.

Other well known bowlers who have entered this year's tournament include such provincial champions as the rink skipped by Jim Law of Galt, Ontario; the rink skipped by Gordon McMillan from Oshawa; another entry from Galt skipped by Richard Hill; the entry of Neil Sallaid of Caledonia, Ontario and the entry of Karl Beacon of Toronto, Balmy Beach.

Riders' Axe Falls Today; Dillard's Head May Be First To Go

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders have to trim their roster to the 32-man limit today and coach Frank Clair may find himself cutting a few of the players who won the Eastern Football Conference title for him last season.

There has been considerable speculation that import fullback Jim Dillard, a regular for two years after coming here from Calgary Stampeders, may be one of the first to go.

Canadian Rick Black has been waiting in the wings for four years to take over the starting job.

The Riders still will have insurance at the position with rookie Wayne Giardino, a Canadian who attended Florida State, showing well in pre-season games at fullback and linebacker.

Clair has seven cuts to make by the 3 p.m. EDT deadline—four imports and three Canadians. In addition, he has two rookie Canadians on the injury list, meaning two more cuts in a few weeks.

Among the imports, defensive backs Ernie Edwards, a 178-pounder from Wichita State, is reported certain to stay.

On the other hand, rookie split end Mewburn Adkins from Texas A and M, probably starting in place of all-star Ted Watkins who is being tried out at defensive halfback.

Adkins will not replace one of last year's imports. He can fill the vacancy left by the retirement of end Jim Mackenzie and Bob Quinter.

But the acquisition of halfback Don Roberts from Edmonton Eskimos in a trade Tuesday will mean the departure of an import and Dillard, a regular for two years after coming here in a trade with Calgary Stampeders, appears to be on the way out.

Dillard is a strong runner and pass receiver but his blocking has seldom impressed Ottawa officials. He also might have hurt his chances with a court battle he lost earlier this year to get his contract declared void so he could join a U.S. team. Dillard has one year left in a three - year contract worth about $20,000 a year.

Defensive halfback Travis Simpson, who has been around the CFC for several seasons, and rookie guard Tom Schuster from Jackson also appear to have missed their chance. Schuster had the most difficult job, trying to dislodge sophomore Mike Widerski and Roger Ferdyk from the offensive line.

For his Canadian cuts, Clair has to choose between rookies and experienced second-stringers. Retirement of tackle Andy Stuart leaves one opening and Giardino seems to have that job.

The last two newspaper Allen Locke, a guard, from Northern Michigan, Ian MacDonald, a defensive end from Tulsa, and Dick Wacker, a quarterback from Bowling Green, Ohio. Bobby Ike was with the veterans. The holdovers in danger of losing jobs include guard Jim Cain, centre Gerry Selinger, halfback Bob McCauley and Larry DeGraw and end Peter Thompson.

Judge Acquits Coleman

CALGARY (CP) — Star fullback Lovell Coleman of Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference was acquitted Wednesday of a charge of using an instrument on a 19-year - old girl with intent to procure a miscarriage.

District Judge E. E. Fair of Lethbridge said he had been given "the necessary evidence on which I can expect to disregard the danger of convicting on the uncorroborated evidence of the girl.

With The Trotters

TORONTO (CP) — Garma Alert, the Golden Horseshoe circuit's rookie of the year and leading pacer last year, who is winless in eight starts this year is the $5,277 Canadian standardbred for Tuesday's Greenwood Raceway Wednesday.

The three-year-old trotter fetched 14 bangles based on seven-and-placed Windy Herbert.

Don Herbert, owned by the W. H. Herbert estate in Lambeth, Ont., returned $10.80 for first-race win and combined with Hanover Dan in the second for a $30.00 daily double-before 6,613 fans.

HULL, Que. (CP)— Zip Tar, two-year-old brown colt driven by Keith Waples, won the Canadian Juvenile Circuit in 2:01.3 at Connaught Park Raceway Wednesday.

Acrobro Hanover Dan took the lead at the start, but Zip Tar took over at the quarter-pole and led right down to the line beating Acrobro Ike by a good two lengths. Royal Lalande finished third. Zip Tar paid $3.80 to win.

Zip Tar out of Tar Heel owned by Patterson, Reynolds and Shirley of Dutton, Ont. is now six starts win in 19 starts this year, bringing total earnings for the year to $30,000.

Police Work in North Once Rough

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Back in the 1920s Constable Jim McBain of the Ontario Provincial Police was flown into the bush north of Port Frances looking for a lost trapper.

The pilot dropped him on a small lake and flew out.

"Then he forgot me," Mr. McBain recalled. "He got drunk and sold the place and forgot me."

There was no one else around for 100 miles except for the lost trapper. The constable had to fend for himself. He was in the bush alone for five days when by chance a lumber company aircraft flew overhead and spotted the blanket he was frantically waving.

Constable McBain, who reached the rank of inspector before he retired, was flown out and the trapper was found later that year—dead.

The experience was typical of that facing OPP men in the '20s. They had to be rugged and tough and love living in the bush. They had to be able to handle themselves in a match with the biggest, roughest lumberjack or miner in a camp.

The OPP man was a bush man, a game warden and a one-man police force. He supplied his own car, his own office—usually his home—and his own typewriter.

Uniforms were seldom worn as they became ripped in travel through bush country. In addition, buckskin moccasins, mackinaw pants and jacket and a fur hat proved warmer in winter.

"The fellows in those days liked the work," Mr. McBain said. "They had to. They were hardly ever at home."

There was no training period for the policeman as there now is. The recruit was put to work at once.

Times have changed. Today the OPP consists of 2,000 men with the most modern appreciation, patrol and detection equipment.

Just east of Sault Ste. Marie, a Cessna 172 skims over Highway 17, on the lookout for speeding cars.

In the Sudbury area a German shepherd police dog strains at the leash as it leads its trainer through the bush to a lost or wanted man.

In Toronto trained scientists work in a modern laboratory searching for microscopic clues to a crime.

All contribute to carrying out the duties of the force: "The protection of life and property, to detect and apprehend criminals and to maintain the peace."

Some 75,000 miles of highways are regularly patrolled by 250 mobile, radio-equipped units. There are 78 fixed radio stations to control the movements of the patrol cars.

Cracked Egg Research Uses 800 Dozen A Year

VANCOUVER (CP)—The path of poultry research is littered with the shells of 30,000 eggs at the University of British Columbia.

A UBC research team has been cracking eggs at a rate of 10,000 a year for three years and project leader Dr. James K. Richards estimates they will maintain the pace for at least another three years.

The aim of it all is to produce a better egg shell, more durable package for the chicken's hard work.

"Broken shells cost the B.C. poultry industry about $600,000 a year," said Dr. Richards, assistant professor of poultry science at the UBC department of agriculture.

"The figure for all of Canada is some $4,250,000.

"Between six and eight per cent of all eggs produced are cracked somewhere between the hen and the consumer."

Dr. Richards and his assistants not only see reasonable economic justification for their studies, but also regard egg production as an interesting biological phenomenon.

"It takes 26 hours from ovulation to laying and is an intricate process controlled primarily by hormones," the professor said.

"We're trying to put the finger on all the things that determine shell strength, which can vary from egg to egg and from bird to bird."

Two precision crushing instruments, resembling miniature cyclethrers, are used to test the relative strength of shells.

Stiff shells seem to withstand pressure better than other types.

Shells with more give are more likely to go splat under pressure.

"We originally thought the more an egg would bend the less likely it would be to break —but in fact the reverse is the case."

Thickness is a factor in shell strength, but it does not account for all the differences said Dr. Richards.

The researchers are looking at the minor shell c[illegible] organic matter, w[illegible] elements other t[illegible] calcium.

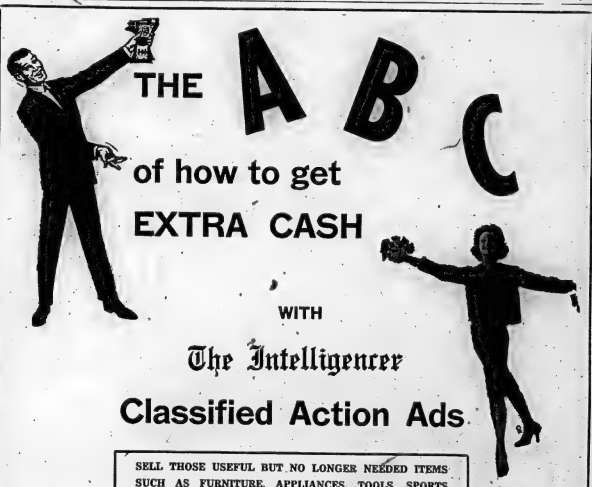
"We're hopeful the water content angle will produce an answer," said Dr. Richards.

He said water causes the blotches on eggshells, and blotches indicate weaknesses.

Dr. Richards, who is assisted by graduate student John Vandermeer and PhD candidate Marvin Tung, calls the work a productive project.

And he believes he has come up with the answer to the old question: "Which came first the chicken or the egg?"

"The egg," he said.



"Chickens are descended from reptiles, so a reptile must have laid the egg which hatched the chicken."

Priest Seeks Tourists

ATOMIC FIRE ON THE CHINESE MAINLAND — The first atomic bomb set off by China explodes in a fiery blast on the mainland in October, 1964. Since then China has set off segeral atomic explosions, and on June 17, 1967, exploded her first hydrogen bomb. (AP Photo)

Second of A Series

U.S. and Russia Helped China Produce H-Bomb

The United States, Russia and Europe inadvertently helped China's rapid development of nuclear power. The tangled background is explored in the second of three articles by Associated Press writers Alton L. Blakeslee and William L. Ryan.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN and ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

The United States and the Soviet Union gave significant help to China's drive for nuclear power.

The U.S. trained highly-skilled scientists, then deported them to China. Russia sent scientists, technicians and materials to China and trained Chinese in Russia. Other scientists were trained in France and elsewhere.

Now both are appalled at the prospect of an unstable China possessing nuclear-tipped missiles.

Eventually China, with a wealth of talented people and natural resources, would have made it on her own but she marched from atom bomb to H-bomb in 32 months, one-third the time it had taken the United States.

Peking is implacably hostile to the U.S.

Before the Second World War, there was a heavy influx of Chinese students into the U.S. By 1950, more than 3,000 Chinese were on top U.S. campuses.

Many remained after communism took over the mainland. Some were lured back by threats. Some were frightened by the era of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy and his celebrated hunt for Communists.

About 80 men whose U.S. training could contribute much to a nuclear program went back.

The roll of Chinese scientists who went home from U.S. is impressive.

Among them were: Dr. Chao Chung-yao, outstanding physicist, alumnus of the California Institute of Technology, veteran of 24 years research in the U.S. and once an official observer at U.S. A-bomb tests; Dr. Tsien Hsue - shen, brilliant Caltech alumnus considered one of the world's top rocket researchers, who undoubtedly had a key part in marrying China's nuclear warhead to a missile; Dr. Hsu Lo - kung, top mathematician who spent four years at the University of Illinois and is credited by Communist sources with a big role in China's bomb program.

One of the most intriguing stories was that of Dr. Tsien. He arrived in the U.S. in 1935 to study at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1936 he was transferred to Caltech to study of rocket propulsion. During the Second World War Tsien became head of the rocket section of the U.S. national defence scientific advisory board. After the war he went to Germany to investigate secrets of Hitler's rocket scientists.

Tsien was officially credited with contribution of U.S. victory in the war and with essential contributions to the later rocket and space programs.

Tsien became Goddard professor of propulsion at Caltech and head of the jet propulsion laboratory in Pasadena. In 1949 he filed notice of intention to become a U.S. citizen.

In 1950 Tsien's security clearance for sensitive work was lifted. Twelve years before, Tsien's friends included Communists and others whom the government would later call members of a Communist party cell. A party registration in Tsien's name was found, by an undercover agent, but not in Tsien's handwriting and without his signature. He denied having registered. The undercover agent himself testified anyone could register a desirable candidate for membership without the subject's knowledge.

After two weeks behind bars, Tsien was released on bail. Hearings dragged into the spring of 1951. He was declared deportable but was for too small cagle to deport. For five years, forbidden to leave, Tsien continued teaching and turning out brilliant papers, though removed from sensitive work. Colleagues refused to believe he ever was a Communist.

Suddenly in 1955 the government rejected Tsien along with 20 Chinese students, mostly in graduate scientific work. As soon as he arrived in China, Tsien was put to work on missile research.

Dr. Chao Chung-yao, the nuclear physicist, eluded U.S. authorities at about the time of Tsien's arrest. He sailed for China with three Chinese scientists. U.S. Army authorities tried—and failed—to hold him in Japan. In China, Chao became deputy director in the Atomic Research Institute, which he established.

Europe helped too. The man credited with heading China's program, Chien San - chiang, studied in Paris with the celebrated Frederick Joliot - Curie. Dr. Nieh Jung-chen studied as a physicist in France, Belgium and Germany. He is in general military-political charge of the bomb program.

Of the leading 200 scientists mobilized for the Chinese program, more than three quarters were trained abroad.

China nagged Russia for nuclear help. Moscow and Peking agreed on joint activity. The Russians installed a plant to process Sinkiang's uranium ore. Russia would refine it.

In 1955, Moscow agreed to a program of "scientific-technical cooperation" and "peaceful use of atomic energy." The program included a 7,000-kilowatt capacity reactor, a cyclotron and fissionable materials.

In 1956 Russia established the Joint Institute for Nuclear Research. Large numbers of Chinese participated there.

In 1957, the then Russian premier Nikita Khrushchev promised China a sample A-bomb and data on how to manufacture it.

But in a Moscow speech in November that year, Mao said that "if the worst came to the worst and half of mankind should die in nuclear war the other half would remain, wh'e imperialism would be razed to the ground, and the whole world would become socialist."

Khrushchev's repeated references to this remark made clear he had heard it with horror as a demonstration of Chinese recklessness. In June, 1959, he tore up the agreement to give China a sample bomb.

China was in a position to move forward, despite Khrushchev's abrupt removal of 1,000 Soviet scientists and engineers.

In the fall of 1964, there was great unbeavalsi: Moscow fired Khrushchev; the Chinese fired their first atom blast.

INDIANS ROUTED THEM

Visitors fled the first U.S. national park in the 1870s when Indians routed outsiders from Yellowstone.

China Will Be Ready With H-Bombs in '70s

WASHINGTON (AP) — The atomic energy committee of the U.S. Congress estimated Wednesday China will be able to use hydrogen bombs of "a low order of magnitude" against the United States "by the early 1970s."

"At present, we do not have an effective antiballistic-missile system which could repel such a suicidal—for the Chinese—but nevertheless possible strike," it was stated in a special report of the joint Senate-House of Representatives committee.

The committee's report, made after it received secret testimony from some of the top U.S. policy and intelligence officials, paints a somewhat earlier date for Chinese development of an operational intercontinental ballistic missile than the administration has predicted.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has said he believes the Chinese would not be in a position to menace the United States with a significant number of missiles before the mid-1970s.

"We believe that the Chinese probably will achieve an operational ICBM capability before 1972," the committee said.

Six Provincial Premiers Are Worried About Details of Medicare Program

FREDERICTON (CP) — Canada's provincial premiers are not planning to "gang up" on the federal government, but the six meeting here appear worried about Ottawa's plans for a national medical care insurance program.

Ending a two-day conference Wednesday, they said Prime Minister Pearson should call a federal-provincial conference to iron out problems involving the scheme scheduled to take effect July 1, 1968.

A six-page communique issued at the close of the eighth annual premiers' conference said three major issues emerged from the discussion on medicare: the timing and "phasing in" of such a program; financial arrangements; and practical problems of implementation.

New Brunswick Premier Louis J. Robichaud, chairman of the conference, said it was questionable whether the provinces and the federal government would be ready for the program by its proposed effective date.

Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson, who left here immediately following the sessions, said in an interview the conference offered the opportunity to improve relations between provincial administration. Attending the session for the first time, he said such meetings should be held more often if possible.

The provinces, he said, are administering budgets "twice the equivalent" of the federal budget and "we have certain jurisdictions which we haven't been deprived of yet."

The question of whether offshore mineral rights should be controlled by the provinces or by Ottawa—an issue now before the Supreme Court of Canada—was given its share of attention by the premiers.

British Columbia's W. A. C. Bennett said at a news conference that the West Coast province brought fib under-the-sea minerals into the country when it joined Confederation in 1871. He didn't expect the province would be forced to surrender these rights.

Premier Bennett said he feels that federal government want to settle the question initially in the courts, but would give the provinces the rights regardless of the legal decision.

The communique expressed the view that the timetable for receipt of submissions on recommendations in the Carter royal commission report on taxation should have allowed more time for provinces and industries to analyze the report and prepare sound briefs.

The fall deadline for submissions on the report should be extended two or three months, it said, and the federal white paper on the matter should also be delayed until all submissions are studied by federal authorities.

On education, the premiers call a rationalization of post-secondary facilities is essential within the provinces to avoid "needless and wasteful duplication."

Commenting on a statement in the communique which said new retraining and manpower programs needed changes and improvements, Ontario Premier John Roberts said the scheme had created a good deal of "dissatisfaction on the part of education people in Ontario."

Alberta Premier E. C. Manning agreed that the programs are far from adequate.

Cultural exchange programs instituted for Centennial Year were praised by the premiers who decided to turn over to provincial ministers concerned the possibility of continuing the programs in future years.

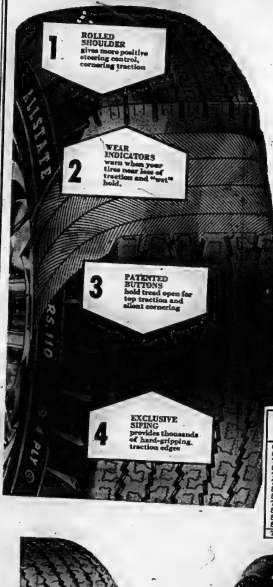
Strikes Cause Uruguay Crisis

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Tiny Uruguay sank deeper into crisis today as strikes for more pay increases, electric power cuts chilled homes and business houses, and food shortages showed no sign of easing.

At least 200,000 government workers were on full or partial strike to press demands for a 60 - per - cent wage boost in effect a similar rise in the cost of living. President Oscar Gestido's government, already deep in the red, says it cannot meet the wage demands. Union leaders say the government plans to freeze wages.

Gestido moved toward a showdown with the 400,000 - member leftist National Workers Convention, which engineered the strikes as part of a war of nerves against the government.

Navy units occupied the port area to keep out striking dock workers who might damage installations. Police also cleared strikers out of government banks where partial strikes and slowdowns disrupted operations.



High school teachers walked out today. Partial stoppages by state telephone employees disrupted long-distance service.

The railways, the state oil, alcohol and cement monopoly and other state - owned enterprises also were hit by stoppages, sitdowns, slowdowns and "working to rules."

With winter's freezing weather gripping the capital, power cuts of three to four hours daily worked a particular hardship in a city largely dependent on electricity for heating and cooking.

Television Takes to Travelling

A new television system developed by a British company enables passengers on long-distance bus tours to relax and watch their favorite programs while travelling. Four 11-inch sets, powered by the bus' batteries, are controlled by the driver. Sound is relayed either over loudspeakers or individual earphones.

Movies Pop Up as Opposition For Networks Prize Premieres

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movies shown on television once were old, dark, second - rate and mostly relegated to late night spots. Today all networks are buying contemporary, top-grade features which are the toughest competition to the quickie programs knocked out for television use.

The cast and crew of a new series have been deep in gloom this week after rumor reached them that on the night of their vital premier show a rival network will show the Beatles in A Hard Day's Night, a sure-fire audience grabber.

The current custom of mass launchings of new season shows is another nightmare.

At one time each network picked its week for its premiers, and the process took 21 days, starting in mid-September.

Now it is believed an advantage to get on the screen first, so the action starts the day after Labor Day—although such ances can only watch one show on one network at a time.

Opening gun of the new season will be shot Tuesday, Sept. 5, the start of seven days in which ABC and CBS take the plunge. NBC's premier week is set for the following week, but since competition and counter-programming are the bases for the ratings war, the network may have a few last-minute surprises.

There are, by comparison with last season, surprisingly few collisions of opening nights.

CBS's situation comedy about date jockey Cecil Morning Wood, Sept. 5 will fight for the first night audience with ABC's N.Y.P.D., a police-action story that Hollywood cynics already have labelled Dragnet East.

The Flying Nun, a fantasy-comedy on ABC Thursday will make its debut Sept. 7—in the middle half hour of CBS's 90-minute Cameron Strip, a big economy-size Western.

Friday, Sept. 8 will see another contest between a situation comedy and a Western—CBS's Accidental Family, with Jerry Van Dyke cast as a night-club entertainer with children problems, versus ABC's The Guns of Will Sonnett, which has Walter Brennan playing an old man who, with his grandson, is hunting for a long-lost son.

The rest of the 25 new shows have pretty clear sailing for their premiers.

Tiny Caribbean Pavilion Contained Under Umbrella

MONTREAL (CP)—A touch of the Caribbean comes to Expo 67 today as the world's fair marks Jamaica's national day with colorful ceremonies at Place des Nations.

Prime Minister Hugh Shearer of Jamaica arrived in Montreal Wednesday night.

Later today Alanzow Vivaldanon, speaker of the House of the Finnish Parliament, arrives here from Helsinki to take part in the Finnish-Canadian Expo Rendez-vous at the fair Sunday.

A featured event of the modern-vous will be the 32th annual Great Summer Festival to be held at Expo's St. Helen's Island. The festival will include choirs, gymnastic displays, folk dancing and a concert of pipe music.

The Caribbean islands of St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla will set up for a one-day run today the tiniest exhibit at Expo. The display, under a large umbrella, features products of the major industries of the islands which attained independence last Feb. 27.

Barbara Walton, statehood queen for the islands, will receive visitors.

Wednesday Venezuela's national day festivities were dampened by the disastrous earthquake which struck the South American country last weekend.

Jose Antonio Mayobre, Venezuela's minister of mines, headed his country's party at the ceremonies before touring several pavilions and giving a brief press conference.

"We have lost hundreds of people and many more were injured," said Mr. Mayobre during the flag-raising ceremonies. The earthquake left death and $12,000,000 in property damage in its wake.

"But we shall rise above the disaster."

He said the earthquake did not affect his country's oil production because Caracas, which suffered the full force of the quake, is not an oil-producing centre.

Pierre de Bellefeuille, Expo's director of exhibits, said he is hopeful that as a result of current negotiations the deserted Kuwait pavilion soon will be put to use.

Kuwait closed its pavilion to the public last June in protest against Canada's alleged pro-Israel stand during the Israeli-Arab crisis. It later removed its exhibits.

Movies Turn to Directors With Creativity Background

LONDON (AP) — Bob Freeman is 30, shaggy-haired and unabashedly mod. He has never directed a feature film before, yet 20th Century-Fox is about to entrust him with approximately $600,000 so he can do so.

Freeman is the latest example of the new breed of director that has caused English films to dazzle the movie world with their creativity. These directors, most of them in their 30s or early 30s, have sprung mostly out of television, and their outlook is fresh and unfettered.

They are willing to try anything. Their experiments have scored high with audiences on both sides of the Atlantic, producing such films as Hard Day's Night, Darling, The Knack, Morgan, Georgy Girl, etc. There are likely to be more such startling directions, judging from the proliferation of directing talent.

Bob Freeman is embarking on a film called The Touchables, about four London girls who kidnap and seduce a famous male.

What is his background for such an undertaking?

"I've been in fashion, advertising, television commercials, photography," he explains. "So I know the visual aspects of presenting things.

"I've done 40 commercials won prizes at Cannes, and I made commercials to finance a half-hour film on schizophrenia. It cost me $60,000 and I'm not likely to get it back. But it was what I wanted to do."

Joe McGrath, 35, now is directing his second feature film, The Bliss of Mrs. Blossom, a far-out farce about a married woman who keeps a lover in the attic. His star is Shirley MacLaine. He sold her on the project by going to the Cannes film festival and presenting her with the script.

Joe McGrath is a product of television.

The movie studios, both in London and Hollywood, are too highly organized for one to get a schooling in all aspects of film-making. But in television "we can do it."

"At least you can do it here. I suspect Hollywood is too hidebound for film in television."

McGrath had few restraints in directing comedy shows with such figures as Peter Sellers, David Frost, Spike Milligan and the Beyond the Fringe boys. Peter Cook and Dudley Moore. Like Richard Lester — Hard Day's Night—McGrath found the transition from commercial an excellent training ground, affording unlimited use of improvisation.

From Cadillac to Cafe, Henry Gathers Opinions

BY HENRY HARPO

WINNIPEG — Reviewing the last few days, from Ottawa to Winnipeg, three themes emerge. One is the romance of the road — hitch-hiking, sleeping in bus terminals, jumping freight trains. Another is social change — the question on the minds of a rancher and a company of Young Canadians volunteer whom we met in Deep River. The third is Canada's role for the future — a running conversation from Cadillac to cafe.

We left Ottawa after lunch and made the 120 miles to Deep River in good time. Here's last words to his mother were: "Now, mom, promise me you'll dress warm-ly, eat good food and get lots of sleep."

In Deep River, we stayed overnight with a former Englishman teacher of mine. Like an increasing number of young people we met, he doesn't believe that politics is the way to end war and misery. "The kind of leader we need would never run for office," he said. "A real leader would have no ego, and therefore would never seek power."

Across the street lives a number of the Company of Young Canadians whose concern is also social change. Her "Deep River project" is designed to help kids see the short comings of the school system and remedy them. Also experienced and inarticulate, her presence is resented in the community. She said she was made headway in the high school. She defended her presence in Deep River this way: "I cost the Government as much as it takes to water the grass of one building. I'm dedicated to social change and I believe in peace, a peace of time exchanging views and learning how to transform society. I think I'm worth the money."

Next morning, while waiting for a ride outside Deep River we met Hank Gallant, 24, who's walking across Canada. With a canvas shelter on his back, canteen and boots dangling and flags flying, he looked like a walking campsite. He said that he left Victoria, B.C. on February 6 and makes 25 to 30 miles a day.

"Don't you get tired?" I asked him stupidly.

"Yes," he said, "like anyone else!"

Our conversation was ended by a ride with a car dealer in a Cadillac. The discussion got on to Vietnam.

"If we don't stop the Chinamen now, they'll take over the whole world", he said, "We've got to protect our chunk of good life! It might be Christian and kind to share but would you give up your house and car? I'll tell you, I've got three bathrooms and I wouldn't sacrifice one!"

This belief — that we the 'have' nations must protect our good life from the teeming masses of 'have-nots' — is the kind of narrow-minded thinking that may eventually spell disaster for all. Wouldn't it make more sense for Canadians to dedicate ourselves to closing this economic gulf rather than taking up arms for a 'showdown'?

It had been a bad day for rides. We arrived in Sault Ste. Marie, only 300 miles from Deep River, at midnight. The police didn't take boarders and informed us that the park closed at 1.00 a.m. "How can a park close?" we mused. Into the trees we punch the clock and go home? Do the flowers drop their petals and disappear into the dew? Not so romantic with the night spent on a hard bench in the bus terminal!

Early next morning we picked up an all-day ride with a nerve lady who seemed sense help driving. Peter and I kept her Sunbeam rolling at a steady 70 mph while she told us she thought the U.S. is the greatest country in the world.

"When they want to do something — they do it!"

She let us off at 11.00 p.m. a few hours drive from Winnipeg. Rides were all so we went to the train station to see if we could hop a freight! (Like the mortal!) The trainmen explained that hopping a freight is strictly against the rules: "So get on when no one's looking". Trainmen had to show us how to read the Santalis, which car is sneak on, and when to make our move. ("Now? How?" we would ask).

After such a warm send-off, Peter and I didn't expect the freight we got in Winnipeg. As we pulled into the station, we let two hitchhikers we met on Sunday off first. Just as the second fellow touched the ground, a Canadian Pacific policeman stepped out of the shadows and grabbed him, Peter and I, still on the bridge of the moving engine, froze.

The thought of my mother, home in Ottawa, hearing of me in trouble in Winnipeg, spurred me to action! "The other side", I shouted to Peter, as I grabbed my pack and took off through the cab, onto the bridge, onto the concrete, (a three-point landing) and out of the railyards; Peter was close behind. Peter's watch, a casualty of our departure, recorded the exact moment we 'hit' Winnipeg (4.45 a.m.).

In the morning light, we walked down an empty 'Main Street' shaking with excitement, feeling sorry for the other hitchhikers, and swearing that we wouldn't have missed this experience for the world!

Next week, I'll report on our stay in Winnipeg with special emphasis on the views of the young people we're meeting. The day after tomorrow we'll forge out into the vast expanses of Canada's wheat country.

I think we'll go by thumb!

Marquis de Sade's Works Not Obscene

KITCHENER (CP) — Magistrate A. D. Barron ruled Wednesday in a four-page written judgement that a two volume set of Marquis de Sade's works seized in a raid March 31 on a Kitchener bookstore is not obscene.

"In my opinion," he said, "The Complete Marquis de Sade is extremely shocking and distasteful but of great literary and historical merit and of great importance to serious students of literature.

"And I am of the opinion that in the view of the prevailing public opinion as foetod by the Supreme Court of Canada and the Supreme Court of Ontario that the public good is best served by the sale of The Complete Marquis de Sade."

Kitchener police seized the works at the M. F. Landmann bookstore and charged Mr. Landmann with having obscene matter for sale.

At a five-hour hearing June 8, two Kitchener police officers testified they found the books disgusting.

Defence counsel Aubrey Golden called three witnesses who defended the works. They were Dr. E. W. Wright, professor of Romance languages at MacMaster University in Hamilton, Dr. John Rich, a Toronto psychiatrist, and Rev. Hugh McKervill, a United Church minister from Kitchener.

Magistrate Barron adjourned the case until he had had a chance to read the 638 - page works.

His ruled Wednesday that Marquis de Sade literature is a part of Canada's heritage because French is a legal language here.

"If the historical and literary merit were not so great, I would have no hesitation in ruling The Complete Marquis de Sade obscene," Magistrate Barron added.?

This was the first time de Sade's writings were tried in a Canadian court for obscenity, Mr. Golden said.

An 18th century nobleman, de Sade spent one-third of his life in jails or mental asylums for sexual or political crimes.

Toronto Millionaire Fined for Tax Fraud

TORONTO (CP) — Reuben Dennis, 60, a Toronto millionaire developer, today was fined $2,100 or four years, four months in prison on 42 counts of income tax fraud dating back to 1950 and involving more than $40,000 over the same period.

Mr. Dennis was given one month with the possibility of an extension to pay the fine, which was about 125 per cent of the total tax evaded.

Magistrate C. A. Thorburn said the developer had used "devious means" to evade paying taxes, but was taking into account when passing sentence that Mr. Dennis was already paying the tax arrears with interest.

Of the total penalty, $2,100 was for 21 charges against companies owned by Mr. Dennis and the remainder for 21 personal evasion charges.

Earlier, Armando Mandrelly, a vice-president of Investigator, had told the court Mr. Dennis had altered records of apartment buildings he owned.

He said altered expense invoices were altered to show as company expenses.

Mr. Mandrelly said his three-year investigation also uncovered records indicating work done on buildings owned by Mr. Dennis which in fact had not been done.

The charges, laid against Mr. Dennis by RCMP April 28, were on two informations sheets more than four feet long.

Roblin Recalls Quinte Ties

Premier Duff Roblin has ancestral ties with the Quinte district — and in 1964 unveiled a plaque to his grandfather, Sir Rodmund Roblin, during centennial celebrations at a lakeshore park in the village of Wellington. Ironically, the county is now part of electoral area where leadership opponent George Hees is candidate.

Resigns as Premier

Roblin Running To Unite Land

Picks Federal Role

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin bought a one-way ticket to federal politics Thursday with his announcement that he is seeking the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

Win or lose at the September leadership convention in Toronto, he will resign as premier and devote his time to federal affairs.

The 50-year-old premier said his decision "means a definite commitment to federal affairs."

"Regardless of the outcome of the national Progressive Conservative convention I shall retire as premier of Manitoba," Mr. Roblin said. "It would be expected that I would continue to discharge the office of premier until the convention is over."

The dapper premier, who has been leader of his party for 13 years and premier for nine, said in a prepared statement:

"I make this move into federal politics in the hope of joining with Progressives Conservatives everywhere in Canada to make our party the best possible instrument to serve the nation and advance the welfare of our people."

He said the march of time and events demonstrates the need for new men and new ideas in national affairs.

"Our party must be ready to meet this need. To this end I seek an opportunity to work with the men and women of my party and with Canadians of goodwill everywhere for Canada's second century."

He said one of his main reasons for seeking the leadership was the "great problem of national unity."

"This is no new problem. It has been a standing problem since before confederation and I feel that the Progressive Conservative party can make a contribution toward solving the problem.

"I think there is something needed I can do. I want to be part of that effort."

He said the first steps must be discussions between English- and French - speaking Canadians to learn what each considers their vital interests that must be done before "we can get down to the essentials of fitting them together."

Like Ball Team Says Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett dodged serious comment Thursday on the announcement that Premier Roblin of Manitoba will enter the Conservative leadership race.

"The Conservatives have also men running now, like a baseball team," Mr. Bennett told a news conference. "I don't know who's on first and who's on second. What I want to know is who is at bat."

He would not speculate on the outcome of the party's leadership convention in September, but said:

"Diefenbaker is the 10th man and he is still the leader.

"He may be a pinch hitter—they do that in baseball sometimes you know."

Fall Vote Not Out

TORONTO (CP) —Premier Robarts said Thursday the scheduling of an Ontario - convened conference on Confederation Nov. 30-31 "certainly doesn't" rule out the possibility of a provincial election being held this year.

Today's Chuckle

They say that every day in Russia is Pan American Day.

Two in Race Tied to Quinte

By Harry Mulhall, Staff Reporter

There is a touch of irony — linked to the Quinte district — in Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin's bid for the Conservative national leadership.

Of all the votes he seeks, the hardest to forage likely will be from delegates representing Prince Edward County — site of the Roblin family beginnings.

The county where Mr. Roblin's forebears once farmed as United Empire Loyalist settlers now has its own candidate in the leadership race — George Hees.

(Premier Roblin even personally paid tribute to his ancestral ties with the Quinte area in 1964. Exactly three years ago this August holiday weekend, he stopped over briefly at Wellington and unveiled a plaque during celebrations of the village's centennial. The plaque, in the village park, commemorated the family ties in the person of the premier's grandfather, Sir Rodmond Roblin, who was premier of Manitoba from 1900 to 1905).

Mr. Hees, MP for Northumberland, already has been chosen Conservative candidate in the newly-distributed riding of Prince-Edward Hastings.

In common with other Quinte region ridings, the constituency will send five voting delegates to the Toronto leadership convention Sept. 6 - 8.

Today, Trenton burlesseman Ted Parker, Conservative riding president and one of the five

Svetlana's Stalin

Awful in His Cruelty, Did Not Know How to Kill

LONDON (AP) — Joseph Stalin's daughter Svetlana disclosed in memoirs published here Thursday that the Soviet dictator choked to death for 12 hours, his face turning black in agony.

Svetlana set by her father's bed in March, 1953, "for those three terrible days it took him to die."

She said frantic efforts were made to save him — leeches put on his head and neck, cardiograms, x-rays and continuous injections.

It was, Svetlana wrote, a "ghastly death." Slowly asphyxiated throughout the last 12 hours, Stalin's face turned black, became unrecognizable and in terrible agony he choked to death.

Svetlana implied that her father hastened his own death. He believed there was a doctors' plot against him and permitted no physician in his Kremlin home for several months before he died.

He took pills and iodide from time to time, and the day before suffering a cerebral hemmorrhage, he took a steam bath, something Svetlana says a doctor would never have permitted.

She said her heart was bursting with grief and love for her father —

"I felt I had been a good for-nothing daughter and had in no way helped this lonely soul, this old and sick man who was rejected and alone on his Olympus."

This is recounted by Olga Franklin, Russian-language expert of The Daily Mail-Evening News, in reviewing Svetlana's book, Twenty Letters to a Friend, it was published here in Russian by Hutchinson's at $7.50 a copy.

In the book, Svetlana depicted her father as a man awful in his cruelty, but a man who did not know how to kill. Referring to a story that Stalin killed his second wife, Svetlana's mother, Svetlana said:

"How easy and simple it would be if that were the case. There is nothing to explain, and the fact is that he himself never killed anybody in his life except hawks and bears and he did not know how to."

Throughout her childhood, Svetlana saw all her aunts and uncles disappear. Some, such as Anna Sergeyevna, came back "a bit silly" from years of solitary confinement. Some never returned.

Svetlana wrote that her father feared swords and was annoyed by foreign gowns and postures. She said he slapped her twice across the face because, at 17, she fell in love with a middle-aged Jewish dramatist.

She said Stalin said her he was afraid to go out because the crowds would come and applaud, shouting, clapping, "mouths open, the fools."

Stalin detested at his eldest son, Yasha, who had tried to kill himself after his first marriage failed: "Missed, eh, you great fool."

Mrs. Franklin called the book a masterpiece, worthy of Tolstoy.

But, Mrs. Franklin added, seekers of political secession will find none in these memoirs.

The Russian version of the book appeared here as action started in the High Court to block distribution of an allegedly unauthorized version by another publisher, Alec Fiegen. The court set Aug. 18 for hearing, and Fiegen agreed not to publish any part of the book before then.

English-language translations of the book are in the hands of American publishers.

Manning Urges PCs Lead Renaissance

EDMONTON (CP)—The provost of Canada's Social Credit movement, Alberta Premier E. C. Manning, has called on the national Progressive Conservative party to lead the country into a political renaissance.

In a book published today, Mr. Manning says Social Credit in the national arena cannot alone effect a political renewal, despite its strong position as the governing party in Alberta and British Columbia. The best alternative is a rebuilt Conservative party.

"In the national field, the Social Credit party can make its maximum contribution to the furthering of its own ideals and principles . . . by doing everything within its power to encourage and assist in bringing about an effective reorganization of the Progressive Conservative party of Canada," Mr. Manning writes.

The premier proposes that the Progressive Conservatives adopt as a fundamental new framework, a "social conservative" philosophy that would attract most Social Crediters, a majority of Progressive Conservatives and many Liberals in a realignment of political thought.

Mr. Manning defines "social conservatism" as a synthesis of "the humanitarian concerns of those with awakened social consciences and the economic persuasion of those with a firm conviction in the value of freedom of economic activity and enlightened private enterprise."

Robarts Doubts Ontario Ready for '68 Medicare

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Thursday he doubts Ontario will be able to meet Ottawa's requirements for participation in the federal medical care scheme by the July 1, 1968, deadline.

Mr. Robarts told a health conference on his return from the premiers' conference at Fredericton the federal requirements are causing "some disquiet in all provinces except Saskatchewan which already has a universal plan in effect."

The federal government has said that for a provincial medical care plan to qualify for 50-per-cent federal aid the plan must be government - administered and cover 90 per cent of the province's population.

The premier said Ontario is particularly concerned at Ottawa's insistence that private places be eliminated from the medical care program.

The Ontario government also was concerned at the estimated $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 cost of a medical care program, in view of deficits being incurred by all levels of government.

The premier said that before any final decision on medical care is made further talks should be held in the form of a federal-provincial conference.

Failing any change in Ottawa's attitude, would Ontario meet Ottawa's deadline?

"I'm not in a position to say that this province will be able to take advantage of the federal program by July 1, 1968," he said.

Mr. Roberts said there was no doubt the form of medical care insurance advocated by Ottawa would be reached "eventually."

"But we seem to be going at it in too great a hurry."

Lakes Strike Likely

MONTREAL (CP)—A strike against 32 shipping companies which moves the bulk of cargo passing through the Great Lakes "seems certain" if a contract settlement does not come by Aug. 15, says the president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

Leonard McLaughlin made the statement following a jubilant SIU membership meeting in Montreal one of a number held Thursday in ports from Halifax to Fort William, Ont.

"There is no doubt about the mood of the membership," Mr. McLaughlin added.

There were promises of support from other unions and an expression of surprise by a spokesman for the companies.

Specifically, the men voted to authorize the taking of a strike vote by Aug. 16.

Police Use Helicopters

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Police today made their first aerial assault on Communist strongholds here, swooping in helicopters on two rooftops. They roped themselves down by rope when there was not enough room to land.

Twenty - five arrests were made and a large quantity of homemade weapons seized by police and troops in three raids on the troubled colony's pro-Peking Chinese strongholds.

News Briefs

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An 18-month-old baby was in critical condition in hospital and about a dozen other children got the scare of their lives Thursday when they were buried into the Thames River after a flimsy, floating footbridge capsized in a local park. Rosemary Graham, who was being pushed in a stroller, was trapped under water for almost five minutes.

Damage to Road Signs Estimated at $75,000

By DON MacKENZIE
(Staff Reporter)

Plenty of ammunition for Ontario hunters could be bought with the $75,000 spent annually by the Ontario government to repair the damage caused by bullets to road-signs on the highways.

This wasteful and unnecessary defacing of public property has numerous considerations for the "road-sign sharpshooter" to think about.

Obviously it is the taxpayer who is providing the necessary funds to replace ruined signs and this money could be put to much better use if certain hunters would choose more appropriate targets.

Defacing highway signs is a survey made by the Dept. of Highways which began in 1960 and was up - dated, last year listed damages at $75,000 annually only for the damage to signs caused by bullets.

There are no official estimates as to the damage caused by other forms of destruction, but a representative of the department thought that the figure would at least double if a survey was ever conducted.

The real problem lies not with cost but with the danger created to the public by the defacement, alteration or destruction of these road signs.

If a yield sign is shot up, a speed - limit sign defaced or a directional sign changed it not only inconveniences the public but in some cases places them in danger.

Section 100 of the Highway Traffic Act. However, it is almost impossible for the police to apprehend anyone shooting signs illustrated by the fact that there have been no charges on record for this offence for at least the last two years.

By the same token it is rather difficult for the shooter to walk up to his public target to check on how good his aim was.

Shooting road - signs is not the only method of ruining them though. There are also those Herculean figures who bend and twist signs with their bare hands.

There are also artists in the area who magically transform a 30 m.p.h. speed limit sign into an 80 m.p.h. speed limit with a few strokes of a brush.

Signs-shot, Painted, Ripped and Bent

These area road signs had a short lived existence due to the proficiency of sharp-shooters, artists and musicmen. The directional signs once had four other pointers and it's obvious what the other signs are supposed to look like. At over $75,000 a year cost to the taxpayer for useless destruction of public property Ontario must have extremely wealthy residents.

Holloway Man Wins Barley Contest Award

Dale Cranston of Holloway has won first place in the barley competition sponsored annually by the Belleville Agricultural Society.

The field competition was judged by Jack Hagarty, field crop specialist with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Bill Bishop, field crops chairman for the Belleville Fair Board.

Mr. Cranston's field of Herta Barley was an excellent stand with plants averaging 12 tillers each. The field was free of rust with very little lodging and has an estimated yield of 75 bushels per acre.

Other award winners in the ten field competitions were Douglas Black and Son, R.R. 7 Belleville, Wilfred Gilmer, Ameliasburg, Richard Cranston, Holloway and Reg. Barker and Son, R.R 7 Belleville.

The purpose of the field barley competition is to encourage profitable barley production in the Quinte area. This year oat production will be below average due to lodging and rust infection but barley yields promise to be very good.

Tenders Called for Work on Trent Canal

The rebuilding of Lock No. 1 of the Trent Canal at Trenton is included in an estimated 2.2 million dollars to be spent this year for improvements on the waterway.

The Federal Department of Transport recently called tenders for the rebuilding and extending of the shore-house and workshop at Trenton Lock No. 1.

Principal areas of building activity will be Bobcaygeon, where a manually operated lock will be mechanized, and Kirkfield, where a new guard - gate will be installed. A new maintenance building will also be built at Kirkfield.

The Dept. of Transport estimates traffic will reach the 142,-000 mark this year compared to 130,000 in 1966.

Locally traffic on the system is already approaching that of the 1966 season, despite a two week closing because of high water levels.

The Trent - Severn cuts diagonally 240 miles through southern Ontario from Georgian Bay to Trenton.

Montreal Club Helps In Expo-a-go-go Project

Montreal's Inter-Service Club Council is participating in Belleville's Centennial project to send 250 youngsters to Expo for a day.

The club has offered to arrange transportation for the children from Central Station in Montreal to Expo site — thus solving one of the stickier problems faced by the project's organizers.

Sparked by one of Belleville's leading industries the project has received the interest of businesses, service clubs, churches and individuals. More than 60 volunteers are involved in making plans for the trip to Montreal.

Alastair D. Cameron, Bank of Montreal manager, announced recently that anyone wishing to contribute towards Expo-a-go-go may bring their donations to any branch of the bank. Receipts for income tax purposes will be available.

PUBLIC BACKS DRAPEAU

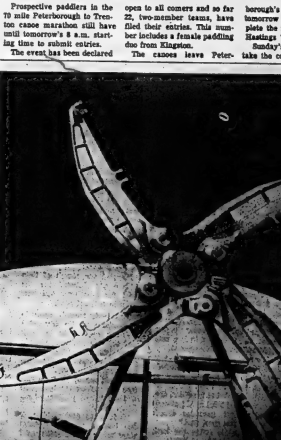
MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau's public refutation of President de Gaulle's speeches in Quebec has brought him more than 5,000 letters and telegrams from across Canada. Most of them approved of his speech July 26 at a civic luncheon for the French leader that ended the latter's four-day visit to Quebec province.

Festivities Planned
44 Paddlers Enter Marathon

Prospective paddlers in the 70 mile Peterborough to Trenton canoe marathon still have until tomorrow's 8 a.m. starting time to submit entries.

The event has been declared open to all comers and so far 22, two-member teams, have filed their entries. This number includes a female paddling duo from Kingston.

The canoes leave Peterborough's Little Lake Marina tomorrow morning and complete the first day's racing at Hastings Town Hall.



Sunday's second leg will take the competitors to Campbellford for an overnight stop.

The winning canoe is expected to arrive at Trenton harbor around 5 p.m. Monday touching off a full evening's program of festivities at Centennial Park.

During the evening the winning team will be presented with prizes — two 10 ft. fibreglass canoes and $10. Cash prizes are also available for lap winners and the overall second and third place finishers.

Each finishing entrant will be presented with a scroll to mark his participation in the centennial event.

Monday evening's program, open to the public, also includes a steer barbecue, games, rides, music and dancing.

Tree Bark May Cure Ulcers

BOGOTA (Reuters) — Four young doctors are working virtually around the clock in Colombia to determine whether the bark of an Amazon tree can help cure ulcers.

For centuries, South American Indians have considered the bark a "magic remedy" for almost any kind of ailment.

The physicians, three Colombians and a Spaniard, have found a dozen cases indicating the bark has a curative effect.

The patients drank the water-diluted, pulverized bark of the "palo de arco" tree, scientifically known as tabebula avellandai and a member of the bignonia family.

Dr. Adolfo Monje Perez, 30, Colombian leader of the research team, said all of his patients are well on their way to being cured.

He believes the bark may even help to cure skin cancer.

Dr. Sonia Gutierrez, 35-year-old graduate in medicine from Bogota's national university and a victim of skin cancer, claimed the bark has helped her condition.

As for ulcers, Dr. Monje Perez said one patient had suffered from a duodenal ulcer for eight years without ever reacting to the usual ulcer treatments.

Investigation Under Way

OHC Survey in Picton Will Determine Need for Public Housing

PICTON (Staff) — A rental housing survey is being conducted in Picton by the Ontario Housing Corporation at the request of Town Council. The survey is intended to determine the need for public rental housing in Picton.

The proposed accommodation would be for families or senior citizens living and working in Picton whose present accommodation is inadequate.

The present survey is concerned mainly with identifying families who are now living in inadequate accommodation and who would like to rent a public housing unit.

The first step in the survey will be to reach as many tenants as possible, by mail. This to be followed by an investigation. A research analyst will check the social and economic conditions in the community.

This will consist of interviews with municipal officials, social and welfare organizations, as well as business executives.

If there is a proven need in the municipality and officials decide to proceed with the housing, the capital cost will be shared by both the federal and the provincial governments.

The size of the housing units would vary according to the needs of the community and rents would be geared to the total family income - regardless of the size of accommodation. Under the plan families could conceivably have a unit containing four or even five bedrooms.

For couples, apartments would consist of a living room, bedroom, bathroom and kitchen equipped with a stove and a refrigerator. A bed - sitting room, kitchen and bathroom, would be available for single persons.

The rents on the housing units would be set at a minimum of $33 per family.

New Personnel

Local Hospital Back to Normal

With the arrival this week of the new assistant administrator, Belleville General Hospital again has its full complement of senior administrative personnel.

Philip Rickard, the new administrator, has been in the city for several months but only within the past two weeks has he been joined by other senior administrative staff.

Miss M. Ruth Gaw, the new director of nursing service, took up her new duties during the latter part of July, while the assistant administrator John Konetsky, took up his duties this week.

"Without senior assistants the few months I have been in Belleville seemed like as many years," commented Mr. Rickard.

The hiring of new hospital administrative personnel became necessary following the resignations last autumn of the assistant administrator and director of nursing service over what was said to be a clash of personalities with the hospital administrator.

The then hospital administrator was later relieved of his position and "caretaker" personnel from the Ontario Hospital Services Commission was placed in charge until the arrival of new administrative officials.

Recently the hospital board of governors held a dinner at the hospital for staff members who have completed 10 years or more of service. The long term employees were presented with pins by Harleigh Hamilton, chairman of the board.

Mr. Hamilton expressed his appreciation to the employees for their long service with the hospital. Hospital administrator Philip Rickard also addressed the dinner party.

Employees with 15 years service are Mrs. Helen Corinaldi, Mrs. Willifred Donaldson, Mrs. Helen Reid, Mrs. Marie Bonso and Mrs. Margaret Wells.

Ten year employees are: Mrs. Freda Burling, Mrs. Irene Dugnay, Mrs. Faith Duesberry, Mrs. Phoebe Howard, Mrs. Rena Lang, Mrs. Kathleen Lewis, Mrs. Eleanor MacDonald, Mrs. Gertrude McCrory, Mrs. Grace Merry, Mrs. Muriel Pascoe, Mrs. Ruth Pettifor, Mrs. Marjorie Smith, Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, Mrs. Jean Wessels, Ivan Wright and Gordon Lewis.

Belleville Owned Craft Places 11th in Cup Race

Battling all kinds of weather Ian Morch's maroon-rigged sloop "North Star," out of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, finished 11th in a field of 60 boats in the annual Freeman Cup race yesterday.

"Aresha" owned by Herbert Wahl of Port Credit was the winner with "Bonaventure" owned by Bernard Herman, Toronto finishing second.

"Windrift," owned by Jack Sills of Belleville, finished well back in the field.

82 boats in three divisions crossed the starting line at Presqu'ile, Wednesday afternoon on a triangular course that took them to Youngstown and the finishing line at Hamilton.

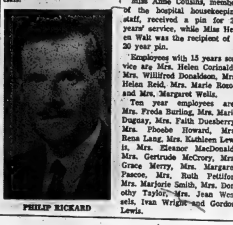
"North Star has performed better," Mr. Morch said. "Last year we finished fourth in the overall standing, the year before we were second and the previous year we came second in the overall."

This is Mr. Morch's tenth year of racing for the Freeman Cup.

"North Star" was crewed by Freeman Burrows, George Cuthbertson, Dick Bird, Charles Tatham all of Quinte and a guest Peter Goldstein of Rochester.

"The first day was perfect sailing weather," said Mr. Morch. "The wind was out of the southeast at 12 knots and the sun was shining. That night, however the scene changed. We hit wind squalls, thunderstorms and rough water. In the early morning the wind dropped to almost nothing and the race became something like a drifting match. Later a breeze sprang up enabling us to finish."

Students Selected For Athletic Camp



TWEED — Two representatives from the Tweed - Hungerford District High School's Grade 11 were selected to attend the Ontario Athletic Leadership Camp at Lake Couchiching.

Brenda Denhaze, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carm Denhaze, Bridge St., Tweed, went to camp July 30 for two weeks. She was awarded three badges while in camp, two for advanced swimming and the third for intramural basketball. The instructors were all physical education teachers of many years experience and the directors were from the Department of Education.

Murray Spencer, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Spencer, Catharine Street, left Aug. 7 for the same camp, where he will spend two weeks.

These students receive special training in athletics so they will be able to instruct other students or pupils in the art of athletics.

The two students were selected by the teachers of the Tweed-Hungerford District High School.

PHILIP RICKARD

New Director Named For Research Institute

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of Dr. Philip Corbet, 38, as director of the federal entomology research institute at Belleville was announced today. The institute studies control of insects, chiefly farm and forest pests.

Also joining the institute staff is Dr. R. E. Bellamy, former scientific director of an encephalitis field laboratory at Bakersfield, Calif., operated by the U.S. Public Health Service.

The appointments fill vacancies created by the recruitment of Belleville scientists by the new Simon Fraser University at Vancouver.

Dr. Corbet, a native of Malaya, has specialized in the agriculture departments entomology research institute here since 1952.

Centennial Program Slated for Wellington Over Weekend

PICTON (Staff) — Looks like this "Weekend in Wellington" will be one to remember. The village is celebrating it's old home week along with a Centennial program.

The events will run from Friday night through Sunday evening when the show will wind up with a 60 voice centennial choir that music lovers will not want to miss.

This evening the festivities get under way with an old time fiddlers' contest at 7:30. This will be followed by a street dance.

Saturday's events lead off with the official opening of the new museum at 1.15 followed by a parade down main street. In the evening a barbecue supper cooked by members of the Wellington Fire Department, a rock and roll show in the arena and a variety show in the park.

Sunday will feature an inter-faith church service, a band concert in the park during the afternoon and the Wellington Centennial Choir will present a concert in the park Sunday evening.

Monday will see an open house and tea at the manor sponsored by the Wellington Women's Institute. Bingo will be held in the park in the afternoon and in the evening a dance in the arena for all ages will wind up the weekend. A highlight of Saturday's events will be a fireworks display in Wellington Park at 11 o'clock. So it looks like fun, games, dances, music, parades and fireworks this weekend in Wellington.

H-Bombs Could Halt Blow by Asteroid

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)— If the asteroid Icarus were to hit the earth, the results would be catastrophic—but a group of advanced engineering students suggest that the asteroid could be intercepted by a barrage of hydrogen bombs.

Icarus—a mile-wide collection of cold matter, possibly iron—will hurtle past the earth June 15, 1968, a scant 4,000,000 miles away. A collision with the earth is considered unlikely, but there has been concern about what to do should it veer earthward.

A group of advanced space-systems engineering students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology tackled the problem and came up with an answer based on available knowledge and space equipment.

The students assumed that Icarus would hit the earth in the mid-Atlantic, 2,000 miles east of Florida. This impact would dig a crater in the ocean floor 15 miles across and release energy equal to 500,000,000,000 tons of TNT.

Tidal waves would cause worldwide damage and wipe out New York, Boston and other port cities on both sides of the Atlantic.

Tourist Suffers Injuries

An American tourist suffered minor injuries last night when his car was involved in a rear-end collision with a tractor-trailer transport on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, four miles west of Belleville.

Edward Jordan, 63, of Alexandria, N.Y., was treated at Belleville General Hospital for a dislocated shoulder and cuts.

Driver of the transport, Wilfred King, of Downsview, escaped injury.

Total damage was $1,400.

Grade 13 Results Due Aug. 15

TORONTO (CP) — Results of Ontario's first Grade 13 departmental examinations will be sent by registered mail to the province's schools Aug. 15, an education department spokesman said today.

N. A. Vale, the department's examinations and diplomas administrator, said some results will be mailed to remote parts of the province a day or two earlier to ensure that all the students are advised no later than Aug. 16.

Last year they went out Aug. 14.

Next year, the province will embark on a new system of locally set and marked Grade 13 exams plus university entrance papers in about four subjects.

River Projects

The proposed dams on the Moira River watershed now awaiting final approval are useful additions to the waterway's control system which will benefit cottage owners and area residents generally.

Ontario government sanction has been received for the projects at Stoco Lake and Deerock Lake which empty into the Skootamatta River north of Flinton.

The schemes now come under the wing of the federal-provincial Agricultural and Rural Development Act (ARDA) and final approval of ARDA officials is now awaited.

It would be disappointing if this were not forthcoming quickly, for the Moira River Conservation Authority is prepared to make a start on the Stoco Lake project this year. This involves two wire rope type water level control dams, one on each side of the two branches of the Moira, draining the lake at Tweed.

For one thing work on the dams is going to provide useful employment in the area.

The Deerock Lake dam involves a reservoir system aimed at maintaining, the summer flow in the lower reaches of the Moira. Government subsidies are available in each case.

Camel Talk

Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon, taking time out from riding a camel at Expo's La Ronde — accompanied by of all people, Jack Benny — had some interesting comments to make last week on water pollution.

That was last week, and a lot of water will have flowed down the St. Lawrence since then. So the people of this province should sit up when it hears Mr. Nixon declaring that Ontario is responsible for most of the pollution which comes down this great river.

Mr. Nixon suggests the only solution is contained in the report released recently by the Ontario Water Resources Commission. This entails a joint effort by Ontario, Quebec and the seven States below the border which cause the pollution.

Water pollution, the Liberal leader says, should be the second priority on Ontario's legislative program, after "reform of our lousy tax structure." He claims, moreover, that it would take $300,000,000 just to abate the pollution, but the provincial government currently is spending less than $10,000,000 a year.

Any politician conscientious enough to have on his mind a burning issue such as pollution, while riding a camel with Jack Benny, at La Ronde, and subsequently enjoying a beer courtesy of the nearby British pub, deserves an audience.

Pollution is a problem for scientists and governments, as well as for members of the public who can play their part by avoiding any action that would tend to taint further these vital natural resources of air and water.

Manx Problem

As if Britain did not have enough troubles these days — from Aden to Hong Kong — it now faces a spot of bother in the Isle of Man, the popular vacation island in the Irish Sea halfway between England and Ireland.

The Isle of Man runs its own affairs through the Manx Parliament, or Tynwald, but Britain is responsible for defence and foreign affairs of the island.

The Tynwald is at odds with Westminster over the latter's decision to ban pirate radio stations which beam non-stop pop music from ships just outside British waters. One of the biggest stations is moored just off the island. The British government says the ban will apply to it despite the rejection of a similar bill by the Tynwald.

The islanders say they are defending constitutional principle, not just the radio stations.

Maybe, but think of the fate from which they are being delivered — who wants to listen to pop music all day long, and from a pirate station at that?

War on Litter

Keeping the downtown area of Belleville free of litter is going to be a much easier task now that the city has acquired handsome new trash cans as well as a power-driven sidewalk vacuum cleaner.

One area that should be given particular attention is the section leading from Front Street to the footbridge. Here the machine will find a veritable harvest of litter.

Children may be the worst culprits — but it is scarcely their fault if they are not taught by parents to use the trash cans that are available.

Distorted View

Young Canadians' Director Replies to Columnist

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing in reply to a recent column written by Richard Jackson concerning the Company of Young Canadians.

This column contained a number of inaccuracies and distortions which I would like to correct here through your columns. While the Company of Young Canadians does not expect to avoid criticism or to be immune from attack, we do expect to be criticized on the basis of facts, rather than on half-truths and highly-colored reporting.

1. Mr. Jackson says the Government is looking for a way to get rid of the Company. What Mr. Jackson is perfectly free to hold this opinion he does not at present very convincing evidence to support it. By his own admission, the personnel branch of the Company of Young Canadians for the 1967-68 fiscal year has more than doubled, and this increase has been made with the approval of the Treasury Board and the Cabinet.

2. The Company of Young Canadians did not, as Mr. Jackson states, give $4,000 of this support money, to the Student Union for Peace Action. The fact is that the Privy Council Office signed a contract with SUPA to provide $4,000 for a Project Office, under whose jurisdiction a certain group of people was planning to hold a conference on Canadian foreign policy, with a report concerning the social action and community development. SUPA had a project located in the summer of 1966 on Indian reserves in Saskatchewan, sponsored jointly by Kingston and Hobbes, and in other communities across Canada. This information was available to the planning of the Company's 1967 programme.

3. The Company has not staged anti-Americanism, pro-Communism protests on the steps of the American Consulate in Toronto. Two Company volunteers did participate in a demonstration organized by students and group against the war in Vietnam. The volunteers were taking part in this demonstration as individual citizens and did not speak for the Company of Young Canadians. This point was made perfectly clear by myself and by the Privy Council Chairman shortly after this incident.

4. Mr. Jackson charges that one of the Company's duties is the circulating an internal newsletter written with some four-letter words "from the lavatory wall lexicon." We do not wish to defend the meaningless use of four-letter words, but we do feel that the use of strong, every day English language in the context of a written expression or literary passage is quite defensible. If one reads contemporary literature, it is obvious that the Company of Young Canadians did not discover four-letter words — nor did it give them their first public exposure.

5. Mr. Jackson says the Company "distributed another newsletter charging that the Canadian political status quo was the responsible for of youth, hopefully to be replaced by new power or structures". This is untrue. Before the Company was organized, the assistant secretary of the organizing staff wrote an article in which he pointed out that there were many young people in Canada who did view the establishment and the society into an existence of pressure groups. However he went on to point out that this was not the view which he held, and the view that the Company of Young Canadians should hold. He suggested in his article that change occurred through a variety of means and should not be based on an opposition to the status quo. Part of the company's job, he said, should be to stimulate local people to develop a greater sense of power and influence over their lives. This is surely a different matter to charges of the representatives of the political status quo.

6. Mr. Jackson refers to an incident involving a company volunteer in Kenora. As Mr. Jackson observes, the volunteer's conviction was reversed by the Kenora police magistrate on appeal. Mr. Jackson then says that the volunteer "has let town by speaking tours of the Indian Indian - Eskimo Association." That statement is untrue. The volunteer left Kenora of his own accord and was not asked to leave the area.

7. Mr. Jackson states that two of the company's volunteers were "run out of the Northern Affairs community of Fraser on Lesser Slave Lake." In point of fates, One of our volunteers in Fraser did decide to leave; one remained doing his work there. It is quite true that some people in Fraser objected to the way these volunteers dressed and the fact that one of them wore a beard. It is also true that the behaviour of these volunteers in Fraser contributed very much to the community's examining itself and most people then it ever had before — a fact which was noted also in the newspaper report from the Edmonton Journal which Mr. Jackson quotes.

8. Mr. Jackson's attribution to one of the company's executives associate director Stewart Goodings, the opinion that the parents being children the kids ought to call the shots — long hair, the whole weird works' is the best world". Again, this is untrue. Mr. Goodings was the first to call for greater youth participation and greater influence by young people in community and national affairs, but he was not suggesting that kids ought "to call the shots". Nor did Mr. Goodings suggest that all kids have long hair and represent the new Spanish fringe.

The company feels it is fair game for criticism, and it does not consider itself to have a privileged position. We do shoot "back" however, when a report such as Mr. Jackson's column, purports to be the truth about the Company of Young Canadians.

ALAN CLARKE,
Executive Director.

The so-called Babington plot by Catholics to kill Elizabeth I of England was uncovered 361 years ago today—in 1586. Anthony Babington, a supporter of Mary Queen of Scots, was the ringleader of the conspirators who planned to assassinate the Queen and her ministers and transport power with the help of English Catholics and Spanish soldiers. The plot was uncovered when letters to Mary were intercepted and one of the plotters confessed. Babington and six others were executed for high treason.

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—the war had lasted exactly three years; the King and Queen attended a special service in Westminster Abbey; French troops reached the line of the Aisne and the Vesle.

Welsh "Motique"

Miniskirts to Bridal Gowns

BBC London Letter

Many of the drawbacks of living is remote, isolated Wales are now disappearing. In the BBC World Service program "Wales Today" Alwyn Parry Jones talked about a new rural service, one that is quite exclusive in its appeal.

"Today the farmer's wife is served by a boutique on wheels or "motique" as the owner calls it. She is Mrs. Helena Leighton-Davies from the West Wales town of Cardigan. For five years or so she's run a highly successful and exclusive boutique in her home town. But in that part of Wales as many people live in the country as in towns. Their food and cultural requirements are already met by travelling grocers and butchers and by libraries on wheels, and perhaps it was only a matter of time before someone hit on the idea of making fashion mobile.

"At the end of last year Mrs. Leighton-Davies first took her wares out of town into the country villages and hamlets aboard "Bertha"—as she christened the van. The experiment is now a success. Gradually the customers are getting to know her rounds. On Tuesday morning she might be parked in Pishguard; that afternoon they'll be expecting her in the open market at Haverfordwest and so on. The casual informality around the van has won a new and wider clientele; the couples told me she's gained many customers, who'd probably be nervous of entering the glamorous haute couture atmosphere of a conventional boutique.

"What really does country customers? Well, Bertha carries around 3,000 pounds ($9,000) worth of stock, and the price range is 48 inch hips. Mini-skirts! Yes, and more elegant attire for the older woman, but nothing faddy-duddy, I was hastily assured. If the farmer's wife wants to, she can buy a whole outfit from the motique - a suit, dress, lingerie and all accessories including hats and shoes. She can also pick up something for the house like a rug or a vase. And the service doesn't end with what's on board. One morning a bride-to-be wants a pink outfit for the wedding. Mrs. Leighton-Davies has a girl in London working as a agent for her, and the girl's present assignments are made for swift adjustments and alterations".

More Join Ranks of Non-smokers

Ottawa Citizen

When statisticians report a steady rise in tobacco consumption in this country, they neglect to do justice to the heroes of the nicotine battle.

For the figures don't show pride and humor, the relationship between the effect of a rising population, increased consumption by the middle and the contributions of the dolts who never take up the habit — and the men (for they are mostly men, it seems) who put these childish things away.

A new cancer study, reported by the Canadian Cancer Society, gives credence to the latter figure. A poll of 2,977 men in all provinces last winter revealed the percentage of non-smokers has climbed to 42 percent from the 30 percent found in a similar poll only five years. Of these, half had once been smokers.

Of the entire group, 77 percent — non-smokers and ex-smokers — said they thought smoking was harmful.

For those courageous souls — and the rest of us — it would be nice if the tobacco industry could do something in line with Health Minister MacEachen's suggestion that they work to make the weed safer.

Shortage of Nurses A Continuing Problem

Ottawa Journal

The closing of a hospital ward in summer is not a matter to be taken lightly when there is a long list of people waiting to be admitted to the hospital. But neither is it always the critical symptom of a nursing shortage that it might appear to be. Nurses, like most working people, prefer to take holidays in the summer months and "unrelieved nurse prefer — or are forced — to take the entire summer off to be with their families at a hospital, even with a large supply of nurses, has no choice between operating with reduced staff spread thinner over the entire ward, opening only a portion of its extra shifts, or closing down some beds. So long as the latter is only an inconvenience to the community rather than a danger, then the community can probably consider itself relatively fortunate in regard to its health services.

But a wide variance in opinion about how serious the current nursing shortage is. There is also wide variance in the supply of nurses from place to place, as a result of differing salary scales, working and living conditions and other factors. But there is little disagreement that the supply of nurses could fall dangerously behind the demand in the coming era of vastly expanded services.

An interesting series of articles in The Journal's women's pages has described the efforts of the Quo Vadis School of Nursing in Toronto to train older women, many of them with families already raised, to be registered nurses. The idea, if it spreads, could help meet shortages in the future. The articles made clear there is no easy route to being a nurse, and the outlook is for standards to continue to rise. Postgraduate education of nurses to keep up with medical advances can be expected to grow in the coming years, making a steady supply of bright new talent doubly important. Still to be resolved are debates in the profession about the changing role of nurses in the future. The role has changed dramatically in recent years from grocery to more specialized duties. There is still room for relieving nurses of some duties that could be performed by less skilled staff, but there is a limit on this trend imposed by the need to put the patient's well-being before that of the efficiency expert.

Nurses' salaries have doubled in a decade or so and they will continue to rise. The Canadian Nurses Association target of a $6,000 annual wage for graduates by the 1985 decade seem high, but it is not far out of line. With more and more nurses' associations taking the role as bargaining agents in salary negotiations, the prospect is for even more upward pressure on nurses' salaries. That is hardly alarming, and may well prove a necessary step if the task of keeping salaries competitive.

There is nothing unique about the shortage of people in this. It is a familiar problem in a variety of occupations, and if there more or less important to the welfare of society. The shortage of nurses should be considered in this wide context so that measures taken to insure a supply in future years are realistic ones. But we would like to think the most realistic strategy for meeting the continuation of nursing will continue to be the exceptional human response to others for the right kind of person.

Drop-outs Show Their Mettle

St. Mary's Journal - Argus

Propaganda beamed at students and parents during the past decade has placed the school dropout on about the same social scale as a bedbug, with sweaty armpits and bad breath. It is refreshing to note that some cities have begun to question this virtually against the drop-out and have compiled figures which would indicate that the averages dropout is doing very nicely for himself.

A case in point was the city of Calgary where a total of 174 young men who had dropped out of school were checked back on. Of this group it was found to be earning a median income of $4,973 with 16 earning more than $6,000 per year.

The drop-out had low job mobility. They got jobs and kept them. Employers on the whole were well pleased and three-quarters of the employers rated as far as to say they considered the dropouts well suited for promotions.

A reappraisal of the entire drop-out question would seem to be in order.

De Gaulle Was Busy While Rivals Basked in the Sun

PARIS (AP)—France is having one of the most perfect, vacation - inspiring summers in decades. President Charles de Gaulle's opponents — and he does have a good number — seem to be perishing from the golden sands of the Riviera beaches or on the flower-strewn lower slopes of the Alps.

The only Frenchman who seems to have forgotten that this is the time of year for France to call a truce and bask in the sun is de Gaulle himself.

The 76-year-old president has spent the summer visiting Canada and entertaining one Arab leader after another. In between, the Russians keep streaming through the huge pink-glass doors of the Elysee Palace.

Anyone who keeps a finger on the French pulse says much of de Gaulle's current behavior runs across the grain of French popular and even sub - official sentiment.

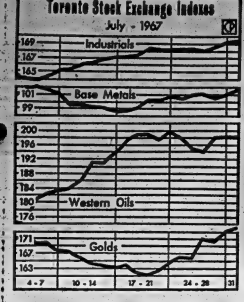
Ever since he seized power in Algerian war, which ended in 1962, ended by granting Algeria independence, Frenchmen have had little love for the Arabs.

The average Frenchman can take or leave Egypt's Nasser. But an official visit by de Gaulle to the Soviet Union a year ago a return visit by Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in December, two visits in succession by Kosygin to Paris and a trip by de Gaulle's premier, Georges Pompidou, to Russia after that have many Frenchmen thinking that de Gaulle has turned sharply eastward, with hardly a "bonjour" for the Western allies.

De Gaulle has backed his view up to the point where official Paris and Washington are barely speaking.

De Gaulle hiked many eyebrows when he spoke a "liberation" line in Quebec last week. This seemed to some commentators to be making into internal affairs of another country, something de Gaulle has stormed about in the past when the shoe was on the other foot.

But others are of these people who say he publicly reads books, should be sending up and flaming? are holding a reception in France during the traditional vacation season, or he is an object of pity, or looked upon as a little odd.



En route to Canada de Gaulle was four days at sea and what better moment for a little coup d'etat at home?

Even when de Gaulle sent back word that he would make a speech Aug. 10—squarely in the middle of the traditional vacation season — it wasn't enough to cause a stir.

Whether he will call for a popular referendum to support his policies, or announce some new ploy, no one seems to have a convincing guess.

De Gaulle is not known to waste his words, however, and when the politicians get back to work they may find that de Gaulle has pulled a masterful job of one-upmanship while they basked in the sun.

One of his aces is that by consent of parliament he is ruling by decree the social and economic fields until October.

Food, Housing Hike Consumer Price Index

OTTAWA (CP)—Higher food and housing costs pushed the consumer price index up 1.4 points to 126.2 at the beginning of July, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was 144.3 in July last year, was more than 2 of 2.9 index points in the year represents a climb of 4.3 per cent. The June 1 to July—was nearly one per cent.

It was the first time the index, a measurement of the cost of living, had crossed the 130 mark. It means that consumer prices now are more than 26 per cent higher than they were in 1949.

The bureau said all main components of the overall price index rose between June and July, with the exception of clothing, tobacco and alcohol.

Food price increases accounted for close to 70 per cent of the increase. The cost of housing and household operations accounted for nearly 20 per cent.

The food index rose to 148.5 from 144.8 because of higher prices generally for fresh fruits and vegetables and meat meats. There were strong price increases for grapefruit, grapes, apples, bananas, potatoes, tomatoes, beef, bacon, lamb, and weiners.

Prices were somewhat higher for dairy products including butter, and for cookies, cake, doughnuts, cereals, macaroni and cake mix.

These more than offset lower prices for jam, tea, tea bags, instant and regular coffee, peanut butter, margarine, lard, salad dressing, poultry and eggs.

The housing index rose to 131.9 from 131.2 largely because of higher costs for home ownership costs, and higher prices of home furnishings.

The housing index represents 33 per cent of the over-all index. and the food index 27 per cent.

While prices of women's and children's wear and of footwear were higher, there were offset by lower prices for men's wear, leaving the clothing index unchanged at 122.5.

There was a marginal increase in the transportation index to 134.1 from 133.3 because of higher prices for gasoline and motor oil in some cities.

Increased costs of prepaid medical care pushed the health and personal care index up to 121.5 from 120.7. Higher prices for radios, console television sets, phonograph records, magazines and newspapers shoved the recreation and reading index to 127.9 from 127.1. Portable TV set prices were lower.

The tobacco and alcohol index remained unchanged at 132.1.

There is no official measurement of family budgets to match exactly the consumer price index. But the DBS index of average weekly industrial wages and salaries, based on 1961 equalling 100, was 126.6 in April, compared with 123.1 in March, and 122.8 in April last year.

In this comparison, average wages and salaries in industry rose by a shade more than six per cent from April to April. In that period, the consumer price index rose to 167.8 from 143.2, for a gain of 4.6 index points or 3.2 per cent.

Wages and salaries paid by firms in a wide range of industries not employing more than 70 persons each are measured by the DBS industrial composite index of average weekly wages and salaries.

The consumer price index measures changes in the retail prices of a selection of goods and services most frequently bought by urban families. It is based on a survey of spending habits of families of two to six, living in cities of more than 30,000 population with annual income in 1957 ranging from $2,500 to $7,000.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Demand was good for choice and good slaughter steers and heifers at firm prices at the Ontario public stockyards this week while the common and medium lines sold under pressure at barely steady to lower prices.

Comparatively heavy receipts of cows were barely steady on an uneven demand and bulls were lower. Good replacements of stocker and feeder cattle were in active demand with plainer kinds meeting a more limited demand.

Veal calves were generally steady but prices for heavy lambs were easier.

Few Members of U.S. Congress Back LBJ All Way on Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional reaction to President Johnson's call for a 10-per-cent income tax surcharge generally was unfavorable Thursday, but with few members except some Democratic leaders offering unqualified support.

Some other Democrats joined in the expected Republican opposition to the proposal that increases request. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills Prominites (Dem. Ark.) of the House ways and means committee said it was "I'm uncommitted; committed to no one, one way or the other."

Mills' remarks perhaps the foremost test expert in Congress, has remained noncommittal since Johnson first proposed a surcharge on personal and corporate income taxes last January. At that time Johnson urged the surcharge as a way to help finance the war.

Johnson's linking of the tax request with Vietnam costs and plans to dispatch 45,000 more troops there did not sit well with many members.

Senators Jack Miller (Rep, Iowa) said: "The President's strategy is a confession of failure of his so-called 'guns and butter' economic policy."

Miller added: "Increasing the budget deficit for the current year could reach $29,000,000,000 and would result in higher rates on spending, Miller added: P

"The concern that such a deficit would cause inflation and high interest rates should have been shown a year-and-a-half ago when he told the American people that we could afford to build a great society and also increase the pace of Great Society domestic progress at the same time."...

Johnson spokesmen the surcharge would not apply across the board—some 18,000,000 persons with annual taxable brackets would be exempt. It would take effect Oct. 1.

A single person making no more than $1,000 a year, or up to $3,000 or a family with two children up to $3,000 would have no surtax to pay.

But a $10,000 income typically would bear $178 more in taxes for a single person, $134 for a childless couple, $111 for a family of four. A $20,000 tax increase would be $432, $348 and $316. All these figures assume standard deductions.

Johnson said the surtax would yield $8,300,000,000 in the year that began July 1. He recommended also postponing scheduled excise tax drops on autos, gasoline and telephone service for another $360,000,000 in the same year. The yields would be greater in the following year.

Handicapped Take Advantage of Services

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP)—Expo 67, where handicapped persons have above the volume predicted before the big fair opened, has developed host to 15 new kinds of handicapped persons as had been expected, the co-ordinator of the service for the handicapped said Monday night.

Nicole Richer said in an interview that despite the large demands on facilities everything has gone smoothly for the handicapped out to see the fair.

There are 18 Expo staff members working to help the handicapped, plus volunteer guides scattered across the 1,000-acre site.

Everything from special transportation to special, privileged approaches was laid on by Expo's 4,000 designers so the handicapped could join in Expo's gala centennial celebration of Canada's 100th birthday.

And the handicapped have come by the thousands—to the point where it seems certain that the figure of 30,000 handicapped visitors projected for the fair's life will easily be exceeded.

Available to blind visitors is a special 40-page brochure in braille, which includes a braille map of the St. Lawrence River exposition. The brochure was the work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Miss Richer said that after Expo opened April 28 not many handicapped people had heard of the services available to them at Expo.

Among facilities for the handicapped are special trips around the site aboard the trackless trailer-train known as La Babillarde.

Since platforms for the main Expo site transportation, the Expo Expo Railway, can be reached only by stairways, persons in wheelchairs find themselves without access to the speedy express.

For such people La Balade stands ready at Expo's main entrance for two trips every hour across the fairgrounds.

Wheelchairs can be rented at the main entrance. On site there are "red telephones," through which emergency calls can be made for first aid or other help if a sick or disabled person falls into need.

The 100 volunteers, many of them young people, act as travel advisers to the handicapped.

The handicapped who wear hearing aids have a repair and battery supply centre available to them at the main entrance.

Miss Richer and her associates say elderly, sick or handicapped persons should not insist on seeing too much of the huge exhibition at one time.

The daily rental for a wheelchair is $5. Asked whether this did not seem high, an official of the chair-renting service said the chairs each cost $250 and that their use guarantees, between the purchaser and the handicapped, the user's freedom from having to line up at Expo's crowded pavilions.

About 100 chairs are available and all are rented on the average day, the service spokesman said.

A pamphlet issued by the fair for the information of the handicapped advises visits "during low attendance periods — on weekdays, preferably during the morning and early afternoon."

While each Expo services as those for the handicapped continued in high gear at this point in the exhibition's life, trouble developed Monday at Man and His World.

Expo officials said eight of the 16 African pavilions at the exhibition would be closed indefinitely after protests were made by their staff about the noise being made by a group of sit-touring musicians who were performing in Africa Place.

A meeting today between pavilion officials and Expo men was expected to find an exhibition spokesman to bring about a reopening of the pavilions.

Today also is Monaco Day at the fair, with Prince Rainier and Princess Grace, the former actress Grace Kelly, scheduled to make official appearances.

Bolivia Tries to Get European Immigrants

LA PAZ (Reuters) — Bolivia is campaigning to attract European immigrants to help with the development of vast expanses of sparsely - populated tropical plains in the eastern Amazonian region of this landlocked South American republic.

Initial plans provided for the settlement of 500 immigrant families in farmstead in the Amazon basin extending along the mighty Andes range, which covers one-third of Bolivia's 1,200,000 square miles.

Col. Roberto Lemaire, chairman of the National Colonization Commissions Institute, said plans will be implemented through government-level agreements or by contacts with independent, specialized organizations abroad.

The plan followed moves to resettle in fertile plains and valleys Bolivian families from the high mountain plateaus, where the bulk of the country's 3,- 714,000 population lives. More than 1,000 families have resettled in the northern department of La Paz and the eastern department of Beni.

The Andes provide Bolivia with rich tin, lead and other mineral resources, the main foundation of the country's economy. But mining absorbs only 11 per cent of Bolivia's labor force.

The new agricultural frontier also includes the northern "part of Santa Cruz which, like the other areas, has a recovering roads and communications links with the main consumer centres and export centres.

The tropical climate in the area makes it ideal for cultivation of rice, coffee, sugar and cotton. Its far - flung plains with thick vegetation make it an excellent cattle - raising area.

Would-be settlers will be given full title to their lands at below-market prices, the spokesman said. They will have a 15-year period to pay, starting three years after they take possession.

He said they will be exempt from taxation and import duties on their personal belongings and on required farm machinery.

Since the arrival of the emigrant Spanish conquerors, who captured the country in the 16th century, European movement to Bolivia has been almost nonexistent.

Some 2,500 Jewish families took refuge in Bolivia from Nazi persecution just before the Second World War. Small groups of Poles and Czechs have settled here. Japanese immigrants have settled in recent years in the Santa Cruz area.

The initial plan is that such immigrants will be followed by similar moves to help the country's industrial development, Lemaire said.

BOAC Plans To Borrow U.S. Dollars

LONDON (Reuters) — The British Overseas Airways Corporation plans to borrow about £130,000,000 ($360,000,000) in the United States to help finance the purchase of its new fleet of American Boeing 747 Jumbo-jets, the company's chairman announced Thursday.

Sir Giles Guthrie, chairman of BOAC, made the announcement, said it intends to borrow the money through the U.S. Import-Export Bank and a consortium of American commercial banks.

It would be repaid from dollars earned by the aircraft.

Presenting BOAC's annual report, he said the decision to go ahead ahead to finance dollar capital investments would increase the corporation's starting balance.

He reported that BOAC profits produced a record £23,900,000 ($71,700,000 in last year.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The Robert Marken Foundation of Norfolk has received a $15,000 grant to establish an art book collection in the library of Trent University, it was announced Thursday.

Shulman Makes Charge

Non-Anglo-Saxons Were Denied Coroners' Jobs

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Morton Shulman told the Parker Royal commission inquiry Thursday that some civil servants have discriminated against Toronto coroners because of their racial origin.

The former Metropolitan Toronto chief coroner also said that in four years he recommended three Anglo-Saxon doctors for appointments as coroners and they were accepted. Two non-Anglo-Saxon doctors which he recommended were not accepted, he said.

Dr. Shulman said that before he became chief coroner in 1963, only six or seven of about 30 coroners in Toronto were given work while the others got no assignments because of their ethnic background.

As evidence of discrimination, Dr. Shulman presented a copy of a letter which he said he found in a box in the Toronto morgue.

The letter, dated May 25, 1960, was from the late Dr. Sarkis Lawson, then Ontario supervising coroner, in answer to a letter from E. H. Silk, then assistant deputy attorney-general, who had asked what were Toronto coroner Dr. H. W. Love was doing.

Dr. Lawson's letter said:

"We felt that many well-to-do families with a death in their household would be more influenced by Dr. Love, a Chinese. Therefore, we made a rule that all Chinese coroners' cases be assigned to Dr. Love."

The letter was initialled SLO-but, when Dr. Shulman said he considered it was Dr. Lawson's letter.

Dr. Shulman said that despite what the letter said, Dr. Love never was assigned to any coroner's investigations.

Deputy Attorney-General A. R. Dick, whose department is responsible for the appointment of coroners told the inquiry that Dr. Shulman's accusations were ridiculous.

It was the 21st day of testimony before Commissioner William D. Parker, a justice of the Ontario Supreme Court, who is looking into Dr. Shulman's charges that Ontario government officials discriminate in inquests or suppressed evidence presented to inquests.

Dr. Shulman made his charges shortly after he was fired as chief coroner earlier this year in a dispute with Dr. H. E. Ostrom, chief coroner of Ontario. Dr. Shulman was ordered by Premier John Robarts.

The inquiry Thursday continued hearing evidence about an inquest at Alliston, Ont., into the death of Pearl Gray, 66, in Nov. 1964. She died following a haemorrhoid operation.

Dr. Shulman has charged the decision of the five-man jury has been wrongly considered imperfect because three Chinese jurors were patients of the doctor who had treated Mrs. Gray.

The jury's only recommendation had been that "the press should refrain from voicing any opinion that may disturb public feeling prior to the evidence presented in court."

Dr. Shulman has said he did not understand how the jury had arrived at its recommendation. At the time the recommendation was brought down, Dr. Ostrom said it might have had something to do with "small-town sensitivity."

However, an inquest jury has no power to make whatever recommendation it wants, Dr. Colman said Thursday.

Dr. Shulman said a few inquest should have been held because the jury made its recommendations on no evidence and ignored inquest testimony that a post mortem had shown the woman had a 2½-inch tear in the rectum.

Dr. Frederick Jaffe, a pathologist with the attorney - general's laboratory who conducted the post mortem on the woman testified:

"I think it would be far too much to ignore this (tear)."

Dr. Shulman read a letter he wrote before the inquest, suggesting questions that should be asked of the doctor who had performed the operation on Mrs. Gray. Also ignored by Barrie Coroner Dr. Frank Dickson.

The inquiry continues.

Building Delayed

AUCKLAND (CP)—New Zealand's male international air quest at a ceremony opened a couple of years ago with a temporary tarmalac building. The permanent terminal was to be ready by 1968. Now it seems unlikely that it will be built before the late 1970s.

Irate workers in the aviation industry suggest this formula for Mr. Holyoake, premier of New Zealand: "Ladies and gentlemen, we are approaching Auckland International Airport. We hope you have enjoyed your flight. Set your watches back 10 years."

Expo 67 Fashion Caper Launches Fall Styles

MONTREAL (CP) — Several thousand spectators jammed into and around the Canadian pavilion's outdoor theatre at Expo Thursday as the Great Canadian Fashion Caper launched its new fall and winter clothing spectacle.

There were as many male onlookers as female, and crowds three deep lined the outside of the theatre while many more dotted the square concrete rocks which surround the Ontario pavilion.

Fifteen models in red coats, high boots and fur hats set the pace as they opened the show with a double-quick-march to a snappy orchestral arrangement.

They were followed by a series of ultra-colored mini-skirts, vests and pants to match. Other suits incorporated pants, skirts and culottes in fabrics ranging from flannels to tweeds, all sporting striped or checked patterns.

A parade of elegant dresses, and cape costumes emphasized the quiet and elegant colorschemes to be seen this fall. Beige, taupe, grey and gold are all popular with pastels hardly evident.

The black theme is coming strongly in dresses and is carried through to stockings and shoes for a totally dramatic look, relieved only by a brightly-colored lining or sparkling jewelled-belt.

In sharp contrast, skiwear fashions appeared in a variety of shock colors ranging from brilliant pink to flaming orange and verdant green.

Patterned hosiery and zippy-colored shoes caught everyone's attention as a group of models slid down the runway on roller skates to a tambourine beat.

Later, a glittering array of special occasion clothes highlighted gold, silver, copper and bronze tones all created in metallic, lame and brocade fabrics.

Actress Julie Parrish models fun fashion hot tops. At left is a fisherman's choice, centre is a demure bloomer outfit and at right is a high-flying kite style.

Breezy Blouses Top All for Fun Wear

By Reba & Bessie Churchill

Hot tops are fashion of the hour. When the weather wilts, out pops the breezy blouses. Some are so long, their hemlines touch the thighs like a micro-mini skirt; others are so short the tops stop at the rib-cage. They are part of the new carry-over wardrobe that can be worn with shorts or, when the climate cools, with capris. Actress Julie Parrish doesn't have to fish for a compliment with this brown and white mosaic print. Highlighting the torso are a series of raffia daisies, which are repeated on the matching hat.

These bloomin' bloomers can hide under a skirt or come out in the open as part of a sports outfit. The ruffled stitches are elasticized around the knees to scoot up and down as your topper dictates. The blouse may feature a flawl-collar of lace, as Julie, seen in the CBS-TV series, "Good Morning, World," illustrates, or it may be a big-touching poncho. A bright cummerbund can be added to climb in the bust-fitting blouse or to cover up the midriff.

Literally a high-fashion is a kite-shaped design. As styled by Margie Webb, its unrestricted flight-wing sleeves allow for free-wheeling action. One size fits all figures, while its stylist flatters all girls. The V-neck is repeated in a series of "V's" formed by the striped fabric down the center seam, giving the topper a sleek look. A drawstring at the hem adjusts it to thigh size and movement.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT GILBERT SILLS

Sills — Chisholm

Shirley Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Chisholm, R.R. 2 Belleville, and Robert Gilbert Sills, son of Mrs. Maysel Sills, R.R. 1 Halloway, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sills, were married by Rev. Jack Hobbs in Foxboro United Church, July 29, 1967, at 12 noon. Miss Heather Grant was organist and Merle Stetler was soloist.

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore an organza over taffeta gown with A-line skirt with a deep band of Irish lace and matching appliqued flowers. The Empire bodice had short bell sleeves and a detachable train flowed from the back of the waistline. Her headdress of a satin floral cluster trimmed with lace and seed pearls held her three-tier scalloped illusion shoulder-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of orange delight roses, talisman roses and ivy.

Miss Joan Chisholm, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a melon-colored crystal finished silk floor length dress with Empire waistline and cap sleeves finished with double frills, trimmed with green stem leaves and petals of self material. Her headpiece was a matching wedding ring head band and she carried a cascade bouquet of coral and white miniature carnations and ivy.

Miss Shirley Dafoe and Mrs. Ron Denyes, bridesmaids, were gowned identically to the maid of honor.

Miss Sandy Baker, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a full-length dress similar in style to the bridesmaids and carried a white basket of coral and white miniature carnations and ivy.

Roy Sills was his brother's attendant, and the ushers were Allen Johnston and John Chisholm, brother of the bride. Jeffrey Sills, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Chisholm wore a dress of aqua and white French cutout lace in floral motif with white accessories and a corsage of pink delight roses. Mrs. Sills was attired in a dress and coat ensemble of blue lace with white accessories and a corsage of pink delight roses.

Following a reception in Wallbridge Orange Hall the couple left for a wedding trip to Montreal and eastern points. For travelling, the bride chose a three-piece ensemble of Capri blue linen with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations and baby's breath. On their return, they will live at R.R. 1, Halloway.

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

Before her marriage, Mrs. R. G. Sills (the former Shirley Chisholm), was honored at a shower given by Mrs. Earl Dafoe, Foxboro, with Miss Shirley Dafoe as hostess and Mrs. John Walsh as co-hostess; at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Ken Denyes, Belleville, assisted by Miss Carol Denyes and Mrs. Ron Denyes as co-hostess; at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Carmen Frost, Frankford, assisted by many close friends; and at an afternoon shower given by Mrs. Ken Twiddy. A presentation was made by the staff of King George School, Belleville.

Mrs. Roy Sills entertained the wedding party following the rehearsal.

Potato Queen Captures Essay Prize

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. (CP)— Marielle Gervais, New Brunswick's 1967 Potato Queen, has won $300 and a plaque in the Lions International peace essay contest.

Miss Gervais, 21, of Grand Falls, N.B., was presented with her prize by the Edmundston Lions Club.

After winning the local prize in the peace essay contest, Miss Gervais took top honors in the district contest which included clubs in southeastern New Brunswick and northern Maine.

She has now won the multi-district section which covers the four Atlantic provinces, the state of Maine and the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon off Newfoundland's south coast.

Her 29-page, 4,900-word essay, written first in French and then translated into English, qualified for the world division of the contest.

In the fall, Miss Gervais will begin studying for a master's degree, majoring in French literature, at the University of Ottawa.

Lions International is offering $25,000 for the best peace essay and entries have been received from many parts of the world.

SCHOOLHOUSE Has Second Childhood

BLYTH, Ont. (CP)—Claire Taylor was interested when she heard Queen County schools she had attended for eight years was going up for auction. She and a mother Toronto school teacher, Anne Fairservice, went to the auction and bought the schoolhouse. Now this community 30 miles northwest of Brantford. It cost them about $1,000.

That was last autumn. The young women used it for their acquisition into a country art studio and classroom.

The board room district inhabitants with the name Taylor or Fairservice and also found the gamesmen willing to help by lending tools. They got busy redecorating the interior of the old building.

The institutional green walls vanished beneath coats of white paint. One wall of the 77-foot square structure became a gallery panelled in genuine weather-silvered barn siding donated by Miss Taylor's brother, Boyd.

Two other people, supervised by the teachers, constructed a potter's wheel to sit on the freshly-oiled floor.

Now the 66-year-old schoolhouse is having a second childhood as adults and youngsters attend classes in pogar sculpture, painting, pottery and French conversation.

SOTHEBY'S SELL COLLAR

LONDON (AP)—One of the more unusual items being put up for sale at Sotheby's, the fine art auction house, is a canine collar. Described as a George III dog collar, it was made in 1794 and is engraved with the name of Mrs. Wentworth-Wooley Hall, presumably the dog's owner.

Belleville Nurses Complete Courses in Administration

Three senior members of the Nursing staff of the Belleville General Hospital have successfully completed an extension course in Unit Administration.

They are Mrs. M. Barrett, Reg. N., Mrs. B. Pardham, Reg. N., Mrs. D. Beal, Reg. N.

This course is jointly sponsored by The Canadian Nurses Association and The Canadian Hospital Association and is an in-service program planned to assist in the improvement of administrative skills.

For some time, the shortage of nursing personnel qualified for leadership positions has been of concern to the nursing profession and hospital administrators. The lack of nurses skilled in managerial techniques has been considered one of the drawbacks in connection with patient care.

Mrs. Doreen Frederick and Mrs. June Schulz, teachers at the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing recently attended an institute entitled The Teacher and the Curriculum. The institute was held in Toronto and sponsored by the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario with the co-operation of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

The purpose of the institute was to assist teachers in the School of Nursing with development of a curriculum in light of changes in nursing education and society.

Mrs. Frederick and Mrs. Schulz participated in the development of a philosophy, objectives and a unit of curriculum for a hypothetical two year diploma course in nursing.

First Woman Speaker's Voice Still Echoes Through BC

VICTORIA (CP)—The mesmerizing voice of Nancy Hodges may be fading but the echoes still reverberate through the British Columbia capital.

Now 78 and confined with husband Harry to a private hospital for the elderly, Mrs. Hodges has left a rich political legacy that is reflected in the fact three women serve as cabinet ministers in B.C.

The hospital is 12 blocks from the legislature where 14 years ago Mrs. Hodges, as the first woman to become Speaker of a legislative assembly in the Commonwealth, used her quick tongue and nimble mind to retrree debates.

"Her voice is practically gone," a reporter was told when he asked to see Mrs. Hodges. She can only talk for five to 10 minutes "and then her voice fades," a spokesman for the family said.

In the years when her voice came in clear and strong she used it to promote her belief that more women should enter politics and serve in responsible positions in government. One who heard is Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

"Certainly her example encouraged me greatly to assign major responsibilities to women from the moment the Social Credit government was formed in 1952," he says.

"Many, many British Columbians remember with gratitude and affection the services of Mrs. Tilly Rolston and Mrs. Buda Brown.

"And, of course, we have continued that tradition in the present cabinet by appointing three lady ministers—Mrs. Isabel Dawson, Mrs. Grace McCarthy and Mrs. Patricia Jordan."

Mr. Bennett, then in opposition, sat across from Mrs. Hodges, a Liberal, in three legislatures and "came to know very well the many fine contributions she made to the proceedings of government during that period."

"As a private member, I found her always to be a fair and courteous Speaker in the House."

Nancy Hodges was a reporter on the Victoria Times, of which her husband was editor, when he made her first plunge into politics. She was defeated in a bid for a seat in the 1937 provincial election but "wetted the whole thing off to experience and went back to my typewriter."

She later became a columnist and wrote a total of 2,350 columns before leaving for Ottawa in 1953 to become the fifth woman to sit in the Senate in 1960.

While working on The Times, Mrs. Hodges became well known as a clubwoman, champion of women's rights and the province's leading woman Liberal. At various times she served as president of the National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada, Victoria's Women's Canadian Club and the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club.

She tried her political wings again in 1941 and was elected to the legislature, holding her seat in 1945, 1949 and 1952. She was defeated in 1953, when Mr. Bennett's Socreds came to power, and ironically it was a woman who beat her —Lydia Arsens of Social Credit.

Her schooling in rough-and-tumble debate proved useful in 1949 when she donned the tricorn hat and robes she wore for the next four years as Speaker—"a sort of glorified referee."

When she went to the Senate her interest in family matters was reflected in her appointment to a committee examining divorce law.

She worked long hours until her health broke. Today, in hospital, she has the satisfaction of knowing she set a pattern that is affecting the role of women everywhere.

"Throughout her political career," says Premier Bennett, "Mrs. Hodges displayed the qualities of a brilliant and constructive mind that should rightly earn her the admiration of all the women—and indeed, all the people—of British Columbia."

Nancy Hodges, a former speaker in the British Columbia legislature and member of the Senate, and her husband, Harry, are confined to a private hospital for the elderly in Victoria. Mrs. Hodges, 78, has left a rich political legacy that is reflected in the fact three women serve as cabinet ministers in B.C. Ann Landers

Technician Deals Properly with Patient

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an X-ray technician in a hospital. This morning a man was brought up for X-rays. He was wearing a bathrobe. When I asked him to remove his robe I assumed he had something on under the robe (most men do.) I discovered, too late, that I was mistaken.

After my initial surprise I composed myself and decided to ignore the situation and proceed as usual.

Later that afternoon I was telling two other girls in the department what had happened. I thought I had dealt with the situation well. They said I did the wrong thing — that I should have told the patient to go back to the dressing room and put on his shorts. It developed into quite an argument and the girls became upset with me. I am so unstrung about their bitter criticism that I decided to write for your common sense opinion. — SUZANNE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR SUZANNE: The best approach is the one which causes the patient a minimum of embarrassment.

Sending him back to put on his shorts would have humiliated the poor fellow. You coped with the situation admirably and I salute you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in my 60's. My wife is a few years younger. We have been married 40 years. My wife has never been employed outside the home which was all right with me. She raised a nice family and I never asked her to take a paying job.

Now that I am getting on in years I feel my energy ebbing. I want to retire when I become eligible but my wife is against it.

My income will be somewhat less if I retire, but we could manage it. I am beginning to resent my wife because she seems more interested in the psychopaths than in my health. Please tell me what you think. — NO IDENTIFICATION.

DEAR NO I.D.: Perhaps your wife's objection has nothing to do with the psychopaths. Maybe she is concerned with what retirement might do to you emotionally. To some men, retirement means boredom and unhappiness, particularly if they have not planned the need on useful ways to occupy their time. But if you want to retire, you have earned the right to do it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please be my mother substitute for a moment. Mom is so unfair. She just told me she doesn't care about me. I know she doesn't mean it, but she said it.

I am 17 and not allowed to go anywhere except to school-related activities and to church. My friends can go bowling, swimming, skating, to the movies and out on dates. But not me. Why doesn't my mother trust me? I am a good student and have never done anything that would make her question my morals. Please tell me how I can get some freedom so life will be bearable. — AN ONLY CHILD.

DEAR ONLY ONE: If you are 17 and a good student you should be thinking about college. Investigate the schools in another city and make your plans. Don't let anything or anyone stop you. From the tone of your letter it's your only chance to escape from your mother's neurotic clutches.

Wife Jittery Over Sharing Spotlight With Socially Prominent Husband

DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: In spite of the fact that my husband has done some outstanding things for our town, and is more or less a public figure, I have usually stayed in the background. When I do have to attend some official dinner I am jittery and ill at ease.

Now they are giving him a big reception on his retirement. I am to be a guest of honor, and will be in the reception line. Do you have a prescription for instant poise? — Dowager.

Dear Dowager: Sure. Practice. Like a shadow boxer.

Have an imaginary reception line in front in your own living room. Talk comfortably with the imposing figure next to you. As imaginary guests come up to shake hands, smile, say something friendly to each one. Actually say the words out loud.

Then move about among the "shadow guests", chatting here and there. Practice walking, sitting, talking, gracefully and self-confidently.

You won't be nearly as nervous when they aren't really there and listening. Finding the words and gestures, and going over them several times in rehearsal, will give you unstudied poise when the big night comes.

Dear Doris: My sister can't keep her own friends and goes for mine. Naturally I don't approve and I say so, but without results.

What's wrong? — Mrs. X.

Dear Mrs. X.: "Naturally"? Can't you share your friends? Obviously she needs a good example.

If you are the friendly one, show it. She'll be your sister all your life; don't waste this chance for solid family warmth.

Confidential to Worried: So what is new? At 11 it's par for the course to be shy. We gain confidence by getting to know people in groups.

You'll find that boys take the cake for shyness - and it will be up to you to put them at ease. My leaflet "Don't Be Shy" has some good ideas for girls like you. Send it, ten cents, along with your right name and address on a stamped envelope, and I'll send it to you.

Confidential to Geraldine: Oh, loosen up! Suppose your pal does get her fun out of clowning - she's popular, isn't she? She doubtless overcomes her own nervousness by playing the fool. Don't put yourself in the dog house by being a killjoy.

If you can learn to take kidding good - naturedly, your joke-loving Jennie will have done you a great big favor.

(Don't just meddle along.) Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her and confess a cramped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Ground Coffee Loses Flavor

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: What goes into making a good cup of coffee? We visited at a summer cottage last weekend and the aroma which greeted us when we came to breakfast was only surpassed by the taste and flavor of a heavenly cup of coffee. My hostess said she grinds her own and has her own preferred blends. — Christine C.

ANSWER: The answer is in using the best of coffee beans, not yours. Attachments on Kitchen blenders and beaters now permit you to grind your own. Then there is an inexpensive electric push-button coffee mill which does a good job, grinding beans coarse or medium fine, according to your method of coffee making. I prefer fine grind and drip method.

Once coffee is ground it begins losing flavor. If you store it in a tightly closed tin this helps to hold the essence, but may get pretty wooden after a week or two. If it stays in its bean state until just before grinding and popping it into perk or drip you get all it has to give. I recommend a visit now and then to a coffee-and-tea shop where you can stock up a little. Buy a quarter or half pound of espresso beans for your personal specialty operation, and try a tablespoon in the grinder along with a breakfast lot of regular beans. Do some experimenting with Java, Columbia, Mocha and other combinations.

More tips: Do not let coffee boil — ever. Do not expect it to taste fresh two days later. Serve with cream. Have lots!

QUESTION: My classmate when I took nursing is living in St. John's, in Newfoundland. She writes me that she has become acquainted with cod and is serving cod cakes to try. What do I do with it? — Irene H.

ANSWER: Soak the salt cod in cold water, bring to boil and cook 30 min. or until fish is tender and will flake. Remove from heat and drain. Often served with white sauce or creamed potatoes. In Newfoundland it is often served with "Brewis" (which is hard bread stewed and strained) and "Scrunchions" which is fat salt pork cut into ¼" dice and fried until crisp.

Jamaican Hello Even Has Dupuy Rocking

MONTREAL (CP) — Hugh Shearer of Jamaica proved Thursday he is the most swinging prime minister to visit Expo 67 so far.

A delighted horde of nearly 10,000 Expo visitors and Jamaican Montrealers chuckled, applauded then roared as Mr. Shearer got right into the rhythm of a fast-moving program of Jamaican song and dance topping off Jamaica Day at the big fair.

As the crowds watched, the beaming prime minister clapped his hands, snapped his fingers, swayed his shoulders, sang with the singers and waved at the people below him.

In 79 degrees, with 75 per cent humidity, the National Dance Theatre Company of Jamaica raced athletically through a series of folk dances and interpretative dances.

Mr. Shearer sat in an open balcony near the orchestra with Pierre Dupuy, Expo commissioner-general, on one side, and he began to clap in time to a rock orchestra.

The crowd, overflowing balconies, seats, terraces and entrances to Place des Nations, took their cue from Mr. Shearer and began to clap too.

Perspiring RCMP plainclothes men tried without avail to clear the area in front of the stage and keep amateur Jamaican photographers from getting close-ups of their rock idols.

Mr. Dupuy appeared unsure what to do as Mr. Shearer took vigorous part in the entertainment, but near the end of the program he unbuttoned his jacket and began rocking back and forth, slapping his knees.

Before the start of each season, series often add pretty girls to the permanent cast. But after this has been milked of its publicity value and all the pretty - girl pictures published, the distaff additions are likely to fade away fast. Steady girl friends, like wives, are notorious for moving to the action and reducing the appeal of heroes.

However, Napoleon Solo of NBC's The Man from U.N.C.L.E. will cause his collaborative philandering and settle down—at the start of the season anyway—to dates with one girl, the boss' secretary, played by Barbara Moore.

There will henceforth be Belgirl helping out Batman and Robin on ABC. Dale Robertson will be casting interested glances at Ellen McRae, and Del West career girl, when he's not busily salvaging ABC's Lost Horse.

Even the body robot of CBS's Lost in Space will be provided with a girl robot.

Tom and Dick Hit Hard; Bonanza Beefs Up Cast

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — During television's long, hot summer of reruns, programers are overhauling their schedules and remodelling undertakers. It can be as drastic as replacing a lead or as clinker as capping the star's death.

Changing is inevitable on successes. Children outgrow their roles, actors get restless or get stale and depart. Formats as well as sets get shabby from overuse.

Come September, many of the old shows will have new looks. Mission: Impossible, on CBS, will arrive with a new head man. Steven Hill, who used to head the clock - and - dagger teams, disappears and in his place appears Peter Graves, tall husky real-life brother of Gunsmoke star James Arness.

Efrem Zimbalist Jr., senior agent of ABC's The FBI, will have a new young partner played by William Reynolds. Stephen Brooks, who helped round up the public enemies for The FBI, is availing his call to arms from another branch of government.

Bonanza, on NBC, was loping along at the head of the television pack until it encountered CBS's Smothers Brothers at mid-season. Its producers have decided it is time for some reinforcements. Thus there will be a new character, played by handsome, young David Canary. It marks the first change in the Ponderosa since Pernell Roberts quit several seasons back.

It's All His Own Work!

Dan Jones with self-built biplane, built by young airforce technician from the blueprints up. Perky little machine—five years in the making—now is receiving its finishing at Belleville airport hangar before being licensed to fly — sometime in the next month.

This Young Man's Fancy Soared to New Heights

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Dan Jones' fancy is ready to take flight — in fact some day soon it'll be soaring over the rooftops.

But this is one flight of fancy that has taken hard work to materialize. Also some years — five of them, in fact.

It all started when Dan was stationed with the RCAF at Chatham, N.B., and his eye was taken by a private aircraft design.

His imagination took wings — two of them. The end result, now nearing completion in a hangar at Belleville airport, is perky little biplane.

The picture that launched the project showed a similar aircraft designed by a California flyer.

"I just saw that picture and thought I'd like to have one like it," explains the young engine technician now at Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

"A plane like that is impossible to buy, so the only way to get one is to build it."

He successfully set out to do just that starting from scratch — which meant designing even his own blueprints.

The length of time taken so far is no reflection on his technique. Besides having only spare time to devote to the project, lapses were caused by the transient life which is a norm in most service personnel.

The first break came when he was moved from Chatham to La Macaza, Quebec. Late last year came another move — this time to Trenton.

He arrived for the Trenton posting with the partly - completed aircraft in tow, its wings strapped to his car roof.

Now, however, he expects to have it finished, licenced, and flying within a month.

When it does, the machine will probably be only the second biplane in all Eastern Ontario — auto-dated by one at Kingston.

Dan, who lives at King George Square in Belleville, has full confidence in the results of his handiwork.

Only 18 feet long with a 19-foot wingspan it has a 65 horsepower motor giving a cruising speed up to 100 miles-an-hour. All this on estimated fuel consumption of three gallons per hour.

It will be extremely manoeuvreable — a mark of the biplane's proven by combat tactics on its World War I inception and the era of aerobatics that followed.

It also will be as sturdy as say craft in the air — despite the biplane's appearance which once labelled it a "flying crate."

But appearances in this case can be deceptive.

"They're not flimsy," says Dan of biplanes in general. "Their shorter wing spans and wire struts give them strength."

On that he's willing to stake his name.

There is no fanciful title for the little aircraft. It's simply called — after its designer and builder — the Jones D-1.

Fallout Is No Worry

Pigeons Were First Love And Bird Fancier Shows It

Things are slightly off-color at the Harold Caldwell property at R.R. 2 Ameliasburgh these days — but that's exactly as it should be.

It's moulting time again — that regular phenomenon of nature which causes birds and beasts to briefly lose the coverings on their backs.

This means some exotic fallouts for Mr. Caldwell, the bird-man of Prince Edward County, and breeder of about 60 different feathered species.

The variety of his live collection girdles the globe.

Pigeons from England vassis with doves from Japan, sparrows from Sumatra, pheasants from China and pea fowl from India.

"It's a hobby that's grown to be a 365-day-a-year undertaking," says Mr. Caldwell, who between times is employed as a fireman at Mountain View air base.

It's also been the hobby of a lifetime, which was first hatched in Brampton, where the bird fancier was born.

"Dad used to catch barn pigeons and this got me interested," recalls Mr. Caldwell.

In his youth he kept a large collection of pigeons in his hometown, and the hobby came with him when he transferred from Toronto to Ameliasburgh township 20 years ago.

It was then it also grew to its present proportions.

To the pigeons he began adding other species, purchased from bird-breeders around the country.

Now, with perhaps the biggest operation of its kind in Eastern Ontario, Mr. Caldwell is in the business of retailing birds himself.

However, it isn't strictly a profit-making venture, the proceeds being just enough to cover the cost of raising and caring for his big brood.

And the temperament of his five collection is just as fascinating and varied as its plumage.

It ranges from gentleness of ponderable, who spend their time wrapped in each other's company, to the erratic temper of Egyptian geese.

The fowl from the Nile are so moody "they can't even get along with each other, sometimes," he says.

But although his interest has taken wings since the early days, his basic enthusiasm is still for pigeons, which he still breeds by the score.

As a result, he is a judge and a top exhibitor at such high-flown events as the CNE and the Royal Winter Fair.

For the third consecutive year he also is chairman of the Belleville Fair Board's poultry division.

As the collection grows, demands on his time also expand.

"The more you have the more problems you get," says Mr. Caldwell.

Health of the birds is a prime demand.

"You're constantly looking for disease and keeping it under control," he adds.

However, in one instance anyway, his hobby has proved that more than pigeons can find their way home.

Last spring a peacock made its escape from the Caldwell pens.

Months later homeowners in the Weller's Bay district about 10 miles away, were being kept awake nights by what they thought was a wild-cat screeching in the bush.

The reports filtered back to Mr. Caldwell and, after a brief hunt, he traced the noise — the missing peacock.

Birdman of Ameliasburgh

Harold Caldwell preens proud possession of prize pigeon — its fantail plumage. Pigeons still predominate among 60 species being bred by Ameliasburg bird-fancier.

Roblin Enters Race

Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin is shown as he read a statement Thursday at a press conference in Winnipeg announcing he is a candidate for the national Progressive Conservative party leadership. Mr. Roblin, 50, said he would retire as provincial premier regardless of the outcome of the party's leadership convention. (CP Photo)

Rivals Welcome Roblin to Race

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative leadership hopefuls welcomed Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin into the race Thursday with unconcealed confidence.

If any of the eight candidates already entered in the contest to fill Diefenbaker's shoes were worried by the addition of the 50-year-old leader of Manitoba's Conservative government, he is not making it public.

"Mr. Roblin is a friend of mine, but I'm in the race to win," was the reaction of Robert Stanfield, premier of Nova Scotia, who joined the race for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party less than three weeks ago.

He said Premier Roblin's entry won't affect my chances of winning the leadership."

Davie Fulton a former justice minister and one of the first to declare his candidacy, said the addition of Mr. Roblin to the field will "alter neither the line of my campaign nor my prospects for success."

He will probably be the last to enter the race, unless Mr. Diefenbaker decides at the last minute to fight for his throne at the September leadership convention at Toronto.

Alvin Hamilton, a former agriculture minister in the Diefenbaker Cabinet, welcomed Mr. Roblin into the race.

"He's a good man and a close personal friend," Mr. Hamilton said in Tillsonburg, Ont., where he had a speaking engagement.

In Toronto, Senator Wallace McCutcheon said he is "delighted to see Mr. Roblin in the race." He said Mr. Roblin is "a very distinguished Canadian and has a distinguished political background."

He said if the premier's statement implies he will seek a seat in the Commons "he will strengthen the federal party very greatly."

Mr. Roblin said he plans to visit all provinces in the five weeks left before the convention, Sept. 6-8.

Two Candidates Have Quinte Ties

delegates gave good indication just how the group will vote.

Conservatives had supported Mr. Hees locally as their candidate, he said, and "I'm quite sure we'll be happy to support him federally."

"I'd be very surprised if all of them (the delegates) weren't," he added.

The Manitoba premier also may have hindered his chances by taking so long to announce his intentions, Mr. Parker commented.

"It seems to me he's waited a very long time to make his move. Opinions may have hardened behind other candidates and it's a little tough to change them now."

The riding president also saw Nova Scotia Premier Stanfield in the same position, because of tardiness in confirming his bid for the leadership.

"The only way this would do them any good now is if there were a weak group of candidates. I don't know why they waited so long."

There was no indication how delegations from the other two Quinte ridings — Hastings and Frontenac-Lennox Addington — have lined up the party leadership roster as it now stands.

In Belleville, Jack Ireland, president of Hastings Conservatives, described the attitude of constituency delegates as "wide open."

Mr. Ireland, himself a candidate, said he had talked to others in the group.

"If they're committed they're not saying anything about it," he added.

Lee Grills, Conservative MP for Hastings South, and automatically a delegate by virtue of his office, was not immediately available for comment this morning.

In Frontenac-Lennox Addington — an electoral area which sprawls from Napanee to the southern limits of Renfrew County — there is a similar unwillingness to the leadership line-up.

Riding president Alf Northway, of Northbrook, today could give no indication of delegates' sympathies.

"That could only come, he added, after the delegates — residentially dispersed from Napanee to Eganville — managed to meet and discuss individual opinions.

But Douglas Alkenbrack, Conservative MP for Prince-Edward Lennox and candidate in the new constituency, today appeared steering his thinking on some definite guidelines.

"The last time we put in a provincial premier we didn't have too much success," he commented.

(This apparently referred to George Drew, a successful Ontario premier who failed to make his mark during a decade as national leader.)

"The first thing a new leader has to do is lead the national opposition," added Mr. Alkenbrack. "We hope to have one as good as Diefenbaker."

This, specifically, is the test which should be applied to both premiers, Roblin and Stanfield, when a choice is being weighed, the Conservative MP indicated.

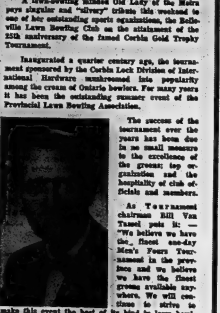
"I'm still looking for a leader among the present membership of the House," Mr. Alkenbrack added.

Mr. Northey felt Roblin was "a good man" and said he had once pondered if Mr. Diefenbaker would name him as a personal choice.

However, the comment also led by the core enigma of the current leadership contest, the Diefenbaker decision.

Mr. Northey said he had heard many wondering "if there is anyone running who can beat the Old Man if he stands?"

He summed up the situation that is the party's national dilemma:



"I don't know what John is going to do. I guess nobody else knows either."

A lawn-bowling minded Old Lady of the Metro pays slaughter and "silvers" tribute this weekend to two of her outstanding organizations, the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club on the attainment of the 125th anniversary of the famed Corbin Gold Trophy Tournament.

Inaugurated a quarter century ago, the tournament sponsored by the Corbin Lock Division of International Hardware mushroomed into popularity among the cream of Ontario bowlers. For many years it has been the outstanding summer event of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association.

The success of the tournament over the years has been due to no small measure to the excellence of the greens; top organization and the hospitality of club officials and members.

As Tournament chairman Bill Van Tassel puts it: — "We believe we have the finest meaday Men's Fours Tournament in the province and we believe we have the finest greens available anywhere. We will continue to strive to make this event the best of its kind in lawn bowling circles in this province."

Three other "gold swards" head the prize list. These are the Calvert Distillers Trophy raised second; the Belle Ewart Gold Trophy and the Gordon Wallkin Memorial Gold Trophy sponsored in perpetuity by the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

Commemorating the "Silver Anniversary" all other prizes and awards will be silver, a total values of $1,400.

The Wallkin Memorial Mixed Pairs Trophy to be held tomorrow was started five years ago to perpetuate the memory of the late George Wallkin, one of the founders of the city club, who served for many years as its president.

His interest in lawn bowling was continued by his two sons and the tournament popularity has steadily grown. With the passing of the younger son the late Gordon Wallkin it has come to be a memorial to both.

Tournament secretary-treasurer Jerry Ryde will conduct the Corbin event with Austin Watkin in charge of the Memorial tournament. Civic welcome to the visiting bowlers will be given by Mayor Jack Ellis Sunday morning and will throw the first bowl.

Gordon Vince and the perennial Jack Smith have the greens close to perfection. The event popularly "Spider" will be conducted Sunday morning, the prize a silver cigarette box; the collection goes to the provincial benevolent fund.

The Provincial Lawn Bowling Association executive level will be represented by Mr. Abe Wilson, the association president PLBA and Mr. John Henderson, president of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council. Both will bring association greetings.

Gerald Hyde, present vice-president of the Bowling Council is headed for the presidency next year and as such will be in charge of the 1968 championships scheduled for Leaside. Canadian championships are slated for Montreal but should the event coincide with the World Centennial Championships also to be held in Montreal.

Hospitality of the city club is a household word in lawn bowling circles throughout the province. This year extra efforts are being made to enhance, if possible, this reputation. The clubhouse has been newly renovated. Top arrangements have been made for meals and refreshments. The club will host a reception in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte Saturday night starting nine o'clock following the Wallkin Memorial play.

The tournament committee made a wise move in changing the day of the Corbin Tournament from Civic Holiday to Sunday. "This," says Chairman Van Tassel, "allows bowlers from distant clubs to return home and enjoy a day of rest. By doing this we have increased the attendance considerably and we hope new participants will return for the 26th renewal and bring new competitors with them."

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club is to be commended for its efforts in maintaining the sport at a high level over a period of twenty-five years. It has developed some topflight bowlers and efficiency of past presidents, officials and committees has brought the Corbin Gold Trophy event to a proud place in tournaments of the year.

That the 25th Silver Anniversary of the Corbin Gold will be a success there is little doubt. As a club spokesman remarked: "Everything possible is being done to ensure the tournament will be outstanding this year, perhaps the best in the twenty-five year history of the event."

Grubb Rides Four Winners

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)— Richard Grubb, claimed leading apprentice jockey, rode four winners Thursday at Fort Erie Raceway to bring his total wins to 43 in 28 days.

The 18-year-old jockey who'll ride Carteret in the Niagara Handicap here Saturday, took the first race Thursday with Come On Maggie. He followed up with a victory in the third aboard Mambo Cave, then on Dear Park in the fourth and Orange Soda Kid in the fifth.

Grubb also guided Paris Fashion to a first - place finish in the sixth, but the filly was disqualified for bumping Sirius 2nd at the eighth pole and Sirius 2nd was given the victory.

Rogers Strategy Wins Gold Medal!

WINNIPEG (CP)—Doug Rogers of Vancouver has finally won a gold medal in judo at the Pan - American Games. But it was the losing finalist who got all choked up.

The 20-year-old airline pilot, who lost a close decision to Allan Coage of New York in the heavyweight final last Monday, left nothing to chance Thursday night when he competed a second time in the unlimited division.

After disposing of three opponents quickly by falls, he came up against another American, James Westbrook of Oakland, Calif.

To the surprise of the packed house of 5,000 at the St. James Centenary Arena, the 200-pound Westbrook threw the 260-pound Rogers to the canvas at the three - minute mark and pounced on him, looking for the decisive fall.

To the surprise of Westbrook, he promptly found his opponent's brawny arm locked in a vise-like grip around his neck.

"It was part of his strategy," the rueful American told reporters after officials had stopped the bout and brought him back to consciousness.

"I was fighting my fight when suddenly I heard a noise. Then I saw him standing there and I thought, 'my god, he's won.'"

It was the only medal for Canada on a relatively quiet day at the Games that saw only three championships decided.

Favored Mexico and Argentina won gold medals in soccer and field hockey, the Mexicans breaking loose in overtime to subdue Bermuda 4-0 while the Argentines crushed Trinidad and Tobago 5-0.

Canada's field hockeyists, unbeaten in the preliminary round but ousted by Trinidad in their semi-final, were beaten out for a third - place bronze medal when they lost 1-0 to the United States in a clash of losing semi-finalists.

The Americans took their only gold of the day in the team epee fencing competition, which Canada was eliminated in the semi-finals.

It was the 97th medal for the U.S., with Canada and Brazil next in line with nine apiece. Canada's total medals 71.

Heats were run off in three rowing events and the Canadian crews for reached its final by winning its race. The University of British Columbia eight finished 1¼ lengths behind the formidable Harvard crew and the coxed pair lost to Uruguay by a similar margin.

Both boats were expected to qualify without difficulty tonight in their second chance repechages, in which the first three finishers progress to Saturday's final.

Lack of entries in the other rowing events made qualifying heats unnecessary.

UBC coach Wayne Pretty was undismayed by the eight's defeat.

"I thought before the race that we could beat them and I haven't changed my thinking," he said. "We were stroking 39 at the end."

Four Canadian boxers bit the dust as lightweight Gerald Ratte of Outremont, Que., put his Cuban opponent on the canvas twice in the first round before getting knocked out himself in the second.

Three Vancouver fighters, featherweight Wayne Boyer, light-welterweight Dick Findlay and welterweight Fred Fuller, lost decisions.

The Canadian men's volleyball team lost its last chance for a medal with its defeat by Cuba in the final pool but the women's basketball team remained a chance for a bronze despite a one-point loss to the United States.

Action in track and field resumes Saturday with an evening program that includes the finals of the men's long jump and 110-metre hurdles and the women's high jump. There will also be heats in the men's 400-metre relay, women's 200 and women's 80-metre hurdles.

Commonwealth Golf

Canada Scores Six Wins!

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP)—Canada took a step Thursday toward dethroning Great Britain as Commonwealth women's golf champion.

The Canadian team, runner-up to Great Britain in 1964 and third - place finishers behind Great Britain and Australia in Australia in 1962, won its second consecutive wins in the opening rounds of the third Commonwealth women's golf matches at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club.

Playing Australia, Canada won both 18-hole foursomes in the first round added four more wins in second round singles competition.

Britain also won its two foursomes, but could gain only a split with New Zealand in singles competition.

Going into today's action, Canada has six points, Great Britain four, New Zealand, two and Australia one.

Canada started its victory string when Marlene Stewart of Penfield, Ont., and Carol Gail Harvey Moore of New Westminster, B.C., won up over Australia's Maree Hickey and Barbara Dobson.

The Canadians made it two in a row when Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops B.C., combined with Gail Hinchliffe, West Vancouver, B.C., to beat Australia's Betty Dalgleish and Carole Blair 2 and 1.

Britain's wins over New Zealand in the foursomes were registered by Elizabeth Chadwick and Ann Irvin over Jane Butler and Glennis Taylor, 4 and 3 and by Bridget Jackson and Vivian Saunders of Heather Booth and Hamlin Wilkes, 2 and 4.

Canada's 18-hole singles victories were registered by Mrs. Stowe, Mrs. Moore, Helene Gagnon, of Arvida, Que., and Miss Hitchens.

Lightfoots Defeat Brants 13-7

Lightfoot Construction leapfrogged back into a tie for second place in the closely-bunched Commercial softball league with a 13-7 romp over Brant's-Mt. View last night.

Lightfoot's win carried them alongside Stinson's and Black Diamond, with all three teams sitting at 7-5 in the senior league - leading City Hotel.

The win virtually assured Lightfoot's of a playoff spot, as Stewart Warner trails in fifth place six points behind, with Brant's quickly entering its conclusion.

Don Smith allowed eight hits and fanned three on the winner's mound. Jim Spinks and Norm Collette shared the losers' chore. They gave up 11 hits and three third strikes past four.

Lee Hall and Paul Goodfellow slammed home runs and Hall added a single to pace Lightfoot's hitters. Bob Smith had a triple and base hit, Terry Lamerman a double and single, Don Wood two singles, and Doug Rose and Terry Johnson one hit each.

Jim Spinks smashed a home run and two base hits for Brant's. Jerry Spinks, Herb Scrimshaw, Wayne Bunnett and Bill Gonneroux also hit.

Lightfoot's 307 40-9—13-11 6
Brant's 312 010 1— 7- 8-4

Braves Go On Homer Warpath; Scalp Cubs With 7 Four-Baggers

CLETE BOYER

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Carl Yastrzemski's arm has claimed another victim and that makes five base runners in 10 days who have learned the hard way that Boston slugger can field and throw as well as he can hit.

Yaz threw out Mike Hershberger trying to score in the sixth inning Thursday and then the Red Sox rallied for three runs in their half and a 5-3 victory over Kansas City Athletics.

That cut one half game off Chicago's American League lead and left the Sox two games behind.

Dave Morehead hurled five shutout innings to pick up the victory against Kansas City.

Hershberger, who had doubled with two out, tried to score on Dick Green's hit but Yastrzemski nailed him. It was the ninth assist this season for the Boston outfielder and his fifth in Boston's 12-game home stand which ended Thursday.

"I'd rather not have the opportunity to make them," Yastrzemski said. "It only means there are runners on base trying to score."

In the only other American League game Thursday, Detroit Tigers blanked Baltimore 3-0 on Denny McLain's three - hitter. In the only National League game played, Atlanta Braves bombed Chicago with seven homers and ripped the Cubs 10-3.

Yastrzemski, who leads the league in runs batted in with 78, upped his batting average to .321 third best in the league with two hits. He doubled in the third and came in on George Scott's single as Boston pecked away at Kansas City's early 3-0 lead.

Mike Andrews was the Red Sox' other hero. He drove in three runs with a homer and a two-run single.

Third place Detroit also picked up a half game on the White Sox by whipping Baltimore in a game called by rain in the eighth inning. The Tigers' three games behind.

McLain was in control all the way, notching his 13th victory.

Bill Freehan drove in two Tiger runs with a pair of singles and Al Kaline touched off two rallies with doubles.

Joe Torre and Clete Boyer led Atlanta's homer spree against the Cubs with two apiece. Hank Aaron, Tony Perez and Denis Menke also connected.

Torre also doubled, singled and walked for a perfect day, scoring three runs and driving in two.

Aaron's homer was his 27th of the year and gave the veteran Braves' slugger his 1,500th career RBI.

The loss dropped the slumping Cubs six full games behind first place St. Louis in the National League race.

JOE TORRE

Trenton Wins Playground Track Title

In the concluding meet of the Inter-City Playground Championships an inspired Trenton team staged a strong rally to win the meet series. Coming from behind they overcame the lead which Belleville had after the first two meets. The final point standing showed Trenton with 168 points, Belleville second with 162 points and Picton with 106 points.

Special mention must be given to a girls athlete named Diane Winger. This remarkable young lady entered 5 events of her own category, under 8 years old, and walked away with five firsts. She also entered in the under 10 age group in the triple jump and came within an inch of walking away with her sixth honor.

The Belleville contingent was made up of athletes from various playgrounds with OSD Playground (Belleville Playground boys Champions last year) the main contributor.

Two new records fell during the meet, one long jump record of 18'7" eclipsing the old mark of Bernard Howe (OSD), and Bob Carter (West Hill) of 16' 7" by Frank Johnston of OSD. Rick Hewson of Queen Victoria raised his best high jump mark to 5' 0".

Under 8 years: Diane Winger, first in high jump and triple jump.

Under 10 years: Diane Winger, 2nd in triple jump.

Under 12 years: Vicky Flatt of OSD, 1st in high and 2nd in triple jump.

Under 14 years: Nancy Rushton, first in high jump and long jump.

BOYS

Under 8 years: Nelson Fredrick (OSD), 2nd in triple jump, 3rd in the high jump.

Under 10 years: Greg Hoxford OSD, 2nd in triple jump, 3rd in high jump.

Under twelve years: Joey Edward, first in high jump, 3rd, triple jump (OSD).

Under 14 years: Dan Hoxford OSD, 3rd in high jump, Dick Howe OSD, 3rd in triple jump.

Under 16 years: Rick Hewson QV, 1st in high jump; John Wells OSD, 2nd in triple jump.

What's This--Playoffs In Baseball?

(CHICAGO (AP) — American League owners voted unanimously Thursday night for eastern and western divisional championships in baseball, but National League owners asked for more time to study the proposal.

Club owners met with baseball commissioner William Eckert for more than three hours in a joint meeting of the two leagues after each league had conducted separate meetings.

The project of two divisions within each league was tabled as the two - day meetings closed.

Joe Cronin, president of the American League, said the plan would call for the winners of each of the five - team divisions to meet in a best-of-five playoff for the right to represent the league in the World Series.

Eckert said "the National League did not want to move this fast."

Warren Giles, president of the National League, said the main objection was that the plan was not presented in time to give the league time to study it.

"I don't think baseball should be put in a position where it is impossible for a fourth - place club to play a first - place club in a World Series."

He apparently meant if the American League did go into divisions, one divisional leader with a poor record might defeat the other divisional leader and represent the league in the championship.

In other matters Charles O. Finley, owner of Kansas City Athletics, issued a statement about "persistent rumors" that his team will be moved.

He said he has had conversations with officials in Oakland, Calif., and Seattle Wash., but no specific proposals have been made.

Ruth Deal Recalled

Yankees Send Howard To Bosox!

BOSTON (AP)—Nearly a half century ago Boston Red Sox pulled one of baseball's biggest bonehead deals, peddling George Herman (Babe) Ruth to New York Yankees.

Now the Red Sox hope the Yankees have reciprocated by dealing them catcher Elston Howard during Boston's pennant drive.

The Yankees, bested deep in the second division while on a rebuilding kick, sent Howard, now 33, to the Red Sox Thursday for the $30,000 waiver price and two players to be named after the season.

"We think Elston will help us a lot of ways," said Dick Williamson a top candidate for

ELSTON HOWARD

Ruth employed mainly as a pitcher with the Red Sox, became a full - time outfielder with New York and went on to become the greatest home run slugger in history.

The Red Sox never could forget the infamous deal.

However, time and changing personnel have mellowed feelings—although the two teams still are bitter rivals on the field.

Manager-of-the-Year honors in his rookie season with The Red Sox.

"We are getting quite a ball player," Williams said. "He'll play a lot for us, especially against left - handed pitching. He's a catcher, but he also can play first base and the outfield, too."

Howard, the first Negro to play for the Yankees, was reluctant at first to join the Red Sox. In his 13th season, he apparently wanted to go out wearing a Yankee uniform.

However, after weighing retirement for a few hours, he relented and agreed to join The Red Sox in Boston tonight.

Howard who is drawing an estimated $32,000 salary, has been limited action this season, hitting only .197 with three homers and 17 runs batted in.

Howard enjoyed his best season in 1961, hitting .349 with 21 homers in 129 games. Two years later he won the Most Valuable Player Award with 29 homers, 85 RBI and a .287 average.

Carmel Wins Peewee Opener

Carmel rode on the arm of Carm McCaffery to a 6-4 triumph over Frankford in the first game of a best-of-five BOSA peewee playoff series.

McCaffery allowed only two hits while fanning nine and strikes past 15 in the seven inning game.

The teams meet again on Saturday morning at 10 a.m., with Frankford travelling to Carmel.

Roger Rockford and Bill Masterson slammed two hits each, Dale Hartzer doubled and Dave DaMilia singled for Carmel.

Exhibition

Argos Outlast Alouettes

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Argonauts withstood a two touchdown fourth quarter charge by Montreal Alouettes Thursday night to win an Eastern Football Conference exhibition football game 36-32 before a rain-drenched crowd of 15,000 fans.

It was the final exhibition for both clubs and it left Toronto with a 3-1 record and Montreal 2-2 in three starts.

Alouettes halfback Ron Woodward was injured in the second quarter on the opening quarter when Toronto's Mario Mariani was knocked unconscious and removed from the field on a stretcher at 10:32 of the final quarter. Both were removed to hospital by ambulance.

Toronto's Bill Symons scored second and fourth-quarter touchdowns on run and 40-yard runs. John Villanas kicked three field goals from distances of 32, 19 and 39 yards and added a point on Symons' first major. A safety touch in the first and third quarters rounded out the winners' scoring.

Als Roger Murphy combined with quarterback Jackie Williams for a long first - quarter touchdown while halfback Don Lisbon and Williams ran over for the others late in the fourth quarter.

Dave Lewis added a single in the first quarter and Ron Parson was good on three convert attempts.

Toronto drew first blood at 6:24 of the opening quarter when Dick Aldrich tackled Williams behind the Montreal goal line for a safety touch and two points.

However, just over 60 seconds later Williams had his revenge as he combined with end Murphy on an 82-yard pass-and-run play for a touchdown. Murphy barely eluded defender Mike Wichtner on the play.

Lewis kicked his 40-yard single to give the Alouettes an 8-3 advantage at the end of the first quarter.

It was the last time the Montrealers held the lead.

Lombanks, Kingston In Playoffs

Belleville Lombanks begin their BOSA senior playoffs against Kingston on the week-end. Saturday the locals travel to the Limestone City while on Sunday the fairgrounds will be the scene of action.

The winner of this best-of-three series will play Peterborough for the league crown.

Lombanks have had no trouble with the Kingston nine, but they have been tough on pitchers and are strong both in the field and at the plate. Hits, and should give the Lombanks a rugged time.

With the pitching trio of Bill Lankhard, Don Masters and young Rodger Hunter starting to fell, and a strong hitting line - up due in from softball games to snare the players, the Belleville team is certainly as strong as any in the league. Hopefully a little stronger.

Minor Baseball Results

Parkdale scored the winning run in the last inning as they edged Mead Johnson 5-4 in the BMCBA's bantam round-robin playoff. In a similar series in tadpole, Golden Mile managed only two hits but still gained a 3-2 win while Bell Co. while CNR whipped Bob's Auto 11-6.

After trailing 4-1 at the end of the fourth, Parkdale found the range against Mead's pitcher Mike Gorgan. Jim Rouley erupted for three runs in the fifth to tie it, and won it with a lone marker two frames later.

Stan Brooks gave up six hits and fanned four, while Gorgan and reliever Paul Hall allowed seven hits and struck out six.

Terry Meagher tripled, doubled and singled to lead the Park at the plate. Ed Christopher slammed two base hits, and Stan Brooks and Paul Wolie one each.

Don Lapenetta had a triple and single, Dan Wager a double, and Mike Anger, Paul Hall and Dick Griffin one base hit each, for the losers.

Jack Doughty and Clyde Rouley gave up only two hits but walked 14, in handing Golden Mile the tie. They struck out 14.

Pete Hall and Bob Canning, ham allowed nine hits, fanned 15, and walked four.

Ric Christopher and Michael Grab had the Mile's hits. Dennis Greer clouted a double and two singles, Tim Coates two singles, and Doughty, Coates, Mike Kirby, Tom Coulson and Brian Cook one base hit each, for the winners.

Glen Andrews and Randy Hotchinson allowed eight hits and struck out 12 for the CNR while Paul Weeks, Pete Partridge and Guy MacInnis threw third strike past 30 and gave up 12 hits.

Bob Runson and Glen Andrews both homered and singled, Rick Keegan slammed a three base run, and Bernard Trumpour had a pair of base hits and a double, to pace the winner's offence. Brian Coughlan and Gary Goegan also hit.

Paul Weeks homered and Mike Burke had a double and single, for the losers. Mark Wilson, Dale McTaggart, Pete Harriage, Greg MacInnis and Steve Wager had hits.

Sewer Runs Through Rock

The area of Sidney St. between Bridge St. and Dundas St. will never be the same again — much to the delight of motorists.

The Lightfoot Construction Company has a contract with the city of Belleville for the reconstruction of Sidney St. amounting to $120,537. The construction will entail rebuilding and paving the road and building curbs, gutters and sidewalks.

The company is now finishing installing storm sewers which was athe second part of the contract and it has been rather difficult going. The area is all rock and the company has had to blast to get the sewer trench excavated as well as move a hydrant which was in the way.

The street is closed to traffic from the Dundas St. entrance because most of the work is on the east side of the road. When construction begins on the road itself the street will be closed to all traffic. Completion date for the job is Oct. 31.

Filling It Up Again

The construction on Sidney Street is progressing. A power shovel from the Lightfoot Construction Company fills in the trench where a new storm sewer was installed on the east side of the street.

Art Hobby for Tired Executives

TORONTO (CP)—For about 40 Toronto businessmen a frustrating day at the office may not lead to an ulcer but to a masterpiece.

Clothier Harry Rosen, accountant Carl Laywine and stockbroker George Pengilly are among a group of engineers, architects, lawyers, judges and other professional people who recently took art courses at the Artists' Workshop; part of the Stockley Valley School run by John Sime.

Coached by artist Dennis Burton, the businessmen-turned-artists all enrolled in life-drawing courses.

Mr. Sime, standing behind a drawing class, said talent is important in this situation. Most of the students had never seriously tried to draw or paint before they enrolled in the course.

Mr. Burton suggested that talent is latent in everyone.

"The main idea is to teach them to draw what they see, not what they think they see. Look, draw and correct; look, draw and correct; that is the sequence. We are teaching visual perception, but at the same time encouraging the individual point of view."

Mr. Burton encouraged his students to make as many drawing errors as possible in order to stimulate individual perception.

On A High Hydrant

Construction men Manley Bly and Pete Lewis guide a fire hydrant into position while tractor driver Bernard Michael gently lowers it. The fire hydrant got in the way of the storm sewer being installed on Sidney Street and had to be moved.

Business Rival Thinks Bell Monitoring His Phone Call

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP)—A Toronto industrialist Thursday told the Conchiching Conference he suspects the Bell Telephone Co. has been tapping his phones.

Douglas Zimmerman, president of Industrial Wire and Cable Co. said Bell uses its legal right to cut into a transmission for tone checks to monitor his calls.

Mr. Zimmerman is fighting a bill now before Parliament which he says will allow Bell to dominate, without any controls, the whole electronics industry in Canada.

He said he had complained to the RCMP and was told Bell has the legal right to listen to any conversation or even to enter a home without a warrant.

Mr. Zimmerman said the government should establish a federal communications commission such as that in the U.S. to keep an eye on Bell and other similar bodies.

A. G. Lester, executive vice-president of Bell's planning and research department, said Zimmerman's apprehensions are invalid and no control commission is needed in Canada because the telecommunications industry here is much smaller and less sophisticated than that in the U.S.

Trainmen's Bodies Are Found

DUNRANKIN, Ont. (CP) — The bodies of two Hornepayne, Ont., trainmen missing since Wednesday's head - on train crush here were recovered Thursday bringing the death toll to four.

The bodies of W. K. Vaughan, an engineer, and A. K. Lawrie, a brakeman, were found in the wreckage of the freight train they were on when it collided with a westbound Canadian National Railways' Super Continental passenger train.

Searchers Wednesday found the bodies of two other Hornepayne men, W. Stanley Hudson, engineer of the passenger train, and James Ray, his fireman.

A CNR spokesman said Thursday traffic would probably not resume until early today in this area, 90 miles west of Timmins.

None of the 150 passengers on the Super Continental was seriously injured in the crash. Fred Bacziynski, 70, of Melfort, Sask., was taken to Timmins hospital with a heart condition.

World's Future May Depend On How Power Affects China

China's pace in atomic weaponry, its politics and its outlook suggest profound international consequences for the rest of the world. This is the last of three articles on China's progression of the H-bomb by Associated Press Writers Alton L. Blakeslee and William L. Ryan.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE and WILLIAM L. RYAN

Will China, by accident or design, launch a nuclear catastrophe?

Effects of China's H-bomb test last June 17 are enormous. The impact of the vast under-developed world is incalculable.

For 18 years, the U.S. and the Soviet Union have waged confronted one another with awesome nuclear arsenals, but managed to preserve nuclear peace.

China, though still a fledgling member of the nuclear club, vastly alters the peace equation. Caught in the madness of the purge that has torn Communist china, calls the cultural revolution, she is a puzzling "X" in

Experts put many worried questions:

—Do Chinese leaders really know what a nuclear war could bring in human casualties and physical destruction?

—Suppose China donated a nuclear weapon to an ally—Indonesia, out of a desire to become more powerful than Russia in the Middle East, Israel, where scientists say, could produce weapons in a few years. Might a new Middle East war some day be an atomic one?

—About 20 nations are capable of building nuclear weapons. Will China's success put pressure on those countries, particularly India and Japan, to produce such weapons?

—Is China really the "crazy, reckless, paranoid country" she appears to be to outsiders, or is her behavior just a passing phenomenon?

Only Japan knows the horrors, at first hand, of nuclear weapons and those used against it were the first A-bombs, enormously destructive but still less powerful than H-bombs. Thus her graded memories of other countries of the full terror that the atomic bombs of 22 years ago brought to Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Some observers suggest this fading memory may have figured in the relative calm with which Asian countries reacted to China's new power.

There may be other reasons.

Some of the worry among China's neighbors — India, Japan, Burma, Australia, Malaysia, Indonesia — has been eased by Mao's cultural revolution, suggesting vast political, social and economic turmoil in China.

Will the strife not eventually slow or even halt China's nuclear program? It hasn't up to now, and the chances seem to be that it will not.

When Mao crashed down after his Hundred Flowers invitation for criticism, important scientists got off lightly.

In the present cultural revolution, Mao's supporters took care to insulate the important scientists.

Still, the cultural revolution damaged China's prestige among under - developed countries, as did China's abortive diplomatic offensives in Africa and Asia. Perhaps, some Asians reasoned, China was so badly off balance that it could not risk any deep international trouble.

One big U.S. government China - watcher said: "China watchers believe they are witnessing a change of dynasty. Great revisions may come."

But if Mao's philosophy wins out, Asians will have to take another look.

They will find that China eventually will be the dominant power in Asia. It has the resources, the energetic, clever people. The "if" involve China's problems of food, population, education, training, industrialization, advances in science other than in the nuclear field, and, most of all, solving the present political chaos.

In direct military threat, the U.S. seems to have little to fear from China until the mid-1970s.

For the U.S., various experts agree, one consequence of China's unchecked march will be increased pressure to develop anti-ballistic missiles — ABMs.

An intercept and destroy system against incoming enemy missiles. The ABM cost could reach $70,000,000,000, perhaps not as a starter, for limited defenses.

Practical testing of ABMs could violate the limited nuclear treaty which bans atmospheric testing.

Chinese bombs affect Soviet thinking, too. A ban on ABM systems must be considered among "the whole range of questions relating to arms and disarmament," said Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, just after China exploded her H-bomb.

China's feud with Moscow, aggravated by Peking's eagerness for nuclear arms, has tipped the fabric of world Communist unity all awards.

Peking has laid claim to 600,000 square miles of Soviet territory. The Chinese stir up trouble on Soviet borders. Moscow pumps inflammatory propaganda into Chinese border provinces.

Experts say China still can spring surprises, such as developing long-range rockets. A missile good enough to hit within five miles of an intended target could wipe out Moscow, London, Los Angeles or San Francisco.

But China, with her vast territory and primarily agrarian population, offers fewer strategic targets. Missiles aimed at China would have to pinpoint missile sites.

In any case, U.S. "China policy" is up for re-examination. There are glimmers of optimism.

Democratic Senator Henry Jackson, long a member of military and atomic energy committees, and others point out that Russia modified its stance as it grew more powerful, as its living standards rose and it had more to lose from holocaust.

In the long view, says an authority on China, advances in technology and science and in satellite communications will tend to knit nations closer together. These nations know they can progress faster than those which try to go it alone. Thus, there may be "a suction on China to join in on this."

Some hope the future will see a swarting down of "hard concern of truth-seeking beliefs that one country or one group has the absolute truth which others must accept.

Canadian Rocket Is Fired

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)— A brilliant red and white flare spread across the northern sky early Thursday as the National Research Council successfully carried out another rocket launching to test the earth's upper atmosphere.

The Black Brant VB rocket, manufactured by Bristol Aerospace Ltd. of Winnipeg, was launched at about 2:30 a.m. and released barium vapor at altitudes of 150 miles and 250 miles.

In addition to the barium, the rocket carried an electron density instrument which was ejected ahead of the rocket at an altitude of 45 miles. The instrument measures the amount of electron concentration in its path and radios the information back to ground receivers.

Strictly Personal

Color Names Fool Mere Male

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Noting in a newspaper ad that some outfits were on sale at a local department store, and needing just the kind he was offered, I telephoned the store's shopping service and ordered a half-dozen in my size.

"What colors do you want them in?" the disembodied voice asked. "We have them in taupe, powder, raspberry, and taupe."

"Aren't those cognitive dross shirts?" I enquired. The voice silenced me how they were.

"Well, then," I said, I'll take three in white and three in blue."

"Sorry, we don't have those colors," the voice informed me. "But we can offer you a slightly different style, in a tab collar, in five different shades."

"What are those?" I asked, as if I didn't know.

"We have lime, salmon, cinnamon, rust, and shocking pink."

"No, I don't think so," I said, feeling into the spirit of the game. "Tell you what—you just let me have two in fuschia, two in heliotrope, and two in ultramarine!"

She consulted her vast file-book for a moment, then came back metallically, "I'm afraid we don't have them in those shades, sir."

"All right, then," I said, being my most cavorly reasonable. "I'll take three in terra cotta, and three in persimmon."

"Sorry, sir," the voice took on an edge of irrelevance. "At last, we have only lime, salmon, cinnamon, rust and shocking pink."

"Too bad," I murmured soothingly. "I'll try some other time. Maybe you have a wider selection — maybe including white and blue."

End of the non-transaction.

Now I don't mean to imply by all this that I'm against men wearing gay and diverse colors in their shirtings — but first the mere male has to be educated to all the refinements and nuances of tone that seem to come naturally to the feminine mind.

I really couldn't describe "taupe" to anyone, even to myself. I suppose that "lime" is a shade of green, and "raspberry" a shade of red, but pewter wholly eludes me. I'm always getting it confused with "puce," and I really don't know what either of them looks like.

General Grant once said that he could recognize only two colors — one was "Yankee Doodle," and the other wasn't. Most men are that way about subtle distinctions in colors, and especially in the terminology of colors. If they're going to make shirts in a set of 6, they'd better teach us how to tell it from tuna fish.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 5

ARIES (Mar. 21 — April 19): Your creative abilities are emphasized. There is need to be flexible. Take initiative without being pugnacious. Some close to you want to dominate. This leads to controversy. Be calm.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Diplomacy and tact are favored. Activity are highlighted. Be receptive. You don't have to give up principles to be a good listener. Be fair. Stress maturity. Permit logic to dominate.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Practical affairs demand attention. Includes job, home repairs, getting accounts in order Discard advice of friend who counsels impulsive action. Take it slow and easy.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Avoid excess speed. Be especially careful around house. Scattered objects, toys could be accident. Know this and act accordingly.

LEO (July 23—Aug. 22): Cycle high. But persons who fear for their own security attempt to discourage you. Express views. Be analytical. Examine position. Older persons appear aggressive. Take it in stride.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Study Cancer message. You tend to overlook the obvious. This could lead to careless words, statements. Result might be costly. Highlight public relations. Weigh actions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 —Oct. 22): Time to think. Friends and others are not qualified to advise you on some projects. Your personal affairs today could change tomorrow. Realize this, play waiting game.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Direction is important. So is specific action. You have more power on your side than is evident. Know this and put best foot forward. Higher-ups now listen and acquiesce.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 20): Influence spreads. Accent today on long-range plans, projects. Many who previously were indifferent now sit up and take notice. Dislike lessons learned from past experience.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Many wishes can be fulfilled. Best not to push or press issues. What you need will be available. This is largely due to efforts of others. Message very clear by night.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Stress today on marriage, partnerships, legal affairs. What you do is apt to be made public. Be aware of this and correct discretion. One close to you reveals true thoughts.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Intuitive powers quite best results. Means be subtle. Don't show all cards. Keep some ammunition hidden. Pressure today with regard to work, health, recreation. Outline program.

If today is your birthday . . . you are a vital, dynamic individual, a natural showman, one who is capable of creating unique situations. At times you are also a master at creating your own problems. You're due for a breakthrough — for greater happiness, fulfillment.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Leo, Virgo. Special word to Taurus. Argument over legal point could boomerang in your favor.

Young Brothers Drown In Lake Park Undertow

Bodies Piled In Heap

FREMONT, Calif. (AP) — A flatbed truck carrying a YMCA youngsters' club home from a day at a beach somersailed out of control Friday on a freeway, killing five and injuring 65 others.

Larry Fisk, a California Highway Patrol officer who saw the accident, said: "I didn't realize how bad it was until I got up to the cab of the truck and all I saw was a mound of bodies."

Fisk radioed for "all the ambulances you've got" and then with others broke out first-aid kits and started loading youngsters into passing cars that took them to hospitals.

The patrolman said the northbound truck veered in the right and then to the left onto a 40-foot wide strip that divides the four-lane freeway. As the truck hit the centre strip it somersaulted, finally landing on its side.

As the truck rolled, youngsters pulled onto the divider strip and onto the road. None was hit by passing cars.

A passing motorist, Le Albers, 39, said: "They were just lying down, some on the road shoulder, some on the divider. Some were bandaged. They just were all over and heaped on top of things."

Thirty children were in hospital today, one in critical condition. The other injured were released after treatment.

Guests Flee Capri Fire

CAPRI, Italy (AP)—A raging brush fire whipped by sea breezes raced out of control over miles of this resort island today, causing panic among tourists and threatening hotels and villas.

Capri authorities appealed to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization fleet based at Naples, on the mainland 18 miles away, to send men and equipment to help fight the flames.

Frightened tourists abandoned the beaches to be ready to leave the island if the fire got worse.

Vote Demanded On Separatism

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec "should state once and for all that he is a separatist and call an election immediately on this issue," Eric Kierans, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, said Friday.

Mr. Kierans also said a preconference that last week's visit to Canada by President de Gaulle of France was "a good thing" for English-speaking Canadians.

Himself English-speaking but with a fluent command of French, the Liberal official said of the controversial visit:

"It will jolt us . . . and make us think."

He said the slogan "Vive le Quebec libre," used by Gen. de Gaulle, in a July 24 speech at Montreal, has "very deep roots" in Canadian and Quebec politics and the general was not aware of the "nuances" involved in the phrase.

"People must keep their nerve about everything else." The visit would bring home to English - speaking Canadians that "French is not a foreign language in Canada."

Those outside the French-Canadian community who declaimed Quebec blunderbuss with such remarks as, "They know which side their bread is buttered on," are themselves "English separatists," said Mr. Kierans.

Mr. Johnson had made Quebecers uncertain of his plans and raised doubts in the minds of investors.

"After careful study and analysis of what happened during the past week I have come to the conclusion that Mr. Johnson must come out and declare that he is a separatist."

Mr. Kierans said the provincial Liberals are a "strongly Quebec bathtoastist party." But Liberal Leader Jean Lesage was no separatist.

Frantic Effort Fails

Members of the ill-fated rescue party huddle around the body of one of the Snyder youngsters as artificial respiration is administered.

Policeman "Traitor" Says Brooks

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A Black Power advocate who says he is director of a "Liberation School" charged with, teaching hatred of the white race said Friday a police captain should be "killed" for remarks he had made.

Fred H. Brooks, leader of the local chapter of the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee, also said the school will continue to operate even if federal government funds are cut off.

Police Captain John A. Seace of Nashville told the Senate judiciary committee in Washington Thursday the anti-poverty school teaches "pure, unadulterated hatred of the white race."

Resuscitation Attempts Fail

By Maurice Switzer, Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Paul and Philip Snyder went on their last picnic yesterday.

The seven and nine-year-old brothers were both pronounced dead at 4:24 in the afternoon after drowning in the undertow of huge Lake Ontario waves at North Bay Provincial Park, some 15 miles south of Trenton.

"I just saw them out in the water," said 19-year-old Alan Lindstrom of Picton. "I couldn't hear if they were yelling or not — the waves make too much noise."

Alan and Victor Alyea of R.R. 2, Hillier pulled the two boys from the water. A third youngster, Brent Warren of R.R. 1, Milton, narrowly escaped drowning at the same time, and dragged to crawl from the water himself. He was given outpatient treatment at Trenton Memorial Hospital and released.

Twenty-year-old Victor Alyea, a member of its beach-patrol, said: "The first we heard about anything wrong was when a woman flagged down beach-patrol captain George Mason and said that there were some boys missing. She didn't know whether they were playing on the sand-dunes or in the water."

"Just when park ranger Wayne Fife and myself got there a boy was crawling out of the water."

The boy was Brent Warren of Milton who narrowly escaped drowning while swimming in the same area as the Snyder youngsters.

"We went in and Alan Lindstrom came in too. I asked Alan to take my sunglasses back to shore for me when he stumbled across one of the bodies."

"I saw the other body floating in on the crest of a wave. Wayne and I tried mouth-to-mouth resuscitation on the way in but we couldn't get him breathing."

The boys' mother, Mrs. Robert Snyder, wept quietly as swimmers tried unsuccessfully to revive her sons.

Jim Hoenshal, who was supervising an outing of air cadets from the CFB Trenton summer camp, spent more than an hour massaging the heart of one of the youngsters, trying in vain to raise a pulsebeat.

Fifty-feet away, others were trying mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in a futile attempt to breathe life into the other Snyder youngster.

Rev. Robert Snyder, formerly the rector at Belleville's Parkdale Baptist Church, was notified by Picton Provincial Police of the accident.

The two boys were born in Belleville during Mr. Snyder's stay here. They are survived by another brother, David.

The Snyder family, now of Kapuskasing, was camped in a trailer at Pleasant Bay Bible Camp, nearby the scenic sand dunes of North Bay park.

The two small bodies were lifted from the beach by ambulance attendants after being pronounced dead, a scant few yards from a tippling red flag that warns of dangerous currents on the Lake Ontario shoreline.

One other child had lost his life at the popular swimming spot earlier this summer.

The beach had been crowded as it often is on Sunday, but soon packed children and picnic baskets into their cars and went home.

A double funeral will be held Monday from the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home to Parkdale Baptist Church. Service will be at 2.30. Interment will follow in Belleville Cemetery.

The mile long stretch of sandy beach on which where yesterday's tragedy occurred is only one section of the provincial park. Rows of sand dunes lie between the lake and North Bay itself.

Roy Davidson, superintendent of the four Prince Edward provincial parks, said today both parents swimming areas are watched daily by three members of the park beach patrol, trained in life-saving techniques.

Mr. Davidson said that North Bay also uses the flag system, and signs to tell the public the meaning of the various flags. A yellow flag on one of several flag-poles along the beach means the beach-patrol is off duty; a green flag is on duty and a red flag indicates dangerous water conditions.

"We had a red and green flag up in the area where the boys drowned yesterday because of the heavy winds and the undertow conditions," said Mr. Davidson.

Man Under Drugs Drills Hole in Head

LONDON (CP) — A raging controversy over "soft drugs" in Britain took a bizarre turn Friday with a report that a law graduate drilled a hole in his head while under the influence of marijuana.

A letter in the British Medical Journal from a London psychiatrist said the 30-year-old graduate used a dental drill to relieve cerebral pressure. The drill penetrated his skull, but did not pierce it completely.

Dr. Peter Dally said the man was defended by a group of people which believed that so-called soft drugs, LSD, and marijuana, in combination with trepaning the skull would let a man conquer time.

During the experiment, Dr. Dally said, the man became frightened and felt he had been chosen as a guinea pig. He appeared to be "an inadequate personality," and entered a psychotic state after taking marijuana.

Dr. Dally said the man's case was just one of a number he had treated during the last six months. All had dealt with psychosis in students which apparently was brought about by using marijuana, either alone or with LSD.

He closed his letter by warning that the undesirable effects of marijuana are not fully known.

Chinese Diplomats Fire On Indonesian Mob

From Reuters-AP

JAKARTA (CP) — Communist Chinese diplomats today opened fire on a howling Indonesian mob which stormed their embassy here, wounding three youths and an army corporal.

Indonesian troops armed with sub-machine-guns rushed in, firing warning shots into the air, after some 300 youths wrenched open the embassy's high iron gate with crowbars and poured into the compound to loot the building.

The demonstrators were joined by other youths who scrambled over the red painted embassy walls, while another group set fire to the adjoining building.

They panicked after the assembled diplomats fired a volley from the embassy building, and were dragged out struggling by the troops who surrounded the building backed by three armored cars.

Roads leading to the embassy in Jakarta's business centre were blocked and Chinese shops closed because their owners feared an anti-Chinese riot.

Troops were seen on guard inside and outside the embassy building.

The demonstration followed a statement issued by the Peoples Indonesia Youth Front, affiliated to the army-backed Party for Upholding Indonesia Independence, calling on the government to sever relations with mainland China.

The official Antara news agency said the Chinese charge d'affaires, Lu Yen To immediately lodged a strong protest over the incident, but this was rejected by the Indonesian foreign ministry.

Centennial Celebrations Under Way in Wellington

A fiddlers' contest held in Wellington's lakeside park got the village's centennial celebrations for the weekend off to a "grand old opery" start.

Ralph Forrester of Cherry Valley, master of ceremonies, introduced the five contestants, Jerry Clement, Cherrie Thorne, Roland Wynstanley, Harold McAvoy and Delbert Tompkins who played their selections to the background of a group called the Cedar Valley Boys.

A large crowd watched the competition for cash prizes of $75, $50 and $25 for first, second and third places respectively.

Judges Norris Cunningham, Joe Gannon and Carley Hoskins had a difficult time judging the competition but awarded first prize money to Jerry Clement followed up by Roland Wynstanley and Harold McAvoy.

Following the contest Highway 33 was barricaded and the "Country Jewels" and "Cedar Valley Boys" performed at a street dance. Traffic was rerouted behind the village. Celebrations in the village will continue until Monday evening.

Folk-song to A Fiddle

Miss Patti Forrester of Cherry Valley gave an impromptu performance much to the delight of the audience at the fiddlers' contest in Wellington last night. Her father, Ralph Forrester who was master of ceremonies plays background for her song. Regretfully, Patti didn't come back for an encore.

No Change Reported in Employment Situation

The current employment situation in Belleville has not changed much from the records a year ago with a few exceptions.

There is still more demand for jobs but this is a province wide situation and is due mostly to high school and college students requiring summer work. There have been less placements this year—probably due to the fact there is less construction in the area this year. Students are particular in the jobs they want to get.

James Stevely of Manpower said, "We have been lucky this year in the fact that there have been no strikes." Of course the strike threats may have had some effect on the employment plans of industries in the area.

Mr. Stavely also mentioned there is a greater demand this year for technical workers but most of the positions are for out of town jobs located in the Kingston and Brockville areas.

This appears to have had a detrimental effect on procuring placements for the positions.

Large Variety Offered at Market

The market was crowded this morning and offered customers a large variety of produce. Corn and yellow beans flooded the market at 60c a doz., for the corn and 25c a box for the beans.

Carrots, radishes, rhubarb and onions were all 25c a bunch. Vegetable marrow sold at an average of 30c according to size and spanish onions were 25c a piece. Apples sold for 60c a basket.

Potatoes were 75c a basket, cucumbers were $1.25, tomatoes $1.75. Peppers were 10c each and beets were 15c a bunch or 2 for 25c.

There were still plenty of blueberries selling at 75c a box but this most probably will be the last time that they are offered.

Gladioli at $15.0 a doz., and snapdragons, marigolds and dahlias at 25c a bunch added color to the market - place.

Sophiasburg Right Home

The ancestral home of Dufferin Roblin of Macintoba now in the context for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, was in Sophiasburg Township, and not in the Wellington area as was inferred in yesterday's edition of The Intelligencer.

While in the Quinte area in 1964 attending a centennial celebration at Wellington, Mr. Roblin visited the ancestral home in Sophiasburg and unveiled a plaque in honor of his grandfather.

According to Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward Lennox, the U.E.L. Roblin family first settled in Sophiasburg. Some years later one branch of the family moved to Amelisburg, while another (the Duff Roblin branch) moved to the Canadian West to homestead in Manitoba.

Fair Board Holds Line on Costs

These days progressive enterprise seems to have troubles holding the line on costs.

Not so in the case of the Belleville Agricultural Society.

Fair goers in the Quinte area can be thankful the higher cost of living, including a healthy allowance for entertainment is not reflected by the announcement of gate admissions to be charged by the Belleville fair this year.

As a matter of fact more of everything is being offered to the whole family at last year's prices — adults $1; cars 50 cents; students with student council cards 50 cents and children 13 years and under free.

In spite of the trend to splurge on Centennial features the fair directors decided to increase the size of the prize money one day, accommodate an ever-increasing list of exhibitors and program the fair the best, the fall shows available.

At the same time, they sought to encourage local talent participation by giving top billing to expanded competitions and amateur performers in the district. CBC personality Gordie Tapp acts as master of ceremonies for the giant open amateur night presentation.

The Quinte area's own Doug Anselmo conducts both the 29 piece Belleville Federation of Musicians concert band and the 18 piece federation stage band playing for the amateurs.

The other major attractions need no introduction. Hockey stars Bobby and Dennis Hull officially open the fair on Tuesday, August 15.

That same evening western horse riders and jamboree entertainers from the district share the spotlight with the Hull brothers.

The following night, the Texas Canada Hell Drivers perform the spectacular and fantastic at times with their greatest show ever.

Sensation seekers hardly have time to catch their breath again before the next daredevil exhibition namely the Canadian National Motorcycle championship eliminations two nights later.

And then comes the climax: the part reserved for the fans of harness racing. The reference is to Saturday, August 19, the final day of the fair, when the Black Diamond Stake Race commands the attention of the grandstand spectators. There are 24 entries in the event this year.

The winner receives $2,400 in prize money and a magnificent trophy put up by the Belleville attained chrome company for second stake competition.

From opening to closing each day there will be no dull moments because novelty acts galore have been scheduled to fill in between headline features. And to emulate the carnival atmosphere, as well as providing additional family entertainment, Conklin Bros. midway returns with exciting new sideshows and a large selection of rides for the pleasure of adults and children alike.

Special Edition Runs Tuesday

Copies of the special edition newspaper produced for the first time for the Belleville Agricultural Society will be rolling off the press on Tuesday afternoon in the county seat.

Considered an outstanding success due in general public encouragement and substantial advertisers response the 20 page "Fair" edition will be reaching the special edition is to inform householders within a radius of 50 miles of the city as mass distribution continues through the remainder of the week.

Containing the city's official program, lots of pictures and stories pertaining to annual exhibition's history and Centennial year endeavors, the purpose of Quinte area families what is happening well in advance of the fair opening Tuesday August 15.

The householder who does not receive one of these newspapers, however, can obtain a copy by contacting a member of the fair board's publicity committee at the fairgrounds during the day, or phoning Ted Ellis at 962-2891.

As the truck rolled, young-sters spilled onto the divider strip and onto the road. None was hit by passing cars.

A passing motorist, Le Albers, 29, said: "They were just having fun, jumping over the road's shoulder, some on the divider. Some were bandaged. They just were all over and heaped on top of things."

Thirty children were in hospital today, one in critical condition. The other injured were released after treatment.

Farm Home Destroyed In Fire Near Tweed

TWEED (Special) — The two-storey brick farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rollins of Elzevir township was completely destroyed by fire Friday afternoon, despite efforts of fighters to save the structure.

Only a few articles of furniture were saved from the building before it was a mass of flames. Damage was estimated at about $19,000.

Mrs. Rollins was at home when the fire was spotted about 2.30 p.m.. The origin of the fire was not learned.

The volunteer fire department from Tweed under chief Ross McNaught, and also the Eldorado department answered the alarm but were unable to save the structure. An Ontario hydro spray truck working nearby was already on the scene when firemen arrived.

The wind was blowing away from nearby farm buildings and the Rollins barn was not endangered.

PROCLAMATION
PLAYGROUND WEEK
AUGUST 8th – 11th, 1967
Whereas the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville has been requested by the Belleville Recreation Committee to declare the week of August 8th – 11th as "PLAYGROUND WEEK" in Belleville, in the interests of promoting healthful recreation amongst our citizens and whereas the said Council has declared itself favorable thereto,
I hereby proclaim, by virtue of the authority vested in me, that the week of August 8th – 11th, 1967, be "PLAYGROUND WEEK" in Belleville, and I call upon citizens to take advantage of the opportunity to visit a playground in their neighborhood.
J. R. ELLIS,
Mayor, City of Belleville.

CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE
RE: GARBAGE COLLECTION
Residents of Belleville who, would normally place their garbage and refuse for collection by the City of Belleville Garbage Pickup Contractor on Monday, August 7, 1967 are reminded that in accordance with the terms of that contract, no pickup will be made on that day, it being the statutory holiday known as Civic Holiday.
Residents so affected are asked to place all garbage and refuse for pickup on their next regular collection day.

To treasure in our hearts,
Till time in loving memories fade,
We'll meet and never part.
It's sad to say the road alone is trod,
Dear Dad,
Since you went the rest to God.
—Sadly missed by wife Beatrice and family.

O'NEILL — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Bill O'Neill, who passed away August 7th, 1965.
Dear Bill,
You've gone more first dear and I miss you so,
To walk the road alone,
Till time in loving memories fade,
Till we meet and never part.
It's sad to say the road alone is trod,
Dear Bill,
Since you went the rest to God.
—Sadly missed by wife Beatrice and family.

PALMANTIER — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Ronald Polmantier who passed away August 5th, 1944.
Two years we've lived with sorrow,
Two years we've shed many a tear,
Two years we've longed for a glimpse of you,
Two years you've been missed by dear.
—Loving remembered by Mom, Dad, Sisters and Brothers.

BOYLE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Bill Boyle, (Sandy), Boyle who passed away, August 7th, 1965.
Sadly missed and sorrowed by,
Wife Margaret,
Daughter Margaret and family.

BOYLE — In loving memory of our dear son, Sandy Boyle, who passed away August 7th, 1965.

Eight big truck loads of crushed rock dumped across ramps leading to the new Quinte Skyway at Deseronto now effectively block motorists ignoring "road closed" signs to cross still unfinished bridge. Bridge opening is now tentatively scheduled for Labor Day weekend.

Another Month to Go

Don McDermott, ferry operator at Deseronto for the past 17 years, directs motorist from ferry with new Quinte Skyway looming in distance.

Opening of the new bridge in about one month will put ferry out of business.

Contractor Stops 'Sneak' Passages Over New Bridge at Deseronto

There will be no more "sneak" passages over the new Quinte Skyway bridge at Deseronto until the new four-million dollar bridge is officially opened sometime around Sept. 1.

This was made certain yesterday by the general contractor for the deck finishing operations who dumped eight dump truck loads of crushed rock — four at each end — across the bridge ramp.

Although the contractor is still potting finishing touches to the new bridge, for the past week cars have been unofficially crossing the bridge ignoring barricades and "road closed" signs.

But that all ended late Friday afternoon when the bridge ramp was effectively sealed off with the dumping of the loads of crushed rock.

Yesterday the bridge contractor said it would take about a month to completely finish the bridge. the bridge steel structure is still to be painted and the joints in the concrete floor have to be machined off to assure a smooth passage for motorists. Light standards also have to be placed.

A senior department of highways official said yesterday that the Labor Day weekend has been tentatively set as the opening date for the bridge.

Dumping of the crushed rock across the bridge ramp will put an end to the cat and mouse game which for the past few days local motorists have been playing with the Deseronto ferry operator.

Since the new bridge has become unofficially usable, motorists in the know have been "sneaking" across the structure at night and when they miss the ferry.

Yesterday two motorists were seen just missing the ferry which continued on its way to the other side of the Bay of Quinte despite persistent honking of horns by the unhappy drivers.

Then the cars wheeled around and a few minutes later the same vehicles were driving past barricades and over the bridge.

Ferry operator Don McDermott, who has been operating the ferry for the past 17 years is taking the philosophical viewpoint about the fact that in another month he will be out of business.

"I am not worried," he said, "I have a partnership in a Hereford farm in Prince Edward County and when I am at the ferry the farm is losing money."

Mr. McDermott said he would return full time to the farm and put it on a paying basis.

He has already sold his ferry for use at another location.

Research Chief

Dr. Philip S. Corbet examines plant specimen being used on project at entomology research centre in Belleville. He was posted as director of centre this week.

Research Director Arrives in City

The federal entomology research centre in Belleville has a new director.

He is Dr. Philip S. Corbet, a scientist assigned to government research projects for the past five years and posted here from Ottawa.

Dr. Corbet succeeds Dr. Brian P. O'Beirne who recently resigned the federal service to launch a research-training project at British Columbia's Simon Fraser University.

Like most top professionals in scientific research, Dr. Corbet's career has an international background.

Born in Malaya, he received his Ph.D. at Cambridge in 1953, did research in East Africa on British government projects from 1954 to 1957 and in Uganda until 1962.

His work was concentrated on mosquitos and their potential as virus carriers.

He has been in Canada since 1962.

In all, seven other staff members from the Belleville centre decided to return to university careers at Simon Fraser with Dr. O'Beirne.

The new director said yesterday the new staff would be gradually assigned in coming weeks to fill the vacancies.

Future work at the centre would continue to be phased in "new directions and departures" to keep pace with "the most promising" trends and developments in the field of entomological research.

$1,600 Damage In Accidents

TRENTON — Car crashes in two separate locations early this morning resulted in $1,600 to three vehicles — none of the six persons involved was seriously injured.

Moving along Dundas st. east about one o'clock this morning Barry Robertson, 23, CFB Trenton hit a traffic island at Gilmore Hill causing $1,000 to his 1967 model car.

Police said this morning the accident is under investigation and charges are pending.

Later at 1.25 a.m. a car driven by, Alcide Dufour of Consecon hit a parked car owned by Nick Cecchini near the corner of Pilm st. and Sutcliffe blvd. Damage to the vehicles is estimated at $600.

Chinese Unrest

Unrest persists in China, as reports of fighting between supporters and foes of Mao Tse-tung in Hunan, Mao's native province, suggest.

Twenty thousand Chinese are reported involved in the struggle. This is a mere drop in the ocean amidst a total population of 700 million — but seen in the context of Hong Kong reports of conflict in other provinces as well there are grounds for believing that the ferment in China is very real.

The Hong Kong sources say that clashes in Shangtung and Kwantung provinces, besides Hunan, indicate that China is in a state of anarchy.

For all China's huge, and presumably well-equipped, standing army, it comes as a surprise to learn that both sides fought with sharpened wooden steel rods. Occasional gun shots were reported, but it does look as if in China firearms are not as easy to come by as they are say in the United States.

An Aim in Life

Henry Makow, the young Ottawa scribe of "Ask Henry" fame, is currently hitch-hiking across Canada and describing his travels for The Intelligencer in his Route 17 column.

The other day he related a conversation with a Baltimore teenager aboard a ferry to Newfoundland. "I don't know if I want to go to college," the girl said. "I don't know what I want to be. I don't know who I am. I'm nothing."

There was emotion in her voice as she spoke and her words reflect the difficult stage that most young people pass through. Unless given strong moral support and love by parents, not to mention advice and guidance, the teenage years can be difficult ones.

But not all that troublesome — provided they can find some purpose in life. And even if there is no immediate aim in mind there are countless prospects, courses of study and jobs available for the choosing.

Here is one idea in the realm of helping others in perhaps less fortunate circumstances overseas. It comes from Sweden where students are planning a fall fund drive to aid education in Peru. A Stockholm report says this is the third such campaign undertaken by a national pupils' organization and the second to benefit Peru.

Projects of a similar nature have been undertaken in Canada — but this one serves as a reminder that in service to others young people can find satisfaction and fulfillment in life.

The Worrying Kind

This concerns two gentlemen of Manchester — one in England and the other in the United States (Connecticut), and the state of mind called worry.

And hearing their respective stories one can draw a distinction between what is real worry and what isn't and should be ignored, or have replaced by some more desirable frame of mind. Or better still, some form of action — what the psychologists call 'occupational therapy'.

Anyway there is nothing like knowing your enemy, and this applies to worry as to everything else, as John Cain of Manchester, England knows. Playing cricket recently, Mr. Cain had to make a hurried exit from the field with his trousers on fire. A ball hit a box of matches in his pocket and they burst into flame.

Now rain often stops play in Manchester and it could have been a help to Mr. Cain in his predicament, but there was no mention of it in the report. It just said he had to quit the game — and good luck to him.

The worries of John Stakonis of Manchester, Conn., on the other hand appear to be of a much more general kind. And these are usually of the chronic variety because of their very lack of definition or identity. This seems to be the case with Mr. Stakonis who has founded a Worriers' Club on the theory that "worrying together is much more effective than worrying alone."

And it doubtless will be less expensive than consulting a psychiatrist. We wonder if Mr. Stakonis is a Greek. If so he could be following the advice of actress Melina Mercouri who said recently that most people in her country cannot afford psychiatrists — "so we talk with each other."

But what a waste of time really. Worry or anxiety in reasonable doses is an essential element in the motivation of the individual. However, it must be directed into positive channels to be effective. The best advice of all is Thomas Carlyle's suggestion that "you should live every day as if it were your last." That way there is no time for worry of the negative kind.

Lax Opposition Paves Way for Permissive Government

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is nothing wrong with the Government that a good Opposition couldn't fix, said Senator Thomas Crerar just before he gave up his seat in the Senate after 50 years of Parliamentary service.

If ever a man devoted his life to the public interest, it was Tom Crerar, tower of wise political strength in a half dozen Cabinets, and in his last 21 year the boss of the Senate.

When Tom Crerar spoke, first as MP, then as a Cabinet Minister, and finally as a Senator across those 50 years of devotion to his nation, people listened.

With respect.

It was his own Government of which he spoke.

And in it, he saw plenty that was wrong.

Liberalism, he lamented frequently, had turned to Welfare Statism.

Government spending — much of it for all the wrong things — was out of control. He warned, and with it, tax rates.

The Government's public posture in foreign affairs, he knew, much of the national leadership it offered, he counselled from time to time, was far too permissive.

(Mercifully, he had gone home to Winnipeg and retired a year months before this same permissive government rolled out the red carpet of welcome for that international trouble-maker French President de Gaulle, on his incendiary expedition across Quebec stoking the flames of Separatism.)

Tom Crerar must have been sickened by the sight of the Federal Cabinet three months ago last spring days turning English Canada's other cheek to this outrageous arrogance — then only after his shocking interference in our own private domestic "family affairs" billed him, diplomatically, to be gone.

But the old Statesman soer still would stick stubbornly to his proposition that even now, there could be nothing so drastically wrong, so pitifully weak about this Government that a good solid Opposition could not correct.

Correct, presumably, by offering some hard, meaningful Opposition to the lotsie and beyond, if necessary, of destroying it.

But who, in this Parliament, or in the last, in Parliament House of Commons since the Conservatives began practising to oppose, certainly the very best possible way to do it must be to vote against the Government at every reasonable opportunity.

Now among the reformers, in fact leading members of the Tory Tribe sworn to take the Old Chief's scalp, have been Alvin Hamilton MP's Gordon Aiken of Parry Sound-Muskoka, Heward Grafftey of Brome-Missisquoi, Jean Waddle of Grenville Dundas, and Heber Smith of Simcoe North.

John Diefenbaker was no leader, they said, and so they sought to dump Dief in the name of making the Opposition credible.

What kind of Opposition have these reformers, this element of revolt - for - the - better, been offering in this Parliament.

Well, if you are in the Opposition, and there in Parliament

Ecumenical Ceremony

Papal Nuncio Monsignor Jose Paupini blesses a new statue of San Isidro, patron saint of campesinos, at an ecumenical ceremony at Sutatenza, Colombia's Episcopal Bishop David Reed (centre) Rabbi David Sharbanl await their turn to add the blessings of their respective faiths. The statue shows San Isidro (right) encouraging a modern young campesino driving a tractor following a team of oxen pulling a plough. Latin American churchmen are counting on this modern, technical statue of San Isidro, to help switch campesinos from ox-type farming towards more productive methods, ensuring food for the continent's soaring population. (CP Photo)

Colombia's Catholic Church Adopts Progressive Policies

SUTATENZA, Colombia (CP) — Colombia's reputation as a redoubt of Roman Catholic conservatism in Latin America may never be the same after recent religious observances in this mountain village.

Nor, the church hopes, will the compliant campesino who comprises half the population of Latin America.

Campesinos of the Tenza Valley, silently treading the cloud-brushed hillside trails from where their tiny holdings clung to the sides of the cordilleras, were on hand here to see and hear events which would have been unthinkable in rural Colombia two years ago.

One statistic from recent history serves to show how unthinkable, and why.

A byproduct of the decade of Colombian political violence from 1948, which amounted to civil war, was the burning or dynamiting of at least 75 Protestant churches and schools.

Certain rural priests, their parishioners devout and unquestioning campesinos, preached something close to holy war against Protestants and the Liberal party.

Colombia's Liberal party was in no way Protestant, but it traditionally raised more questions about the Catholic Church's rights and authority than did the Conservative party.

Against this background, then, stands the recent ceremony in rural Sutatenza.

The occasion was the unveiling of a massive statue of San Isidro, patron saint of campesinos.

Thousands of campesinos from the surrounding hills, men and women alike wearing ponchos, watched in silent wonderment.

San Isidro proved to be no murky individual nearly eight feet tall. He wears no halo, but a ruana just as do the campesinos of the mountains around.

He appears to be urging greater efforts from a tractor with a begoggled driver, and from the equally modern campesino walking beside the tractor with a pesticide spray backpack.

The new San Isidro's message to all the campesinos of the continent: Don't count on the angels. Get on with the work yourself, and adapt to modern technique.

The statue was unveiled, in a two-man operation, by Raul Cardinal Silva of Santiago, Chile, and President Carlos Lleras Restrepo, an outstandingly combative leader of the Liberal party when the rural violence was at its worst. A cardinal and a Liberal president joining forces, even for so simple a task as unveiling a statue, would once have been beyond the understanding of Colombia's violence-racked campesinos.

The statue was blessed not only by Papal Nuncio Jose Paupin, but also by the Episcopal bishop of Colombia, David B. Reed, and Colombia's chief rabbi, David Sharbanl. Never before had Sutatenza's campesinos heard the prayers and praise of non-Catholic churchmen ring clear out across their Andean valley.

Lleras Restrepo, once an intransigent a leader that he ordered his Liberal party followers not to return any Conservative's civil "Good morning", had this to say of the church which campesinos regard as usually aligned with the Conservative party:

"The Colombian church has understood, perhaps more realistically and profoundly than any other guiding force in the world, the realities of the moment, and has placed itself a t the head of "rural transformation. . . .

"Long gone are those times when it was possible for some to identify the church with forces opposed to social justice. Times in which it was possible to speak more or less rightly of a tacit accord between the power structure and the church to maintain the status quo, to maintain certain privileges."

As Lleras Restrepo's government is a Liberal-Conservative coalition, such praise for the church as a progressive agency might seem unremarkable. Except that it was uttered in backlands Colombia.

Monsignor Anibal Munoz Duque, who as archbishop of Bogota is the senior active churchman of the nation, had this to say of the new - look San Isidro:

"Sidro is not the simple producer who attributes everything to technology. But nor is he the superstitious individual who attributes everything to prayer and abandons his plow to a pair of angels . . .

"The monument symbolizes the aspiration of the campesino. The tireless tractor displaces the weary yoke of the cxen. The laborer has his roots in the tradition of the hard - working campesino who rose at dawn as a man of faith and toil . . . but he progresses, modernizing his plow, because he knows modern progress is at his service and that is part of God's plan."

Sutatenza's campesinos were not the only ones present to witness the ceremony represented undreamed of changes.

J. Benton Rhoades, director of the agriculture and rural life department of the overseas division of the National Council of Churches of the U.S.A., had recent first - hand knowledge of the difficulties Protestantism'can face in the Latin American outbacks where the village priest's authority far exceeds that of the mayor or police chief.

At Sutatenza Rhoades said: "I never thought I would see an ecumenical assembly such as this in rural Latin America."

No One Will Run It

Catholic Centre Will Serve All

VICTORIA (CP) — An experimental project that depicts the new direction taken by the Roman Catholic Church begins soon in nearby Saanich.

Called the Thomas More Centre, it will serve all faiths as well as the faithless.

"This will not be a centre to push the Catholic religion", says the project director, Rev. Patrick Ratchford.

"Certainly it will serve as a community centre for Catholics but we hope it will also be a meeting place for dialogue and co-operation between persons of all beliefs and of no belief".

The centre will become an open house but "no one will run it", says Father Ratchford.

Although the zoning it will decide its use the centre will likely function as an informal meeting place and a forum for discussions, seminars and study in religion, philosophy and literature.

The centre is currently being furnished by voluntary donations. A library and reading room are included in the plans.

The experiment is an attempt "to engage in dialogue with modern men and to try to come to grips with the needs and questions of people today", said the clergyman.

"The church has to participate in search of modern men for the answers they need about the meaning of life. It can't stand aloof, nor, on the other hand, can it pretend to have all the answers.

"It has to listen too".

The More Centre, named for the former lord chancellor of England, will also serve the pastoral needs of Catholic students at the nearby University of Victoria.

A religion course will be set up in the fall for high school students, but it will be centred on discussions rather than classroom instruction.

The centre will also double as a kindergarten to meet the needs of the area.

With the exception of the kindergarten, most of the activities planned for the new Catholic enterprises. This will change in the fall when non-Catholics will be invited to become involved in the centre.

But no activities are planned for this phase.

We obviously can't plan what they will want", said Father Ratchford. "They'll have to decide that for themselves."

Theologians Plan Renewal Talks

TORONTO (CP) — Theologians from 13 countries, including five cardinals among 44 speakers, meet in Toronto Aug. 20 for the Roman Catholic Congress on the Theology of the Renewal of the Church.

Topics for discussion range from the interpretation of Genesis to birth control and are expected to have representation at the first world - wide synod of Catholic bishops, assembling Sept. 29 in Rome.

Communist Guerrillas Differ on How to Promote Revolutions

HAVANA (Reuters) — Hardline revolutionaries and traditional Communists clashed Friday over the issue of how to spread revolution in Latin America, according to delegates attending the Latin American solidarity conference in this Cuban capital.

The differences were aired behind closed doors Friday by four committees.

Jose Anselmo dos Santos of the Brazilian revolutionary Independence movement said in an interview there was a clear majority of delegates who feel that conditions throughout Latin America are ripe for guerrilla warfare.

However, other representatives, particularly those from Chile and Costa Rica, maintained on "objectives politics," dos Santos said.

The Brazilian delegate, who was officially reported dead in Brazil a year ago, said the "traditional Communists" want to wait longer for conditions to ripen.

Outside observers here believed the delegates apparently agreed not to get bogged down in arguments over a Soviet policy of keeping trade relations with Latin American "clientele." Such bickering could seriously split the Communist movement in Latin America.

Artificial Kidney Passes First Test on Human Volunteer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)— A prototype artificial kidney machine small enough to carry has passed its first major test on a human volunteer, a University of Michigan research team reported Friday.

The volunteer, William Kosenvich, 30, underwent two treatments this week. Researchers said in an interview that the trial run was "highly successful."

The apparatus, four inches in diameter and a foot long, was attached to Kosenvich's left arm. His blood was routed out of an artery into the apparatus, purified, and put back into a vein.

The research team was made up of physicians and engineers from the University of Michigan and Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis., and research engineers from Dow Chemical Co.

Researchers said no cost estimate on a production model was available but the portable machine likely would cost much less than conventional kidney machines, often as large as a washtub.

Some artificial kidneys now in use cost $20,000 or more.

Kosnevich was admitted to the university hospital last May suffering from kidney failure and is awaiting a kidney transplant.

Down East Wholemeal Bread

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Down in New Brunswick we had a delicious, different bread. It knew it had caraway seeds in it and I think maybe oatmeal. The restaurant where we ate made a feature of it but I did not have the nerve to ask for the recipe then. Now I wish I had. It was near Moncton where we ate on the Magnetic Hill. Would you have any idea what I am talking about? — Iris P.

ANSWER: Yes, I have been there myself, tasted the bread and came home and made my own version.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Winners on Baked Beans; Chili Sauce; Spinach; Salad Stuffed Tomatoes on Lettuce Cups; Lemon-Layered Angel Cake; Tea.

WHOLEMEAL BREAD

(with caraway or dill or poppy seeds)

1 pkg. granular yeast
2 tsps sugar
¼ cup lukewarm water (first amount)
2 cups lukewarm water (second amount)
2 cups stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup rolled oats
2½ tsps. salt
4 cups whole wheat (or graham) flour — divided
2 tbsps. caraway or dill or poppy seeds

NOTE: I have to warn you that this dough is sticky and you have to be prepared to scrape it from your hands after kneading. Its moisture is one of the factors that produces the lovely chewy loaf that you remember.

In a very large mixing bowl soak the yeast with the 2 tsps. sugar and ¼ cup lukewarm water for 10 min. Add the 2 cups lukewarm water, salt, oats, all-purpose flour and seeds of your choice and beat until thoroughly blended. Now add 3 cups of the whole wheat (or graham) flour as well as you can — you will have to use your hands.

Flour your kneading board with half of the remaining 1 cup of whole wheat (or graham) flour and knead the dough 300 times. It will be sticky going, but you can add a little more of the remaining whole wheat flour if it is too sticky, but reserve some for final kneading later. Rotate dough to scraped down bowl, cover and let rise until doubled and light — about 2 hrs. Punch down dough, sprinkle board with remaining flour and knead it into dough, kneading for about 5 min. Shape into 2 loaves in 2 buttered standard loaf pans. Spread tops with soft butter. Let rise until top surface is level with edge of pans. (This bread does not rise high like plain white bread.) Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 min.; reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. for 40 min. longer until crust is hard. Cool on rack. Superb sliced and toasted.

NOTE TO OTHER READERS: You will see that this recipe for Wholemeal Bread does not call for shortening. For those on no fat or low fat diets this bread recipe could be very appropriate.

'Methodist Handshake' Brings Back Memories

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your definition of a "Methodist handshake" brought back some wonderful memories.

Many years ago, when I was sweet 16, a handsome chap who was a couple of years older, asked me to go to the downtown recreation centre. (In those days, this was considered a very special date.)

ANN LANDERS

We played table tennis, did a little fashion tap dancing, and harmonized with the other players who had a handle her moustache. After a strawberry soda, we indulged in phonograph music and called it the end of a wonderful evening. He took me home on the streetcar and I was in seventh heaven.

When we reached the front door he asked if he could kiss me good night. I replied, "No, my mother wouldn't think it was very ladylike."

He looked at me in astonishment and asked, "What kind of a mother do you have, anyway?" I replied, "My mother is a Methodist." He smiled and answered, "O.K., then. Give me a Methodist handshake."

I shook his hand and shut the door. We moved away shortly after that and I never saw him again, but I will always remember that wonderful "Methodist handshake." I had not heard the expression in 40 years and then it popped up in your column — so thanks, for reviving some beautiful memories. — OHIO.

DEAR OHIO: Thank you for a delightful letter. If more 1967 readers recalled with a Methodist handshake my mail would be a lot lighter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a woman in my middle 30's who learned awfully late what life was all about.

Last winter I became ill and lost my job. A man I knew slightly took an interest in me. He helped out with the rent, paid my doctor bills and brought me groceries.

Gradually we drifted into an intimate relationship. He moved in and we are now living together. This was the last thing I want in a husband. I love him very much and he says he loves me, but whenever I mention marriage he says he can't afford it.

How can I get him to make this arrangement legal? I want a family. — WIFE WITH NO NAME.

DEAR NO NAME: Stop begging. Tell the guy to move out immediately and let him know it's an order — not a request. If you aren't back at work, you should be. Inform him there will be no more paying house until you are his legal wife.

If he doesn't come around to your way of thinking within three months, write him off and find someone whose ideas are more like yours.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have a summer cottage and we enjoy company. But we can't afford to entertain people around the clock seven days a week.

Water skiing is the big thing in this area but some folks don't realize how much it costs to run a boat hour after hour. The oil and gas bills are murder. We hate to mention it because it might sound cheap. Any suggestions? — TAPPED OUT.

DEAR TAPPED: When you feel a certain group has had enough — simply say, "Sorry, we're out of petrol, kiddies," and don't fill the tank until they leave.

Sex Education Strengthens Teen-agers' Morals

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Any teen-ager who states that sex education in the schools lessens morals is just making excuses for his own lack of moral fibre. If he has any morals and beliefs to begin with, nothing will shake them.

A psychologist has said that sex experimentation with sex is unpremeditated. The young, man, or more often the young woman, likes to think that he or she succumbed in a fit of uncontrollable passion. However, few are the unmarried ones who have intercourse without having thought the whole thing through — perhaps for months before.

Doris, you would be amazed at some of the misconceptions I have had to straighten out so the young person could sleep peacefully at night, and I am only 12!

Rather than loosening morals, I think sex education in the schools strengthens them. After all, in school, you learn the mechanics; at home you learn about the place of sex in life, and its beauty, just through seeing how your parents treat each other. To youngster from a home where the adults can't stand each other needs sex education twice as much to show him he may end up in the same predicament. Sex is a delicate thing to make his body public property.

In the end, each human being is responsible for what he or she succumbed in a fit of uncontrollable passion. However, few are the unmarried ones who have intercourse without having thought the whole thing through — perhaps for months before.

Doris, you would be amazed at some of the misconceptions I have had to straighten out so the young person could sleep peacefully at night, and I am only 12!

Rather than loosening morals, I think sex education in the schools strengthens them. After all, in school, you learn

Dear Doris: I have a perfect gentlemen. Would you please tell me if I could learn to play a corset or any musical instrument which is played by mouth? — Loves Music

Dear -Loves: Yes, indeedy. Many thousands of Americans musicians have partials; and my dental consultant says most people with even full denture basalts difficult instruments like trumpets, with no trouble at all.

Usually a partial denture is quite firm. If a full one is indicated to be wobbly, a touch of one of the commercial preparations designed to make it cling more solidly, often does the trick for a musician.

When writing in, allow Doris four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if a fivecarvings is enclosed.

Names Are Often Added To Glamorize Antiques

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Romance adds to the interest in antiques. Names are often added to glamorize a piece. The Rembrandt lamband is a perfect example used by many during the 19th century.

It was given its name at a later date by owners who noticed Rembrandt pictured a tankard of the same shape in several of his paintings.

The Rembrandt tankard is a Continental, not an American pewter shape.

It is often clever to call your pewter. After cleaning the pewter, rub petroleum jelly or a thin coat-coat of oil on the piece. Wipe it off.

The thin coating of oil will protect the pewter from the oxidizing elements in polluted air and will keep it shining. Do not use linseed oil or any oil with an odor. Pewter is somewhat porous and the oil will never be completely removed.

Q. Was plate slag made in more than one pattern?

A. Flint slag is a very mysterious glass that was made during the late 19th century. It looks like a strawberry marble cake, streaked brown with pink, green and white. No one is quite sure where the glass was made.

The only pattern that has been authenticated is called "Inverted Fan and Feather." The same pattern was made by several factories in other types of glass.

* * *

Q. "Manufactured and Sold by William S. Johnson, 1 Portland St., New York" is the label on my brass works, weight driven, OG clock.

A. William Johnson was listed in the New York City directories at several addresses from 1841 to 1861. He may not have made clocks but only assembled or purchased them.

Q. How long has the word "sterling" appeared on silver?

A. In America the word sterling was seen on a few pieces of silver after about 1820. It was required by law in 14 states by the 1830's. The word was used on silver from England during the 18th century. Ireland marked the silver starting in the 18th and 19th centuries.

* * *

Q. When were the elaborate cast iron dressing table mirrors popular?

A. Many American foundries were making cast iron frames and mirrors from about 1850 to 1875. They frames featured scrolls, rococo designs, flowers, fruit, and even patriotic motifs such as the eagle and flag.

BOOK REVIEW

"Antique Goldenrike and Those Marks" by Jackson (Scott or $12.50) is a reprint of a standard book written in 1935 about the silver and goldenrike of England, Scotland, and Ireland.

Ralph and Terry Kovel regret that they cannot research and appraise antiques by mail about antiques you may own. They do appreciate your questions which can be answered in the column. Pictures and drawings cannot be returned.

RECREATIONAL VEHICLES

". . . and it seems rather fitting that we Westerners travel east now in a modern version of the old covered wagon once used to go West . . ." —from a comment of a trailer owner from the West.

* * *

It was just dusk.

Returning from a drive in the country, my husband and I were discussing the late Frank O'Connor's amusing account of his boyhood when he was invited to spend the night with his chum who lived at the end of lane; how he solemnly packed his pyjamas in his father's big suit-case and dragged it along . . . when we noted a campground by the Trent River, not far from Belleville.

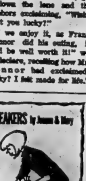
Out of curiosity, we drove around it and left, highly impressed by the group of people travelling in campers, trailers and motor homes, settling down before glowing bonfires, serving hot coffee, chatting, visiting, playing cards or games, quietly, informally. The atmosphere was one of genuine sociality and a camping for real: "In fact we compare as very suitably a 'New Breed'!"

"It is a great way to travel," he said, "and on weekends one stops, one meets wonderful people. We — my wife, our son and I — have just come from Expo. We are on our way home out West.

"Will you believe it when I tell you, I learned that around a million and a half visitors solved the accommodation problem by bringing their own with them, to date! That seven million more are expected to Expo by the time it closes in October!"

"Yes, being interested, since we are one of them, I gathered a few facts and figures. I understand, there are about 40,000 spaces for recreational vehicles in 258 official private parks, all within 8 to 60 miles of Expo.

"Such places are equipped with flush toilets, showers, running water, electrical hookups and they supply a babysitting service, refreshing kennels for pets, food stores and bus service, for less than $2.50 to $3.50 for each campsite.

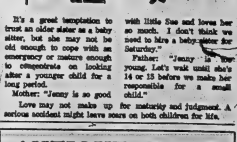


"Some 18,000 campsites do not have such standards. Complaints are being made to Expo which may lower a park's rating or refuse to list it for reservations.

"Logsapo, the housing bureau, urges prospective campers to make early reservations. It saves many people from roaming Montreal streets aimlessly seeking room, for many do park in the streets and sleep there in their trailers.

"In fact, for a time, about 500 recreational vehicles camped nightly at parking lots illegally, just outside the Expo grounds, which stayed on after 2 13 hour period of overnight parking. Campers are now no longer allowed there."

The young man sat, on his way to be with other youngsters, said: "Oh, we like to get together to talk about our cars, our wives, what make they are; but each thinks his is the best . . ." while his mother invited us to see their trailer.



Now, spic and span it was, a miniature apartment,

Those when picking up an object from the floor, bending from the hips instead of stooping, is not only embarrassing, it can cost you unnecessary backaches.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

It's a great temptation to trust an older sister as a baby sitter, but she may not be old enough to cope with an emergency or mature enough to concentrate on looking after a younger child for a long period.

Mother: "Jenny is so good with little Sue and leaves her so much. I don't think we need to hire a baby-sitter for Saturday."

Father: "Jenny is too young. Let's wait until she's 14 or 15 before we make her responsible for a small child."

Love may not make up for maturity and judgment. A serious accident might leave scars on both children for life.

SPORTSLICES

Will major league baseball history repeat itself — in reverse. With the acquisition of Rickey Howard, the Yankee crack catcher, Boston Red Sox fans are hoping it will.

The present generation of Bean-eater fans through the records and the patriarchs and Methuselah types through memory, recall the infamous steal staged by the Yankees when they grabbed the famous Babe Ruth from under their noses away back when.

Can Howard emulate the daring deeds of the great Rambler who was converted from a crack lefty pitcher to the greatest home-run hitter of all time? It is extremely doubtful.

At a reckie with the Red Sox in 1915, Ruth led the American League with an 18-6 record, then won 13 games in each of the next two seasons. He met the great Walter Johnson in eight clashes and won six, three by 1-0 scores.

The pitching days of Ruth ended when he joined the Yankees. To keep him in the daily lineup with his powerful bludgeon the Yankee manager Ed Barrow converted him to an outfielder.

He was still hitting fence-busting homers near the end of his career and considering all and sundry he had been the finest southpaw pitcher of the previous generation.

His last pitching victory is one for the book. Fifteen years after he hurled his last game the runner-up Yankees ended the season playing the Red Sox. Perhaps in a rub-it-in gesture Barrow started Ruth in per cent of the gate if he would return to the mound and pitch the final game. 35,000 fans was a big gate in those days.

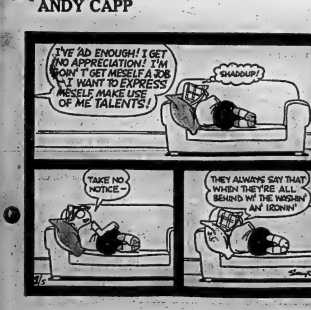
The Babe was proud of his pitching record — and he also liked money even if he threw it around at times like a juiced-up gob on shore leave.

The Babe jumped at the chance. But it was not to be and as far as he was concerned. The pride of the guy in his ability was challenged. He went out there to prove he still had the unique combination of hitting and pitching talents that made him baseball's most extraordinary performer.

The Boston fans with long memories wagered $10k would not last three or four innings. He staggered through five innings with a 6-5 lead which was enough to give him credit for the win. But he became a shot-out and he worked for it, with every muscle in his body aching and squeaking from the strain.

The famous left flipper began to stiffen. Every move sent pain through his body. He had to have the arm massaged between innings as he would a leg. The last time Ol' Sox' hair fanned the range. They blasted Ruth for three runs in the sixth and two more in the eighth. A run every time victory the Babe gritted his teeth and held on grimly.

Remember he was 39 years old, 20 pounds overweight and had not turned in a mound performance for 15 years. His fast ball couldn't knock a mosquito off a screen. His curve wobbled like a wounded duck on a rough lake.



But he hadn't forgotten how to pitch. He slowed up, yet slower and pain shooting through his arm like darts of fire managed to pin the ball where the Boxer batters could only get a piece of it.

However the Red Sox belted him for twelve hits eleven of them singles. And hitting the ball with such authority one hand Ruth stabbed one for his 34th homer in win the game 6-5.

Afterwards he was too tired to "comb my hair." But the Boston fans paid sterling tribute to the man they had lost.

Some 5,000 waited outside the stadium for Ruth. When eventually he made an appearance they applauded him like a virtuoso. The Babe stood there for two long moments basking in one of the last tributes he was to receive as a ballplayer. He finally acknowledged it by tipping his cap. With his right hand.

Americans Clinch Games

Canada, Brazil Battle For Second!

WINNIPEG (CP)—On the basis of gold medals, won, the United States has locked up its third consecutive Pan-American Games — but the fight for second place is wide open.

Canada, Brazil, Argentina, Mexico and Cuba are all in three with one more day of major competition.

Argentina and Cuba have six boxers left in contention for gold medals; Mexico has three.

Brazil has clinched the women's basketball gold.

Canada has six live entries in rowing and a few good bets left in track and field.

So far, the gold medals stack up this way:

U.S. 103, Canada and Brazil 9, Argentina 6, Mexico and Cuba 4.

Canada was shut out in the quest for gold Friday while the U.S. picked up six.

Susan Night, high - jumping brunette from Markham, Ont., registered her best height when she flew 5'7¾ to win a second-place silver.

Felix Capella, a guitar-playing former paratrooper from Midland, Ont., came second in the 500-metre walk—about 31 miles.

The U.S. took the gold in both events—Larry Young of California coming first with team-mate Goetz Klopfer third. Carl Heinz Merschant of Toronto was fourth. Only five of the seven walkers finished.

Eleanor Montgomery of Cleveland scored a repeat victory in the high jump at 5-10 and another U.S. girl, Frauretta Fatham, was third in 5-6. Sheila Flowers of St. Catharines, Ont., was seventh in the field of eight in 4-11.

Three Canadian boxers lost in the semi-finals, but each was awarded a bronze medal: Flyweight Walter Henry of Orillia, Ont., light - heavyweight Marijan Kolev of Vancouver, and Donato Padauno, Montreal.

They were the first Pan-American medals ever won by Canada in boxing.

Kolav got his bronze without ever winning a bout. He had a first-round bye in his division, which reduced the field to four and made him an automatic semi-finalist.

Young and Capella both protested about the facilities for long - distance walking.

Young called repeatedly for tea and got a soft drink, which made him ill. Capella said the drinks had been "sitting in the sun since 7 a.m."

Dave Bailey of Toronto, Canada's only sub - four - minute miler, established himself as the man to beat in today's 1,500 metre run as he and Ray Hassell of Edmonton won both heats of that event.

Abby Hoffman and Roberta Picou, both of Toronto, finished second in their respective heats to qualify for the women's 800-metre final.

Brian Donnelly of Oakville, Ont., was sixth in the men's 110-metre hurdles in 14.8, the gold medal going to Earl McCulloch of the U.S. in 13.4. Willie Davenport, U.S., took second with 13.6.

Joan Morales Echevarria, Cuba, third.

Tom Gage of Billings, Mont., won the gold in the hammer throw with a heave of 214-4. Enrique Samuello Ricardo of Cuba was second with George Frenn, U.S., third. Mike Cairns of Calgary threw 181-1, the first time a Canadian has thrown farther than 180 feet. Gary Sherwood of Coquitlam, B.C., tossed 178-2. They settled for sixth and seventh respectively.

Ralph Boston, U.S., won the long jump with a bound of 27-2½, with the silver medal going to Bob Beamon, U.S. Wes Clayton, Jamaica, was third. Michel Chartand of Montreal was sixth in the field of 10 with a leap of 24-2¼ and Bill Greenough, Halifax, eighth with 22-4¼.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver and Don Domansky of Port Arthur, Ont., sat out the 400-metre relay semi-final and Canada nearly fanned a cropper.

She qualified with hurdler Mark Arnold of Montreal in the lineup and with a long-jumper Charland running the anchor leg. Ed Hearne of Toronto and Frank Marfait of Oakville were the other legs.

Jerome was still bothered by a leg injury suffered in Wednesday's final of the 200 metres and Domansky was resting a tender hamstring - muscle for today's 1,600 relay final.

Jenny Meldrum of Toronto made it to the final of the 80-metre hurdles but Barbara Dalgleish of Ottawa was disqualified for two false starts.

Says Rules Robbed Him Of 2 Golds

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)— Dr. John Sobrian, gold medal winner in international aggregate competition at the national handgun matches here Friday, said international rules kept him from winning two gold medals for Canada at the Pan-American Games at Winnipeg.

The Omemee, Ont., physician said rules kept him out of Pan-American slow and rapid-fire competition.

Rules required he enter the centre-fire match, an event in which he usually doesn't compete, where he took a third-place bronze.

At the Connaught Ranges near here competitors on teams of fifteen, Sobrian won all three matches comprising the aggregate, out-shooting second-place Ron Woolger of Calgary and John Clifford of Penhold, Alta., both members of the RCMP.

Sobrian, who has been practising shooting two hours a day for the last two months, said pistol shooting requires tough self-discipline. "If you want to stay on top, you've got to shoot hard."

At the other end of the vocational spectrum, Sobrian began two veteran Canadian shooters battled it out in match rifle competition.

Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., defeated Cé Bon of St. Catharines, Ont., by a ball's eye.

Both riflemen represented Canada in Pan-Am competition at Winnipeg. In the four-match totals here Friday they both scored 1,596 out of a possible 1,600.

Thirteen Get Axe

Argos Cut Day; Suspend Dillard

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Eagle Day and flanker Pete Manning were among 13 players cut by Toronto Argonauts Friday when head coach Jim Cahill manipulated his roster down to the 32-man limit of the Canadian Football League.

Cahill also placed fullback Bo Dillard, obtained a couple of days ago from Calgary Stampeders, on the suspended list until salary negotiations and other matters have been completed.

Halfback, Charlie Scales, a National Football League veteran, was traded to Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference for players to be named later.

Three others, two of them imports, went on the 30-day injured list.

Day, said he hopes to be picked up by another CFL team. If not, he may consider joining Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League.

In addition to Day and Manning, five other Argos of last season were placed on waivers. The others were linebacker Gene Donaldson, Canadian linemen Dave Still and John Erickson, and import halfbacks Johnny Counts and Monk Bailey.

Also dropped were import defensive linemen Bill Sexton, Bob Richter, Allen Ray Aldrige and Ray Scott, import halfback Billy Fletcher and Canadian linemen Don Paquette.

Import Henry Stachits, who failed to dethrone Wally Gabler as regular quarterback, was placed on the 30 - day injured list.

Defensive end Mario Mariani and Canadian end Ron Atanasoff joined Schichtle on the injury list. Mariani, a 275-pound veteran, underwent back muscles Thursday in an exhibition game in Montreal.

Defensive halfback Jim Rountree, who missed all of the Argos' exhibition games with two broken ribs, was given a vote of confidence by Cahill when he was included in the 14-man import quota.

Ring Tournament

Terrell, Ellis Favored

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Ernie Terrell and Jimmy Ellis, a former sparmate of Cassius Clay, will be the favorites as two 12 - round matches today launch an eight - man tournament to crown a new world heavyweight boxing champion.

Clay is expected to be at ringside in the Astrodome for the start of the tournament sanctioned by the World Boxing Association after it stripped the undefeated Clay of his title after he refused induction into the army.

Terrell, who claimed the WBA version of the title for 53 months until Clay regained it last February, is a firm favorite over Thad Spencer, a San Francisco heavyweight boxer who had hoped to follow Terrell into the ring against Clay.

Ellis, a curious cloying style resembles that of Clay, holds a narrow edge over Leotis Martin, a relatively newcomer who got his big chance when Joe Frazier, the No. 2 challenger, decided to skip the tournament.

Both matches will be televised nationally by ABC starting at 5 p.m. EDT. The Ellis-Martin match is set for 5:15 p.m., with Terrell and Spencer following at 7:15 p.m.

Winners will move into the semi-finals against survivors of matches between Karl Mildenberger and Oscar Bonavena and between Floyd Patterson and Jerry Quarry.

Richmond Splits With Leafs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs had four hits Friday night in their International League doubleheader against Richmond Braves, but still managed to win one.

Veteran Al Yates slightly-built homer off reliever Larry Maxie in the opener gave Toronto a 1-0 victory after Richmond rookie Gary Nielsener had held them hitless through the first seven innings.

Veteran Bob Bruce pitched a three-hitter in the nine - inning second game to help Richmond record a 2-0 victory.

In doubleheader action elsewhere, Jacksonville swept two from Buffalo, 7-6 and 4-3, Toledo defeated Syracuse 3-2 and 5-4 and Columbus downed Rochester 4-1 in the nightcap after losing the opener 4-0.

Midgets Win Over Bantams

The plucky Belleville SACO bantam softball team kept abreast of Ellis' Midgets on the scoreboard for six innings before succumbing by a score of 12-3, in an exhibition game last night.

The winners exploded a nine run blast in the last three innings to lock the decision away.

Steve Ellis, Alan Travis, and Steve Gatcum shared the losers' pitching chores while Scott Wells, Jamie Hunter and Scott Reid batted for the midgets.

The bantam batters were Steve Gatcum, Bill Kirkham, Herb Painter, Bob Codling and Gary Thompson.

John Swaffer stroked four hits, and Gordon Hunter and Robin McMurter three each, to pace the winners. Scott Reid had two hits including a home run and Craig Adams had two singles.

Mets Mole Deeper Into Cellar; Twins Blank Bosox; Tigers Beaten

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Mets, settling ever deeper into the National League cellar, suffered a double defeat Friday night.

Not only were they beaten 3-0 by San Francisco Giants, the Mets also lost their own personal entry and it might be a long time before they find one to replace him.

Giants' pitcher Ray Sadecki had somehow not managed to beat the Mets for more than three years before Friday's victory. He had been defeated in each of his previous eight starts against them.

That situation was abruptly terminated when in 8 1-3 innings he gave up just six hits before getting some lend - missing help from Frank Lucy. It was the ace - leader's first victory in nearly a month and dropped the Mets 25½ games off the pace.

In other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals shut out Cincinnati Reds 5-0, Philadelphia Phillies crushed Houston Astros 7-1, Atlanta Braves beat Chicago Cubs 6-3 and Pittsburgh Pirates edged Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 in 10 innings.

Sadecki broke his jinx against the Mets by slowing down on the attack.

"I usually get out there and work too fast," he said. "It's a big problem with me. Catcher Tom Haller comes out and talks to me and won't five me that ball, so I have to slow down."

Sadecki struck out nine batters, drove in one run with a single and moved a runner to third with another. Jim Hart hit his 26th homer.

St. Louis moved seven games ahead of Chicago in the National League race, with Lonny Frey pitching Cincinnati just four hits. Bob Gibson drove in two runs and had three hits.

Dennis Menke had four hits and Joe Torre three as the Braves pummeled the Cubs with their 40th defeat in their last seven games. Pat Jarvis, 13-4, was the winning pitcher.

Jim Lefebvre's wild throw allowed Gene Alley to come in with Pittsburgh's winning run.

Walker Captures 2nd Medal

WINNIPEG (CP)—Felix Coppolla, 37-year-old shop foreman from Midland, Ont., finished second in the 50-kilometre walk Friday to win his second medal of the Pan-American Games.

Capella won the third - place bronze in the 30-kilometre walk.

Larry Young gave the United States its 20th gold medal by winning the walk.

Young's time of four hours 26 minutes and 20.8 seconds broke Otto Gaines record of 4:06:06.4 set in 1951 in Buenos Aires by Sixto Ibanez of Argentina.

Coppella's time of 4:35:59.6 also was far under the Gaines mark.

Cuban Nine Beats Americans

WINNIPEG (CP) — Cuba came back from a shaky start Friday night to defeat the United States 7-6 and forced a third game tonight in the best-of-three baseball final at the Pan-American Games.

A jittery infield that committed four errors and the wildness of starter Rigoberto Betancourt sinked the Americans to a 4-3 lead after six innings. But the Cubans tied up the game in the bottom of the fifth inning and were blessed to slap with two more runs in the bottom of the sixth.

Belkin Lone Canadian

TORONTO (CP)— Defending champion Mike Belkin is the only Canadian still in contention after Friday's play in the Ontario Centennial open tennis championships.

The Vancouver player, top-seeded in Canada, reiged mainly on two-fisted shots to defeat Davis Cup veteran Bob Bedard 6-2, 6-1.

"Belkin has definitely improved," Bedard said later, "but it was the worst match I ever played."

Belkin today meets Brazil's Ronnie Barnes in a semi-final match.

Soccer Flyers Defeat Wilsons

Trenton RCAF found progress difficult in the first half, then kicked up their heels and left Wilson Soccer fans thinking it was a Quinte Soccer league fixture Friday night.

The more - experienced home team held a 4-3 edge after the first half and increased the score to 10-3 in the second half, to win going away.

The game was fast and well played in the first 30 minutes, but Wilson's left most of their players behind in the final frame.

The outstanding feature of the game was the good sportsmanship displayed by both teams. Only twice was referee Harry Reed forced to call for fouls.

Western Open

Tour Have-Nots Ogle Loot

CHICAGO (AP)— The have-nots of golf's golden tournament tour are making a strong run for the $20,000 first prize of the Western Open.

At the start of today's third round, Labron Harris led with an eight-under-par 134. In two rounds he has 18 one - par greens.

Bob Stanton, 21-year-old Australian, and Terry Dill of Austin, Tex., were at 137. South Africa's Bob Verwey and Steve Oppermann were locked at 138.

Harris shot a 68 in Friday's second round, Stanton a 69, Verwey a 72 and Oppermann a 71.

Georges Knudson of Toronto and Verwey, shooting consistent golf, fired a 69 Friday to go with Thursday's 70 to share second round honors at 140.

Knudson's 69 included a 30 on the back nine.

In 61 126 are Julius Boros, finishing for his fourth triumph of the year, and Dave Marr, the 1965 National PGA champion. Boros fired a 68 Friday and Marr a 69.

Doug Sanders was in the 137 bracket, and John Pott and Gene Borek were 139.

Some of the year's biggest winners were fighting back strongly. Jack Nicklaus was grouped at 140, Gay Brewer at 141, and defending champion Billy Casper, Arnold Palmer and Don January at 142.

The field was cut to 79 players for today's round, and it took 145 or better to make it.

Football Cuts Names Join Unemployed Ranks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Several prominent names joined the ranks of the unemployed Friday as Canadian Football League clubs moved to cut squads to meet league limits.

Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference chopped a total of 23 players. All clubs were forced to reduce to 32 players—14 imports and 18 homebrews—by 11 p.m. EDT today.

Perhaps the best-known cut was quarterback Eagle Day, a standout in earlier tours with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders.

He was cut by Argos Friday when Coach Leo Cahill also dropped 12 others. Montreal cut five imports and five Canadians.

Day, criticized by some for his failure to salvage broken plays by running out of the pass-pocket, was overshadowed throughout training camp by Wally Gabler, several years younger than Day, 34.

Dropped by Toronto were linebacker Gene Donaldson, lineman Dave Still and John Erickson, defensive back Ron Stewart, Pete Manning, halfbacks Monk Bailey and Johnny Counts—all whom played Argo football last season.

Rookies released were Bill Semus, Bob Rochefort, Allen Ray Aldridge and Ray Scott, defensive lineman; import halfback Bill Fletcher and veteran Canadian lineman Don Papacostas.

Another import back, Charlie Scales, was traded to Montreal for a player to be named later.

The Argos placed quarterback Henry Shields on the 30-day influred list and dropped Ron Stewart on the suspended list temporarily.

Imports dropped by Montreal Coach O. K. Dalton included two backs — Willie Ross and Cornell Champion, acquired recently from Western club. Ross came from Calgary Stampeders and Champion from Edmonton Eskimos.

They were joined by flanker Bobby John Jr., linebacker Loren Buser and quarterback Ron Edwards. Canadians dropped were Ken Ploen, Ron Stemburg, punter Gino Serutta, centre Stan Smith, quarterback Bob Amer and defensive back Ken Dasenbrok.

Another once - prominent player, Gerry McDougall, was a surprising cut by Edmonton Eskimos.

Canadian Cheerleaders Ole's For Cuba, Puerto Rico

WINNIPEG (CP)—"We're for Cuba, couldn't be prouder. If you don't hear us, we yell a little louder."

The eight pretty cheerleaders rooting for Cuba's basketball team in the Pan - American Games were all Canadians.

With The Trotters

TORONTO (CP) — Nancy Brook, B., a seven-year-old mare owned by John and Kenneth Brook of Nancy, Ont., on Friday won the $3,500 Dukes Redoney invitation trot at Greenwood Raceway.

With Earl Graham in the saddle, the mare went the mile in 2:05 4-5 and won by a nose over Roy Herbert to return $8.80, $4.70 and $3.10.

The victory also made Nancy Brook B. a favorite for the $15,000 added Maple Leaf trot-ting classic at Greenwood, Aug. 31. Her win in Friday's Dukes Day race was worth $1,750 to the Brook partnership and brought the mare's seasonal winnings to $8,760.

Nancy Brook B. completed with Betsy Herbert to return a $27.40 exactor.

The daily double of A. Jamie in the first and Stormy Grattan in the second paid $50.90.

Pan-Am Rowing Tough Test For Canadians

WINNIPEG (CP) — Coach Wayne Prentiy of the Canadian rowing team is thinking about gold in the finals today of the Pan-American Games rowing competition.

But faced with an outstanding American contingent he may be just whistling in the dark.

Canadian crews are in the finals in six of the seven events to be run off today, with only the pairs with coxswain absent in the sidelines in pre-liminary action during the last two days.

Prentiy, a 31-year-old veteran of two Olympics and the British Empire Games eights, was "more than satisfied" with the way the University of British Columbia eights won the repechage Friday in a crisp six minutes, 4.1 seconds with a slight tailwind.

However, he cautioned elated supporters that while "it is a good time it is not that exceptional with a tailwind."

The winning time compared with the Games record of 6:16.5 for the 2,000 metres (about 1¼ miles) set by an American crew in 1963. Records can be established only in the finals.

The UBC crew's time did not alter feelings here that the Harvard crew, a local winner Thursday in 6:18, is favored to win the premier events. There was a stiff headwind Thursday and the Canadian's time that night, in finishing second to Uruguay, was 6:34.

Expo Lacrosse Our Indians Won It!

MONTREAL (CP) — It was Canadian Indian Day at Expo 67 Friday and an all-star team of Canadian Indians carried the celebration to the lacrosse field in trouncing a team of Indians from New York State 19-11.

The game was the first of a three-game, total-goal series of the All-Indian Lacrosse Association field lacrosse championship.

Young Gaylord Powless of Brantford, was the individual star for the winning side, with five goals and five assists. Gaylord is the 20-year-old son of Canadian coach Ross Powless. He is a star with Oshawa Green Gates, last year's Minto Cup champions.

The game was played under partial field and partial box lacrosse rules. Each team fielded a 10-man squad and used field lacrosse, six-foot-squares nets.

Both sides had tough going on the Expo Autostade's turf, left muddy by the heavy rain of the last two days.

Canada led 8-3 after the first quarter, 11-4 at half time and 14-8 at the three-quarter mark. Two Brantford boys, Irvin Thomas and John Bomberry, each scored a pair.

Singles were scored by Cap Bomberry, Jim Squires and Gil Bomberry, all of Brantford.

Referee Leo Theoret of Quebec City and Roger Valade of Cornwall, had a relatively easy game to handle. They were forced to call only nine penalties throughout.

Ontario Junior Golf Team

TORONTO (CP)—Peter Lago of Guelph and Mac Wilson of Kingsville, Ont., Friday had little trouble earning berths on the Ontario team in the Canadian junior men's golf championship.

But it took a playoff victory by Jim McCutcheon of Peterborough for Doug Fraser of Toronto to make the Aug. 21-22 competition at the Toronto Golf Club.

In the 18-hole matches Friday, Lago shot 72 and Wilson a 76 to the totals they shot Wednesday and Thursday in the provincial junior championships for 228s each.

Faulds and McCutcheon both had 73s Friday and wound up the regulation play with 231 scores.

With them on the team is Ian Thomas of London, Ont. Winner Thursday of the provincial championship with a 36 - hole score of 147.

EOBA Bantams Qualify For Finals

Belleville rallied for three runs in the final frame to defeat Peterborough 6-4 and win the Eastern Ontario EOBA bantam semi-final series two games straight.

The winners will now meet Oshawa in a similar series, to decide the EOBA championship.

Barry Coltkin slammed four hits in five times at bat to lead Belleville's attack.

Terry Meagher and Wayne Farrell hurled for Belleville and gave credit to their strong effort. They gave up five hits, walked seven, and threw shut-out ball the last 5.

Brian Riddell and Jeff Gilmour pitched 10-hit ball for the losers, striking out 10.

Glen Carleton followed Coltkin's example and stroked a double and single. Steve Thompson, Paul Hall, Stew Brooks and Wayne Farrell added base hits.

Belleville will host the only Peterborough batter to manage two hits, both singles.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

Fishing has been pretty good in Hastings and Prince Edward sections of the country the last couple of weeks.

Camp grounds at West Lake and East Lake are completely filled with tourists and local people have been having sunny weather we have been having.

West Lake is producing some very nice bass, walleye and pike, caught mainly on Mepps, Dardevlin wiggler and Voron baronss.

This body of water is very underused as a good fishing spot. Year after year, summer and winter, catches have been excellent. Fish clean body of water.

At West Lake some good limits of bass are being taken on minnows and Mepps. Quite a few good pike and lots of pickerel, but in the small category, have been caught the last few days and the real good fishing started a week ago with speed pike and pickerel.

Trolling for bass again some into its own with good catches being reported daily from the bottom of the lake.

Tbis lake is full of fish of all kinds and many American visitors have been fishing it for the last few days of their vacation either at the cottage or camping on some body of water where they can fish or relax.

Price Still Major Topic For Churchill Falls Power

QUEBEC (CP)—Price still is the major topic of discussion in current negotiations for the sale by Hydro - Quebec of power from the projected Churchill Falls, Labrador, hydroelectric development, Jean - Claude Lessard, president of Hydro - Quebec, said Friday.

Mr. Lessard used the phrase "if there is an agreement" in remarks he made before the Quebec legislature. And he termed the discussions "sharp enough."

The negotiations about price are going on between Hydro-Quebec, a provincially - owned electric utility, and Churchill Falls (Newfoundland) Corp., which is developing the huge Labrador project.

Construction work at Churchill Falls has begun.

Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec said during the Friday session that, "if the Churchill Falls project really goes into effect," the Quebec government will speedily undertake construction of a 100-mile road joining the Hydro - Quebec power project known as Manic 5 with Labrador City.

Manic 5 is situated near Gagnon, Que., about 400 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Hydro - Quebec already has signed a letter of intent with the Churchill Falls corporation.

This involves the projected purchase by Hydro of some of Lessard said the harnessing of 32 Falls, and its delivery to customers, possibly including some in the United States, after transmission through Quebec on Hydro - Quebec lines.

Both Mr. Johnson and Mr. ill Falls purchase is signed.

Planes Hit Gun Emplacements

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes kept up heavy pressure on North Vietnam Friday, flying 145 missions after a record 152 strikes the previous day. A main target was the guns which were shooting at them.

U.S. Air Force F-105 Thunderchief pilots reported they destroyed at least 17 anti-aircraft gun emplacements around the air field and railroad yard at Kep, 38 miles northeast of Hanoi.

Thunderchief pilots flew through heavy anti-aircraft fire and surface-to-air missiles to hit other targets around Kep and Hoang Lu, Ground fighting continued in one of its periodic lulls.

U.S. Air Force Col. Grant Greenwood said the attack was aimed at two U.S. military installations near Saigon. -

For the second time in 10 days, the Communists unleashed a mortar attack on the base camp of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division's 3rd Brigade at Lai Khe, 30 miles north of Saigon.

The attack Friday night killed one American and wounded eight.

The U.S. naval base at Nha Be, eight miles southeast of Saigon, came under Communist attack early today.

A navy spokesman said the Communists fired just eight rounds into Nha Be, which is defended by a South Vietnamese unit. No casualties were reported.

To Your Good Health

Sugar Content Variance Not Unusual

Dear Dr. Molner: What verifies whether you are a diabetic? I had two glucose tolerance tests. One showed I was hypo (low blood sugar) and the other hyper (high sugar).

One doctor said I had diabetes and put me on a diabetes diet. The other said I had hypoglycemia, or low blood sugar, and said I should have a different diet.

Now I am in a quandry, and also worried because my mother HAS diabetes, as do her two sisters and a great-aunt. — Mrs. A. V. A.

I don't know all your symptoms but the figures you gave me on your sugar tolerance tests, plus the fact that you have four relatives with the disease make me think that you are a diabetic.

The figures are a bit too technical for me to quote, but they boil down to this: In both tests you reached peaks of over 200 in sugar level.

After the first test, you did not get below 120 by the second hour after eating. In the other (fasting) test, the blood sugars at first were in normal range, but the fact that you dipped to a level of 50 in the fifth hour of fasting does not rule out diabetes.

It is not unusual for potential diabetics to have periods of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) at times, along with the usual symptoms of this condition — yet later develop substantiable signs of diabetes.

It is commonly said that hypoglycemia is "the opposite of diabetes," but it is not as simple as that. The dynamics of sugar level, the circumstances under which it rises or falls, is important. The absolute level at any one time does not tell the whole story.

If you were my patient, I would be convinced that if you do not already have diabetes (but I think you do) you are in any event on the way to developing it.

Therefore I agree that you should be on the low-carbohydrate diet which you mentioned in part of the letter I deleted. The best time to start getting diabetes under control is before it has developed into a full-blown case of the disease.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother believes the house is infested with small invisible insects or mites. She seems to be the only one bothered with them, with a sensation of biting or crawling.

All our efforts have been in vain, such as fumigating and trying different insecticides. The only solution we can come up with is that my mother's skin is over-sensitive. What would you suggest? — Mrs. A.

Imagining that insects are crawling or biting is a not-uncommon manifestation of emotional or nervous disorders.

Since you have already taken extraordinary steps to make sure that such invisible "insects" are not in the house, I would suggest that you discuss with your doctor the advisability of a psychiatric examination.

Dear Dr. Molner: You wrote not to scratch if shingles it ches. That is almost impossible, dear doctor. I thought I would go crazy. I tried putting on good old-fashioned corn starch which gave more relief than anything. — Mrs. W. S.

You still shouldn't scratch, because it just makes things worse, although I agree that it's difficult not to scratch an itch.

If the starch helps, use it. A bath with starch in the water is also soothing to most skin irritations, and I've mentioned it before. Calamine lotion also is soothing.

Mine-mill, Steel Merger Endorsed

TORONTO (CP) — Unofficial returns indicate Thursday's referendum among Canadian members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) approved a merger with the United Steelworkers of America by a margin of about three to one.

William Longridge, national secretary - treasurer of Mine-Mill said Friday results telephoned to him "are running about three to one nationally in favor of the merger."

He said he had heard from locals representing about 11,000 of Mine-Mill's 13,000 Canadian members.

"It looks like there is no doubt about it—the merger has been overwhelmingly accepted by the men," he said.

However, Mr. Longridge said the outcome of the referendum will remain unofficial until Aug. 31. On that day he will officially tabulate sealed results mailed to him from locals across the country.

Unofficial totals show the 6,000 mine - Mill members at Trail, and Kimberley, B.C., voted 75 per cent in favor of amalgamation with the Steelworkers. The margin there was 2,087 to 677.

Figures were not available for Wedge, N.B., but Mr. Longridge said totals there are "about 95 per cent in favor of amalgamation."

The only aberrant area was Sudbury where 3,100 men in four mines voted 53 per cent against the merger. Unofficial totals there were 2,135 to 946 against.

The merger was first approved by the executives of the two unions, which already have amalgamated in the U.S.

It was then agreed to at a June Mine-Mill convention in Winnipeg.

The referendum is to be the last step in the ratification process.

Kenneth Smith, national president of Mine-Mill, said Friday he was "delighted" with the results.

Island Airport Proposed

TORONTO (CP)—A proposal for construction of a waterfront airport that would handle increased air traffic including supersonic aircraft will be put before the Metropolitan Toronto Transportation Committee this month.

The multi-million-dollar project is the brainchild of a group belonging to the Civic Action League, Toronto's fledgling political party. Alderman Tony O'Donohue, a civil engineer, is leader of the group.

The proposed airport would be built on a man-made island in the bay between the foot of Bathurst and Dufferin streets and the Toronto Islands.

War Dance Protests UK Support

LONDON (AP) — African drums beat at the British foreign office Friday and students from the breakaway Nigerian state of Biafra danced a war dance to protest British support for federal forces.

Tall London bobbies looked bored, American tourists goggled and elegant dark carriages, the horses of the Queen's Life Guards stamped their hooves at the unaccustomed noise.

A man wearing what looked like a checkered mini-skirt led the processional with an array of wickerwork and feathers precariously balanced on his head. They sprinkled on him a small medicine bottle on the ground before starting to dance.

Twenty girls in West African costumes carried banners reading "America is neutral — Britain declares open stand." A clergyman carried a photograph of Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu, head of the breakaway state. A yellow, black and green flag also was displayed.

Police arrived at Downing Street, but four of the Biafrans headed in a protest message for Prime Minister Macmillan. While they did so, Downing Street remained by the unfamiliar sound of drums and Whitehall, 200 yards away.

Biafra, the eastern section, has declared its independence of the federal Nigerian government in Lagos in a bitter tribal dispute, and fighting has broken out as Lagos authorities attempt to impose their rule.

Dief Vetoes Book's Thesis

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Premier E. C. Manning's new book on federal politics caused only the gentlest of ripples when it was released Friday.

In the book, the premier, dean of Canada's government leaders, calls on the national Progressive Conservative party to lead the country into a political renewal at the federal level.

Mr. Manning says the Social Credit movement, of which he has long been the philosophical leader, cannot alone effect a national political renaissance.

The only reasonable alternative, he says, is for the national Progressive Conservative party to take advantage of what the premier calls its present state of disarray and rebuild from the bottom up.

A rebuilt Progressive Conservative party then could attract all those who subscribe to what Mr. Manning identifies as "Social Conservative" ideology and thereby stimulate a realignment and realignment of federal politics.

"In the national field," the premier writes, "the Social Credit party can make its maximum contribution to the fostering of its own ideals and principles . . . when everything within its power to encourage and assist in bringing about an effective reorganization of the Progressive Conservative party of Canada."

National Leader John Diefenbaker rejected Premier Manning's thesis.

"The party will not, under any circumstances, be persuaded to go back to a reactionary base," Mr. Diefenbaker said at a Calgary press conference.

The premier also is at pains to make clear that he himself has no aspirations whatever to lead a national political party. He says he is prepared simply to assist in any constructive reorganization of federal politics.

Not in Disarray

He dismissed Mr. Manning's contention that the national Conservatives are in disarray.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it would be "quite impossible under the democratic system" to have Canadian federal politics restricted to two parties. Premier Manning says in his book that he is seeking to polarize the federal system into two parties, one a "Social Conservative" party and the other a party with a Socialist "collectivist" approach.

Other initial comment Friday morning was non - committal. Former national Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said he would read the book before commenting on its contents.

Mr. Thompson resigned as national party leader March 17, saying the reason for his resignation was that "the present political situation in Canada is weak in the national sense." Social Credit has five seats in the 265-seat Commons.

In his book, Premier Manning makes clear that he is not endorsing the national Progressive Conservative party in its present form. He would endorse it only if it rededicated its principles, policies and structure as he urges.

The premier also is at pains to make clear that he himself has no aspirations whatever to lead a national political party. He says he is prepared simply to assist in any constructive reorganization of federal politics.

No Aspirations

At a Toronto press conference Friday where he introduced his book, Mr. Manning said: "I want to make it perfectly clear that I have no federal political aspirations. I've been in politics longer than any other person in Canada—22 consecutive years. Perhaps I've served my time."

Asked if this meant he planned to retire from provincial politics, the premier said, "I expect to retire—someday."

Mr. Manning says that if the political realignment he advocates is put into effect by the Conservative party the Social Credit party "could conceivably disappear as a separate national political entity" and become part of a bigger and more effective "Social Conservative" force.

Individual Stressed

Social programs should aim to create not a "great society," but a "society of great individuals."

Mr. Manning's 84-page volume is entitled "Political Realignment: A Challenge to Thoughtful Canadians."

It is published at a time when the national Conservatives are heavily engaged in the race for the party leadership, to be decided at a Toronto convention Sept. 6-8.

In Alberta, Premier Manning faces a re-vitalized legislative opposition led by provincial Conservative leader Peter Lougheed. Mr. Lougheed said Friday his only initial comment on the president's book was that it seemed to have relevance mainly in the federal field.

Social Credit holds 55 seats in the Alberta legislature and the main opposition includes six Conservatives.

Mr. Manning says in his book that there are several major sources of confusion in federal politics: "Among the clear-cut alternatives based on principles, the incapability of present parties to implement sound policy, the contradictory partisan discussions between people capable of agreement, the dissatisfaction with present political leaders."

Resolution of these problems requires not "superficial mergers or unions of expediency" but a fundamental realignment of political groupings.

Contenders Attending

Campaigning Out at PCs' Thinkers' Rally

OTTAWA (CP) —All Conservative leadership contenders are expected to attend the Progressive Conservative conference next week but campaigning will be discouraged, organizers said Friday.

The conference opens Monday in the suburban resort of Mallorytown Montmorency.

V. F. Valentine, professor of sociology at Carleton University here and chairman of the conference, said all nine declared contenders have been invited and as far as he knows all would attend.

But he added that the candidates have been "asked not to seek opportunities to speak."

Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker rejected Premier Manning's thesis.

"The party will not, under any circumstances, be persuaded to go back to a reactionary base," Mr. Diefenbaker said at a Calgary press conference.

The conference is to produce suggestions and guidelines for the 400-member policy advisory committee of the party, which meets in Toronto immediately before the Sept. 6-9 leadership convention.

Fred Valentine, outlining plans for the thinkers' conclave at a press conference, said there will be a heavy representation of university people—not necessarily conservative in outlook.

He said some 43 academics have accepted, along with 42 Conservative members of Parliament and the legislatures and 42 "lay" people.

Asked how many of the participants are adherents of the Conservative party, he replied: "I would say roughly two-thirds—perhaps more. I didn't even think of breaking it down that way."

He said the chairman of the four-day conference will be Ontario's education minister, William Davis, who also will be chairman of the convention policy committee.

Mr. Davis had been considered a possible leadership candidate but now is expected to stay out of the race.

Premier Roberts of Ontario, also considered a possible candidate, will speak to the conference Wednesday night.

Prof. Valentine said he believed the original idea for the conference came from Party President Dalton Camp, although he was not certain of this. Mr. Camp is to attend.

He said a subcommittee of the party's convention committee selected the delegates and that the committee will pay room - and - board costs of all delegates, plus travelling expenses for the academics.

Asked about his own political status, he said he is not a Conservative "in the card-carrying sense" and probably would have done a similar organizing job for the Liberal or NDP parties if he had been asked.

He said party labels mean nothing to him, although participation in the conference would probably "leave the label Conservative on me."

But he said he thought he reflected the views of many Canadians who were "a little bit confused about what's happening."

Same Thing Different Way: Fulton

VANCOUVER (CP) — Davie Fulton said Friday he has been saying in a different way what Premier R. C. Manning of Alberta says in a book.

"The premier, in his book with refreshing candor describes what it is he is to succeed.

He urged Conservatives to adopt principles of "liberal conservatism" which might attract Social Creditors and some Liberals in forming a new right-of-centre political grouping.

Mr. Manning says the action would provide the alternative to what he calls a drift toward collectivism.

Mr. Fulton, MP for Kamloops, told a press conference:

"The leadership convention gives us (Conservatives) opportunity and responsibility to set out principals around which hundreds of Canadians who are undecided (politically) now can group themselves."

Mr. Fulton is one of nine candidates for the party's Toronto leadership convention in September.

Boys Plan Expo Trip Via Florida

BRANTFORD (CP) — Five city youths who bought a bus to go to Expo plan it west this weekend for the 15,000-mile trip, via British Columbia, California, Florida and the United States eastern seaboard into Quebec.

John Waters, 20, Ray Hanson, 20, Brian McLean, 21, Robert Preece, 19, and Don Thompson, 20, scrimped to buy the bus and adventurous. They bought the 37 - passenger courier for $650.

They spent more licensing it —$76—than remodelling the interior—$50 worth. Included removing seats and luggage racks and installing bunks, refrigerator, stove, lamps and other furnishings.

Most furnishings were scrounged. Mrs. Gordon A. Girt friends donated curtains and a four-foot-tall stuffed rabbit with long floppy ears in a sad mood.

The trip is costing each about $1,000 which includes $2,000 for gasoline.

They expect to return to Brantford Oct. 8. On the way the boys are handing out souvenirs and pamphlets promoting Brantford.

They stood on the terrace to watch Blackfoot, Cree and Iroquois dancers in feathers, buckskin and ankle bells stomp out war dances, grass dances, and a fast-paced hoop dance to the beat of a drum coming for the ornament on the top of a piece of Expo statuary.

"He's lucky he wasn't a white man. He'd have scalped him," one Iroquois woman dancer told a laughing audience after throwing her brave to the terrace floor during a stamping scalping dance.

Earlier in the day the Governor-General and Mrs. Michener scampered for cover in a rest-room on the edge of Place des Nations as a summer deluge brought an abrupt end to a performance of the Plains Indians' powwow.

But while a crowd of about 6,000 ran for cover, Blackfoot and Cree performers from Alberta Indian reserves and the flaps of three nearby teepees to put on a small-scale entertainment for a handful of Expo-goers who crowded in with them.

Indians Do War Dance

Michener at Four-hour Feast During Indian Day at Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—Politeness and beleathered Indians shuffled out the steps of a huge circular Manchiko dance Friday, as a raindight powwow brought an end to Indians of Canada Day at Expo 67.

The bobbing dance on the open-air terrace of Helene de Champlain restaurant followed a four-hour feast which saw Governor-General Roland Michener hoisting beer and chomping buffalo meat in the midst of a joking group of Indian chiefs.

Obviously in a jovial mood, the silver-haired governor-general borrowed the turkey-feathered headdress of Huron Chief Max Gros-Louis to pose for photographers' cameras, then tucked into his juicy buffalo with gusto.

Among 400 guests invited to the party by special dookin invitations issued last week were commissioner General Roland Michener and the American secretaries at Expo plus buckskinned Indian chiefs from across Canada.

"A little rain doesn't stop an Indian," chuckled Alex Twasty Youngman, a Blackfoot from Cluny, Alta., as he stomped his way through a fast-paced rabbit dance for a little crowd of delighted watchers.

Commissioner-General Pierre Dupuy and eight other Expo bosses became honorary Indian chieftains during the day which lives about 6,000 Indians from across Canada to these longer-shaped pavilion.

Chief Andrew Delisle, commissioner-general of the pavilion and head of Montreal's 5,000 Caughnawaga Iroquois, presented Mr. Dupuis with a bright turkey - feather headdress and proclaimed him Chief Ka-Ta-Too-Tiny, meaning Chief Flying Clan Symbol.

Indians "still continue to be Canadians in thought and action so long as the sun shines, the rivers flow and the grass grows," Chief Delisle told a clapping audience during presentation ceremonies in the big open-air square.

Decisions Spasmodic: Stanfield

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Policy decisions of the national Progressive Conservative party are "spasmodic" responses to events, rather than implementation of the established long-range policy, Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia said here Friday.

This is due to "the obstacle we've had," he emphasized, and not the fault of leadership organization.

Mr. Stanfield, a candidate for the party's national leadership told a press conference he wants to "emphasize as hard as I can" the need for a new policy approach in both the country and his own party.

The Progressive Conservative party should be "dynamic," with an appeal to people in all walks of life, including both French and English speaking Canadians.

It is therefore necessary to emphasize that policy-making is a continuing process and the result of consultation rather than a decision "at the top of someone's head" in a crisis or emergency, he said. This has been the kind of "improvisation" that has passed for policy up to now.

A broad "philosophy," in terms of such matters as education and human development, is preferable to "pinnacle and goodies to attract popular support," he remarked.

UN Won't Assist Tynwald

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters)—The Isle of Man Parliament, the Tynwald, will be disappointed if it expects help from the United Nations in its revolt against British plans, qualified sources said Friday.

This does not mean the UN would refuse to consider an appeal from the Tynwald, the sources said. But it would not lead to the intervention of UN fact-finding team or any other meaningful action in the foreseeable future.

The House of Keys—the Tynwald—is due to meet in emergency session Tuesday to vote on a resolution calling for a UN investigation into the British government's proposals to apply British legislation to the island against the Manx Parliament's wishes.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Attitude Toward Retirement Secret of Successful One

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I was catapulted into retirement at the age of 56. It was a coronary attack, and I was told my working days were over.

"I believed the business I was leaving would fall without me. So I told my successor to call me if he needed any help.

"The business surprisingly didn't fail. And I began to suspect that my presence isn't going to call me because it has now been nearly 20 years since I left.

Thus does a happy, well-adjusted man — a Mr. Brown — tell what retirement can be like up to the age of 76.

"I got a happy out out," he says, "with those readers of yours who view retirement with the same fear and uncertainty they would view a sentence in the penitentiary. It is just not that bad.

"My first move after retiring was to sell our family home, then invest my $10,000 equity in it in Bonds. My wife and I distributed our furniture and keepsakes to the family. Then we set out for a city 1,000 miles away to make our retirement home. . .

Mr. Brown had a little money. He also had some small investments in stocks he bought annuity, and came up with a retirement income of $270 a month. He and Mrs. Brown moved into a small furnished apartment.

"I found that people are people, whether they live in Kalamazoo, Kokomo, or Miami, and that congenial ones gravitate to and one another wherever they are.

"I found, too," he continues, "that I now had time to read books I had never had time to read, to help my wife with housework in our small apartment, to enjoy TV and radio, to enjoy the simple pleasures of life and the beauties of nature.

"I found enjoyment in keeping up with my small stock investments, most of which have grown. I found our $270 a month income fairly adequate."

Shulman Proof No Discrimination Inquiry Told

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario supervising coroner's executive assistant told the Parker royal commission inquiry Friday that Dr. Morton Shulman is himself convinced there is no racial discrimination in the appointment of Toronto coroners.

Jack Ellis also told the commission that Dr. Shulman, a Jew, handled more investigations than any other Toronto coroner during the seven years before he was appointed chief Metropolitan Toronto coroner in 1963.

Dr. Shulman, appointed a coroner in 1953, was fired as chief coroner in March, 1966. His subsequent charges of government suppression of inquests and inquest evidence led to the inquiry.

Mr. Ellis's statements were in reply to charges Thursday by Dr. Shulman that senior civil servants were practising racial discrimination in the appointment of coroners.

The former chief coroner also claimed that non-Anglo Saxon coroners in Toronto were never given assignments.

Mr. Hills said that a study by the attorney - general's department in 1962 showed that Dr. Shulman handled more cases between 1957 and 1962 than any other Toronto coroner.

Dr. Shulman said later outside the hearing he would prove Mr. Hills wrong.

Dr. Shulman's charge of racial discrimination were also denied by Frank Wilson, assistant deputy attorney - general.

Dr. Shulman told the inquiry Thursday that he telephoned Mr. Wilson in June last year to ask what had happened to an application for a coroner's position filed about a year earlier by Dr. George Serony, a Hungarian-Canadian.

Dr. Shulman said Mr. Wilson "made certain upsetting comments about Dr. Serony's nationality and informed me some persons' applications had been longer to process than others."

"That's a bizarre and speculative allegation and I've never had it made before either in practice or in life," Mr. Wilson said Friday.

"I didn't recall the application when Dr. Shulman phoned and I asked him to spell Dr. Serony's name so I could check the file.

"I deny that I asked Dr. Serony's nationality. We don't file under nationalities."

Mr. Wilson said there was a delay in deciding on Dr. Serony's application because Dr. Serony was a specialist in internal medicines and alcoholism research.

The inquiry continues Tuesday. Commission counsel Charles Dubin said he may review he expects the inquiry will end early next week and all lawyers involved will be asked to prepare their final arguments.

Mr. Dubin said 20 volumes of evidence have been presented so far and he "couldn't even guess" how long it would take Mr. Justice W. D. Parker to prepare his report.

Fire Regulations Tightened

TORONTO (CP)—The provincial cabinet has approved more stringent fire regulations for public buildings.

Regulations filed Friday under the Public Hospitals Act ban the use of carbon-tetrachloride fire extinguishers and define the responsibility of hospital administrators for fire - safety measures.

A spokesman said the carbon-tetrachloride fire extinguishers have been prohibited because under certain circumstances they combined with liquids to form lethal gases.

Approval of the fire marshal must be sought for all new fire alarm systems.

The regulations say hospital administrators are responsible for:

—Inspection of fire alarm systems and fire fighting equipment at least once a month;

—Instruction of all hospital staff in the use of fire-fighting equipment;

—Establishment and posting of written fire-safety procedures and staff training in the procedures;

—Carrying out fire drills where possible;

—Maintenance of handwritten records of inspections, test and practices for a two-year period;

—Carrying out of "no smoking" rules in hospitals;

—Protection of patients against electrical shocks.

Sailors' Strike Likely Aug. 17

MONTREAL (CP)—Leonard McLaughlin, president of the Seafarers International Union, Monday notified 32 Canadian shipping companies of an Aug. 17 strike deadline.

In a telegram to the companies, which handle the bulk of Great Lakes transport, he said that if a current membership vote rejects a majority conciliation board report a strike would start at noon Aug. 17.

About 5,400 seamen would walk off 130 vessels on the Great Lakes and along the east coast.

Other maritime unions have pledged to respect the SIU picksets and the strike could tie up shipping across Canada.

Union members began voting last Friday on the conciliation report, which union officials claim falls far short of meeting union demands for a 40-hour work week, an improved system of manning of ships and a proper pension plan.

About 73 per cent of the membership involved had voted by Monday, a union spokesman said, and tabulating of ballots would begin in Montreal Wednesday.

OTTAWA (CP)—The threat of a country-wide shipping strike Aug. 17 is being discussed by the cabinet today, a government spokesman said. An effort will almost certainly be made to head it off.

Labor Minister Nicholson was to report to his cabinet colleagues on the situation created by the decision of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada to reject a conciliation board majority report.

The report proposed a package of wage increases and fringe benefits worth in excess of 20 per cent over two years. But the SIU has also demanded immediate action on adoption of the 40-hour work week for Canadian sailors on the Great Lakes and East Coast.

Metro's 'Pot' Smokers Number 25,000, Claim

TORONTO (CP)— There are 15,000 to 25,000 marijuana smokers in Metropolitan Toronto, the manager of a store that supplies accessories to "pot" smokers, said in an interview Monday.

William Gibson, 30, manager of the Head Shop Ltd. in the Yorkville coffee-house district, said lawyers, doctors and university professors are among regular users of marijuana.

He said that in five days, more than 3,000 persons have signed a petition to be pardoned to have marijuana legalized.

"Marijuana is used today by important people," he said. "We expect many thousand more names on the petition which will be presented to the federal government."

Most of the signatures have been obtained at the shop while others have been added to the petition on the streets of Yorkville, Mr. Gibson said.

Newark Jails Finally Clear

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Three weeks of arraignments and indictments by the Essex County grand jury finally have cleared Newark jails of most of the 1,465 persons arrested during racial violence last month.

Most of those arrested between the evening of July 12, when the riots began, and the morning of July 17, when Governor Richard J. Hughes declared the emergency over, have been released on bail or in the custody of their lawyers.

But Assistant County Prosecutor William R. Furlani said Monday that another 400 to 500 complaints are still to be heard by the grand jury. Furlani said 480 indictments involving 700 persons have been returned and 55 complaints involving 70 persons have been dismissed.

Statistics compiled from police records by the U.S. marshall's office here revealed that 80 per cent of those arrested live in Newark and that nearly 50 per cent were more than 25 years old. The records appeared to discount claims by some city police that the riots were the work of "young outsiders."

Priority Is Given Air Force

By ERNESTO MENDOZA

CAIRO (Reuters)—Egypt is giving top priority to the air force in its reorganization and buildup of armed forces following the Middle East war, informed sources here say.

As part of the military buildup, some foreign military attaches here expect Egypt to improve its radar and air defence network, keeping some air squadrons on 24-hour alert.

However, a veil of secrecy covers Egyptian military plans.

Some diplomatic sources here believed there are 1,500 Russian and 500 other East European military advisers in Egypt. But this could not be officially confirmed.

Vietnam Camp Raided

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Special Forces troops and South Vietnamese irregulars counted 116 North Vietnamese dead today after repelling a mortar and ground attack on a special forces camp near the Cambodian border.

Casualties among the 500 defenders were light. Sergeant Ta Tong Le Chou were turned moderate, meaning they were hit hard.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the 165th North Vietnamese Regiment, believed to number some 2,000 men, attacked the camp 54 miles northwest of Saigon early Monday and fighting raged for many hours.

Chinese Press Fears Coup by Army Officers

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Sharpened struggles for power in China's huge army came to light today with reports in the official press stressing the danger of a coup by "reactionary" army officers.

At the same time, the campaign to topple head of state Liu Shao-chi gained intensity with a call for a "struggle to the end" to liquidate Liu and "his agents."

Radio Canton said "the Khrushchev of China," the official abusive term to describe Liu, and his supporters have launched a second, more severe counterattack against revolutionaries in the army's general logistics department.

Meanwhile, the New China news agency quoted an article attributed to an army unit, the Red 8th Company, saying that a bourgeois power holders in the military and reactionary army officers are the most dangerous enemies of party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's followers.

The article, published in the Peking people's Daily, refers to a "decisive battle" now going on between Maoists and Liu's supporters and warns: "If conditions ripen, they (anti-Maoists) will seize military and political power and turn the dictatorship of the proletariat into a bourgeois power holders in the

Jordan Ousting Refugees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Jordanian government is putting pressure on Arab refugees to return to their homes in Israeli-occupied territory as Jordan's shaky economy won't be burdened with them.

King Hussein's government said it is the "national and sacred duty" of refugees from the June war to return "to prevent the enemy from settling on our land and bringing in immigrants."

The Jordanian refugee committee warned that it would cut off aid to any refugee who was given permission by Israel to return home but refused.

Billion-dollar Anti-riot Fund Is Proposed by Two Senators

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In a move to head off further racial disturbances, Senators Abraham A. Ribicoff (Rep.-Ill.) and Charles H. Percy (Dem.-Conn.) proposed today the creation of a $1,000,000,000 fund that would permit President Johnson to make grants, aimed at lessening tension, to states, communities and local organizations.

U.S. cities remained quiet, meanwhile, as the last of the national guardsmen called into Milwaukee were scheduled to leave today and a curfew in Wichita, Kans., was lifted. Milwaukee's midnight curfew remained in effect.

The proposal by Percy and Ribicoff would require no new spending, they said, because it would authorize the president to create a neighborhood emergency fund by the transfer of up to two per cent of budgeted, non-defence spending.

The fund, as the senators see it, would permit the president to act rapidly in response to local initiatives.

Brawling erupted in two galleries of the House of Representatives Monday as a group of Negroes from New York's Harlem, demanding federal rat-control legislation, fought with police. Fists flew and six persons suffered minor injuries. Eight of the estimated 95 demonstrators were arrested.

"Rats cause riots," the group chanted as they entered the public galleries shortly after the House adjourned a routine session.

"We don't need a riot bill! We need a rat bill!"

The House refused to consider a $40,000,000 rat-control bill passed a bill, now under Senate consideration, that would make it a federal crime to cross a state line with the intention of inciting a riot.

More Charges Are Likely in Slaying of Two Detroit Negroes

DETROIT (AP)—Officials say more arrests are likely in the case of two white Detroit policemen charged with murdering two Negro teen-agers in a motel at the peak of the city's riot.

Prosecutor William Cahalan said he expects more warrants to be issued in connection with the shotgun killings, "but not murder warrants." He indicated conspiracy charges might be filed against some of those present when the shootings occurred.

The patrolmen, Ronald August, 28, and Robert Paille, 32, pleaded not guilty at their arraignments Monday. They were held without bail.

August is accused of killing Aubrey Pollard, 18. Paille is charged with killing Fred Temple, 18.

A number of witnesses have said the youths were slain during an early-morning raid by police and national guards searching for snipers at the Algiers Motel in midtown Detroit July 26, three days after rioting began.

A third Negro, Carl Cooper, 21, also was found killed by Mafia from a 12-gauge shotgun in the motel.

But Cahalan said he lacked evidence on claims that Cooper may have been shot by a uniformed man.

In other developments Monday growing out of the riots:

The national guard issued a statement defending its actions in the machine-gun death of a four-year-old Negro girl.

The county prosecutor's office charged two Negro youths with murder in the shooting death of a white Detroit patrolman.

Cahalan said he recommended the warrants against August and Paille as the result of statements from 80 persons and a 30-page report compiled by an 18-man Detroit police homicide bureau team.

Cahalan refused to reveal what the statements or the report said.

Pollard, Temple and Cooper originally were listed in police reports as suspected snipers "killed in exchange of gunfire."

No weapon was reported found near their bodies, and this led to an investigation.

The bodies of Temple and Pollard were found in one room and Cooper's was in another across a hall.

A number of persons who said they were in the motel on the night of the shootings said they were lined up against a wall, beaten with gun butts and threatened with death by the raiding policemen.

The national guard statement said Sgt. Mortimer Leblanc, 41, fired a .30-calibre machine-gun at the apartment where Tanya Lynn Blanding age 4 was slain, apparently by guardsmen's bullets.

The statement said the sergeant fired when he saw a flash in the apartment window. The child's family says the flash was from a match to light a cigarette.

Snipers had fired twice that night from the family's apartment, the guard statement said. It also said Detroit police found looted goods in the apartment.

Murder charges also were filed Monday against Danny Royster, 20, and Charles Latimer, 18, in the shooting death of policeman Jerome Oshove, 32. Police said Oshove and other policemen were attempting to arrest the two youths when Royster tried to wrest away an officer's shotgun and it discharged, hitting Oshove.

City Council to Review Welfare, Nursery Reports

Belleville city council "will learn today what the provincial department of welfare thinks about the administration of the city's welfare department.

The long awaited report by the provincial department on the operation of city welfare has been received at city hall and will be presented to city council at a special meeting this afternoon.

Also to be heard at the special council session will be the report of City Manager J. R. Reynolds on the operation of the city's day care nursery which in the past three weeks has been much in the news.

Complaints about how welfare was being administered in the city reached a peak late last autumn following which a special committee of city council headed by Alderman Donald Williams was set up to investigate.

Two reports were received from the committee — one a majority report submitted by Chairman Williams, and the other minority report by Ald. Ross David.

Both reports included recommendations for the improvement of welfare administration, but that of Ald. David went further and asked that the tenure of office of welfare administrator Daniel Aitken be reviewed.

Following receipt of the committee reports an official of the provincial department of welfare was asked to come to the city to make further investigation.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said this morning that the welfare report and the report on the day nursery would be before council today.

Whether they are heard in caucus will be a council decision, but the wish of Mayor Ellis is that they be received in open council.

Three Killed at Sharbot Lake

Three persons were killed and two seriously injured in a two-car, head-on collision about 15 miles west of Sharbot Lake early Sunday morning.

Dead are Percy Dawson Hartwick, 22, of Mountain Grove; Daniel Marshall, 21, of Smiths Falls; and Cheryl Massey, 18, also of Smiths Falls.

Seriously injured in Kingston General Hospital is Lynn Marshall of Smiths Falls. Raymond Pace, 19, of Brockville is resting comfortably in Perth Great War Memorial Hospital.

The fatal accident occurred about two o'clock Sunday morning on No. 7 highway at Arden — about 12 miles west of Sharbot Lake.

Four of the accident victims — Hartwick, Marshall, Miss Massey and Miss Pace — were passengers in a westbound 1966 Chevrolet owned by Percy Hartwick. The owner and driver of the second vehicle, a 1963 Chevrolet, was Raymond Pace.

Both cars received extensive damage.

Coroner R. G. Day of Verona arrived on the scene shortly after the accident occurred. Decision on an inquest is being withheld pending further investigation.

The Sharbot Lake detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated.

Old Spinning Wheel To Be Seen at Fair

Most of us have seen what used to be a common-place item in the pioneer home — the spinning wheel.

Today, they're considered as museum pieces and true enough, at Belleville Exhibition Fair, visitors will actually see the wheels working the way they once did.

The ladies' division of the fair board has arranged a pioneer corner in the handicraft building where spinning will be a daily attraction.

The display is fitted out with many pioneer items including the spinning wheels. Demonstrations of weaving, carding, loom work, old fashioned knitting and rug making will be carried out at various times during each day. And the ladies themselves will be attired in the appropriate household costumes of a century ago.

Mrs. Harry Harrison, convener of this part of the show, admits finding people who can still do this kind of work isn't the easiest task in the world. However, she herself can operate both the large and small spinning wheels and intends to spend many hours at the pioneer corner to answer the questions of the curious.

Pioneer corner itself will only take up a portion of the big horticultural building. The remainder of the space is given over to hundreds of domestic science, horticultural and arts and crafts exhibits.

Because of the excellent growing season so far, it appears fruit and vegetable entries will be particularly heavy and of unusually high quality.

This is one section of the annual show that receives much attention as it embodies the true spirit of the annual fall fair.

The rink of Mrs. Reta Lloyd, Mrs. Lil Mascaro with Mrs. Gertrude Smith as skip is in the Provincial Finals in Hamilton on August 15th after going with the rink of George Finals at Orillia. There were three rinks in the trebles, Oshawa, Brockville and Belleville and each rink won two games. Oshawa drew a bye in playoff and Belleville defeated Brockville and Oshawa in three-end games to win the finals.

Congratulations are in order to Rob Semple, Owen Gray and Harold Worrell as skip in winning the Colts title for Ontario at Ottawa, on Saturday. It was a tough competition and their title adds to the Dominion title for pairs won by Belleville Colts, Charles and Bruce Miller to honors won by the local bowling club.

On Thursday at Cobourg a rink of Mrs. Irene Trudeau, Mrs. Thelma Leighton with Mrs. Grace Clapp as skip won the two-game high score. Another rink of Mrs. Vera McIntosh, Mrs. Edna Jackman and Mrs. Elsie Humphreys failed to reach the prize money.

On Thursday a rink of Mrs. Flossie Coleman, Mrs. Lily Hermon with Miss Winnie Smith was high in bowling. They won seven shots in two brudge and Mrs. Kathleen Boutin, Mrs. Elda Watson, Mrs. Rose Grieve and Mrs. Pearl Oliphant were the ten hostesses.

T. Kilpatrick of 150 Kent Mount Street was the winner of the draw conducted by the Lawn Bowling Club in their weekend of tournament bowling.

Sportsmanship Gesture

Trenton teenagers Bill MacDonald, 18, and David Dobbie, 19, who finished second in the Peterborough to Trenton canoe race exchanged congratulations with brothers Don and John Dunsmore of Shanty Bay the winners of the test by nine minutes. Scene is at the finish line on the Trent Canal system 89 miles from where 30 some entries started from on Saturday.

Shanty Bay Brothers Top Canoeists

TRENTON — Two arm weary brothers from Shanty Bay won the Peterborough to Trenton centennial canoe race Monday.

Donald and John Dunsmore, both 23, paddled and portaged the 89-mile route in 15 hours and 32 minutes with stopovers at Hastings and Campbellford. They started with 29 canoe other teams from Peterborough at 5.35 a.m. Saturday. They finished at 1.05 p.m. four hours ahead of schedule.

Tired, tanned and chocolate brown, the brothers were still smoking strong on completion of the trip. Donald, a high school teacher and spokesman for the winning twosome, said they would do it again next year if there is a race. "It's good sportsmanship and lots of fun," he claimed.

The worst thing on the way down happened to John Dunsmore's wife Rose Mary who fell backwards into the Trent Canal at lock 4 lock at Frankford while taking pictures of the pair as they passed.

Shouting words of encouragement to them, she swam to safety clutching camera, sun glasses and car keys in her hands — and they disappeared downstream.

For their effort the Dunsmore brothers received $100, cash and two three glass canoes. They also collected $5. from the village of Hastings for carrying there first.

A teen-age team from Trenton came in second just nine minutes behind the winners. David Dobbin, 19, and Bill MacDonald, 18, stroked the canoe they'd built themselves into the lead soon after leaving Campbellford yesterday morning.

They sprinted out in front for four miles until they had to portage Hagath the first position to the steadier pace of the stronger, more experienced paddlers.

Dispelling the belief the test was a young man's game Harold Watson, 62, of Bancroft proved age is to be reckoned with on future occasions. The father of hockey star Brian Watson, with Ted Hogarth, 37, placed third less than 25 minutes behind the Dunsmores. Hogarth his hands badly swollen and blistered said they were so sore he could cry. His elder partner wanted an ice cold drink as he neared afterwards.

Fourth place honors went to a gritty Belleville twosome Art Alyea, 22, and Dave Brummell, 20. Alyea representing a desire to try again said he would like to see the winner decided on total elapsed time for the three laps. We would have made third place under those rules he pointed out. By 5.30 p.m. all but two of the 26 teams starting yesterday's 89 mile marathon had reached the finish point.

In the order they crossed the finish line the canoeists formed up in No. 1 lock and paddled down river to centennial park in Trenton to be welcomed with a dunking from the crowd waiting at the parkside to welcome the paddlers.

The race was sponsored by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce as a centennial project.

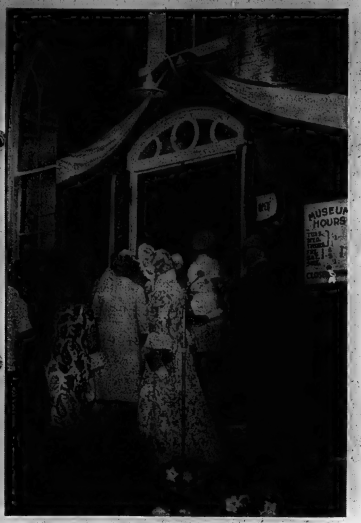
Wellington's Old Home Week Draws Thousands to Village

WELLINGTON — A weekend of colorful events, climaxed by a dance Monday night, saw thousands of county citizens and visitors celebrate Wellington's Old Home Week. With nearly perfect weather throughout the four days of festivities the village had a most sucessful venture. This year's activities followed the pattern of the Wellington Centennial celebrations in 1953 - it also was a resounding success.

Friday's events included the beginning of a fishing derby - an old time fiddlers' contest and kings games.

Saturday saw the official opening of the new Wellington Community Museum with Norris Whitney MPP cutting the ribbon. Also present for this ceremony were Reeve of Wellington and Warden of Prince Edward County Robert Boyce; Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton. The dedication prayer for the new museum was given by Mrs. O. Wilbe and Councillor D. Armstrong acted as master of ceremonies.

A mile-long parade followed the museum opening, Saturday afternoon, providing color and excitement for the crowds lining both sides of the village Main Street. A large number of floats, some with a humorous theme, others more serious, along with majorettes, antique vehicles and gaily decorated horse drawn buggies and wagons thrilled the crowd estimated in the thousands.



A rock and roll show in the arena and a variety show in the park on Saturday night each drew large leggels. The variety show was comprised of previous the county centennial talent contests.

Sunday's program included an inter-faith service in the park followed by a band concert. In the evening a crowd of well over 1,000 enjoyed the 60-voice centennial choir. The choir program included songs popular in Canada from 1867 through 1967 — over 40 songs in all. Audience participation in a sing-song added much enjoyment to the event.

Monday afternoon in Wellington Park, Mr. Whitney unveiled a centennial plaque-to commemorate the village's project - the erection of a wall facing Lake Ontario which also provides easy access to the beach through a modern stairway.

A bingo and presentation of prizes to the winners of the fishing derby was held in the park later Monday afternoon and Monday night saw a good crowd wind up the weekend programs with a monster dance in the arena.

Results of the fishing derby (which was confined to fish caught in Lake West) are as follows: women's largest fish, caught by Lilias Hendrickson of Toronto, sheepshead weighing 4 lb. 13 oz.; girls' largest, fish taken by Cathy Harris of Oshawa, a 1 lb. 2¼ oz. pickerel; boy's largest fish was a bass caught by Andrew Pliskka of Oshawa; men's largest pickerel landed by Percy Rickett of Oshawa weighed 3 lbs. 9½ ozs.; men's largest pike taken by David Thompson of Wellington weighed in at 8 lb. 7 oz.; men's largest bass was taken by Vince Chintel of Suffolk, 3 lb. 14 oz.

Museum Catches Eye

Wellington's new community museum, officially opened by Norris Whitney, MPP, draws a crowd of visitors. On right is Picton Mayor H. J. McFarland.

Belleville Mason Elected to Office

William Oliver, well known Belleville Mason and past master of Eureka Lodge No. 322, has been elected to the office of District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward district.

The election was made at the recent annual communication of Grand Lodge A.F. and A.M. held in Toronto.

The Prince Edward district, consisting of 17 lodges with a total membership of about 3,000 Masons, extends from Deseronto on the east to Brighton on the west lodges takes in all of Prince Edward county and north to Bancroft.

Mr. Oliver will be assisted in his work throughout the district by F. E. Kerr as secretary and W. S. Humphreys as chaplain. L. G. Lemon will be in charge of masonic education, and F. G. Bebey will act as chairman of blood donors committee.

Aged 8 Found in Garden At Plevna

PLEVNA — Mrs. Cora James of Plevna is seeking the answer to a button mystery.

It began when Mrs. James, while digging in her garden, found a button, slightly larger than a dime and embossed with the head of Queen Victoria. Also embossed on the button are the words: Goodyear's F - T 1851 N.R.C.O.

The James family has lived in the house for three generations and Mrs. James hopes, by determining the meaning of the inscription, to discover the identity of the original owner of the button.

Ferry Has Record Day

An all_time record for the number of vehicles transported in a single day was established at the Glenora ferry on Sunday with 2,197 cars and trucks being carried.

The daily Sunday average for the ferry crossing east of Picton is about 900 cars but the holiday weekend together with host Centennial and other attractions served to greatly increase the highway traffic.

Normally the third Sunday in July marks the peak for ferry crossings at Glenora.

There are two ferries at Glenora each operating at half-hour intervals to provide 15 minute service for the bay crossing. During rush periods the ferries operate non-stop but even this fails to prevent line-ups sometimes extending to a depth of 100 vehicles.

When the new Quinte Skyway bridge at Desoronto is opened next month it will draw off some of the Glenora traffic, but the ferry crossing is on the direct No. 33 highway route between Picton and Kingston and is always a popular attraction for tourists.

Flowers, Madam?

Elen Duplain of Wellington made a hit with her huge paper flowers. Mrs. Bryan Cronk of Bloomfield and Gladys Pettingell receive their flowers during old home week celebrations.

Summer Jobs Scarce for H.S. Students

The acute shortage of temporary and summer jobs in the Belleville area is being very hard on high school and college students who want to earn extra money and there are many of them.

Any employer who needs help for any kind of work whatsoever would be wise to turn to Manpower according to Mr. H. Kern of the Belleville Manpower Centre.

Mr. Kern said that all the students registered are of a high calibre and are prepared to do anything, "even pick up stones" in order to earn some extra money.

Moderate Demand for Trenton Lots

TRENTON — Lot 17 McQuaid Drive sounds like an ordinary local neighborhood.

But for Cpl. Wayne McCreadie, his wife and four children, it's the first experience for a reasonably-priced home.

The airman posted at Canadian Forces Base here, was the fourth Trenton resident to sign a purchase agreement with the Ontario Housing Corporation as a 60-lot subdivision here went on sale under its Home Ownership Made-Easy plan.

Demand was moderate here as the plan was launched, with the first purchases registered by 11 a.m.

"It's a pretty good deal — about the cheapest other lot we have seen was selling at $4,200 without any services except roads," said Cpl. McCreadie.

The McCreadies' 55 x 104-foot lot sells for $2,850, which may be retired over 25 years at 7¼ per cent — the equivalent of $19 a month.

The Trenton lots — among 2,194 being offered in Ontario communities — may also be purchased between $13.50 and $18.50 monthly. Lessees have the option of purchasing the lots after five years at the original market value.

Ontario Housing Corporation agent Lloyd Dean, supervised transactions at Trenton's municipal offices as sales opened this morning.

Mr. Dean's task included reminded potential buyers they must begin building on the lots within six months, and complete construction in 18 months.

A $15,000 ceiling has been placed on the price of any home construction.

Mr. Dean said the HOME plan was attractive since it made lots available without involving large amounts of capital.

He indicated builders seem to have the wrong impression of the scheme. Contractors incorrectly infer that individual applicants have priority over builders.

"At present I have a five-lot limit for any contractors willing to participate in the plan," he said.

Mr. Dean added that where lots are purchased by contractors houses and purchase agreements will be designed to ensure savings in land costs are passed on to the ultimate owner.

The OHC agent will be available at the municipal office here until demand appears to have subsided for the lots.

Town officials will handle inquiries afterwards.

The registered Trenton reaction to the first day of the HOME scheme contrasted with the scene at Brantdes where a bumper package of 1,886 lots were up for grabs.

Here laid Monday more than 100 cars and about 400 people had lined up in the big urban centre, five miles west of Toronto. The OHC officer was surrounded by home seekers and realty regulas — sleeping bags, reclining couches, card tables and a tent.

Other HOME centres and number of lots are: Peterborough, 40; Windsor, 30; Brockville, 173; Arnprior, 81; Bracebridge, 31.

The Hippie Phenomenon

Someone was complaining in an Ontario newspaper the other day about the excess of attention that is being paid to the so-called hippies of the day — the long-haired ones with the unwashed appearance and curious garb.

There is no doubt that members of this sloppy cult are getting attention, despite the fact they are symbols of decadent influences that benefit no one.

One associates these young people with drug addiction, with immorality of an old-fashioned word that today seems to have lost much of its meaning and influence), with aimlessness and abandonment of responsibility.

Thus if Controller Allan Lamport was impressed by many of the young people he met during a recent visit to Yorkville (yes it seems he found them not such a bad lot at all) — was he still happy with the set-up there when a youth said to him "You a politician — legalise marijuana!"

And even if they were not smoking pot Mr. Lamport found any number of youths in their early teens smoking cigarets, and this upset him somewhat.

Vancouver, which has more than its share of derelicts, is another centre of the hippie cult. And last week eastern hippies made the scene in Ottawa, one hundred of them marching to city hall for a meeting with Mayor Reid.

The Ottawa Journal carried a front-page picture of a garishly-dressed young man flat on his back on a lawn, eyes closed, for all the world looking as if he were in the midst of an LSD trip. Accompanying him was a young woman with long dark hair and of attractive and alert appearance (indeed she was by far the more presentable of the two).

Said The Journal: "While four spokesmen for the group met on the steps with the mayor, the rest sprawl on the grass, some strumming guitars and singing."

So ended another mayoral reception. And to what purpose? The Journal did not say. Nor does anyone really know the whys and wherefores of the social phenomenon represented by these eccentric young people. Nonconformity serves a purpose — but not when its exponents have so little to contribute as the hippies.

Meanwhile Toronto, not to be outdone, was the scene of another hippie spectacle. A bunch of them danced in the aisles at the O'Keefe Centre of all places, during a performance by the Jefferson Airplane, a rock group favored by the hippies. Some 300 of the audience even managed to dance on stage.

Yes, the hippies are just hippies, the direct descendants perhaps of the court jesters — and of more recent vintage, the bohemians and the beats, anyone in fact who does not call himself a square.

Malls Are "In"

Malls are the 'in' attraction in the downtown communities these days.

Ottawa's Sparks Street is probably the best-known mall in Canada. Opened a few years ago it proved an instant success. Others — including one envisaged for Belleville, together with a complete business area facelift — exist mainly in the planner's imagination.

The city of Kitchener, however, has taken the plunge, if somewhat hesitantly, by turning the main street into a tree-lined mall. The street will be used as a pedestrian walk until September only. Meantime city buses still use the thoroughfare which is closed to other vehicles.

A picture of the scene shows that Kitchener, like other Ontario cities is cluttered with dangling wires and business signs. However, the attractive tree and shrub-lined avenue, with the greenery set in concrete blocks, contrives to mute the more obvious commercialism and provide a pleasant touch of beauty.

Conformity

There should be no rivalry between parents and teachers, according to Claude Mullins, a former London magistrate.

Those who think otherwise, he said in a BBC broadcast about the parent-child relationship, are prompted by their enthusiasm for equality.

"They know that children have different hereditary endowments and that parents vary greatly in their capacity to bring them up. So they seek to transfer them as nearly as possible to spheres where they can be treated more or less alike.

"Such people, presumably, would be happy if there could be robot children, all molded alike without influences from past generations, as if they were jugs and basins."

From this we may conclude that even in Britain, where young people traditionally show a lot of individuality, there is increasing conformity.

Slap In Face De Gaulle's Reward For Paul Martin

OTTAWA — The federal official who was hit hardest by the de Gaulle bombshell was undoubtedly that old smoothie, Paul Martin, minister of External Affairs.

It was true that the main responsibility in rebuking General de Gaulle rested with Prime Minister Pearson but for sheer suffering, Mr. Martin was in a coaster.

In the weeks preceding the visit of the grand Charles to Canada, Mr. Martin had been saying how wonderful it was going to be. He said President de Gaulle was a splendid chap and that his visit to Canada would be a great success.

In June, the Honorable Paul even went to call on General de Gaulle at the Elysee Palace in Paris. It was like making a pilgrimage and Mr. Martin emerged, starry-eyed from his 20 minutes with the great man.

Among the matters they discussed was the impending visit of the president to Canada. From all that Mr. Martin said, one could detect that any disasters would develop from the de Gaulle tour of Quebec City, Montreal and Ottawa.

Indeed, Mr. Martin reiterated to journalists that the French president would get a splendid welcome in Canada, not only in Quebec but from English-speaking Canadians too.

Mr. Martin just seemed to glow with happiness as he pondered upon the vision of the towering de Gaulle striding happily through throngs of admiring Canadians.

And the External Affairs minister observed to newsmen — "he is a great man, one of the great men of our time."

The rotund and amiable Mr. Martin of course might have been trying to put the history of positive thinking. Perhaps he believed that if he said often enough that de Gaulle was great and that the pilgrimage to Canada would be wonderful, these things would come to pass.

It is possible that while he was closeted with General de Gaulle at the Elysee Palace, he got a hint of the furore the president would stir up in Quebec. By then of course it would have been too late for Mr. Martin to do anything about it — all he could do was put on a brave front and pray.

It was common knowledge back even in June that there was a certain uneasiness about the de Gaulle visit. There was the business of the president insisting on visiting Quebec first, before dropping in on Ottawa.

There were the disputes between federal and provincial officials as to how the tour would be run and who would be in charge.

Then these difficulties seemed to outsiders to be more amusing than anything else. No one — unless it was Mr. Martin or just possibly Premier Johnson of Quebec — had an inkling of what was to happen.

At last the great day arrived, the president made his majestic progress to Quebec and landed as it turned out, to begin a kind of re-conquest of New France.

In short order de Gaulle was bombarding Ottawa, supporting the separatists and reaching the very condescension celebration which had brought him to Canada in the first place.

There was that preliminary manoeuvre when Mr. Martin was not invited to attend a Quebec banquet for de Gaulle. Mr. Martin practically had to beg his way into the festivities. And then at Montreal City Hall all pretense of accord and amity between the French president and the Canadian government was torn into shreds.

De Gaulle did the incredible thing of mounting a stand on the very country which was hosting him. And Mr. Martin looked pained and insulted as it turned out, to begin a kind of re-conquest of New France.

And then at Montreal City Hall all pretense of accord and amity between the French president and the Canadian government was torn into shreds.

De Gaulle did the incredible thing of mounting a stand on the very country which was hosting him. And Mr. Martin looked pained and insulted as one of the guests of our time had been shot down in flames.

Abruptly the External Affairs minister was summoned back to Ottawa to report on the de Gaulle incident and to participate in the drafting of the statement which sharply rejected the president's intervention in Canadian affairs.

Mr. Martin too had to supervise the sending of this Canadian note to the French officials, who passed it on to General de Gaulle.

It was said later that Mr. Martin had been one of the cabinet ministers who had urged a stern reprimand for de Gaulle — and well he might.

Here was this friendly, amiable Mr. Martin doing his very best to promote good relations between France and Canada in particular he had been trying to ensure that General de Gaulle would get a favorable welcome in Canada, particularly in Ottawa.

And then it seemed that our External Affairs Minister had his neck stuck way out for de Gaulle and the latter promptly stepped on some with obvious relish.

Well, it was Mr. Martin who said — de Gaulle was one of the great men of our time.

As great men go, doubtless he was not, perhaps, just lately.

Effect on Credit

Ontario's Consumer Protection Act

Toronto Star

There's hardly a family in Ontario which has not been frustrated trying to calculate the true interest charges it was paying on credit purchases.

For it has found itself smack up against a host of befuddling techniques — installment payments, trade-ins, re-financing, extended terms, down payment methods — which made almost impossible a true determination of finance charges.

Now relief is at hand.

The Consumer Protection Act, passed by the Ontario Legislature last year, comes into force July 31. Among other things it will require all lenders to provide borrowers in writing with the true cost of the credit being offered, both in dollars-and-cents and as annual percentage rate.

The regulations will cover all provincially-chartered companies dealing in credit, including finance and loan institutions, trust and mortgage companies and retail stores.

A consumer protection bureau to police and publicize the act has already been established in Toronto.

Close co-operation between the provinces and Ottawa has ensured that federally-chartered corporations, such as the banks which provide 30 per cent of all consumer credit, will also be covered before the summer is out.

Federal regulations are now being drafted by the inspector-general for banks.

The Ontario law may very well be the broadest in North America. It appears to have cicarcut advantages over the so-called "Truth - in Lending Bill" which recently passed the U.S. Senate but has still to get House and presidential approval.

Exempted from "truth" in the U.S. bill are retailers extending revolving (variable) credit (a running credit account where monthly repayment charges move up and down according to the balance owing.)

Ontario will insist that department stores, for instance, inform the customer in writing of the effective interest rate he will be paying.

No one believes that a truth-in-lending act will automatically lower credit costs. Sales finance companies will still have to "purchase" their supplies of money or credit from banks or other lending institutions.

But Ontario does hope that at cred't consumers "wisen up" to "sharkish" lenders they will be forced to abandon exorbitant interest rates.

Those who will benefit the most will be the customers who will shop for credit with the same sharpness and zeal with which they pursue supermarket bargains.

BC's Test For Drivers Who Drink

Hamilton Spectator

An excellent and humane way of helping control the drinking-driver problem has been meeting with some success in British Columbia. The plan is a unique breathalyzer test system whereby police officers can keep motorists from driving 24 hours if they suspect them of being even slightly impaired.

The system isn't dictatorial. The motorist has the alternative of blowing into a specially-devised balloon breathalyzer carried in the police car, and if his reading is less than .08 the officer immediately returns his licence. If it is more, off the road goes the driver for a day.

This is a preventive rather than a punitive plan. It has worked on Vancouver Island, especially in the Victoria area, for quite some time. Early this week it was extended to the Million-dollar Vancouver area. Authorities are hopeful it will cut the incidence of drinking-drivers, who otherwise wouldn't admit to drinking for fear of imprisonment and disgrace, will willingly and even gratefully accept the relatively minor on-the-spot "sentence." The B.C. experience to date shows this to be generally true.

Drinking is a social problem, but only a minority of drivers are problems. A recognition of this fact by governments has been long overdue. The driver licence suspension should be enough of a "word to the wise" to keep many drinkers sober while driving.

Music While You Bleed!

Globe and Mail

There was a time when good citizens were expected to give blood without any fanfare. A simple card in the mail, a couple of thanks, were your rewards. Drumsticks and bagpipes were reserved for those who gave their blood more dramatically, in battle.

But Toronto' changes. The Red Cross, aiming to draw 2,000 donors to its Bloor-and-Bay Clinic at Moss Park Armory, is staging a pulsating mixture of entertainment. Providing music-to-bleed-by will be barbershop quartets and the Thistled Club Steel Band. If that doesn't get things flowing, donors can rely on receiving a red rose, a kiss-in demonstration, a Centennial flag and pin and, of course, a needle.

Suez Canal Diminishing In Political Importance

LONDON (AP) — The Suez Canal has been closed for almost two months, and Western Europe is still very much in business.

This major artery of trade, especially in oil, is not the vital lifeline it once was. This is proved by the speedy readjustment of Western Europe's shipping and supply patterns since the Arab-Israeli war in June.

The canal, once a prize of war and political manoeuvring, seems to be diminishing in political significance, especially as a bargaining counter for Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The 103-mile canal is blocked by five obstacles sunk during the June war.

Fourteen ships of various nationalities have been trapped in the Great Bitter Lake area.

Egyptian authorities say the canal will remain closed until Israel withdraws its troops from the east bank of the waterway. Israel insists on a peace treaty containing a guarantee for free passage of its own ships, denied access to the waterway since Israel was established it in 1956.

Western oilmen and governments now are gambling that if they can hold out longer than Nasser, the pressure will be turned back on him through the loss of the canal revenues.

The crunch will come this winter, when the heating season starts, but European oil stocks are already being built up against cold weather by rerouting tankers around the Cape of Good Hope.

When the canal was closed after the 1956 Suez war, it had been carrying 80 per cent of Western Europe's oil. Others found new supplies on this side of the canal—in North Africa and Nigeria.

Last year Western Europe got less than 60 per cent of its oil through the canal.

The 1956-57 closure coincided with a world - wide shipping shortage. This time there was a glut. About 1,000,000 tons of shipping had been laid up because of low charter prices.

With the new demand, the cost of chartering Tankers went up five or six times, adding about $10 to the cost of shipping each ton of oil from the Persian Gulf to Western Europe. One day in June, British Petroleum revoked 200 tanker contract and chartered 44 tankers with a capacity of 1,500,000 tons.

Another 3,000,000 tons was shifted from carrying ore and grain to the more lucrative oil traffic. The British weekly Economist estimated that another 4,000,000 tons of dry cargo built carriers was due for delivery in the next six months, which should keep much of the strain off shipping and possibly bring down charter rates.

Egypt's economy ironically has been a blow for India, one of its strongest supporters, and a boon for South Africa, foe of Nasser's countries. The Indian ores accumulated by delay and higher cost of grain shipments. The South Africans are raking a windfall from servicing tankers going around the Cape.

Pan-Am Games

Winnipeg Gets Business Lift But Degree Hard to Measure

WINNIPEG (CP)—The clear success of the actual running of the fifth Pan-American Games is in contrast to the hazy assessment of their effects on the city's business community.

Local businessmen agree the Games provided a temporary business lift but that the impact fell below pre-Games expectations. Many say earlier estimates of out-of-town visitors for the Games, July 23-Aug. 6, were too high.

The business community was reluctant to say just how much the Games have affected the general business picture.

July usually is the city's heaviest tourist month and this year's centennial celebrations provided an over-all shot in the arm.

Because of the scattered locations of the Games venues and with athletes accommodated in two Pan-Am Villages away from the centre of the city, business was spotty.

Outlets situated in the venues recorded significant sales increases with hotels, restaurants, licensed outlets, department and gift stores cornering most of the extra custom provided by participating athletes, their entourages and tourists.

Odd trading patterns resulted as visitors in downtown accommodation usually spent most of their time and money at events away from the city centre.

W. G. Foster, manager of CN's Fort Garry Hotel, said room facilities were well taxed.

"But if all our visitors had stayed around the hotel all day, business would have been phenomenal."

H. S. Walker, manager at the Royal Alexandra Hotel, explained his hotel's position was different because it accommodated about 450 members of the press.

"They're away all day and only come back at night."

Both said their bar and restaurant receipts showed no major increase. Most downtown outlets and restaurants indicated a similar situation.

Mel Orestes, manager of a restaurant near the stadium, arena, soccer park and velodrome, says the Games helped business.

"Our business was definitely above last year and was particularly busy after events were over."

He said the city as a whole may not benefit much because most of those attending the Games seemed to be local residents.

A large department store in a shopping centre near the arena said general sales increased five per cent during the last few weeks compared with the same period last year with sales on clothing and souvenirs increasing by as much as 15 per cent.

But spokesmen for two large downtown department stores said while increases were recorded in similar sales they were not over-all business was greatly affected by the Games.

One of the managers said he was surprised at the apparent affluence of many of the amateur athletes.

"The participants have spent more than we thought they would on such items as cameras, binoculars and toys. The over-all business picture is difficult to estimate. Sales on some household items have been a little depressed."

The manager of one downtown gift store said the business increase "hasn't even been a third of what we expected."

But while the retail trade picture may not be as bright as forecast, there has been a 20-per-cent increase in the placement of service personnel during the last month.

A Manpower Centre spokesman said there was a great demand for temporary cooks, waiters, kitchen and hotel help "but it's hard to say whether there's been a permanent impact."

Man, 110, Likes Cigars

KINGSTON (CP)—John Green, a 110-year-old man with a penchant for cigars, celebrated his birthday Sunday at the Ontario Hospital.

The patients' glee club, orchestra and chorus entertained Mr. Green and a giant cake blazing with candles was rolled into his room.

Mr. Green is not mentally or physically ill. A hospital spokesman said, but he needs medical attention because of his age.

His arrived at the hospital from Sharbot Lake, Ont., 13 years ago with proof to show he was born Aug. 6, 1857. He has lost weight since then and is bedridden, but still likes his cigars.

An advertising firm for the Tobacco Institute of Canada heard about Mr. Green's fondness for cigars last week and guaranteed him a constant supply.

Living Costs Up 50 Per Cent

Higher food and housing costs pushed the consumer price index up 1.4 points to 150.2 in July, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says. Based on 1949 prices equalling 100 it means that consumer prices are 50 per cent higher than 1949. The index increased by 4.1 per cent in the last year. Food prices increased accounted for close to 70 per cent of the last increase.

Dogs Breathe Salt Water

TORONTO (CP)—Man might one day be taught to breathe water instead of air, Dr. Edward H. Lanphier told the Underwater Society of America Saturday.

Dr. Lanphier, associate professor of physiology at the State University of New York in Buffalo, said dogs have survived tests in which they were anesthetized and had a salt water solution pumped into their lungs.

He said sufficient oxygen diffused out of the water into the blood stream to keep the dogs alive and uninjured. They were dried out, warmed to air breathing and brought out of anesthetic.

Greece to Ease Press Controls

ATHENS (AP)—The ercupled government plans within three months to relax the total controls which it clamped on the Greek press following the April 21 coup, a government spokesman said.

Theotykeitas Papaconstantinou, 60, undersecretary of the press in the premier's office, says total censorship will be lifted and the newspapers made responsible before civil courts for violating state laws.

The Playgrounds

PARKDALE

Last Monday a soap bubble blowing contest was held. The biggest soap bubble and the most bubbles blown at one time were blown by Leslie Coyle. The bubble that travelled the furthest was blown by John Keenan.

On Tuesday a scavenger hunt was held. 20 objects were to be found. The winning group consisted of David and Bonnie Woods, Stanley Brooks, Mary Means, Margo, Rhonda Lisa and Sue Chapman. Also a birthday party was held in honor of everyone, but the boy in honor was Billy Coglan.

On Wednesday an on wheels day was held. Decorations were made and bikes decorated. Winners were: Mike Brooks, Billy Miller and Leslie Crowe.

Honorable mention went to: Nancy Lapeonte, Shannon Homer, Leslie Albe, Kim Comstock, Ken Ryan, David MacDonald, Robby and Kelly Matthews, Rhonda and Margo Chapman.

On Thursday all enjoyed a free swim and chocolate milk from Reid's Dairy at the Kinsmen Pool.

Centennial Park Nears Completion

DESERONTO — This week's meeting of Centennial Park committee was devoted to completing a list of all the things that must be done before Aug. 19, the official opening.

Ernie Lack, chairman of the committee planning the opening, said there is still room for more floats.

The washrooms and the roadside fence still need completion, William Higgins reported, but will be done in time. All the plumbing is being done by volunteers.

The biggest problem the committee faces now is to replace Hughie Burns, moving to Kingston Saturday. He is the only full time employee the park has had and has been responsible for construction of the roadside fence which still requires considerable work.

CHILD FATALITIES

TORONTO (CP)—Canada is the most dangerous country in the world for healthy children less than a year old and between the ages of five and nine, the Canadian Medical Association Journal says. Canada has the highest fatal accident rate for children of those ages, the journal said this week. Poisoning accounts for most of the deaths and headache tablets are responsible for one-quarter of the poisonings.

Stapley on Cars

Latest Model of Volvo Proves Exciting Auto

I recently tested Volvo's latest model, the 144 four-door sedan on a six hundred-mile run. This rugged, completely restyled machine will quicken the pulse of Volvo enthusiasts.

While its curb weight is 2585 pounds, riding and handling qualities would indicate a much heavier car. The four-cylinder, 115 cubic inch overhead valve engine is capable of speeds up to 102 mph, and provides ample power at all speed ranges. Compression ratio is 10 to 1. City and highway driving averaged 20 miles per gallon with premium fuel. My son, Bruce, enjoyed manipulating the stick shift, all-synchro transmission.

"Dad," he said, "this four on the floor really turns it on."

Optional automatic transmission is offered at $170. Other specs are: 102¼ inch wheel base, 15 inch wheels, coil spring suspension front and rear, price $3,450 plus sales tax.

Through the years, Volvo has earned the reputation for using the drawing board as the logical starting point for incorporating safety features. While the styling has loads of eye - appeal, the traditional safety items have been retained, and more added. The brake system is not merely a split master cylinder feeding independently to front and rear wheels. It's truly a unique all-disc dual system, and the worst that could happen would be the loss of braking power on one rear wheel, should there be any kind of hydraulic failure. The emergency brake is a simple but positive cable controlled mechanism that actuates internal brake shoes in specially-designed rear brake drums.

Special attention has been given to the number-one killer in head-on collisions — the steering wheel apd column assembly. The steering wheel is padded, and the steering shaft splits to protect the driver's chest under heavy front - end impact.

Combination waist and shoulder belts are standard equipment. The roof is fitted with roll bars, and the unit body is scientifically constructed from front to rear to protect the passenger compartment in collision.

Hot air is ducted through the rocker panels to two rear window defroster nozzles. The rear view mirror is larger and glare-resistant. And these are only a few of the built - in safety features.

The car is assembled in Canada, and many of its components are Canadian - made. As well as looks, handling qualities and performance, this rugged machine offers a genuine safety package.

Preventing the theft of gasoline is not the only reason to install a locking gas cap on the car. Some years ago a customer brought his car in to my garage for a tune-up. We replaced various worn parts and overhauled the carburetor, and the car ran like a clock. But the next day he was back complaining of hard-to-start stalling. We checked the car thoroughly, but could find nothing wrong. A day or two later, he was back to complain again — the car kept stalling and sometimes starting at high speeds. I was completely puzzled, and in an effort to find the problem, we carried out the entire procedure all over again, then headed out for a long road test. All to no avail — I couldn't get the car to stall at all.

I had to hand the car back to a very angry owner who swore never to bring it to my garage again. But later he came back to apologize and tell us the cause of the trouble. Some children at his apartment had decided it would be fun to remove the gas caps from parked cars and pour in leaves and bits of paper. There had been an epidemic of stalled cars at the apartment until one of the car owners saw the children at work.

Foreign matter can float around inside a gas tank for days without affecting the flow of fuel to the carburetor. Then a piece of paper or a leaf will be drawn over the pick-up pipe in the gas tank by the suction of the fuel pump, completely restricting gas flow. After the car stalls, the piece of foreign matter drops away from the pipe, and the car operates normally, until it is driven back once again.

This sort of thing may not happen very often, but can be prevented by the installation of this inexpensive locking cap.

Dodge – Taylor

Rev. V. W. Taser officiated in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, July 29, 1967 at 3 p.m., when Brenda Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Taylor, Madoc was united in marriage to Arthur Albertt Dodge, Winthrop, Maine, son of George Dodge, Wayne, Maine, and the late Mrs. Dodge. Mrs. Irene Crawford was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length A-line gown of imported silk matelasse with the back flowing into a train. The neckline was embroidered with crystals and her shoulder-length silk illusion veil extended from a circular white petalled headdress. She carried a bouquet of white shasta 'mums entwined with silver ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Susan Pattison, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Robert Taylor, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Charlotte Worrell, cousin of the bride, were similarly attired in A-line aqua silk shantung with matching head bands. They carried white mums with silver petals.

Attending the bridegroom was Richard Lawden and the ushers were Richard and Robert Taylor, brothers of the bride.

At the reception held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Taylor, grandparents of the bride, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a sea foam green crepe dress with appliqued organza jacket, matching accessories and a corsage of gardenias and pink rose buds. To assist, the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Richard Lowden, wore a white and navy sharkskin dress with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For her wedding trip to the Caspe the bride chose a French ensemble of Bermuda pink linen and a corsage of white gardenias. On their return, the couple will live at Hodden Heights, New Jersey.

Tooth – Martin

The marriage of Gwendolyne Judith Deanne Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Edwin Martin of Brunel, Ont., to John Lee Davies Tooth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frederick Osborne Tooth of Beaconsfield, Quebec, took place in Wroxeter United Church, the Rev. Ronald Sweeney officiating. Mrs. William King, sr., Brussels, played the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, William Conron, Wingham.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length daisy patterned lace dress with elbow length bell sleeves and a long train over a sheath gown. Her bouffant short veil of tulle illusion was held by a cluster of lace, with matching applique on the veil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Barbara Thompson of Lyndon, Ontario as maid of honor, was attired in a floor-length yellow taffeta dress with empire waist and lace bodice. Her head dress and bouquet were of white sheets daisies centred with yellow 'mums.

Ian McArthur of Toronto was groomsmen and the ushers were William Wilmer of Brussels and John Rickley of Hamilton.

Mrs. Martin, the bride's mother, wore a gown of sky-blue lace over taffeta in sheath style, with blue matching hat and white accessories and a corsage of white and yellow 'mums.

Mrs. Tooth was attired in mint-green short length French crepe dress, styled with high draped neckline and cape sleeves, white hat and accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums.

The bride was presented with a white Bible from the official board of Wroxeter United Church as a centennial gift.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Blue Barn in Listowel, Later, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Tooth left for a wedding trip to eastern Canada. Upon their return they will reside at 5500, Dudesmine St., Montreal. The bridegroom is with the Research and Development Dept. of the Canadian National Railways.

MR. AND MRS. LAWRENCE HAROLD WORDEN

Worden – Brown

Barbara Dorothy, daughter of Mrs. Norman Brown, Belleville and the late Mr. Brown, and Lawrence Harold Worden, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bagi, Haliburton, were married in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, July 29, 1967 at 4 p.m. Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan officiated, assisted by Rev. A. L. Sutherland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Miss Dorothy Grand was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Bruce Brown, wore a silk organza over taffeta gown with A-line skirt, peau-cess lace bodice and Guipure lace bands in three tiers around the bodice, with double-lace between the bands. The same lace bordered the scoop neckline, short sleeves and detachable train falling from the shoulders. Her headdress was a draped cap trimmed with matching lace holding a lace-tiered scalloped tulle illusion shoulder - length veil. She carried a bouquet of a white orchid encircled with baby pink roses, stephanotis and ivy.

The attendants were Miss Betty Ellen Sprague, Hamilton, as maid of honor; and Miss Pamela Harvey, Toronto; Miss Carroll, Haliburton, and Don Johnson, Agincourt, as bridesmaids. They were identical full-length sleeveless gowns of chiffon in shades of mauve and aqua on a blue background. Their gowns had softly draped necklines and full, draped capes with large bows at the back of the gowns. Their headdresses were of white roses and mist and they carried nosegays of white carnations tied with blue ribbons.

Thomas Worden, Welland, attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Ted Hare of Toronto; Chris Carroll, Haliburton, and Don Johnson, Agincourt.

The bride's mother wore a full-length gown of berry pink sheer over taffeta, styled on Empire lines with a lace bodice. A matching lace coat with short sleeves was worn over the sleeveless dress. Her accessories were pink and white and her corsage was a white gardenia encircled with stephanotis and ivy. The bridegroom's mother wore a full-length mint green crepe sleeveless sheath with matching jacket, green and white accessories and a corsage of yellow baby roses.

Following a reception in the Pinnacle Room, Hotel Quinte, the couple left on a wedding trip to Cape Cod. For travelling the bride chose a two-piece ice blue brocade ensemble with white accessories and a white orchid corsage. On their return they will live at 2110 Pharmacy Ave., Agincourt.

Male Athletes Are Girl-shy

Pan-Am Matchmaker Declares

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jane Evans is head matchmaker at the Pan-American Games, and the matches she makes don't lead to medals.

She matches up males and females and she has come to the conclusion that men just aren't shaping up to be best.

As chief hostess at the Pan-Am Games for volleyball and 5,000 athletes, players, she had discovered that male athletes don't take easily to blind dates.

"They want to go out with girls, but they are critical," she says. "They want to know if the girls are good looking before they'll go out with them."

Jane is a bubbly-eyed brunette housewife and physical education teacher at the University of Manitoba. She is a team of 15 hostesses responsible for planning social activities of male and female athletes from 15 countries.

The girls take readily to outings, such as picnics, city tours, parties and nights-on-the-town that hostesses plan for them.

But the men can be "real blockers."

A beach party she arranged shortly after the athletes arrived proved a flop.

"The men brooded under the trees while the girls had a great time splashing in the water," she recalled with a shudder. It was her only failure.

She found Latin males the hardest to accommodate. "The Latins are so insistent, so fiery. They liven up a party." American wives greet a spender's "You mention a party to them and they immediately reach into their pockets, ready to pay for the whole thing."

The Bermudian team, missing on initial reluctance to accept her invitation to a party, presented a bag of toys and presented them personally to youngsters at the children's ward.

"We were all friends, after that," said Mrs. Evans.

Jane, a native of Pictou County, N.S., who came here in 1957 to join the university staff, is married to Tom Evans, an oilman.

Letters on 'Talking' Dogs Wreck Home Life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since you caused my problem, perhaps you can tell me what to do about it. You have wrecked my home life with those ridiculous letters about "talking" dogs.

ANN LANDERS

First let me make it clear that my husband is a solid citizen. I have never known him to go off the deep end about anything — until he read in your column about the poodle who said "I want to go outside," and the spaniel who speaks Italian.

Now my husband is firmly convinced that if other people's dogs can talk, ours should be able to say something, too. For a week now, he has been trying to get our boxer to say, "The rain in Spain falls mainly on the plain." The poor dog doesn't know what to make of it. . .

My husband has daft in you, Ann, so please tell him in your column that not all dogs can be made to talk and to stop making our hound miserable. — CAN'T GET THROUGH TO HIM.

* * *

DEAR CAN'T GET THROUGH'S HUSBAND: Look, folks — leave the poor mutt alone. If he hasn't said anything up to now, he's not likely to — ever. So give up already.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night we went to a party at the home of relatives. An 11-year-old girl was being honored at a birthday party given by her parents.

The child ripped open one beautifully wrapped gift after another, glanced at the contents, tossed the gift aside, then reached for the next gift without uttering one word of thanks or even looking at the person who gave it to her.

After she had opened about a dozen boxes, she became bored, stretched over the gifts as if they were garbage and trotted into the bedroom to try on her new clothes. Her parents didn't say one word to her about her rudeness.

Please tell us if we should say something to the child, or to the parents. The girl is becoming more obnoxious by the day. — CONCERNED RELATIVE.

* * *

DEAR RELATIVE: It is clear from the tone of your letter that you dislike the child. The truth is that she is the victim of your upbringing. It is tragic when children are reared to be selfish and ungracious. Think of what that girl will have to overcome later in life!

Say nothing. Your remarks would not be well received. Do try to understand, however that the child is not at fault.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl 15 who is torn between my mother and my father. They were divorced last month and I am a nervous wreck. I have the choice of going with my mother who has decided to stay in this house or I can move to an apartment with my father when I love dearly.

If I go with my father I will have to change schools. This means leaving my friends which would kill me. I also feel I should stay with my little sister (who has no choice, she must remain with Mom), but this would mean Dad would have no one while Mom had two.

Please help me decide. — ONE WHO HATES DIVORCE.

* * *

DEAR ONE: A 15-year-old girl is usually better off with her mother. A new school plus the emotional problems of a freshly split home is too much of a load. So, stay with your Mom and spend your summer holidays with your Dad and good luck, honey.

Perceptually Handicapped Child Gets No Assistance at School

Dear Doris: Please send me your material on the perceptually handicapped child. I am enclosing 15 cents and a stamped envelope. Although we have had professional help for our ten-year-old son, we have been unable to receive any help from the schools.

It is sad to see a boy so eager to learn, but who gets so frustrated when he is unable to pass his examinations. I do not know how long he can keep trying without giving up completely.

He watches intently every workman who works either in our house or in new houses being built near to us, and so knows how to fix almost everything. — An Anxious Mother

Dear Mother: It's a new field and an underfilled one. But at least we are making some headway in recognizing perceptual troubles as something quite different from mental retardation.

The right diagnosis comes first. Then, patient encouragement from a teacher who understands can make all the difference. I'm sending you details about a resource for help where you are.

Much of such information comes from the Ontario Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, which has done some courageous pioneering.

My lengthy leaflet, which lists literature and some training techniques, is the result of discussion and correspondence with dozens of sources of information. It is in the mail to you.

Dear Doris: I'm living common-law with this guy. Every time we go some place he flirts around right away. He says it's harmless.

When we first started living together it was me who used to find around, and he says he's doing it because I got him going. He's 29 and hasn't been married.

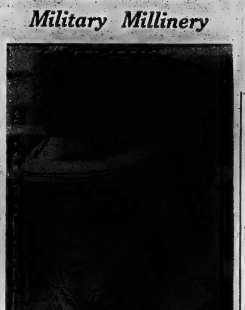
Would you please advise me as to what steps I should take besides leaving him?

One thing, too, he's always ridiculing me in front of his friends. — Insulted.

P.S. We plan on getting married.

Dear Insulted: There aren't any other steps. Just leave him. You shouldn't have taken him on in the first place without a wedding ring.

Dear Doris: I'm too fat. I'm only 14 and I weigh 134 pounds. For the month of June, I wouldn't eat anything all day until supper. Sometimes I would eat a bag of chips at noon. Instead of losing weight, I gained. I've been doing exercises all this week but they don't seem to help.



Every time I turn around somebody else says I'm getting fat. I'm really discouraged. I'll try anything. — Tubby

Dear Tubby: "A bag of chips" is fairly bursting with calories. What you eat matters a good deal more than how much.

If you starve yourself you'll be hard to get along with and eventually get sick. You need nourishment, distributed in three more or less equal meals a day. Dieters who know what they are doing eat proteins, keep vitamin content high; avoid fats and carbohydrates.

One week of exercises, without diet restriction, will only make you tired. Plan a three-month regime of right diet and exercise — after your doctor has o.k.'d the idea. I'll send you the leaflets you need.

Old-Fashioned Raisin Bread

By MARY MOORE

Be prepared was the watchword.

Over one whole weekend we expected a caravan of one station wagon filled with six people with a tent-trailer behind. Marianne and Herbie and family were driving from Victoria to Montreal with two welcome stops at Pete's on Lake Joseph and at our house in Hamilton.

To curb my impatience I made bread - raisin bread - two loaves to have on hand. We ate one loaf before they arrived.

RAISIN BREAD (2 Loaves)

1 pkge. granular yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 tsps. sugar
1 cup scalded milk
1 cup cold water
3 tbsps. margarine or butter or shortening
1-3 cup sugar
2¼ tsps. salt
6 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour, divided
2 to 2½ cups plumped and dried raisins

Scald milk.

In large mixing bowl soak yeast in ¼ cup lukewarm water with 2 tsps. sugar for 10 min. To scalded milk add cold water margarine (or butter or shortening), 1-3 cup sugar and salt. This milk mixture will be lukewarm by now. Add to risen yeast liquid along with 3 cups of the flour and beat until perfectly blended. Add 2 more cups flour and turn out on board floured with ½ cup of remaining flour and knead 200 times. Return to scraped down bowl, cover and let rise until light and more than doubled.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Pineapple Juice; Baked Back Bacon with Spiced Orange Glaze; Glazed Carrots; Frenched Green Beans; Raspberries Moulded in Raspberry Jello; 10% Pouring Cream; Coffee.

Punch down dough. (NOTE: As you know I use my dough hook in my electric machine, which cuts down kneading effort.) Turn out on board floured with remaining ½ cup flour. Flatten dough with palm and turn plumped and dried raisins out on it. Now fold over to enclose raisins and knead 200 times, when raisins will be evenly distributed through out dough. Cut in half. Shape each half into loaves, buttered, and place in buttered loaf pans. Because I found them in the cottage cupboards I used 2 loaf pans 8" x 4" x 2½". I think standard loaf pans would be satisfactory but suggest smaller size. Let rise covered until ¾" above rims of pans and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 min. then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 or 50 min. longer. Be sure not to underbake these loaves — they should have a deep gold crust all over.

Freezes well and makes wonderful toast.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Everybody was so anxious to come on the picnic, but as usual, nobody is eager to help. They've all dashed off to play and left the clean-up chores to us."

Father: "Mary, you pick up the paper plates and scraps and put them in the garbage can. Tommy, you put the leftover food in the ice chest, and Jeanie can gather up the knives and forks—before we have our ball game."

If everyone pitches in and helps clean up after the picnic meal, Mother will enjoy the outing more — and surprisingly enough, so will the rest of the family.

Johnson, Pearson Tell Paris Magazine Quebec's Future Matter for Canadians

PARIS (Reuters)—The prime minister of Canada and the premier of Ontario province both said in interviews being published here today that it is for the Canadian themselves to work out a fair relationship between their country's English- and French-speaking communities.

Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Daniel Johnson answered questions put to them by the French weekly magazine Paris-Match.

Pearson declined to comment directly on French President de Gaulle's recent controversial tour of French Canada, but said he was optimistic that any problems which have arisen between Canada and France could be settled to their mutual satisfaction.

"This could be done, he said, without weakening the special relationship between French-speaking Canadiens and France.

"In fact we should strengthen this relationship. It is natural and it is in our interests.

"But we should not let this special relationship interfere with our own responsibilities as Canadians for the settlement of our Canadian problems—problems of unity and expansion."

Johnson said the French Canadian culture was in greater danger than it has ever been and de Gaulle's visit successfully drew attention to this fact.

"The general acted as a catalyst, if one leaves aside his famous 'free Quebec,' remark, which happened to be a slogan of the separatist party. He said things which were pleasing to the leader of the Quebec Opposition, and I have repeated time and time again.

"It is for us, Canadians, to find a solution to the coexistence of the two nations."

Johnson said his party favored political sovereignty for Quebec while remaining linked to the rest of Canada by "a sort of common market."

He said he hoped the beginning of a solution would emerge from a conference of provincial premiers due to be held in November.

Pearson said in his interview he was optimistic that Canada would be successful in showing the world how a politically united federation could be built on a diversified linguistic and cultural base.

"After having lived together in a federation for 100 years, what chance is there for the maintenance of peace and stability in the world if we cannot achieve this sort of thing here?" he asked.

Answering other questions, Pearson said the possibility of Quebec developing as secession from the rest of Canada appeared to him both improbable and illogical.

"I am certain that they (the French-speaking Canadians) have a better chance of preserving their 'Frenchness' inside the Canadian state than as a small independent state on a continent of 200,000,000 English-speaking North Americans."

Pearson said that to convince the Americans that Canada has an identity distinct from the United States, a Canadian should talk to him in French.

"Here is yet another reason why the maintenance of French culture and language constitutes an important asset," he said.

On current Franco-Canadian relations, Pearson said:

"Remember that we have also from time to time had bad relations with Britain in the past. Once or twice the British have tried to meddle in our affairs and we have opposed it."

He added: "For a long time our relations with France have been particularly good. Perhaps this is because France used to give us very little attention. That was true a long time ago."

In Ottawa, a spokesman at the Prime Minister's office said Mr. Pearson is not expected to comment on Johnson's statements in the French magazine.

Asked whether de Gaulle's visit to Quebec had brought about any evolution in the Quebec government's policies, Johnson replied: "It is still the same: Our slogan is 'equality or independence.'"

"For my part, I would like a new constitution which, founded on the juridical recognition of the two nations, would give Quebec the necessary power for the development and blossoming of the French-Canadian nation, which does not exclude a role for Ottawa."

Johnson added: "The English-speaking Canadians think, in fact, that if Quebec were to carry out a secession, it would be the crumbling of Canada, and then America would extend as far as the North Pole."

Johnson stressed the American threat to French-Canadian culture but he considered: "Today when French Canadians despair, they will demand their integration in the United States.

"That will be our last chance, for if we do not succeed in obtaining this means we need in order to flower, we might just as well stupidly extinguish ourselves."

Later she shelled it and ate the peas. Myrna Blair will be starting school this fall like millions of other Canadian children, because of specially made mechanical arms.

PCs Decide Quebec Already Separate State Culturally

QUEBEC (CP)—Equal French and English language rights throughout Canada and the extent of Quebec's separate zone were touched on by study groups at the Progressive Conservative party's advisory policy conference Monday.

Launching a two-day discussion of constitutional changes, one study group quickly received that French and English-speaking Canadians should enjoy equal rights in use of language and access to education in their mother tongue regardless of where they live in Canada.

Plenary sessions of the conference were told Monday night of another study group conclusion that Quebec, culturally at least, is a separate state.

Richard H. Simmins of Vancouver, reporting for the conference's cultural study group, said that "based upon an evaluation of cultural patterns, buttressed by language and evolution, Quebec is a separate state."

"The political and economic implications of this were also discussed, to be sure."

Mr. Simmins later said his personal view is that Quebec should be regarded as a separate political entity, and failure to realize this is simply "burying our heads in the sand."

Although he had been reported as expressing this view as a spokesman for the study group, Mr. Simmins said this is his own opinion.

Even his report that Quebec is a separate state to a cultural extent was challenged by participants in the conference, who maintained that this was expressed by only one among 19 working groups at the meeting and was not further dealt with.

In the constitution study group, participants argued that French and English should be the languages of the courts and legislatures of Canada, and a right to education in either tongue should also be guaranteed by the constitution.

Marcel Aseelin, MP for Charlevoix, also proposed that a constitutional charter be established to make legal interpretations of the constitution independent of the Supreme Court of Canada.

His proposal was not formally accepted by the group although he won some support from several English-speaking participants for his contention that Quebec is justifiably suspicious that the federally appointed Supreme Court of Canada has a bias in favor of the federal authority.

The cultural study group also levelled some criticism at the lack of breadth of viewpoint represented at the conference.

Mr. Simmins said that the group felt a healthier and more dynamic discussion would have resulted "from the inclusion of a few revolutionaries."

"One perhaps might have spoken for the separatist faction of Quebec the other for the disturbing world of the 'hippies.'

"Both are challenging established visions of present society and challenging us to face up to the fact that radical ideas may exert far more influence upon this society in the last quarter of the 20th century than revolutionary (constitutional) changes."

Other study groups informed plenary sessions that regional government is the thing of the future and should be strong and elective. Regional government might provide in this way a check to the growing trend of provincial governments to taking over more and more powers of municipal governments.

Gaullist Leaders Plan Referendum on Policy

PARIS (Reuters) — Gaullist leaders in France are reacting toward a national referendum on President de Gaulle's international diplomacy, say informed sources here.

They are confident of their ability to rally a majority of the country behind de Gaulle once the dust of controversy surrounding his recent Canadian visit has settled.

The Gaullists calculate that a "peace referendum" would become a new endorsement of de Gaulle's leadership, the sources said.

Key to the success of any referendum is the ability of the Gaullists to explain their leader's foreign policy. The basic theme of this is that the preservation of peace in Europe depends on contributing to the re-establishment of a stable balance of power between the Soviet Union and the United States.

De Gaulle considers that to do this, Western European countries and others such as Canada must disengage themselves from excessive dependence on U.S. foreign policy, the sources said.

Gaullists were temporarily at a loss to explain the president's actions in Quebec province last month which led to accusations that he was siding with French-Canadian separatists.

But they have started to regain their bearings. They point to France's example of freeing itself from external hegemonies.

"Too few people in France understand that the future of our freedom . . . is tied to the will to resist every policy that tends to make a hegemony of any kind possible," Finance Minister Michel Debre wrote in a provincial paper last week.

Left-wing Gaullists have declared that the idea of freedom is as valid for Quebec as it had been for Algeria, for France's former African possessions and for Vietnam.

De Gaulle plans to interrupt his holiday at Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises Wednesday to attend a cabinet meeting here. Thursday he will deliver a television speech that is expected to support social reforms.

But observers predicted he would also touch again on foreign policy.

Hees Promises Quebec Greater Federal Voice

MONTREAL (CP)—George Hees spoke to Conservative party organizers in Montreal Monday, in a bid to gain support in his race for the party leadership, and promised to give Quebec a greater voice in national affairs.

The former trade minister promised the predominantly French province that "Quebec will receive the kind of representation it deserves in the government we will form after the next election."

He said he supports the idea of constitutional reform and supports Quebec's aspirations to sign its own foreign treaties in areas of provincial jurisdiction, but would not like to see an infringement of federal jurisdiction.

Mr. Hees spoke of "equality for Quebec," and said that if he became prime minister he would invite Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau into his cabinet in "an important economic portfolio."

The leadership candidate also released the text of a policy statement which stresses the need to "rebuild Canadian urban society."

Highlights of his program for better urban living are:

—A new department of housing and urban affairs.

—A national conference on urban affairs.

—Establishment of an urban Canada development corporation to speed up urban renewal projects.

—A national attack on pollution.

—Research into the problems of mass transit and inter-city transportation.

Another proposal was that mortgage ceilings and repayment periods be brought into line with today's housing prices."

Easy to Gather Facts To Back Any Position

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

People who keep saying, "Let's look at the facts" always happen to have a set of facts that fit their preconceptions. But, as any experienced journalist knows, there are as many sets of facts as there are positions that support them.

As an easy, and obvious example, take the case of "affluence" in modern U.S. society. I could array a large, impressive set of facts to show that Americans are better off than ever before, and that prosperity is increasing across the board for Americans.

Yet if I wanted to demonstrate the opposite, I could array an equally large and impressive set of facts to demonstrate that the affluence is a dangerous and perilous illusion. Such as —

Where the age of the head of the family is over 65, two-fifths of all families are making under $3,000 a year. That is, 46 per cent of our oldest citizens are living beneath the "poverty" level.

Eight million families make only between $3,000 and $5,000 a year, which is not sufficient for even minimal standards of decent living.

About one out of every five families makes between $5,000 and $7,000 a year — and in this group, 30 per cent of the wives work in order to bring the earnings up to this amount. There are 24 million families in the U.S. — families of four persons — with incomes of less than $7,000 a year.

Only 12 million families — or one out of every four — are in the "middle-income" bracket making between $7,000 and $15,000 a year. And two-thirds of these families include at least one child; most of them have two or more.

In the bracket between $10,000 and $15,000 a year, there are only 17 per cent of all families; and in order to reach this earning figure, 71 per cent of the homes have two or more persons in the family at work.

One - third of all U.S. families have no savings at all, and millions more have savings that total less than $500 per family. An overwhelming majority of U.S. families would not exist for more than a month or so if current income were cut off.

That as I say, is a "set of facts." Every one of them is true. Just as the "facts" proving national affluence are true. What we need is less reverence for facts, and more understanding of the human context in which they should be placed. Only then will we begin to have a meaningful dialogue on the social problems of our time.

Dief Sees Grassroots Support

VANCOUVER (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Saturday he has evidence of a surge of grassroots support if he decides to fight for retention of the Progressive Conservative leadership next month.

Mr. Diefenbaker told a news conference that during his three-week holiday in British Columbia he has received a huge volume of mail, 85 to 90 per cent of which urged him to run for the leadership at the party's September convention in Toronto.

Sounding more like a declared candidate every day, the Tory Chieftain said that if the nine announced leadership candidates had all the "co-operation" they could muster, there would be about 9,300 delegates" instead of the 3,000 that will attend.

Mr. Diefenbaker once again declined to say whether or not he will run.

Black Mike Dies at 69

TORONTO (CP)—Air vice-Marshal Clifford M. McEwen, air ace in the First World War and commander of a bomber group in the second, died in hospital Sunday after a brief illness. He was 69.

Known as Black Mike, he was credited with destroying 24½ enemy aircraft in the First World War.

In the Second World War, he was commander of the RCAF No. 5 Bomber Group in England for 2½ years during which time the group put many records in the sustained bombing of Germany.

Air Vice-Marshal McEwen, born at Griswold, Man., joined the Royal Flying Corps in April 1917.

For his services in the war, he was awarded the Military Cross, the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Italian Medal of Merit and Croce de Guerre.

He became an instructor with the RCAF after he returned to Canada in 1919. In 1932, he assumed command of air training operations at Camp Borden, Ont., then at Trenton, Ont., Toronto, Montreal and Halifax.

Festival; Gary Bowerman Tops

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The tough Scottish "format" course of the Bay of Quinte Country Club threw back the par-breaking challenge of some 85 Ontario professionals at its fourth annual Festival of Golf over the holiday weekend.

At the same time it bowed a figurative head in tribute to two "native sons" who captured two of the three-day tournaments' major awards.

Gary Bowerman, nestled a t 2 pro at the Maple Downs Country Club, Toronto who learned his early golf here, won the professional honors with an even par 71.

Earle "Sonny" MacDonald of this city, playing his fifth game of the season, won the "A" Flight low net award with a sparkling 69.

Doug Gunderson of Quinte took home the "B" Flight low gross with a 76 with Bill Jacoby also of the host club winning "C" Flight low gross with a 85. WM Weymark took "D" Flight low net with a 67 while G. Burgess won "C" Flight low net with a 67.

Bowes r e s played steady consistent golf throughout, meeting the first 13 hole challenges of Frank W h i bley of Scarborough on even terms until he ran into trouble.

The former Belleville golfer carded a 40 on the 14th hole and a 54 coming back. He had three birdies, an eagle and 10 pars.

His eagle on the 12th hole was perhaps the most brilliant shot of the tournament. He drove true to the green and his second shot bounced two or three times and dropped into the cup.

Ken Girard Summit G.C. ol most tied Bowerman's 71 on the eighteenth hole but his tee-foot putt missed the cup by an inch.

The largest gallery of their tournament followed the fortunes of Bowerman, Whibley, Bob Rose and Leon DeClare. The winner picked up the top money $350 of the $1,450 purse. and a handsome plaque.

The next four golfers finished in a tie cluster for second place. Rose of North Yonge; DeClare of Oakdale, Ron Montreuse of Oakdale and Girard carded 72's for awards of $167.50.

Gary Sinter of Rolling Hills picked up third money f o r $47.50 with his 73 as did John Hendrick, Parkview and Whibley.

Five scored 74's for the rest of the purse picking up $2.00 each. They were Brian Boud, Mississauga; Gordon DeLaat, Weston, Herb Reid, Scarboro, John Davis Burlington and Gel Phillips.

A special purse of $100 was disbursed to the four top amateur professionals. Tops was T. J. DeGroote, $40.00; Al Jamieson, $30.00; Jack Taylor, $15.00; and Robin Weddell $15.

Brilliant weather prevailed on Saturday and Sunday with a brisk wind with threatening rain on Monday giving the men and "A" Flight a stiff challenge especially on the back nine.

This had some effect on the majority of the non - money golfers who were strung out with scores in the high seventies and low eighties.

The Festival drew a new record field of over 300 pros and amateurs from all parts of the province.

"B" FLIGHT

Quinte golfers topped a record field of 162 entries in the low gross divisions of the "B" and "C" Flights with five prizewinners in "B" carded under 80 scores.

Lloyd Gunderson won "B" with a five over par 76 with Max Haggerty and Bill Strachan shooting 77's. Don White and Bob Finkle had 79's with Jim Cowan of Trenton turning in the same score.

Bill Jacoby of Quinte took "C" Flight low gross with an 85 and Cec Cournoyea, Trenton, shooting an 86. George Haggis and Al McCreary, Quinte, had similar scores. F. Waters, Glen Lawrence carded a 90 and A. Waters, Thunderbird scoring 91.

Quinte's Will Weymark took low net honors in "A" Flight, carding a 66. Jack Glover and Ralph Ketcheson of Quinte turned in a 68 and 69 with R. Roberts, CFB, Trenton, Dave Emerson, Quinte and Miles Dilch of Cataraqui shooting 69's.

Bayview's G. Burgess took "C" low net honors with 67 with Ken Mosser, Quinte and L. Park, Napanee, having 69's, Bert Messecar, Quinte, had a 70, Frank McCue, Quinte a 71 and Bob Sinton, Napanee, 72.

MIXED TOURNAMENT

Setting another Festival record 116 couples teed off in the Mixed Tournament on Saturday. Phil Costhup and Pat Culhane of Napanee won the tournament top prize with a low net of 72. Dan and Carrie Mahoney of Quinte took second with A and E. Marr of Toronto third and Phyl and Hettie Dyelts of Quinte fourth.

Last minute entries C. McClelland and Mrs. McClelland of Whitevale took the low gross award with Alex Ingram and M. Robinson next in line. The G. Hamiltons of Brampton took third low gross with Vel. Smith, Georgetown and Betty Ingram, Quinte, finishing fourth.

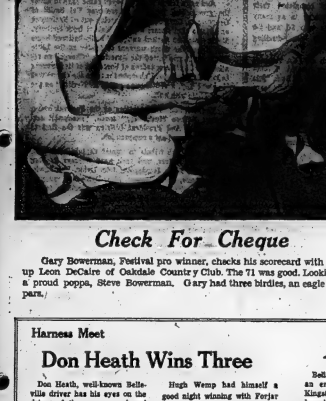
"A" FLIGHT

Trenton CFB's most consistent golfer Doug Robertson carded a 73 to win the low gross honors in "A" Flight from a new high field of 73 entries.

He led second place Bob Halverson of the Trenton GC by two strokes with Al Holmes of Orillia finishing third with a 76.

Bruce Hoover of Whitevale turned in a 76 with Bob McKay of Sarnia next with a 77.

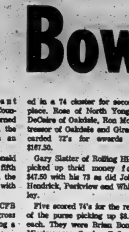
Earle (Sonny) MacDonald of Quinte shot a 70 for second to win the low net top award. Sonny fired a 30 and 37, pacing thirteen of the 18 holes. It was his fifth game of the season.



George MacDonald of Quinte shot a 70 for second place while Al McCallum also of the host club was next with a 71.

Ron Acorn of Port Hope came up with a 67 with Cliff Crawford of Napanee rounding out the prize list with a 72.

A big factor in the success of the Festival was the effort of club pro George Balsdon. Tribute was paid to his work by club president George O'Brien and OGA first vice-president Ken Duggan.at the presentation of awards ceremonies.



President O'Brien expressed his appreciation to all who contributed to the success of the tournament, especially Ken Duggan, thanking Duggan, speaking for the pros, said the tournament had been a great success and complimented the club pro for his efforts.

Visiting golfers were loud in their praises of the Quinte hospitality. The club stewards Elwood and Marg Haines did an outstanding job catering to the wants of the inner men and women. Delectable buffets were served by an augmented staff of ten.

Check For Cheque

Gary Bowerman, Festival pro winner, checks his scorecard with runner-up Leon DeClaire of Oakdale Country Club. The 71 was good. Looking on is a proud poppa, Steve Bowerman. Gary had three birdies, an eagle and ten pars.

EARLE McDONALD

Quinte, had similar scores. F. Waters, Glen Lawrence carded a 90 and A. Waters, Thunderbird scoring 91.

Harness Meet

Don Heath Wins Three

Don Heath, well-known Belleville driver has his eyes on the driver of the year award and it looks like he is well on his way to the honor.

He became the second triple winner of the season at the Quinte Driving Club's meet Saturday night which gives him nine wins, seven seconds and three thirds to take over second place in the leading driver league. Bruce Kemp was the first three-winner.

James Cochrane is currently holding down top position with a mark of 8-4-1.

Heath drove his own Atomic Seika to win the second race and repeated with Lee Law in the fourth and eight events.

The weather was clear and the track fast as 922 paid patrons wagered $14,723 on their favorites.

No-Hitter For Midget, 20 Strikeouts

Randy Castellarin drew a standing ovation from the crowd as he completed a no-hit 20 strikeout performance for Belleville Ellis' against powerful East York, in the annual Leaside All-Ontario midget baseball tourney on the weekend.

The game was a quarter final contest, and pushed Belleville into the semi-finals! Word has not been received at this paper concerning the result.

Lombanks Split Decisions

Belleville Lombanks dropped an error-filled 7-5 decision to Kingston on Saturday but rebounded to tie the series with a 4-2 win last night, in the best-of-three EOBA senior baseball finals. Final game will be at the fairgrounds on Wednesday night with the winner going on to face Brockville for the league crown.

Bill Latchford bore much of the burden for the Lombanks in the hurled both contests. In the former he gave up only two earned runs but helped by his mates spelled defeat. Last night he hurled a four-hitter and the team played well defensively.

Kingston jumped on Latchford for an early 1-0 lead in the loss last night. However, the losers relinquished the lead in the second inning, when Stu Muirhead slammed a long two-run homer off Kingston pitcher Art Leeman. The home team added another marker in the sixth, to make it 3-1. Kingston turned it within a single run with a tally in the eighth, but Don Forsythe rounded the bases for Belleville in the same frame to add the insurance run.

Latchford choked off a Kingston rally in the eighth of one run, when he struck out Charlie Foster and made the most hotter ground out to unbeatable shortstop Pat Asselstine, all with a man on third. The Belleville infielder now fanned nine, walked three, and gave up four hits.

Leeman gave up five hits and struck out 11, before giving way to big Charlie "Goose" Foster, in the eighth. Foster allowed one run, one hit, struck out one and walked one.

Muirhead homered, Forsythe had his double, and Moe Hunter stroked a double and single, to pace the winners at the plate. Chet Boomhower added two singles. The first three in the Belleville batting order were completely stymied, as they totalled eight strikeouts and no hits in the 12 times at-bat.

Charlie Foster, Mac Druce, Don Goodfellow and Clyde Harris hit for the losers.

On Saturday everyone in the Belleville infield made at least one error to ruin Latchford's strong pitching effort. In the Lombanks' last night loss however, Pat Asselstine shone on more than one occasion. Moe Hunter played backstop ball at third, while Don Forsythe on second and Stu Muirhead on first also played well.

The game on Wednesday should be a battle from the opening pitch with the last out, and a large crowd would spark the locale.

Cannifton, Read, Split Victories

Cannifton scored all their runs in one inning to defeat Read 4-3 in the first game of their best-of-seven semi-final South Hastings playoff series, on Saturday. Last night, however, Read ripped Cannifton 8-1 in a pitchers' battle to tie the series.

The same two teams swing back to battle in Read Wednesday night.

Terry Thompson was the sparkplug in Cannifton's win, as he combined with Garnet Adams to hurl a six-hitter, and knocked in two runs with a bases-loaded single. Thompson threw third strikes past seven and walked five. Adams pitched the final two frames.

Harold Pearce struck out two and walked one for the losers.

Bob Moon and Larry Adams slammed a double and single each for Cannifton. Thompson had two base hits, while Ron Urch, Eric Emerson and Hugh Pettle doubled.

Wayne Pearce doubled twice and added a base hit to pace the losers. Carm Milligan clouted a double and single, and Harold Pearce a single.

Read grabbed the win last night with a run in the first inning, two hits and a throwing error pushed the run across, and Ted Abrahs, Read pitcher, took it from there. Abrams gave up only three hits over the route.

Shannonville Wins Opener 6-2

Shannonville won the first game of their best-of-seven South Hastings playoff series with Lots 6-2 on Sunday. The same two teams play again tonight.

Bill Barbarstock hurled a four-hitter for the winners, while Bob Smith took the loss. Bud Hill and Doug Chisholm were the respective catchers.

Bud Hill tripled and Jack Hughes, Larry Lewis and Bob Dotlar singled for Shannonville.

Ross Parks, Doug Chisholm, Howard Meeks and Bob Smith had the losers' hits.

Lots 001 010 000—6-4-5
Shannonville 102 200 001—6-4-2

Commercial League

Cheesemen, Hotel Win

Stinson's almost grabbed a share of first place in the Commercial Softball League Almost. However City Hotel remained on top in the standings as they rallied for three runs in the final frame to nip Stinson's 6-5, last night.

In another game Black Diamond slammed out 20 hits to stroke to swamp Lightfoot's 17-0.

The standings have City Hotel on top with 6 wins and 30 points, two more than the Cheesemen. Stinson's and Lightfoot's are next with 26 points each. Stewart Werner have 20, while the Tiki Club and Brents - Mr. View are out of it.

Gerry Gemeraway spread 11 hits over the route for the winners, while fanning nine. Larry Hull on the opposing mound gave up eight hits and struck out four.

Bob Brooks slammed two doubles and a single, and Doug Hull two doubles, to pace the winners. Tom Meeker had a pair of base hits and Bob Lloyd added a singleton.

Lyle Thompson clouted three hits, including two doubles, for Stinson's. Alex Hutting went Larry Hull, Bob Boyle, Jack Whiting, Ken Genereaux, Harold Workhoven and Dick Flindall.

Bob Swan checked Lightfoot's on four hits while his mates rallied for 20 safeties. Don Smith pitched for the losers.

Fay Kellar and Gene Francis headed the winners at the plate with three hits each, while hitting were Bob Fraser, Stan Ahrens, Ross Empey, Jack Francis, Art Gilbert, Dwight Rathwell and Bob Swan.

Don Woods had two hits for the losers.

Minor Softball

The Tigers defeated Kinsmen Bobcats 11-3 to win their best-of-three BMSA tyke semi-final series, last night.

EOBA Tykes Square Series

Booth T.V. tykes of Belleville tied their best-of-three EOBA semi-final series with Peterborough at one game each as they defeated Peterborough 8-4, on Sunday. Belleville had dropped a 7-5 decision on Saturday in the first game. In other EOBA action, Bailey Lion Club preserves were whitewashed by Cobourg 6-0.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting—Al Lepiow, Pirates, slapped six hits in nine at bats in a doubleheader as Pittsburgh defeated Chicago Cubs 6-3 in the first game and then batted 16 innings to a 3-3 tie in the second.

Pitching—Phil Ortega, Senators, hurled a three-hitter, striking out seven, as Washington shut out Minnesota Twins 3-0.

Jerry Cunningham hurled the win for Belleville Booth's, allowing five hits, striking out three and walking none.

Tony Meagher, Bob Holloway, Rick Culkin and Greg Cronkright had hits for Belleville.

Tim Whalen pitched for Belleville in their Saturday loss. He gave up six hits and struck out 11 Peterborough batters.

Rick Culkin had two of the losers' three hits. Greg Cronkright added the other.

Cobourg's win advanced them into the next round of the EOBA power league.

Ron McTaggart hurled for Belleville while Pat Clarey threw a three hitter for the winners.

McTaggart, Al Ricketts and Grant Geegan banged out Belleville's hits.

Peterborough and Booth T.V. wind up their series on Saturday at the former's park.

Pan American Games

Canada 2nd; Best Showing In History

WINNIPEG (CP)—The fifth Pan-American Games are over and the analysts are going to work.

Looking toward the 1968 Summer Olympics in Mexico City, the questions they are asking include:

How did Canada do in the Pan-Ams? What does her performance indicate for the future? Are we improving?

Canada, up against one of the toughest ever-all teams the United States has ever put together, made her best showing ever in the Pan-American Games.

The U.S. as expected, swept the games with 130 gold medals, 62 second-place silvers and 64 bronzes for a total of 227.

Canada won 13 gold, 19 silver and 43 bronze for a total of 92.

Brazil was third with 26 medals—11 gold, 10 silver and five bronze.

Canadians broke or equalled 23 Games records and 20 Canadian native records in track and field. A total of 22 athletes broke or equalled their personal best times.

Elaine Tanner, 16, of Vancouver, broke the world record for the 100-metre backstroke, then did it again. She also broke the world record in the 200-metre backstroke to pick up two gold medals, plus three silvers. She finished fourth in her remaining two events and broke five Canadian records and tied a sixth.

The Canadian swimmers broke or equalled 27 Games records and lowered 26 Canadian native marks. Fifty- one performances were topped or equalled.

Ralph Hutton, 19, of Ocean Falls, B.C., a veteran, bettered Canada's marks in three events and smashed Canadian marks in five—all in six races. He won one gold and five silver medals.

But it was a newcomer, Angela Coughlan, 14, of Burlington, Ont., and swimming in her first international meet, who caught the fancy of the fans.

She dived in four times and came out with one silver and three bronze medals, broke three Games records and established on in a new event and set two Canadian native marks.

George Smith, 17, of Edmonton, did not win any medals, but he broke the Canadian native mark over 402 metres in the individual medley and exceeded his best previous time at 400 metres in the same event.

Joan Hanley of St. Lambert, Que., finished seventh in the long jump with a bound of 20 feet, 14-inch—but no Canadian girl before had ever cleared more than 20 feet.

Bob McLaren of Victoria came in the Games as a hurdler, but finished third in the 400-metre event in 51.4 seconds, a Canadian native record.

He took over from injured Don Domansky of Port Arthur, Ont., in the 1,600-metre relay and helped Canada finish second in a time that eclipsed both the Pan-Am and native records.

There was no question Canada would place well behind the U.S. squad. The question is how well they will do in Olympic competition against the same Americans plus the best from the rest of the world.

There were 12 world records set in the Games which ended Sunday and 36 more were equaled, the U.S. broke 13 and equalled three, but in many cases they were paced in these records by Canadian athletes. Outside of Miss Tanner's three world record performances, the only Canadian to come close was Alf Mayor of Kitchener, Ont., who shot 598 out of 600 in English match rifle competition to equal the record of Dave Boyd of the U.S., set in 1926.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Sure, an iwas a great weekend for the Irish, Esquith, Scottish and sundry other dolleys and Dorcas O'Brien's Army at the Bay of Quinte Country Club's Golf-Ops 67.

Over one of 'em hivanced here from the hinterlands, the back fifties, concession-and-crossroads and other places where people hound the little white ball over the lush spreads of green-awarded courses.

They constituted the second record-breaking merit cheerers for President (the general) George O'Brien since the inception of the Festival four years ago.

In 1964 with the able assistance of George Baines, chief of the professional commander, President O'Brien lined off the inaugural Festival sided and abetted by hard-working directors.

Quinte's tough, flattish course came through its Festival baptism handsomely, leaving an indelible impression on some one of the cookies. Not a few pocketfulls were concerned.

Since then, like Dickens' Tiny Tim, they've been coming back for more in ever increasing numbers. Quinte's Golf-Ops 67 goes into the Festival archives as the greatest WHOLE-IN-ONE.

It had everything going for it. Consensus of visiting golfers; the course nearly perfect. Cordial welcome signed in from the sun-glinted waters of the Bay of Quinte. That ancient and honorable edifice the clubhouse, looking ten years younger through historical facelifting operations, fabric cooed hospitality.

Fifty-five prem and sundated prem bended a Festival record field that included starry amateurs from every part of the province.

And not a few of the "old boys" came back to haunt the greens and fairways. There was Val Smith of Georgetown, the "Ole Turk" Barclay out of Brantlyon and Main (Let's start a party) Bradford Sudbury, Maris located an ancient antique if badly-battered beagle that signed the death warrant of Custer at the little Big Horn. Maris called it "Antique Shotgun" as realistically it got a squadron of horse out of its barracks at Fort Pitt Quinte. Unhappiest man on the course was Cuthbert Roy, a visitor, who pulled a "Merlich" on the second hole with a 12.

Organization and operation of the Festival had a distinct "Three Musketeers" touch. "one-for-all and all-for-one." Festival President O'Brien was the first to admit that it was not a one-man job.

He paid fine tribute to gamers captain John Cox, pro George Balazs, and such hard workers as Stan Armstrong, Norm Henderson, John Dyke, Ken Lewis, the Strahans, Doug Bennett, Mrs. Dybbe and many of the ladies, division who turned their shoulders to the Festival wheel in many ways.

"It was a great team effort" he said "and I'm extremely proud of those who helped make the tournament the great success it proved to be."

Sidelight: Then there's the story of the four "Spaniards" who went to Cherry Valley, got into some home-made hot deep fresh raspberry pie and because the cherries were not pitted, came home "stoned".

And on different "greens" the Bellerille Lawn Bowling Club entered the Silver Anniversary of its famed Corbin Gold Trophy Tournament in the archives as an outstanding success.

Well-organized and conducted by Tourney Chairman Bill Van Vassel and Canadian Bowling Council vice-president Percy Hall the quarter-century event attracted a record entry in the Watkin Memorial Gold Trophy event (some were turned back) and well'over forty watched in the Gold Cup play.

Top lawn keglers from all parts of Ontario were here and were lead in tributes to the perfection of the green, tournament facilities and the well-known hospitality of the club.

That versatile bowler of "greens and silvers" Ken Peacock once won the "Mr. Bowler" title at the Scott-O-Drome, won his first Corbin Gold Trophy turning back stiff competition from top teams of the district and faraway places.

The switching of the Corbin' Gold day from Monday to Sunday gave the summer tournament a well-deserved shot in the arm. The Sunday date brought increased entries in an event that has lagged during the past few years and as a club spokesman put it "This will definitely help to put the Corbin Gold back on the feeling it held a few years ago."

Captures Speedboat Titles

SYDNEY (CP)—Spike Burns of Oshawa, Ont., world record holder in speed boat racing, captured the Class A utility, Class B stock hydro and Class B utility in Canadian speedboat racing championships here Sunday.

A total of 80 leading Canadian and U.S. skippers piloted their highpowered craft over choppy waters in the competitions held in four classes.

Despite heavy rain, large crowds lined both sides of the harbor to witness the events, which were rescheduled from Saturday due to high winds.

Class A stock hydro honors were captured by Jim Toohey of Dunnville, Ont., while Welden Allen of Lunenburg, N.S., won the Class C utility division and Ted Abel of Toronto came first in the Class C stock hydro division.

Class D honors were awarded to Jim Miller of Loudon, Ont.

Wins Western Open

Nicklaus Ups Loot $20,000

CHICAGO (AP)—Jack Nicklaus shook off the effects of an ear infection to win the $102,000 Western open golf tournament Sunday with a closing 35-34-69 for a 274 total, 10 under par.

Doug Sanders went over par on the last two holes for a 72-hole finish for 276 and second place.

Nicklaus' third victory of the season was worth $20,000 to lift his official earnings for the year to $101,148 and third place on the International Golfers Association list.

The U.S. open champion became the first golfer to win $100,000 or more in five seasons. It was his first Western Open triumph, adding to his list of victories covering all major events.

But Nicklaus, his ear blocked up under a doctor's treatment, nearly blew it when he went over par on the final hole. It was only Sanders' collaps that opened the door.

"I hate to win a tournament this way," said the blond bomber after the 22rd victory of his career. "Winning this way feels like coming in the back door."

Sanders, spending hours on the practice tee this week trying to break a slump that has left him without a tourney win since early spring, had moved into a tie with Nicklaus at 10-under after dropping 10 and three-foot birdie putts on the 65th and 68th holes.

Sanders came to the 253-yard 71st still 10 under and knowing that Nicklaus finished at under. Then he blew the last two holes.

Win 24-16

Roughies Maul BC Lions

VANCOUVER (CP)—Saskatchewan Roughriders started their defence of the Grey Cup Monday night by mauling B.C. Lions 24-16 in a Canadian Football League game, but Lions general manager Danny Veitch predicted: "I still think we'll be in the playoffs."

Veitch and 28,411 fans had just seen the Lions tumble into the Western Conference basement, which they occupied at the conclusion of the 1966 season.

Veitch based his playoff prediction on the fact his rookie-infested club will take considerable time to become a contender.

The Roughies had only one new face in their starting lineup and the Lions 14, including 10 rookies.

"You can't expect us to beat the Grey Cup champions just like that, but we weren't that far off, having held a 13-10 lead at one stage," said Veitch.

It was the Riders' first league game of the season, and the win put them in early-season first-place tie with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders.

Their offence produced 16 first downs, two more than B.C., and 329 yards, 12 better than the Lions.

Most of Saskatchewan's yardage, 223 yards, came on the ground but two touchdowns came through the air.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster tossed scoring strikes to Hugh Campbell and Al Ford. He got the other major himself by hailing over from the one after setting it up with a series that included a 36-yard pass to Ford.

Jack Abendschan converted all Saskatchewan touchdowns and kicked a 25-yard field goal.

Leafs Move Up To Third Spot

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pitching is the name of the game for successfull baseball teams and Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League couldn't be more pleased.

The Leafs completed their fifth doubleheader in as many days Monday with 3-1 and 2-0 victories over cellar-dwelling Buffalo Bisons.

The stretch of eight victories in 10 games moved Toronto past Toledo Mud Hens into third place in the eight-team league.

Toledo absorbed a 5-1 defeat from Columbus Jets, Richmond Braves rapped Jacksonville Suns 3-1 and Rochester Red Wings whacked Syracuse Chiefs 5-0.

Commonwealth Golf

Error Gives Britons Title

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP)—Great Britain won its third straight Commonwealth women's golf championship Saturday partially because Gayle Hitchens of Vancouver lost one hole by default.

The British girls posted two victories and a tie in four singles matches against Canada Saturday for a total of three points over the three days of play.

Canada followed with 1½ points, Australia one point and New Zealand a half a point.

The British victory was made possible by Bridget Jackson's 1-up victory over Miss Hitchens and Diana Oxley's 4-and-3 win over Helene Gagnon of Arvida, Que.

Miss Hitchens lost to Miss Jackson when her birdie putt rammed the attended pin on the hole but the hole before dropping and lost the hole by default.

John Laverty, 16, of Hamilton was the caddy who neglected to remove the pin.

"I was going to take it out, but I saw the ball coming fairly fast," he said. "I left the pin in and it dropped. I didn't know I had to take it out."

"It's not your fault," said Miss Hitchens. "I knew the rule and you didn't."

The rules of the Royal and Ancient Golf Association say the flag must be taken from the hole when a caddy is in attendance or the player loses the hole by default in match play.

Vivien Saunders of Great Britain and Gail Harvey Moore of Vancouver finished in a tie while the only Canadian victory was posted by Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto defeated Elizabeth Chadwick 1 up.

Captures Rifle Title

BY JOHN SLINGER

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP) —Clinton Dahlstrom of Calgary, Alta., who says his specialty is being runner-up, stopped running long enough Monday to win the Canadian sporting rifle championship.

The 42-year-old geologist took the measure of the government's Connaught Ranges near this community 30 miles west of Ottawa to shoot a total 2,332 out of a possible 2,400.

He outshot 62 Canadian and United States riflemen, outpointing second-place Ed Warner of Lennoxville, Que., who shot 2,347 and Bruce Wilkins of Ancaster, Ont., who shot 2,343.

Trenton Rink Wins Corbin Gold Cup, Silverware

A glorious weekend of lawn bowling was concluded on civic holiday 'do' the Lawn Bowling Club. A festive air prevailed throughout and visiting bowlers and their wives were loud in praise for the hospitality shown and the keen competition offered.

The week started on Saturday with the Wallis Memorial Trophy for mixed pairs at stake followed on Sunday by the Corbin Gold Cup tournament. In each event record entries were recorded and some of the best bowlers in the province competing.

On Saturday evening a reception was held for visiting bowlers at the Hotel Quinte with Pete Weber of the Calvert Company as host. This was a gala night with many guests and long ago again being replayed.

In the Wallis tourney, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Grainger of Richmond Hill was the winners followed by Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilson of Burlington, Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Smith of the local club, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kelly of West Toronto, Miss Nancy Watkin and Bill Duncan Jr. of Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chapham also of Belleville club, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Judge of Whitby and Mr. and Mrs. F. Lotenberg of the host club, all of these rinks were three-game winners.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Coverly of Madoc and Mr. and Mrs. D. Reynolds of Oshawa were two-game winners while Mrs. Reid Lloyd and Wally Lavergne of the Belleville club had one game high. The no-game winner was Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Bevston of Oshawa.

The dominators of the Dick Kidney rink in the Corbin tourney was broken, when a rink of Cecil Newton, Bob Baker, Horace Ormsbee with Ken Peacock as skip from Trenton pulled out the three high wins over 47 other rinks to pick up the cup and the beautiful silver tea service. As this was the 25th anniversary of the tournament practically all the prizes were of silver.

The Calvert Gold Cup was won by a rink of Gord Pichem, Fred Mercescu, Ewart Osterndor with Neil Sallrell of Caledonia, as skip. In third place was a rink of Lloyd White, John Sager, Wally Lavergne with Austin Watkin as skip. This rink won the Belle Cleaners gold cup and silverware and play out of the Belleville club.

Another Belleville rink of Lyle Langsboer, Bob Semple, Ken Ashley with Bill Wright as skip won the Gordon Watkin gold cup donated by the local club in honor of a retired member. Jim Prainger of Richmond Hill with a rink of Floyd Perkins, Jack Hickman and Murray Hull was high for two wins followed by a rink from Montreal with Larry Elliott, Art Kendig, Bert Lalibne with John Henderson, president of the Dominion Council of Bowling as skip. A Balmy Beach rink of Jay Rollins, Wilfred Price, Mark Vanner with Charlie Bodle as skip also won two games. Also from Balmy Beach a rink of John Gillers, Ron Hudson, Jim Bayley with Dalton Tossell as skip won two games high.

The high one-game winner was a rink of Fred Cole, Os Nicklen, Clarence Cha, and Mervin Brock of Newmarkville. In the one-game high was A rink of Dave Catto, Don Creighton, Jack Leonard with Jim Riley of Port Credit as skip. The no-game high was a rink of F. Scarboro, B. Andrews, George Southwell and Ivan Duncan as skip.

The bowlers were welcomed by Mayor Jack Ellis and the club welcome expressed by Bill Van Tassel, general chairman of the Corbin committee. "Jerry" Hyde as usual conducted the draw in a most capable manner. During the days the women's section served hot dinners, sandwiches, pies and coffee and did a thriving business.

Ellis Beats Martin

Spencer Stops Terrell

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Thad Spencer won over Ernie Terrell and Jimmy Ellis beat Leotis Martin on a bloody technical knockout Saturday and won their way into the semi-finals of the heavyweight boxing elimination tournament.

Spencer, of San Francisco, knocked Terrell, of Chicago, down in the second round and benefitted from a penalty against Terrell for low blows in their 12-rounder.

Ellis, of Lexington, Ky., the 1964 TKO over Martin, of Philadelphia, in the ninth round.

Spencer weighed 201½ pounds, three less than Terrell, the former World Boxing Association champion who was beaten by Cassius Clay in his last appearance in the Astrodome where the doubleheader Saturday was regarded as a first in boxing.

The two fights drew a crowd of 13,946 that paid $62,580 in the spacious Astrodome that can seat 46,000 for boxing.

Judge Chris Jordan and referee Jimmy Webb scored 118-110 for Spencer while Judge Ernie Taylor had it 116-110.

Spencer and Ellis now move into the semi-finals of the eight-man tournament sanctioned by the WBA to select a world champion successor to Clay, stripped of his title by the WBA when he refused induction into the U.S. armed services.

Bad Boys whipped Barriages 17-8 and Fountain Park outlasted Sine's Shell 16-11, in BMBA peewee playoff action last night.

Brian Cousins and Mike Bell shared Bad Boys' pitching chore while Max Watt and Terry Cowis buried for the losers.

Cousins was best with the bat for the winners, slamming two triples and a single. Dan Cousins had a double and single, and Keith Stather and Andy Ricketts had two singles each. Robert McKay singled twice for the Barriages.

John Malivhil and Jim Richardson pitched for Fountain Park and gave up only four hits. Bob Menard, Blaine Malone and Ron McTaggart checked for Sine's Shell.

Malvihil led his team at the plate with a homer, triple double and single. Dan Lapenstta slammed a triple and two doubles, and Dale Voltenburg two singles.

Bob Menard homered for Sine's.

Senators On Rampage; Win 9 Of 12

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

...Joe Hardy, the mythical hero who led Washington Senators from oblivion to the American League pennant in a best-of-9 fag took a few years shack, would have popped his buttons with pride over Gil Hodges' seldom reached by the perennial also runs.

The Senators got a three-hitter from Phil Ortega Monday night and blanked Minnesota Twins 5-0 for their third straight victory and sixth in the last 12 games. It left them at the magic .500 mark-a plateau Washington has soared into since its inception in 1961.

Ortega, running his record to 9-5, retired the first 13 batters he faced before Bob Allison's drive fell off Hank Allen's glove for a fifth-inning double.

But the big right-hander allowed just two other singles and was in control all the way.

Brabender, recalled by Baltimore from Rochester of the International League July 31, was just as strong. He pitched hitless ball until the sixth inning and finished with a four-hitter against the Indians.

Brabender struck out 13—a season high for the pitching-poor Orioles—and got brilliant fielding support from centre fielder Paul Blair.

Blair was far to his left for Vic Davalillo's first-inning liner and then crashed into the fence grabbing Duke Sims' fly ball in the seventh.

Sam Bowens' two-run homer featured a four-run seventh inning that won it for the Orioles.

The Angels exploded for seven runs in the eighth inning on six singles, a walk and an error, wiping out a 4-1 New York lead.

In the only other American League games played Monday, Baltimore Orioles' Gene Brabender blanked Cleveland Indians 4-0 on a four-hitter and California Angels topped New York Yankees 8-4, scoring seven runs in the eighth inning.

Ken Harrelson smashed his 13th home run of the season and Paul Casanova drove in two runs with a first-inning double as the Senators jumped into an early lead.

Cubs Run Losing Streak To Seven

By ED SCHUTLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The hopes of Chicago fans that their team would end its losing streak went up with a Cub ninth-inning rally. Then, they went down again with the sun.

The Cubs lost their seventh straight game, 6-3 to Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of a doubleheader Monday at Wrigley Field—where the only lights available is the natural kind.

And they were losing the second game 3-1 when they rallied for a tie in the bottom of the ninth inning. But neither team could score again, and the game was called because of darkness after 14 innings.

The individual records count, but the game will have to replayed as part of a doubleheader Wednesday.

In the only other scheduled National League games, both at night, Ron Hunt's single sparked Los Angeles Dodgers past first-place St. Louis Cardinals 6-4 and Philadelphia Phillies trounced San Francisco Giants 9-6.

Pittsburgh's Dennis Ribant, the former Hamilton junior Red Wing hockey player, had a no-hitter through seven innings at Chicago, but Ron Santo broke it up with his 23rd homer leading off the eighth. The Cubs then chased Ribant when John Stephenson and Ernie Banks opened the ninth with singles. Don Kessinger advanced the runners with a sacrifice off reliever Al McBean, and Lee Thomas brought in a run with a groundout.

Juan Pizarro then took over for McBean, and Billy Williams greeted him with a single on a 3-2 pitch, tying the game.

Manny Sanguillen doubled home two Pittsburgh runs in the second inning and Al Lopiow, who collected six hits for the day, singled home another in the eighth.

The Pirates used the ninth-inning rally to win the first game. Don Clendenon clinched it with a two-run homer.

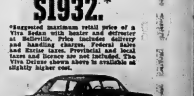
MEET THE ALL-NEW VAUXHALL VIVA FROM GENERAL MOTORS

Quietness is the keynote in this totally new small economy car. The lowest price field may never be the same again.

Viva built its sound barrier by the generous use of body insulation, rubber engine mounts and bonded rubber bushings. The underbody is sprayed with a thick layer of sound deadener. And the exhaust system features twin in-line mufflers.

Space-Curve Styling. Viva's back seat is now nearly ten inches wider. Hip-hugging bucket seats are standard up front. For extra special comfort there's a new ventilating system with individually adjustable, multi-directional fresh-air vents.

Viva Deluxe Interior



Viva Deluxe Sedan

Viva now offers an optional 3-speed fully automatic transmission with centre console control. Its famous 4-speed fully synchronized manual gear box remains standard. The new Viva sets higher standards in ride and handling—and power is up 12%!

If you need any other reassurance, look at the low price of this all-new Viva.

$1932.*

*Suggested maximum retail price of a Viva Sedan with heater and defroster at Belleville. Price includes delivery and handling charges. Federal Sales and Excise taxes. Provincial and local taxes and licence are not included. The Viva Deluxe shown above is available at slightly higher cost.

Youth Day at World's Fair Runs Into Heavy Criticism

MONTREAL (CP)—Officials of the United Nations pavilion have expressed disappointment about some arrangements for Youth Day at the world's fair as Expo source said Monday night.

The source said the officials were particularly disappointed with the program Sunday night at the Youth pavilion where Dr. Ralph Bunche, UN undersecretary for special political affairs, was one of the featured panel members on a discussion about peace.

It was understood that Dr. Bunche, 1950 Nobel Peace Prize winner, was disturbed because Youth pavilion authorities had a hippie San Francisco musical group playing outside as panel members attempted to give serious consideration to the question of peace.

The musical group drowned out much of what was being said by panel members at the gathering of about 200 persons. Panelists came from Senegal, the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada, Mexico, Yugoslavia and Canada.

The loud music gave a poor taste to a serious discussion, the source said, especially following the Place des Nations ceremonies marking Youth Day, which were late starting and disrupted by a fairly public address system.

The entire Youth Day program had been disorganized, with the schedule having been arranged at the last moment. Even so, it still had to undergo changes throughout the day.

Newspaper reporters covering the program were amazed at the lack of organization of events which had been expected to be one of the highlights of Expo, especially with an array of speakers reserved for their anti-American views on the Vietnamese war.

Yesterday was Gabon's day at Expo and the West African country's festivities were kicked off with an evening reception at the Helene de Champlain restaurant given by Daniel Assoumou, commissioner-general of the Gabon pavilion, followed by a dinner at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

Pierre Mebaley, Gabon's minister of national economy, commerce and mines, officiated at his country's flag-raising ceremony at Place des Nations where he was welcomed by Pierre Dupuy, commissioner-general of Expo.

Hilton Starts Service To Restore City's Image

MONTREAL (CP)—The Queen Elizabeth Hotel announced Monday it has established an emergency accommodation service for frustrated visitors to Expo 67.

The hotel said its intention is to help "restore the community's image as a hospitality city."

Donald M. Mumford, president of Hilton of Canada Ltd. and managing director of the Queen Elizabeth, said in a statement the service was into operation Monday and is being run on a non-profit basis.

Reputable downtown hotels, motels and inns were being invited to register with the new service or to contact the Queen Elizabeth of any vacancies.

He said a visitor in need of help must come in person to the emergency service desk located in the main lobby of the hotel.

He would then be provided with suitable accommodation in an establishment which has been thoroughly inspected by trained hotel personnel.

No deposit would be required and the hotel staff would not accept commissions or gratuities.

Gunsmoke Starts 13th Year By Moving to New Time Slot

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Gunsmoke, grandfather of television's "adult westerns," will start its 13th season as one of the industry calls "a family show."

The switch is occasioned by CBS's moving the show from a late Saturday evening spot to an early Monday evening show. That means that, while the buff of the old Gunsmoke audience was presumed to be grownups who preferred to stay home Saturday nights, the new soul once will be heavily laced with small fry. It is devoutly believed in by broadcasters that children control television dials as long as they are up.

Producer John Mantley insists that the change, with one exception, will not affect the series or its scripts.

The exception will be that Kitty will never be mentioned," Mantley said. "She may be roughed up now and then by villains and outlaws but it will never go beyond that."

Over the years Gunsmoke has become more conservative in its treatment of sexual themes, Mantley said. When the series was 30 minutes long, "we never tried to disobey the audience of the idea that there was a romance going between Matt and Kitty."

At one time it was speculated that the girls at the Long Branch saloon lived upstairs.

"It was never anybody's wish to clean up the Long Branch," Mantley said. "It was quite openly shown as a period brothel.

"It was obvious that the girls here were not only to get men to buy drinks. But then after the champ-down on sex and violence a few years ago, nobody could go upstairs."

One of the big surprises last spring came when CBS announced the end of the series—a decision which shocked the producer and cast as much as it did the western's fans. The series had always been a steady but not stellar performer in the ratings.

At the time it was reported that the show was being dropped because its appeal was primarily to older people residing outside of cities.

Almost overnight reversal of the death sentence, Mantley believes, was dictated by public response to the cancellation—including the threats of some ruthless television stations to sever their ties with CBS. Now, with a new position in the network schedule—Mondays at 7:30 p.m.—the producer thinks that the old show has several more years of life in it.

Policemen Called 'Thin Line' Between Citizens and Anarchy

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 25,000 policemen are the "thin blue line" standing between the citizens of the country and "the anarchy we see in so many other places," RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan said Monday.

He told 400 delegates to the Ontario Police Association convention that they are "frontline soldiers" who must bear the brunt of any resistance to legality by constituted authority.

The man who has been in a 35-year career with the RCMP, Commissioner McClellan retires Aug. 15 to become Alberta's — and Canada's — first ombudsman.

He pointed to recent violence in U.S. cities in expressing concern about "the widening gulf between police and public."

"The merest rumor" of mistreatment of a white or a Negro in the U.S. resulted not in minor disturbances or peaceful protests "but in what amounts to an armed insurrection in which whole sections of a major city are destroyed."

"How do the germs of this sickness in the emergence of would-be leaders who advocate not only the violence we have already seen but even greater violence amounting to guerilla warfare, and who publicly revile when a policeman is killed," he said.

The commissioner said police represent law and order in the minds of the public.

"Those who have resistance or contempt for authority and law and order, the police will be the first to experience the antagonism and the violence which follow."

He described "hippies" as blithers in the game of life, people who "feel their heads in the dreams of marijuana or LSD", but still reserved the right to criticize.

He said policemen have a right to "considerably more support" than they have been getting from the public at large.

Canadian Customs Halt Supplies for Vietnam

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for an inter-faith group which aims to Canada from the United States with money and medical supplies for Vietnam said Monday night the medical supplies still are at a Canadian customs station near the border.

James Nlas of New York City said in an interview an RCMP officer told him and seven others from the group that they would have to take the parcels, addressed to the Red Cross societies in North Vietnam, back to the U.S.

"If we don't take them back and instead try to bring them into Canada, the parcels will be confiscated by the RCMP," said Mr. Nlas.

"The constable also told us we would be subject to arrest as smugglers and to deportation.

"But we intend to go back to the customs station and carry out our plans for getting to the parcels into Canada."

The group planned to be at the station on Route 9, across the border from Champlain, N.Y., at 10 a.m. EDT today.

The group's spokesman said the reason given for retention of the parcels at the customs station was their lack of a stamp of approval from U.S. customs on the declaration form covering the goods.

"That's a ruling that applies to North Vietnam," said Mr. Nlas.

"If we were sending the parcels elsewhere there'd be no problems."

The parcels were to be mailed in Canada to the Red Cross in North Vietnam.

The group spokesman said the eight persons delegated to carry the parcels to the Canadian customs office for about three hours Monday.

Mr. Nlas said that among the 170 persons who came up for the Saturday night meeting were Unitarians, Episcopalians and holders of other beliefs, as well as Quakers.

Coal Board Chairman May Quit

LONDON (CP)—Lord Robens, head of Britain's enormous national coal board, started an investigation of his own organization today and admitted: "I just do not know what my position will be at the end of the month."

Robens offered Monday night to resign his $37,500-a-year job because of a judicial report blaming the coal authority for the Aberfan disaster.

But Power Minister Richard Marsh asked Robens to delay his decision and conduct a one-month investigation of the board to "rectify faults" and "ensure a disaster of this kind can never happen again."

The report of the government-appointed tribunal said the massive slide of slag that killed 144 persons in the Welsh village last October was the result of folly, ignorance and banking hopelessness in the coal authority. It said the avalanche could have been prevented and named nine officials as responsible by blameworthy.

The tribunal also bluntly declined to accept some of Robens' evidence and described his testimony as "inconsistent." It said Robens was "unwise" to state publicly either the direction that the slide was "unanticipated" when persons involved knew otherwise.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 9

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Accent today on marriage, partnerships, ability to relate to the world around you. Your attitude is of utmost importance. Be open mind is open to creative ideas, suggestions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Some of the bills coming in—don't panic. You gained much from recent experiences. But there is a price to pay. Meet obligations with good will, humor. Then you gain in stature.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You can perfect techniques. Look within for answers. Day involves ideas, affection, willingness to give of yourself. Children could play paramount role. Be ready for change.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Day when your innate abilities come to fore. Inclined to be keeping home and family together. Many lean upon you. This will pass. Demonstrate and give strength.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Information received enables you to give material aid to close friend, relative. Be perceptive. Analyze reasons — find out why. Can be productive day if you permit it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Overcome tendency toward timidity. Make effort to obtain fresh point of view. Then you actually gain in financial sense. Day spotlights possessions. Take stock.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Cycle high. Circumstances turn in your favor. Be at right place at right time. Take special care with personal appearance. You might be called upon to make surprise speech.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be daring enough to shake off inertia. Some things have to be left behind, others must be brought to you. Be receptive to ideas, suggestions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Fine evening for dining out, being with congenial persons. Avoid one who is gloomy. Fasten in your mind the idea of success. Your goal is within reach — so reach.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Some who advise you actually want to have a vicarious experience. Realize and perceive this — act accordingly. Today you succeed if self-reliant. Be independent without being domineering.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Strengthen philosophic position. Means be positive within. Dispel self-doubt. Read, write, study — add to your own-all knowledge. Casual contacts are with family member.

PISCES (Feb. 18 — Mar. 20): Some of your beliefs could cost money. Know this and be sure of what you believe. Blinds will guess work. Go directly to authoritative source. Read your paper for special hints, information.

If today is your birthday . . . you attract people to you with their ills, problems. Would make fine teacher, are attracted to medicine. As actor or theatrical personality you could make a lasting mark. You soon get an opportunity to spread your wings in form of travel—and romance.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Libra, Scorpio. Special word to Virgo: Your outlook depends upon amount of inner confidence. You can get everything you need — if you believe in yourself.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was reported in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H. Supposiories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

24 Killed In Ontario

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic mishaps claimed a total of 24 lives in Ontario during the three-day Civic Holiday weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Monday, host times, also showed two persons drowned in the province—one man electrocuted when a pipe he was handling touched a high-voltage wire and another killed while hunting a rifle.

The national safety council reporting two-day weekends in all provinces except Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta, where Monday was a holiday, showed a total of 61 accidental deaths, 43 in traffic.

The national survey also showed 13 persons drowned, three died in fires and three died in other mishaps

RECALL ATOM BOMBING

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP)—Hiroshima observed the 22nd anniversary Sunday of its destruction by the world's first atomic bomb, dropped in the closing days of the Second World War. Some 30,000 persons gathered at the city's Peace Park to offer a minute of silent prayer for the thousands killed in that single instant when a U.S. bomber dropped its deadly load.

5 BIG DAYS FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

THE BELLEVILLE FAIR

AUGUST 15 - 16 - 17 - 18 - 19

STAGE SET FOR BIGGEST EVER!

Directors of the Belleville Agricultural Society are all ready to launch the centennial edition of Belleville fair and they confidently look forward to setting new records both in attendance and in features.

"We've never been in better shape," said President Dr. Harry Burns. "The grounds themselves look excellent, and are growing facilities will make exhibiting here more enjoyable."

He also pointed to the extended playing dates this year noting that the big show will run for five days instead of the usual four. "The fair board has the most exciting combination of features ever presented in Belleville," stated Dr. Burns.

"For our Centennial program, we've been able to put together a perfect selection of professional thrill shows and local talent. The directors have always considered Belleville fair to be one of the few true family exhibitions left and this year, the board is going all out to provide entertainment and displays that appeal to everyone from the very small to the very old and a lot of time, effort and work and a lot of time, of every family in between. We don't think fairgoers will forget for a long time, be disappointed."

High Stepping Hackneys

High stepping hackneys show their style in front of grandstand at last year's fair. Early entries indicate another record turnout of horses for this year's show. Horse show runs for five full days.

Bobby and Dennis Hull To Officially Open Fair

Bobby and Dennis Hull, possibly two of the best known names in North America will officially open the 1967 Belleville Fair.

The NHL Chicago Black Hawk stars will cut the ribbon to launch this year's fair into a record-breaking five day run on Tuesday evening, August 15th.

Neither is any stranger to this annual exhibition. When they were growing up at their home in Point Anne, 'going to the Fair' was always looked forward to as one of the highlights of the summer season.

In later years, Bobby has been a regular exhibitor walking off with top awards won by his outstanding Hereford cattle in the beef division of the show. He will have a number of animals in the beef classes again this year.

In requesting the Hull brothers to conduct the official opening ceremonies, the Fair Board is continuing its policy of acting as a showcase for local excellence in every walk of life.

It can count on a full house to cheer the two famous guests, and to remain for the first big feature event of the exhibition . . . "The Eastern Ontario Gymkhana Championships" being sponsored by the Quinte Western Horse Association.

In addition to these thrilling western horse games, the evening will be given extra spice by western entertainment acts, will perform between competition events.

Eight Fairs in County

There are eight fairs held in the County of Hastings and four are more than a Century old.

The earliest printed records in the Ontario Archives date back to the publication "Reports of Transactions of the Board of Upper Canada', dated 1855. It is reported that the County Society consisted, in 1854, of 150 members.

The report was sent in by B. F. Davy, 1855 president of the County Society, which would appear to be Belleville.

There were only three branches mentioned — Huntingdon and Hungerford with 46 members; Thurlow, 31 members; Tyendinaga, 44 members.

Mr. Davy stated, "The numbers which attended our annual show was much greater than in former years", but he gives no information as to the number of years they had been in operation.

In fact, the Board of Agriculture intended to compile a list of societies and their beginnings, but appear never to have been able to do so.

Belleville has claimed October 1, 1821, as the date the first fair was held.

Over the years, the Belleville Society has been known as the Hastings Committee of the Midland District Agricultural Society. In 1840 as Victoria District and Cattle Show; in 1860 as the Bay of Quinte District Fair; in 1861 as South Hasting Agricultural Society; since 1907 as the Belleville Fair.

But li appear that further research is needed to establish more exact information. fla actual organization as an Agricultural Society is still a matter of question.

Coe Hill society held its first fair at a place called Salem, now non-existent. Opening of a mine at Coe Hill caused is removal there.

Marmora Society was organized in 1890 and has always been held in that village.

Mohawk Society is located as Tyendinaga Reserve and was organized in 1901. A copy of the 1902 prize list reveals Dr. Oronhyatekha, was Honorary president.

Madoc, a Class 'B' Fair was organized in 1905. Stirling Society was organized in 1858 and was formerly known as County, Rawdon, Huntingdon and Foxboro fair.

Shannonville Society has been in operation since 1856 and the land is actually a part of the Indian reserve. Tweed Society has been held on the same property since 1902.

The North Hastings Society was organized around 1860 and the Hungerford society in 1854. Since 1902, the name has been the Tweed fair.

During Centennial year, many Ontario Societies have undertaken to compile histories of their Societies and there is opportunity in this field for those in Hastings.

JOIN THE MANY WISE PARENTS WHO ARE PROVIDING FOR THEIR CHILDREN'S HIGHER EDUCATION UNDER THIS PLAN

Centennial Scholarship is a government chartered, non-profit Foundation, offering a unique savings plan designed to provide the necessary funds for your child's post-high school education. We emphasize that it is not an insurance plan or a mutual funds plan, but a plan whereby parents deposit their family allowance cheque in the case of children under one year, and slightly more for older children, in their own personal guaranteed savings account where the money is under their control and can be withdrawn at any time.

This savings account will provide the funds for your child's first year at university or technical school, and through the Centennial Scholarship Foundation plan, the Foundation would make available cash scholarships for the second, third and fourth years. At present these scholarship grants, as nearly as can be calculated, should amount to approximately $5,000 to $6,000.

Local Industry to Have Many Exhibits

Under the sponsorship of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, local industry will once again show its wares at Belleville Fair.

Industrial exhibits will take up a good part of exhibition hall (curling club) in a bid to inform Quinte residents about products manufactured in the area and the part the industrial family plays in the local economy.

Some of the firms planning special displays include Aluminum Star Products Ltd.; H. Corby Distillery Ltd.; Deacon Bros. Sportswear Ltd.; M c & d Johnson (Canada) Ltd.; Ontario Hydro; Belleville Utilities Commission and the Stewart Warner Corp.

Although most participants are keeping the theme of their actual displays for a surprise on opening day, some have given a hint or two of the direction they hope to follow.

For example, the H. Corby Distillery will feature the Corby Park Project to indicate the active part played by this historic company in the development of the community.

Corby Park, between William and Ann Streets in the city, was given to Belleville by the original Corby family in the early 1800's; it was recently redeveloped into a beautiful rose garden Park and re-dedicated to Belleville citizens as the firm's local Centennial project.

Aluminum Star Products is planning a display to illustrate the company's many products, with special emphasis on its Centennial plaques and insignia.

The exhibit being assembled by the Stewart Warner Corporation will demonstrate the famous computer controlled Electronic Information display system that this Belleville firm developed for use at Expo 67.

Industrial safety and its importance will form the central theme of a display organized by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

One of the most interesting and popular exhibits of a year ago will also be back to inform and entertain. The Belleville Police Department's traffic safety program with emphasis on school safety will form a major part of the overall industrial section.

It is also expected that other local organizations including the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association will add to the excitement of this important part of Belleville Fair.

Ayrshire Breeders Bid To Increase Popularity

Central Ontario Ayrshire breeders are making a determined bid to restore the popularity of the breed in this part of the country.

Committee Chairman
RIDLEY WALLBRIDGE

In addition to turning out a good number of cattle at Belleville Fair in the past few years, the club this year will hold a sale of Ayrshires on the evening of Wednesday, August 16th, following the afternoon judging.

Although the fair is in the nature of a Centennial event, enthusiastic breeders point out that the red and whites came to Canada from the highlands of Scotland even before Confederation.

Some Ayrshire fanciers claim the rugged characteristics of the animal, which allow it to produce on rough land and under adverse weather conditions, have actually been detrimental to the expansion of the breed.

They argue that only recently have breeders come to realize even though the average cow can get by respectably under poor conditions, she can do much better when given good care and good feed. "As a result," they say, "today's animals are breaking old records and setting new ones by the score.

An innovation of show ring activity introduced by the Ayrshire Club at the Belleville Fair is to pass out judging cards to interested spectators and invite them to match wits with the official judge — prizes being offered to those who come closest to the official placings. This feature will be continued in 1967.

The sale of registered stock consigned by a number of well known breeders in the area, takes place on the evening of Wednesday, August 16th, and should draw a large crowd.

Chairman, Poultry Committee
HAROLD CALDWELL

Beef Show and Sale New Feature at Fair

The Belleville fair will feature a new class for beef feeders called a community steer show.

This is a joint venture of the Hastings and Prince Edward Beef Improvement Association in co-operation with the Belleville fair board. Prizes offered in the class total $300.

The feature interest in the show centres around the fact that, once judged, the animals will be sold at auction — the sale taking place Saturday afternoon, August 19th.

It's expected that a number of buyers from major packing houses and food chains will participate in the bidding.

In this particular class, the 'beauty of the beast' is not the prime factor. The show is held to determine the efficiency of the animals over a specific feeding period.

The 33 steers from four Quinte counties are taking part in a 100 day feeding test at the present time. They were weighed at the beginning of the feeding period, again at the middle of the period and will be weighed again on the day of the show and sale.

Special prizes are offered for best gains in weight.

This new venture at the fair reflects the growing interest in beef production in the Quinte area.

PAYS SINCERE TRIBUTE TO

THE OFFICERS AND THE DIRECTORS OF

THE BELLEVILLE FAIR

For the very excellent job they have done, over the years, in building this district fair into one of the finest 5 day fairs in Ontario. This has meant good judgment, good planning and lots of hard work by dedicated personnel.

The displays of exhibits each year at the fair from Hastings County, makes us all proud of the high calibre of livestock, garden and farm produce, bake goods and the many other items shown by the people of Hastings.

May the coming years bring continued success and growth.

Top Canadian Thrill Show Makes First Visit to Fair

Canada's top thrill attraction' Canada's top thrill attraction The Trans Canada Hell Drivers will be appearing at the Belleville Fair Wednesday night, August 18th.

Thrill packed performance will include such classic high speed thrill manoeuvres as the death defying divebomber crash and the spectacular ramp to ramp leaps of both an automobile and a motorcycle.

The highlight of the show is the serial leap of an automobile — 70 feet through space.

The Trans Canada Hell Drivers also feature the serial leap from ramp to ramp on a Motorcycle. This is executed by Walt Williams who is the holder of the 1965 world record of 51 feet.

The real eye popper of the show is the now famous bi.ski. Bill Williams, who has mastered this feat, is known throughout the thrill show world for his ability to take an automobile up on two wheels and hold it in position.

Bill also provides the comic relief for the star studded show. The clown routines throughout the performance are produced by Williams as Happy the clown.

These are only a few of the thrill packed events that are presented in the performance of the Trans Canada Hell Drivers.

Roger Leclerc of Montreal, specializes in crash events and is featured in the thrilling leap of an old automobile into the top of a second parked car.

This stunt is called the divebomber crash. Many of his escapes from the spectacular wrecks appear miraculous.

Ray Smith, one of the top announcers in Canada, is one of the most important men in the fast. His rapid fire delivery and extensive knowledge of stunt driving manoeuvres keeps the audience abreast of the fast moving program.

You can be assured of a thrill packed experience when you see the Trans Canada Hell Drivers, one of the greatest thrill attractions in the world.

Giant Amateur Show Slated; Gordie Tapp Will Attend

One of the highlights of this years Belleville fair will be the staging of a giant amateur show in front of the grandstand on Thursday evening, August 17th.

The show is being produced and staged for the fair by the Belleville Federation of Musicians, Local 327, A.F. of M.

This will be the only variety-type attraction planned for the five big days and will feature not only local amateur semi-finalists, backed by a full 17-piece stage band, but one of Canada's big names in the entertainment business . . . Gordie Tapp — who will act as master of ceremonies.

The entire show is produced locally and all personnel taking part are either local professional musicians or aspiring young amateurs.

This is a first for the Belleville fair and is expected to draw a large crowd. Director of music for the show is Doug Aseltine, music teacher at Quinte Secondary School in Belleville and President of the B. F. of M.

He is being assisted in the production by well - known trumpet player and secretary-treasurer of the federation Joe Burchill.

The stage band backing the amateurs consists of some of the best local professional musicians featuring Frank Howard Jr.; Bruce Parsons; Ted Snider; Walter Aseltine, Bill Campbell; Wayne O'Hara; John Mitchell; Jim Cathcart; Vic Fotheringil; Gus Gustafson; Don Riddell; Frank Reed; Maurice Whalen and Marion Stratton.

Special music has already been written for the event.

The amateur semi - finalists who have been chosen from a field of 35 applicants are vieing for prizes totalling over $100 and the chance to perform before an enthusiastic crowd.

Applications were received earlier from such places as Belleville; Trenton; Madoc; Bloomfield; Plainfield; Bancroft; Deseronto; Campbellford; Bath; Thomasburg; Hastings; Frankford; Harold and Hillier.

The judges decisions will be aided in no small way by the audience response . . . so if one of your friends or relatives is competing as a semi-finalist . . get out and cheer him or her on . . . remember the date, Thursday Night, August 17th at Belleville Fair.

Junior 4-H Clubs Play Important Role

One of the important features of Belleville fair and other agricultural societies, is the 4-H Agriculture and homemaking clubs.

Across Ontario, last year, there were close to 22,000 individual rural young people participating in the 4H Club program conducted by the extension branch of the Ontario department of agriculture and food. There were 743 agriculture clubs with a project membership of 12,614 and 2,170 homemaking clubs with a project membership of 21,627.

Almost two-thirds of the 4-H Agricultural Clubs were sponsored locally by agricultural societies. The fair boards cooperate closely with the agricultural representatives and the 4-H Club leaders by providing needed facilities for club achievement days, special exhibits such as educational displays, and programs during the year.

Belleville fair has an interesting junior program and at the fair visitors can see the farmers and homemakers of the future, better trained for their task, competing in various ways.

Veterinarian Dr. H. M. Burns, president of the Belleville Agricultural Society for 1967 and Mrs. Burns, president of the Society's Women's division. They are the typical man and wife team serving, the organization as directors both present and past.

Sir John A. Macdonald Was Involved in Fair

In this Centennial year, when the 'Father of Confederation', John A. Macdonald is being given due recognition, it is interesting to recall that he was at one time a resident of Picton, where he studied law and where he tried his first law case.

Macdonald was employed while here as a clerk in the office of his cousins, L. P. and J. A. Macpherson. These men were the first two secretaries of Prince Edward County Agricultural Society, organized in 1831 with the first fair in 1836 (verified in local newspapers still preserved).

As clerk, it was the duty of John A. to keep the books of the agricultural society, and as well he was secretary of the school board.

John A. apparently became interested in the work of these Societies and in later years, as head of the government, was generous in providing financial support for Provincial Fairs which were held in various parts of the province, before becoming the Canadian National Exhibition of today.

Today, Prince Edward is one of three counties in Ontario which has only one Fair within its boundaries. It is held at the end of September in Picton.

Fair One of Three for Major Hog Show

The 1967 Belleville Fair is one of three fairs in Ontario again selected by the Ontario Hog Producers' Association to conduct a special barrow hog show.

This special class, sponsored by the association, differs from other hog classes in that the animals must be sold for slaughter after judging is completed — and final prize monies are not determined until the dressed carcasses have been judged.

This stipulation plus the fact that the show is limited to exhibitors between the ages of ten and 20 years of age is intended to serve a two-fold purpose.

Through the barrow class, the association hopes to encourage more young farmers in the production of quality swine.

Entries are made in three divisions: lightweight — division consisting of live hogs weighing 195 pounds or less; medium division, 196-304 pounds; and heavyweights, over 304 pounds.

When the hogs have been judged, the champion or reserve champion in each division is sold to the Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board. It is then slaughtered, and the carcass once again judged to determine the grand champion carcass, the reserve grand, and other winners. Special awards are given in these divisions to the exhibitors.

Parade Will Be Feature

In the 'good old days' nobody could imagine the circus coming to town with a big parade com-

JACK BUSH

posts with wild animals and calliope.

Belleville fair doesn't feature many wild animals, and the steam calliope has become a museum piece, but the excitement of the parade will be here.

Plans are complete to open the curtains on Belleville's Centennial fair week with a parade on Monday evening, August 14th.

The parade will have by-gone steam vehicles, even if it can't locate a whistling, puffing calliope.

The catathmpiton event will leave the West Moira St. firehall, tour downtown Belleville, and end up at the fairgrounds. It should get underway about 7:30 p.m., and will put the stamp of excitement on the fair in readiness for gate - opening Tuesday morning.

MIDDLE NAME

YES – at CANADIAN TIRE CORPORATION Tire is our Middle Name and has been for almost half a century . . .

Over these years tremendous gains have been made in industry, in its many, many, phases and it goes without saying that great strides have been made in the tire industry.

We, at Canadian Tire Corporation like to feel that we have contributed to the many needs of the motorist, the farmer, the sportsman, and the many other thousands of tire users whether the need is for a wheelbarrow tire or a tire for the highway transport.

Along with the great strides in the development of the tire industry, new products, materials and methods are constantly being introduced and now we have the "POLYESTER" tire cord used in the manufacture of our "SAFETY 96" High Mileage Tires.

WHAT IS POLYESTER?

...it's neither Rayon nor Nylon but has the virtues of both — without their weaknesses. An intense 10-year research span has fully developed it for use in tires selling for 2 to 3 times that of Polyester "Safety 96". The aid it gives tread and sidewall rubber far outweighs its extra cost — so you save more in the long run.

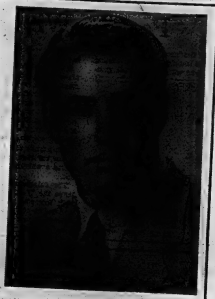
'Happening with Flowers' Presented for Area Teens



Today's accent is on youth — and the Belleville fair board is right in line with the times.

Once again, local teens will have their special event when Dave Charles . . . popular CJBQ artist presents "A Fair Gig" on Saturday evening, August 19th, in the Junior Farmer Building.

Dave's calling it a 'Flowers and Music Happening" featuring the Sands of Time. Just to latch on to the character of a fair, the building will be dressed up with flowers, and teens will receive a personal flower at the door when they pay their $1 admission.

Dancing takes over from 9 till midnight.

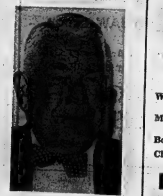
Fair Traditions Many Centuries Old

When the Belleville Fair opens its gates to the public it is carrying on a tradition which started in Canada in 1792 — when the first fair was held at Windsor, Nova Scotia.

It will also be carrying on the tradition established when the first agricultural fair in Upper Canada was held at Niagara-on-the-Lake in 1792.

But even these dates do not reveal the origin of fairs. Their origin goes far back into the mists of antiquity. Dating from biblical times, they have been the focal point in the development of commerce in each civilization.

As agriculture developed from its infancy agricultural fairs were used from earliest times as the best method of encouraging improvement.



For centuries, the agricultural fairs of Great Britain have been internationally famous.

Prince Albert, the consort of the late Queen Victoria, promoted the first world's fair in Albert Hall, London, more than 100 years ago. Since that time world fairs have stimulated progress all over the world, the latest being Expo.

The fair which has operated, without a break, the greatest number of years in Ontario, is the one held at Williamstown in the St. Lawrence Valley. This year it is holding its 155th consecutive fair.

In Ontario, the first Agricultural Society was formed at Niagara-on-the-Lake where a plaque was erected last year to commemorate this event.

Originally known as the Upper Canada Society, it was founded in 1792 with Lieutenant-Governor, John Graves Simcoe as patron.

The 'Kansas Farmer' to Visit Fair

If you happen to meet up with a happy-looking fellow carrying a fiddle who appears to be keen on talking to the whole world, don't send for the 'happy farm' attendants; you've probably just run into the well known 'Kansas Farmer' who will be on hand for the five days of the Belleville fair.

The Kansas Farmer, who in everyday life is Jack Thynne of Brussels, Ontario is known in both Canada and the USA for his wit, songs, and tongue-in-cheek, old-time philosophy.

The 'Kansas Farmer' has taken his one man show to most important events around the country. During his stay at Belleville fair, he'll be offering entertainment in many different parts of the grounds at various times.

When you meet him — stop and listen — in fact, you won't be able to do anything else.

Livestock Sales Initially Were Small Fairs

The Agricultural Society has played an important role in the history of Hastings County, as elsewhere.

Before the society was actually organized, Market days, with sale of livestock and produce, were held. Eventually, competition arose and this led to fairs in the sense we know them today.

For many years they were semi-annual events, and often much more frequent.

It was not until 1830 that an Act was passed by the Legislature of Upper Canada to encourage the establishment of Agricultural Societies. The earlier 'market days' were not considered fairs and received no grants.

One of the features of the work of early Societies was the holding of essay contests, and one was also conducted on a provincial basis.

William Hutton of Belleville was winner of £15 as second prize for his essay on The state of agriculture in Hastings County, in 1852.

Mr. Hutton states: "It is about ten years since the first county Agricultural Society was established. This was followed in a few years by the establishment of branch societies, but not until lately have they effected much good.

As the workings of the societies become better understood and experience is acquired in their management, the amount of good which they do extend will be in an increasing ratio. The agricultural mind required time to prepare it to receive knowledge but the fruit is now every year improving in quality and abundance.

These societies have enabled the farmer to procure seeds of various kinds from a distance, giving him the benefits of a change which private means could not accomplish.

By the association of members together, the society has been the means of creating rivalry and competition in the management of farms.

They have enabled the farmer to import and cause the manufacture of labor-saving machines of the best description.

They have also enabled him to procure at an easier rate, clover seed and plaster to increase the quality and quantity of winter food for cattle.

These societies, by the concentration of a general fund for particular objects, have enabled farmers to devote more time and attention to domestic manufacture of butter, cheese, woollen cloths, satinetts, blankets, counterpanes, shawls, socks and even carpets.

They have enabled the farmer in the same way to improve the breed of horses and also to cultivate finer fruits and vegetables.

Another advantage of the Societies is that they facilitate the dissemination of knowledge through publications such as the 'Agriculturist', 'Hints' Lectures', and other useful works."

Connected with the Hastings County Society were five Branch societies — Sydney, 38 members; Thurlow, 51 members; Tyendinaga, 77 members; Rawdon 27 members, Hungerford, 48 members. They received £34 in grants.

In addition to these five branches with 241 members, there were 215 members in the County Society.

Note: It is most likely that the County Society referred to would be Belleville but records of the period do not state where county shows were held. Often they would be held in combination with the branch society shows, the branch fair being eliminated for that year.

The benefits of an Agricultural Society in 1852 have held true through the years. Through field crop competitions, as conducted by the Belleville Society and others, better seed has been brought into the area and this in turn has made the top brands available to all farmers.

By competition and comparison, there has been an improvement in all branches of livestock and manufacturing.

It is interesting to note that at the time this report was written, Hastings County population was 31,977 and Belleville's 4,580.

Fair Business Booming

Fair business is big business. It is estimated by the Agricultural Societies' branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, that close to forty million dollars is invested in buildings and equipment. Many of these include multi-purpose buildings such as arenas.

People love to attend fairs. There is a special appeal to former resident to return and visit old friends and scenes. More than six million people attend Ontario fairs; half of this number attend the C.N.E.

ANACONDA IS LARGEST

Largest snake in the Western Hemisphere is the anaconda that grows to 30 feet.

Congolese Troops Sack Bukavu After Mercenaries Withdraw

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (AP) —Some refugees arriving from the eastern Congo say white mercenaries and Katangan troops have occupied Bukavu. But other report they pulled out of the provincial capital Monday and returning Congolese troops went on another rampage.

Refugees who fled to Burundi from Kivu province said hard fighting took place between Congolese troops defending Bukavu and a force of mercenaries and their Katangan allies. Put on Monday the fighting subsided and the Congolese troops fled, the refugees said.

Another group of 80 refugees who escaped to Rwanda and arrived in Aibene Tuesday said the mercenaries and Katangans pulled out of Bukavu Monday, leaving them at the mercy of vengeful Congolese troops.

The group included plantation men, Greek merchants, nuns and priests. Their accounts were reminiscent of the reports of Congolese troops running wild in July when mercenaries took the city and then, withdrew.

"I can't describe it, it's indescribable," said a weeping, 17-year-old Greek girl.

Another Greek refugee said about 15 mercenaries—mostly Belgians, Italians and Spaniards—entered Bukavu at 8 a.m. on Aug. 5 accompanied by 80 Katangans.

"We were working our shops," he said. "The mercenaries came and offered us guns and asked us to join them.

"We refused and two days later they left.

"A few hours after they departed the Congolese national army entered the city. They started looting and destroying everything.

"Everyone who was white was treated as if he was a mercenary."

One woman said groups of women and children have been seeping on the floor of foreign consulates and hospitals for the last week waiting to go to the Rwanda republic.

Another merchant said the Congolese soldiers "came to our houses with pointed guns and asked for clothes and money."

"Those who refused were beaten."

One European is reported to have offered the Congolese soldiers 7,000,000 Congolese francs to save his daughter from rape.

A merchant said the Congolese soldiers were fighting with civilians over the loot from European shops and houses.

A Belgian plantation owner said 12 persons had died in the Bukavu fighting—three mercenaries and nine civilians. Other refugees said 11 were killed.

The plantation owner said he and 35 other persons fled at night in five outboard motorboats, crossing Lake Kivu to Rwanda.

Mercenaries and Katangans rebelled against the Congolese government early last month.

Italy's NATO Role Major Election Issue

ROME (AP)—Italy's membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is developing into a major issue for the national election next spring.

The Communist party, the largest in the West, has warned Premier Aldo Moro's centre-left government that is seeking a showdown over whether Italy should quit the alliance in 1969, when the pact is 20 years old.

Some leaders of the Socialist-Christian Democratic coalition feed away at the Communists during the weekend, saying it would be "unthinkable" for Italy to invoke the treaty clause permitting a member of the alliance to break away then.

But a sizeable number of Socialists and even a few of the traditionally pro-Western Christian Democrats are calling for a re-evaluation of NATO policy and progress.

A hard struggle over the issue would have profound effects on the centre-left government in power since 1963. Observers believe many politicians will be reluctant to see NATO continue after 1969 without significant changes in the organization's character and purpose.

There are two big dangers to the coalition:

—A bitter split in the Socialist ranks during the election campaign.

—A serious dispute in the next centre-left government that is almost sure to result from the vote.

Playing on these possibilities and appealing to coalition members to oppose the government's support of NATO, the Communist party newspaper L'Unita says in a front-page editorial: "The currents of thinking asking for the denunciation of a mechanism NATO that renders the U.S. 6th Fleet the arbiter of the politico-military situation in our seas have become gigantic.

"The political battle is destined to be opened and extended." L'Unita exhorts Socialists "who do not consider the old socialist principle of neutralism" lost to fight against the government's pro-NATO policy.

U.S. Air Cavalry Lands Amid Red Tunnel Maze

SAIGON (AP)—A company of U.S. air cavalrymen made a helicopter assault early today into what turned out to be the centre of North Vietnamese army tunnels. The U.S. soldiers ran into a fierce mortar, anti-aircraft and small arms attack.

Three troop-carrying helicopters were shot down and two others hit.

The savage battle in the Song Re valley, in the central lowlands 330 miles northeast of Saigon, and another battle Tuesday in which 65 Viet Cong were reported killed ended another prolonged lull in the Vietnam ground war.

At mid-afternoon the men of the 1st Air Cavalry Division were reported still in heavy contact with the North Vietnamese in the Song Re valley west of Duc Pho. First reports from the field said at least four Americans had been killed and 22 wounded.

U.S. troops estimated they killed 40 soldiers in the initial fighting in the first landing zone.

Rhodesia May Turn To Right

SALISBURY (Reuters)—The threat of a deep split looms over Ian Smith's ruling Rhodesian Front because of the bid by a right-wing former South African to capture the party chairmanship.

The challenger is a former air force captain, L. P. J. Lardner-Burke, 55, who came to Rhodesia in 1945 and now owns seven farms.

The president chairman, Lt.-Col. W. M. Knox, a strong supporter of Smith, has already been nominated for re-election at the annual congress next month. Observers here see Boshoff's candidacy as an indirect challenge to the Rhodesian Premier.

Roblin Critical

Welfare Programs Must Assist Needy

CALGARY (CP)—Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin, barred entrant in the Progressive Conservative national leadership race, called here Tuesday for more selectivity in social welfare programs.

Speaking to about 70 persons at a local meeting as part of his leadership campaign, Mr. Roblin said universal, compulsory social assistance programs "don't zero in on our problem."

For example, Mr. Roblin said, his wife receives the monthly baby bonus but does not need it. The premier said the bonus his wife receives should be given instead to those who need more than they now receive.

"If we want to conquer poverty we should do it through the policy of need. We must remove to the harmful element.

"We are carrying into the 1960s and 1970s welfare programs that were originated in the 1930s. They haven't eliminated the poor and we haven't much to be proud of on our assault on poverty."

Israel Arrests Arabs

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—Israeli police have arrested two leading Arabs suspected of organizing a general strike in Old Jerusalem Monday.

Quakers Accept Defeat

CHAMPLAIN, N.Y. (AP)—A spokesman for a group that tried to take medical supplies into Canada for eventual shipment to North Vietnam said Tuesday the attempt has been abandoned.

James Nias, a graduate student at Columbia University, New York, said the eight persons who made an effort Tuesday to obtain an export permit from U.S. customs officials will return to their homes.

The group had cited their "moral right to render assistance to enemies as well as friends" as justification for taking 12 packages of medical supplies to Montreal.

The eight were part of a larger group that crossed into Canada Saturday with money for the Canadian Friends Service Committee. But the packages, containing bandages, surgical instruments and vitamins, were held by customs officials on the ground that a special U.S. export licence was required.

The eight appealed again Tuesday for the permission, Nias said, but it was denied by U.S. officials.

The group then tried to carry the packages into Canada without the licence but were halted by Canadian officials.

Nias said that the packages were returned to customs officials here and that the eight would request their return.

The supplies were valued at $200, a group member said. They were addressed to Red Cross societies in North Vietnam.

Hong Kong Agitator Defects

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chinese Nationalist officials announced today the defection of one of Hong Kong's leading Chinese Communist publishers, a chief agitator in the current anti-British campaign of violence in the colony.

They said the defector is Wu Shu-tung, 61, a member of the People's Political Consultative Council in China's Kwangtung province, adjoining Hong Kong, and the chairman and general manager of the Communist-owned China Publishing Co. in Hong Kong.

Wu flew to Taipei Aug. 2 with his wife, official sources said. Officials said he is the highest Communist official to defect to Nationalist China. They said he termed the Communist campaign in Hong Kong a failure, largely because of the arrests of troublemakers by the colonial government.

Bomb Tossed at Police Falls Short Amid Mob

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Six persons were injured by a bomb today as scattered street violence continued in this British colony despite a police crackdown on leftists.

The bomb was aimed at police trying to break up a crowd of jeering teen-agers painting slogans on the main road in Kowloon district. It fell short and landed among the crowd, injuring five women and a man.

Police fired warning shots to disperse the teen-agers after the blast.

At least 16 persons were injured Tuesday, 10 of them when police fired into a crowd of pro-Peking demonstrators during a streetcar in western Hong Kong.

Police today pressed a crackdown on local leftists with new raids and arrests.

They arrested three Communist newspaper men and the two co-owner's of a company that prints their newspaper. Charges against the five were not announced.

British troops ringed the offices of the China Gas Co. and the Chinese Employees Association as police went in and seized posters, pamphlets and home-made weapons, including sharpened water pipes and metal bars.

They held three men for questioning.

Cuba Endeavors to Censure Russians For Doing Business With Oligarchies

HAVANA (Reuters)—A Latin American revolutionary conference here was suddenly plunged into a potentially explosive crisis today over a Cuban move to condemn Russian approaches to anti-revolutionary Latin American governments.

Pro-Moscow Communists threatened to walk out of the conference if the move is approved, conference sources said.

The split came in an all-night working committee session after another conference committee agreed to call for the "seizure of power through armed struggle" in the Americas.

The three committees of the Latin American Solidarity Conference passed draft resolutions Monday night calling for armed resistance to imperialism, castigating the Organization of American States as the "putrid Yankee department of colonies," accusing the OAS of plotting aggression against Cuba, and setting out a sweeping condemnation of U.S. economic and cultural penetration in Latin America.

But a fourth committee became the stage for an unexpectedly open confrontation between Soviet-line revolutionaries led by Cuba and relatively moderate, orthodox Communists.

Communist delegates from Chile, Uruguay, Peru and Ecuador threatened to walk out of the conference if it condemned Socialist governments which sought economic and other relations with what the Cubans call "dictatorships" and "oligarchies" in Latin America.

The Cuban move came in a two-hour speech by Armando Hart, organizing secretary of the Cuban Communist party and head of his country's delegation to the conference.

It surprised observers, because conference sources had indicated earlier the subject would be avoided because of its disruptive potential.

Cuba was reported earlier to be playing a moderating role in the hard-line camp.

Lengthy Agenda for Council

PICTON (Staff) — It was disclosed at the monthly meeting of town council last night that a "rupture" in the water main at Spencer and Hill Streets is costing Picton 120,000 gallons of water per day. Councillor Andrew Jarvis told council, "this is one of the few accidents that have a better ending. "This," he said, "has changed our pumping statistics". We now know what we are handling and capable of handling. Mr. Jarvis suggested the sewers will handle and are capable of handling another 1,500 population.

A representative of the Department of Transport last weekend made a survey, along with Deputy Reeve Don Thompson, on Picton's harbor conditions. A survey areas of the Picton harbor are covered with silt gas and weeds and advice was sought on how they might best be eliminated. Samples of water and the weeds themselves were taken by the official for further study. "There are many weed killers on the market", said Mr. Thompson, "but we must be careful not to kill these." The towns water pumping station and filtration plant is located near Picton's inner harbor.

Councillor Andrew Jarvis said he realized the problem in the bay there is a need for dredging. "At the moment", he said, "it is just a stationary pool". The creek which flows into the head of the bay sometimes empties into the bay sometimes it goes the other way and backs up. There is really little movement there and without proper dredging there is stagnation. Council will wait for further advice on what might be done, in the meantime it was suggested a weed cutting apparatus might be used to clear the unsightly weeds.

Council last night further discussed the cross-walk problem on Bridge Main St. Mayor McFarland said he has been watching the cross walks particularly the one located at Ross St. "One person," he said, "can hold up as much traffic here as six." It would be great if we could have some way of controlling pedestrians here so that a group could cross the street at one time and relieve some of the traffic tie-up. A traffic survey decision was left with council. Councillor Dr. Lionel Dockrill, also on the crosswalks generally, pedestrians were 30% at fault.

"I don't think they really know what a crosswalk is" stated Councillor Dockrill. "A driver hasn't much of a chance, when people suddenly dash onto a crosswalk in front of a car approaching." "A lot of pedestrians abuse this privilege."

Picton's Chief of Police has also asked council to investigate the timing of the stop light at the intersection of King and Elizabeth streets. Timing is off on this light and causing King street traffic to wait longer on the red light. Mayor McFarland congratulated the playground committee on their splendid work with the parks program. Councillor Lionel Dockrill, chairman of the committee said that to date 1,000 registrations are in for playground users and over 700 per day are using the playgrounds facilities.

One of the newest playgrounds, Rotary Park, will be handed over to the town in an official ceremony next week. At the present time it is being fenced. There were some objections to lack of fencing on this park but council felt that the park vicinity but they will be pleased to know that the park is being fenced. Otherwise they are quite happy, said councillor Dockrill. Councillor James Bird said that when this playground plan started he was sceptical as to it's success but after driving around investigating the park program he was more than convinced that children were not only having a good time but were occupied and learning something at the same time.

Building permits in the Town of Picton totalled $71,010 for the month of July. On the building permits it was noted that some persons were going ahead and building without first obtaining a building permit. This brought up a question as to whether permits should be left in the hands of the present administration staff or whether it should come directly through council first. At present a permit applicant must have his property approved by the Chief of Fire Department, plumbing inspector, PUC and the building inspector.

"We can't have faith in these people who are admistering for us," said councillor Bird, "then we should replace them."

"If a tree falls on my roof and rain pours into my children's bedrooms I would hardly wait for the next meeting of council before I could repair the damage," he said. Councillor Bird thought that council might not approve of some of the permits for reasons other than a personal grudging a go ahead from the inspector. He also said that in letting these people carry ahead building that we are losing some of the authority and elected representatives of the Councillor Jarvis was of the opinion that council was helping the public in permitting the work to proceed. "We must," he said, "have confidence in our administration officers."

Before closing council Mayor McFarland thanked the town foreman and his assistants for the good work that had been put in during the holiday period. He congratulated the Rotary Club for the splendid "Rotary Ball" and thanked Mrs. R. S. Ward for her work in looking after the town's parks.

Obituaries and Funerals

MISS EMILY ELIZABETH (BETTY) MERRITT

DESERONTO — After years of bad health and several months of critical illness in the Kingston General Hospital, Miss Emily Elizabeth (Betty) Merritt of 370 Dundas St., Deseronto, died in that hospital Wednesday, August 2. She had suffered hospital in February and had spent most of the time in the Intensive care unit, following repeated surgery.

Miss Merritt was born in the Adolphustown area, the daughter of the late Albert Charles Merritt and his wife, who was Annie Shaffer prior to her marriage. She moved with her parents to the Picton area, and then to Deseronto. She was educated in the schools in Adolphustown and Picton, and taught public school for many years. Among the schools she had taught were those in Adolphustown, and Lake in Lennox and Addington; Glenora Road, Dousee's and Yeeesville in Prince Edward County; and in Hastings near Point Anne and on the Tyendinaga Reserve, where she had been the teacher for 17 years.

Miss Merritt is remembered by her pupils as a teacher who won their respect and their affection, and for her infinite patience. It is said of her that she was never seen without a happy face and a happy smile, and that she was everyone's friend. She had a deep Christian faith, that throughout her long, hopeless illness, she kept that faith and was uncompaining.

"Betty" as her friends called her, is survived by her mother, by her sister, Mrs. Ward Baker of Moscow and her niece and nephew. Sympathy goes out to the survivors, as this is the second bereavement in a few weeks. Mr. Baker died recently following unsuccessful heart surgery. Miss Merritt were both in the same intensive care unit for several weeks at the same time.

The funeral service was held from the Wartman Funeral Home to the Deseronto Baptist Church, Saturday. The Rev. David Trafford officiating. He based his address on the temporary nature of life, the testing of faith, and the triumph of Grace. Miss Merritt was a member of the First Baptist Church in Picton, but had attended the Deseronto church.

The bearers were: Horace Bignell, Kenneth Christian, Herbert Hawley, Cecil Hawley, Clark Simpson and James Sullivan.

Interment was in Riverview Cemetery, Napanee.

JOHN FREDERICK MONTEITH

DESERONTO — A resident of Deseronto for ten years, John Frederick Monteith of 353 Dundas St., died Thursday in the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital in his 84th year. Until his retirement, he had been employed in the automotive industry.

Mr. Monteith was the son of the late William Monteith and his late wife, Cordelia Patrick. He was born in Bloomsbury, near Londen, and was educated there. He had lived in the United States and in Canada before coming to Deseronto to make his home. He was a member of the United Church.

He is survived by his wife, who was Elsie May Woods prior to her marriage; by his daughters, Mrs. Earl Orser (Mrs. Leonora) of London, and Mrs. Joseph Griffin (Sheila) of Kingston; and his son Robert of Ottawa, also of Kingston.

The funeral service was held in the Wilts and Morris Funeral Home in Deseronto on Saturday, the Rev. Gar Cole of Mervyn officiating. Interment was in the Deseronto Cemetery.

The bearers were: Gene Cotter, Merion Cummings, Kenneth Elder, Joseph Hughes, Stanley Keller, and Allen Mervyn. Interment was in the Deseronto Cemetery.

ROSS ALEXANDER JAMIESON

Funeral service for Ross Alexander Jamieson was held yesterday from the late John R. Bush Funeral Home.

The service was conducted by Archdeacon A. E. Wilson and interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

Monday night a joint war veterans' service was conducted by members of the Belleville branches of the Canadian Legion and Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association. Also present were Mayor Fred Mimico president, Jack Lundberg and Earl Brant, Legion zone commissioners.

Bearers were Bert Rushlow, Bill Templeton, Steve Stepp, Thomas DesGoey, Reginald Featherstone and David Kyd.

Start Work on Peace Pagoda

TWEED — Work is now underway near here, constructing the western world's first peace pagoda — an international peace emblem which has its roots in Japan.

The structure is being constructed on an 11-acre site donated by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cadwell, 4 miles south of Actinolite.

Work began July 24 by a Tweed construction firm on laying foundations for the pagoda, the top of which is to be later shipped from Japan.

Although the completed 25-foot-high structure will be 200 feet above Highway 37, conceived as a promoter of international peace to passersby.

Most of the other pagodas are in Japan, with one in India.

Construction costs are said, notated anywhere up to $10,000 and the cost will be borne by the Indo-Japanese Friendship Association.

However, a local committee already has been formed to assist development of the site — which eventually will be landscaped — by seeking donations of cash or labor.

Tyendinaga School Nears Completion

Put Finishing Touches on New Central Tyendinaga School

Workmen this week are putting the finishing touches to the new Tyendinaga central school which will open for classes in September.

The $226,000 school with eight classrooms and general purpose room will take the place of ten one-roomed schools closed in June. The new building and the three-roomed Shannonville school which is being retained, will be the only school accommodation for children in Township with the exception of those on the Mohawk Indian Reservation, which has its own school system.

Hugh Murray Ltd., of Belleville are the general contractors for the new Tyendinaga central school. The total cost of the building, including furnishings is estimated at $250,000.

Four Face Trial on Rape Count

The preliminary hearing of four Belleville area youths charged with alleged rape begun yesterday morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Rodney Carter, Rodney Salter, John Leonard and David Fairbairn are in the prisoner's dock while witnesses gave testimony about a rape, abduction and beating that took place on the Aitken sideroad, one mile north of Bayside June 25.

Most of the testimony consisted of reports on the condition of the rape victim and of photographs taken by the Ontario Provincial Police at the scene of the incident. Pieces of clothing, some of it torn, were entered as exhibits.

The hearing continues Monday, August 14.

U. S. Cadets Visit Base At Trenton

TRENTON — Exchange trips seem to be in vogue this summer, and, not to be left out, CFB Trenton air cadet officials yesterday played host to 30 visiting cadets from the United States.

Included on yesterday's agenda were a tour of Presqu'ile Provincial Park on a pleasure cruiser and a dance at the RCAF Yacht Club.

The U.S. cadets return home later this week.

They are part of the annual exchange program which this year sent 62 air cadets from across Canada to 11 countries for three - week stays.

350 Children Getting Free Trip to Expo

Members of the United Rubberworkers, Local 380 have contributed $1,000 to the United Community Services Expo-a-go-go project which will send 350 children and 50 adults to Expo this Saturday. As well, members of the International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 796, and employees at Union, Carbide Canada Limited have also donated funds.

The project is designated to send children, who otherwise would not be able to afford it, to Expo for the weekend. The Canadian National Railway will provide a special train for the youngsters. Local wholesalers and supermarkets have provided food for the trip.

The Bank of Montreal announced that it would accept donations at its branches in the city and already many people have contributed in this manner.

The United Community Services says that it needs only $400 more to make the project a success.

City Welfare Director Resigns; Union With County Possible

Belleville city council has accepted the resignation of Daniel Aitken, city welfare director for the past three years.

Acceptance of the welfare directors resignation came yesterday at a special session of council which received the report of R. E. Tucker, field supervisor for the Ontario department of welfare who was sent to Belleville to review the operation of the city's welfare department.

In accepting the resignation of Mr. Aitken, council moved closer to appointing a county administration unit. The two groups will discuss the matter Aug. 17.

Mr. Tucker came to the city at the invitation of city council after it heard reports last spring from a special committee of council appointed to investigate complaints.

Also at yesterday's special session council approved the report of City Manager J. B. Reynolds on the day care nursery which recommended the employment of Mrs. A. Durand as nursery supervisor be terminated.

The resignation of the city welfare director is effective immediately. Mrs. Durand is currently on leave of absence and will be paid to Aug. 15.

The positions of welfare administrator and that of supervisor of the day nursery will be advertised immediately.

The report of Mr. Tucker on the operation of the city welfare department found little fault with the actual administration but said that from every angle one point had emerged clearly — over the past 3½ years the department's public image has suffered a severe blow.

"Channels of communication have dried up and liaison relations with some of the agencies are at a very low ebb if not entirely non-existent.

"Most, if not all (of the agencies) have voiced their protestations in one form or another; members of the public have, and it is alleged, openly stated that they would prefer not to visit the department for fear of the harsh treatment to which they would be exposed."

Mr. Tucker in his report said he had visited with most of the officials and public agencies in the city, representatives of the medical profession, the churches, and with representatives from adjacent municipalities.

He said he found that his talks it was clear that if any improvement is to be achieved, the department must first set about repairing the damage.

Suggested was a serious of 6 to 8½ hour noncontact staff agency representatives followed by a short question and answer period.

Another day in which matters could be improved would be for the adoption of a more sympathetic and conciliatory attitude by the welfare department's staff in their dealings with outside bodies, less dogmatism and a willingness to appreciate that the other fellow has a point of view worthy of consideration.

"They should be ever ready to compromise if it is within their power to do so, be less ready to resort to threats, real or implied — and, as far as applicants and recipients are concerned, be prepared to give them the benefit when there is doubt."

The report included a list of 15 recommendations dealing with administrative matters.

At the same time Mr. Tucker commended the operation of the Belleville day care nursery which he said was operating successfully and is filling a real need in the city. The introduction of the welfare department's home visitation for the elderly also was commended although it was not clear how far there may be duplication with the homemakers and nurses' services.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said it was encouraging to find many things in connection with the welfare department and its staff were in good shape, but general office administration meets all requirements, he said.

The fact, however, that it had been necessary to have two reviews of the department — one in March 1966, by the city manager, and one in the spring of this year by a committee of council — and an independent report by the Ontario department of welfare at the request of council indicated a problem is itself.

"The single theme dominant in all reports is that of lack of communication, lack of support, and of need for a closer understanding of people and of personalities," said the mayor.

Mayor Ellis said it was not without some reluctance that he recommended the acceptance of Mr. Aitken's resignation. The recommendation, he said, was completely supported by the city manager.

In the presentation of Mr. Aitken's resignation Mayor Ellis read a letter from the provincial department officials which commended the county of Hastings for its move toward setting up a county welfare system. The letter said the setting up of welfare and social services on an area basis was a step in the right direction.

Mayor Ellis said members of city council were invited to a joint meeting with Hastings county on Aug. 17 to discuss the possibility of the city joining with the county in a county welfare service.

He said this would be an important and vital meeting for the city.

Ald. J. Russell Scott said the stand taken by himself and certain other councillors with respect to welfare department operation had now "been completely vindicated."

Ald. Ross David, said he was happy regarding the final outcome of the welfare department problem.

"It was unfortunate that we had to go through all this, and the finding of Mr. Tucker substantiates the recommendations last year of the city manager and of the special committee this year."

Ald. Don Williams, chairman of the special council committee which investigated complaints of the welfare department, said this morning that all three reports complimented Mr. Aitken on his administration.

"He has given valuable service to the city and we should commend him for this even though he has made some mistakes and lacked the support of other welfare organizations, city council and the public."

Ald. Williams said the city welfare department had benefitted from Mr. Aitken's administration best because of the lack of communication it was imperative that he should go.

The city manager in his report on the day nursery said in the past that difficulties there were caused for the most part by a lack of clarification of administrative duties and the responsibilities of the day nursery staff by the welfare director.

He said post descriptions for each position were prepared by the welfare director but copies were not distributed to or discussed with staff members. The post descriptions did not, in Mr. Reynolds opinion, indicate clearly to whoms each employee was responsible.

The city manager said Mrs. A. Durand, day nursery supervisor, had excellent qualifications insofar as programs for children were concerned but did not have the necessary qualification or experience in administration to carry out the overall administration.

The report recommended the termination of Mrs. Durand be terminated; that Mrs. McMullen be appointed acting supervisor pending the appointment of a supervisor and that assistants Mrs. Misters and Mrs. Roberts be confirmed in their present positions.

Two Planning Boards to Meet To View Development Scheme

A joint meeting of city council and the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board will be called shortly to discuss the two-volume planning board report on urban renewal for the downtown business district and Ward.

Mayor J. R. Ellis at yesterday's special session of council said that the joint meeting was necessary as a number of decisions with respect to the two projects had to be made and it was necessary to have the proposals fully explained to council.

But Alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott didn't want any part of "pork barrelling" in lumping the two projects together.

He couldn't see the connection between Foster Ward and the downtown area and said he would be reluctant to upset people in that area if there was no prospect of the proposals being carried through in the near future.

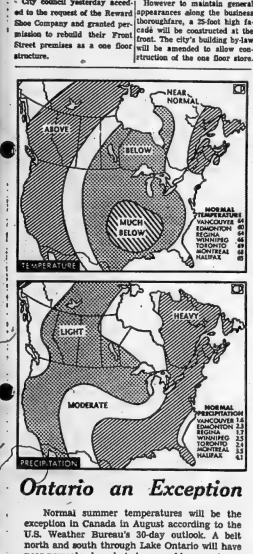
He said he would oppose the planning board bulking the two projects together.

But Mayor Ellis said regardless of the proposals, decision in connection with either of the projects would be that of city council.

Reward Shoe Store Allowed To Rebuild One-storey Shop

City council yesterday acceded to the request of the Reward Shoe Company and granted permission to rebuild their Front Street premises as a one floor structure.

However to maintain general appearances along the business thoroughfare, a 25-foot high facade will be constructed at the front. The city's building by-law will be amended to allow construction of the one floor store.



Mr. John Henderson of J. A. Johnston Company, owners of the Reward Shoe Store chain, told council that his firm was anxious to rebuild the store lost by fire in 1965, but the city's building by-law requiring two-storeys and a total height of 30 feet was proving an obstacle.

He said a two-storey structure would be of no use to his company as demand for second floor space was likely to diminish in the future.

Mr. Henderson pointed out that despite the existing by-law two bank buildings had been constructed with less than two storeys.

Alderman Jack Deacon brought in a recommendation which he said would be in line with the ambiguity of interpretation of the city by-law. He recommended that due to the fact council had already approved single storey construction on Powell Street, the replacement of a two-storey structure be met by erection of a false front or facade 25 feet high.

Mayor Jack Ellis said the move would be a benefit to the city in that new assessment would mean a tax benefit.

Ontario an Exception

Normal summer temperatures will be the exception in Canada in August according to the U.S. Weather Bureau's 30-day outlook. A belt north and south through Lake Ontario will have near normal values, but chances of heavy rain.

Ald. Joss Opposes Pipeline

The Ontario Water Resources Commission should be spending its money in cleaning up pollution in rivers leading into the Bay of Quinte rather than proposing construction of a $15,000,000 pipeline to bring in water from Lake Ontario.

This is the feeling of Alderman Donald Joss who yesterday said that more pollution runs into the Bay of Quinte every minute from communities in the north than if every cabin cruiser in Ontario flushed its toilets into the bay.

"The OWRC say they are serious about pollution — but I question how serious it is when they have been about two months and yet spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on television and in newspapers telling people not to throw beer cans in the water," he said.

"Surely the hundreds of thousands of dollars could be better spent in eliminating the pollution from sewers which run into our rivers and lakes."

The alderman said he was opposed to the OWRC proposal to pipe water to the Belleville and Trenton area at a cost of some $15 million.

He said the proposal would double the present cost of water to Belleville users and should be rejected here as it has been in Trenton.

"Our responsibility as citizens is to clean up the water we have," the alderman said. "Spend the $15 million if need be for this purpose."

"We must stop being ostriches, burying our head in the sand. We must face the problem of pollution head on."

The alderman's comments on the importance of pollution control were made following a report from the OWRC on the suitability of the Moira River as a source of water supply.

The report said it was the considered opinion of the OWRC that the water in the Bay of Quinte and the Moira River because of pollution is naturally enriched, are not and will not be a desirable source of municipal water supply now or in the future.

The OWRC said also that it would discourage the development of water reservoirs on the Moira watershed with the view of supplying Belleville.

The natural tendency of such reservoirs is to develop algae and other aquatic growth was noted. Lack of reservoir sites providing a suitable depth of water in all probability would result in water of no better quality than presently in the Bay of Quinte.

CPR Willing to Move Line If City Will Bear All Costs

The Canadian Pacific Railway still wants no part of the city's latest request for re-routing its trains around the city — unless the city builds the new track required and pays for its construction.

This was made evident yesterday in a letter from the railway to city council following a proposal some weeks ago from Alderman Arthur Keegan.

Alderman Keegan claimed that moving of the CPR tracks from the south end of the city would allow future development of industries in that area which is now impossible because of the tracks.

In reply the railway vice president quoted excerpts from a letter written a little more than a year ago to city council following a similar request for the CPR to move its tracks from the city.

The letter stated the CP mainline had been in its present location for over 50 years and the railway was entirely satisfied with the location and had no desire to relocate track facilities elsewhere.

However, the letter continued, if a relocation were agreed to by the railway and the board of transport or a misdemeanor it would be subject to a suitable agreement ensuring that the work be done at the expense of the railway with the city to bear the cost of any extraordinary expenditure at the time any new line was placed in operation.

The letter said it would also be necessary to ensure that the railway would have access to serving industries in the south part of the city.

Alderman Donald Joss said he was surprised the CPR took the 19th century attitude it did.

"They are saying what's mine is mine and the public be damned" he said.

He said he appreciated that the CPR had helped to build Belleville but said this was no excuse if it did take its current dogmatic position.

Alderman Jack Allin said this was exactly the same attitude taken last year when he had attempted negotiations to have the tracks moved.

He said the CPR wanted a completely new railway line before it would agree to relocation, but felt it should be asked to reconsider and accept use of the existing line of tracks through the north end of the city.

But Mayor J. R. Ellis said this was out as CN would be unwilling to grant joint use of its mainline.

"The CN already is actually now thinking in terms of a third line-4s its own use," he said.

Alderman Keegan said the possibility of having the rail line re-located presented a real challenge to the city and said the city should continue to negotiate.

His motion to table the CPR letter was carried.

Dutch Elm Disease Problem in District

TRENTON — Quinte woodlots are becoming a disaster area. The current inspection of the Department of Lands and Forests says Dutch Elm disease is becoming an acute problem in the area, with the Belleville, Kingston, and Picton regions hit particularly bad.

"Tyendinaga and most areas of Prince Edward County are in the process of contact Lands and Forests nurseries to obtain other species to replace the woodlot gaps.

destroyed or chemically treated.

Some areas, the bulletin notes, are providing municipal funds for elm clean - up campaigns.

There have already being thousands of elms lost in the area, and landowners are being advised to contact Lands and Forests nurseries to obtain other species to replace the woodlot gaps.

High Speed Auto Chase Ends in Arrest

BRIGHTON — Provincial police here have been cooperating with a variety of assignments. Last week, for example, detachment officers investigated 53 different types of occurrences.

One of these involved a high speed auto chase of two Belleville teenagers along Highway 401.

The investigating officer, Const. K. M. Legge, said he clocked the speeders upwards of 100 miles per hour, once getting close enough to their car to see one of them thumbing his nose at him.

The joy-riders had their fun cut short, when they were confronted by Belleville O.P.P. officers, who were waiting for them in a road block.

The youths were charged with dangerous driving and liquor offences.

BARBER CHARGED

NORTH BAY (CP)—Archibald Parisien, a North Bay barber who claimed a world record for cutting hair recently for 54 hours, Tuesday was charged under the Industrial Standards Act for operating his shop after normal hours. He will appear in court Aug. 25.

Patrons Get Free Service

If Belleville Fair patrons are consistent with those of past years then St. John Ambulance members on duty will be assisting between fifty and sixty of them with problems all the way from blistered feet to serious injuries. The brigade members expect to give some seven to eight hundred hours on duty during the five days.

The free service, provided at the request of the Fair Board, has its base in the First Aid Post at the east end of the "Commodore" Building. Here, using her own marquee, Mrs. C. D. Ashley, Provincial Cadet Officer and the young ladies of the cadet nursing division will be operating a lost children's centre and a rest for the elderly. Mothers of wee children may leave them also in charge of baby bottle or do other chores. Beside the marquee the ladies of the nursing division and Divisional Superintendent, Mrs. H. Arnott, Reg. N. will be operating their First Aid Post, from which the men of the Ambulance Division, led by Supt. Murray E. Johnson, will patrol the fairgrounds in their First Aid cars, especialy during events on the track.

Over the years the Brigade has treated a wide assortment of injuries. They have recorded treatment for farm-animal problibitors who have been injured by their own animals or have run afoul of forks, rake and nails; side show employees who have grease burns, cuts, blisters and other injuries, some of which they sustained in setting up. But then those who are an easy hole under the fence" get impaled on some fences, rusted nails and broken bottles in their search for a cheap way in.

Very few of the thousands of fair-goers ever need first aid treatment, but the few who do whether it be epilepsy, or diabetes, become ill from a ride or need aid for any other reason again count on St. John Ambulance being there this year.

9,000 Use New Pool

TRENTON — The new tri-service club swimming pool is making a big splash in Trenton recreation circles.

Since the facilities were opened May 24 at Trenton High School, more than 9,000 persons have taken advantage of its presence.

This number includes some 1600 non-swimmers who have been attending instruction classes at the pool.

The $1,288. income derived from recreational swimming fees at the pool during this period has been turned over to the town's general fund to help cover recreation commissions expenses for instructors and other requirements.

The pool was the joint Centennial project of Trenton's Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary Clubs.

Life at 90 Below

Russia Builds Communities in Mineral-rich Siberia

"Soviet Habitat," Russia's novel community of Akhkal designed for all-year round living, including winters of up to 90 degrees below zero, is one of the features of the Soviet pavilion at Expo.

Only a scale model, of course, it nevertheless offers a glimpse of the striking progress Russia has made in the sphere of Arctic development. Canada still has far to go before reaching a similar stage of development. The establishment of final communities in the region is one of the first essentials.

Last year Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing led a Canadian delegation which studied Soviet Arctic development at first hand.

The community of Akhkal was discussed in a recent editorial on this page, and the following is a more detailed description of the community, by the Soviet information service at Expo.

* * *

The northern part of the Soviet Union abounds in gold, diamonds, oil, coal and other natural riches. People have to work there. Why not make their life enjoyable? With this idea a group of young architects from the diamond city of Mirny headed by Nina Bani, an experienced designer of northern towns, set to work and produced a plan of a new town. It is called Akhkal and is to be build near one of the rich diamond deposits of Yakutia, a Soviet republic in Siberia. Construction work starts this year.

This stage will occupy 30 acres. Its sight five-storey apartment houses, accommodating 5,000 people, will be linked by streets which are in effect broad glassed-in galleries. The streets will connect the houses with all the other buildings, forming a single urban complex. Because of permafrost conditions in the area all the houses and streets of Akhkal rest on piles.

The town is to be provided with a micro-climate of its own so that the glass-covered streets will have a winter temperature of not less than 50 degrees F. This will be a suitable transitory temperature for the inhabitants — diamond miners, geologists, and builders — who on leaving the town may find themselves exposed to severe cold. Of course, bus stops will be as close to the houses as possible.

The municipal centre is to have a club on the ground floor and a club with a concert hall, movie theatres, library, gym, restaurant and winter garden on the first and second floors. Situated nearby will be a school and the town administration offices.

The "intra-urban" transport fleet will consist of electric cars which will carry foodstuffs and other to the other needs of the inhabitants, thus providing all kinds of services regardless of the season. The heating of the houses and streets will be by electricity, and electric fire places, hearths and stoves are to be used extensively. A big electric power station now under construction on the Vilyui river will provide enough electricity for all the towns in the area.

The layout of apartments in Akhkal is directed by prevailing climatic conditions: living room and bedroom windows overlook the courtyards and streets so as to catch every ray of winter sun while kitchens, pantries and bathrooms have artificial lighting and occupy the inner parts of buildings; thus less wall surface is exposed to the cold air. This layout also results in shorter water pipes, electric cables, lower overheads and the like and a consequent reduction of estimated construction costs. The building material used in the project will be an economical silicate concrete which can be produced easily from local sand, lime and diabase and which looks like marble.

The project is designed to meet the requirements of all sections of the population. Unmarried people for instance, will have one-room hotel-type apartments with canteens and cafes nearby. Families will be offered apartments with two, three or four rooms. Extensive and imaginative use of color in the new town, both inside and out, will make up for the monotony of the bleak winter landscape.

The industrial development of the north has stimulated work of other Soviet town planners and builders. A town similar to Akhkal is to be built on another diamond deposit — the Mmberlite-pipe Udachnaya also in Yakutia. Enclosed gardens, in which roses can blossom while a ferocious blizzard rages outside, will help visitors to forget they are in the desolate north.

A plan has also been worked out for a single-unit township to be built near Latitude 69 N. It will consist of two apartment houses for a total of 600 people connected by a glass-covered courtyard. In summer the transparent roof will open, letting in the sun and air. This will be a four-storey project with a vestibule offering conveniences for workers such as a store-room for sledge, skis and bicycles, a room for drying clothes in winter and a laundry. The township will have sports facilities including a swimming pool and several recreation centres. There will be a big winter garden on the first floor. It is planned to make the houses of hybrid aluminium panels with a foam plastic filler for insulation.

Architects have also developed a type of prefabricated house for the builders of northern towns. The parts of these houses will be transported by air in containers. Assembled, the house will replace the trailers presently used and construction workers who usually lead a semi-nomadic life, will have normal dwellings at each industrial site instead of temporary ones.

Akhkal will be the first town to open up a basically new type of urban development in the north but it will certainly not be the last.

Expo and Quebec

With Expo now past the half-way mark, the big exhibition still attracts visitors by the thousands — all happily milling around and creating their own fund of concentrated color and excitement to complement the marvels and beauty of the various pavilions.

In recent days, in the manner of a day being set aside for each country the emphasis has been on Ontario, the Indians of Canada and on Gaboon. The latter is one of the countries of Africa which have joined together in presenting an image of the continent's cultural and economic achievements far removed from the harsher elements of life there as reflected by natural stresses and upheavals. Gaboon may also be remembered as the land where Albert Schweitzer performed his great services to the people of Africa.

Not so Cuba, where the emphasis, in films and on wall displays, is almost entirely on the revolution that brought Castro to power and seeks to perpetuate itself — and its communist affiliations — in other countries of Latin America.

Closer to home the Quebec pavilion has resisted any temptation to delve into politics. From the moment the visitor ascends into the heart of the building — in an elevator whose darkened contours reflect the changing seasons — the effect is one of good taste and presentation with a Gaillic flair.

Indeed, far from there being any jarring references to separatism or the like, visitors are afforded an opportunity of studying the diversity of Quebec's achievements as a region peopled by a distinctive group, and its physical largesse and variety of topography and industrial progress.

A color television film that takes viewers from urban areas to the province's northland, shows loggers and trappers at work; and aircraft of Quebecair serving remote snowbound communities, reminds one of the vastness of Quebec.

But even where materialism and natural resources are important, the Gailic touch is seen here at its most subtle. Who but a Frenchman would think to intersperse with pictures of logging and other natural resource operations the projection of the image of a young woman? And it is she who directs the loggers, and guides the planes in and out, and pouts a bit and gets her way a lot. And isn't that very much in the spirit of La Belle Province and of its people?

Another television screen shows the preparation of Canadian mink — and the end product as modelled by an attractive young Quebecoise.

Of such is the varied face of Quebec — a province whose mines and forests contribute greatly to the overall economy of Canada and whose people, both French and Anglo-Saxon give it a culture and flavor all its own.

Individuals Count

The royal commission on the status of women has taken an enlightened step with its announcement that individual women will be assured of a hearing.

Chairman Anne Francis says the commission is eager to hear from women — or men — who want to submit a brief on their own.

Right now, Sweden's general staff is seeking to attract men from still more countries to a training course for United Nations observers and staff officers.

This year some 67 trainees from seven countries, including Canada, are being taught by the 14 instructors. All the instructors have been service under United Nations auspices.

The course includes not only instruction in communications and planning of evacuation operations, but also in psychology and tact. Subjects much needed in the tricky roles they may be called upon to play in sensitive areas.

Sweden is an ideal setting for the school. Like Canada, Sweden has been active in UN peace operations. About 26,000 Swedes have been engaged in UN peacekeeping actions since 1948 in ten international conflict areas.

Ontario Births Down

More and more young people are embracing the marital state, while at the same time the birth rate is declining.

That is the word from the provincial secretary's office which says there were 15,508 marriages registered during the second quarter of the year, compared with 14,445 for the same period in 1966.

Births declined to 33,821 from 34,066 during the same period last year.

In the United States, meanwhile, there were 1,846,000 marriages last year — the highest number since 1946-47.

No mention of the latest number of births in the U.S., but likely the trend is similar to that in Ontario and other parts of the western world — toward a reduction as more couples take advantage of family planning techniques.

UN Observers Are Trained In Sweden

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

The Foreign Legion, those glamor boys of fiction, movies and sometimes of fact, are coming back again.

There are a few changes, however, and this time they will serve the United Nations. The change does not steal away all glamor since the Foreign Legion of fiction fame seemed to live on a diet of burning sand and sun and danger. Sand can get pretty dull as a steady diet.

The new Legion sees service in varied parts of the world, and they are pretty well taken care of, too.

Right now, Sweden's general staff is seeking to attract men from still more countries to a training course for United Nations observers and staff officers.

This year some 67 trainees from seven countries, including Canada, are being taught by the 14 instructors. All the instructors have been service under United Nations auspices.

Vocational Guidance

Montreal Gazette

Individual companies, and other professions, are active in the vocational guidance field in the high schools. It may well be that the medical profession could do more.

In many cases, vocational guidance is the difference between a rewarding career and a boring one. Young students leaving high school and contemplating higher studies rarely know in which direction to turn without guidance.

Jobs Unlimited

Grade 13—And Beyond

Globe and Mail

After anxious weeks of waiting, about 26,000 Ontario students will learn next month that they have earned their Grade 13 diplomas. The figure is impressive, for it represents a four-fold increase over the last decade, during which the population of the province rose from 3.4-million to about 7-million.

How many of these young men and women will want to go on to university — or have sufficiently high marks to be eligible to do so — is not known. But in the last 10 years full-time undergraduate enrolment in the province has risen from about 19,000 to an estimated 60,000 in the coming academic year. Meanwhile, new universities are being built, and existing ones expanded. In this coming year there will be an increase of about 9,000 in Ontario's undergraduate population.

The cost is high. Last year, Queen's Park set aside $100-million for university capital expenditure. This year's figure was $150-million, and the total for next year will likely be closer to $200-million.

A recent report, from the Statistics to the Universities, the Committee of Presidents of Universities of Ontario estimated that in 1981-82 there would be between 147,000 and 182,000 full-time undergraduates. This would be between 14.5 and 17.9 per cent of the province's 18-25 age group, compared to the present 9 percent.

Such statistics can dazzle the imagination (and worry the taxpayer who will pick up most of the tab) but they cannot hide the fact that universities are barely meeting Ontario's needs.

"It seems that what we are doing is not nearly enough," the university presidents conceded, adding that "the evidence suggests that the pressures on the university system will become greater, not less, and will arise not so much from the upward push of clamorous applicants as from the needs of society's demands for manpower — for people with increasing levels of competence, skill and understanding."

To judge from the want ad columns of Ontario newspapers, society's demands are virtually draftsmen, engineers, computer operators, technicians — the list of openings for the skilled seems endless.

The shortage is world-wide and — unlike the years immediately after the war — Ontario can no longer easily scoop up large numbers of highly trained immigrants. Increasingly, it must develop its own manpower resources.

In professions, the shortages are acute. There are few large corporations which are not hard-pressed to find sufficiently qualified young and middle-aged executives.

The legal profession is facing an overwhelming response to Ontario's new Legal Aid program, and there are beginning to be doubts that the number of lawyers in the province (about 4,500) will be adequate. Yet from 1956 to 1966, the number of undergraduates enrolled in Ontario's five law schools increased from 1,104 to 1,627. Over the same period, the number of medical students increased by only 163 to 1,525.

Teachers are also in short supply at a time of growing need. With almost certain understatement, the university presidents wrote that "it will not be possible to provide easily for the over 5,000 new secondary school teachers required in 1970."

And while there are new schools being built, and existing schools being expanded, it will be some time before the first of their added classrooms join the practising professional groups.

All these shortages and demands will bear heavily on the Ontario Government's commission which is to chart the course of higher education in the province until 1980. It is difficult to see how it can escape the conclusion that the present rate of expansion, however remarkable, will likely be insufficient to meet the needs of Ontario in the Nineteen Seventies.

It would be understandable for the Government (and the taxpayers) to resist any further increase in the level of spending. Ontario is devoting nearly half of its record budget to all fields of education, and municipalities are bowing under the weight of soaring education costs.

But Canada still produces only one university graduate for every 30 turned out in the United States (or half the total on a per capita basis) and it is clear that we simply cannot afford to lag in this vital area.

In its annual review, the Economic Council of Canada argued strongly that the present underdevelopment in the supply of highly skilled manpower are one of the major obstacles to the overcome in the battle against inflation and achieving satisfactory economic growth.

Ontario politicians and dollar-wise taxpayers would do well to heed the council's conclusion that the future benefits from increased efforts in education are very large, and the economic returns to be gained from increased investment in education are likely to exceed by a considerable margin those from most other types of expenditure."

Auto Union Calls for Strike Vote at GM

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers, replying to company demands for an adjustment of the labor contract's cost - of - living formula announced Tuesday it has called for a strike vote of nearly 400,000 union members at General Motors.

The vote, scheduled for the week of Aug. 20 at GM locals, will be the first such vote in the organization during term of the present agreement." He said this would take $74.6-a-year from every hourly rated worker at GM.

GM announced last Thusday it would ask the union for some adjustment in the cost-of-living program.

Walter Reuther, UAW president, has said repeatedly he will allow "no tampering" with the program.

Workers have drawn wage increases totalling 18 cents an hour since 1964 under the program, which adds or subtracts a penny an hour every three months for each up or down movement of four-tenths of one per cent in the consumer price index of the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

There has been no downturn in the index in recent years, and the bureau says the average auto worker now earns $3.41 an hour.

Louis Seaton, vice - president of personnel for GM, would not elaborate last Thursday on the type of changes sought by the company. He said, however, the type of cost-of-living formula "is a matter for collective bargaining, not a unilateral matter as Mr. Reuther apparently wants it to be."

Inco Shares Earn $2.26

TORONTO (CP)—The International Nickel Co. of Canada had net earnings of $67,121,000 or $2.26 a share for the first six months of 1967 compared with $73,630,000 or $2.48 a share for a similar period last year.

Henry S. Wingate, chairman of the company, said the refined earnings decline was due mainly to increased production costs in Canada and to lower deliveries, while higher metal prices did not offset.

SINCE JANUARY, 1964, the Canadian cost of living has risen at a sharper rate than the cost of living in the United States. Graph traces the index for each country, based on 1957-59 figures equalling 100. (CP Newsmap)

Canadian Cost of Living Higher

OTTAWA (CP)—The consumer price index in Canada has moved consistently ahead of the U.S. consumer price index since the start of 1964, and now is almost four per cent higher.

The U.S. consumer price index for June, on the basis of 1957-59 prices equalling 100, was 116.

The Canadian index, which is compiled on the basis of 1949 prices equalling 100, was 148.8 in June and 150.2 in July.

Converted arithmetically to the 1957-59 base used in the United States, the Canadian index was 119.5 in June and 120.6 in July.

The July price index in the U.S. has not yet been announced, but compared with its June index, the consumer price index in Canada is 2.9 per cent higher.

Shown on a chart, the higher level of Canadian prices looks like a steadily widening stream.

Measured on the basis of the U.S. index, Canadian prices have most frequently declined, and stayed down for longer periods. But Canadian consumer prices have shown a greater tendency to export upwards at times.

Canadian prices, for instance raced ahead of U.S. prices for consumer goods and services during the summer of 1964, and then declined while American prices almost caught up to them.

Canadian prices jumped ahead again in the winter and early summer of 1965, before dipping again. American prices rose more gradually, and were less affected by any setback.

But since late in the summer of 1965, Canadian prices have climbed steadily, showing greater strength in the last few months. Again, American prices rose more gradually.

Canadian prices in June were 2.4 per cent higher than a year earlier. U.S. prices rose 2.7 per cent between June last year and June this year.

The price index put out by the U.S. labor department was pushed up mainly by higher food prices, and by higher costs of consumer services. As in Canada, too, U.S. medical care service costs have risen markedly in recent years.

Higher provincial sales tax in some provinces—notably Ontario and Manitoba—have contributed to the consumer price increase in Canada.

Boy Clings By Fingers To Avoid Train

TRENTON — A 15-year-old boy suffered shock and minor injuries here yesterday as he took a short cut across a railroad trestle bridge spanning the Trent River.

But, he was lucky. Robert Davis of Middleton Park seconds earlier had leaped for life as a 16-car passenger train trundled down on him.

The youth clung to the ledge from the trestle bridge by his fingers as the Canadian National Railways Ocean Limited express rumbled over the river.

Police said the youth ran for a small platform at the edge of the trestle, tripped and fell, and rolled over over the side, clinging 20 feet above the water.

Train engineer Ernest Rainbow said he approached the bridge at 65 mph. He signalled a whistle blast on the whistle but was unable to stop the train until he was half a mile past the bridge.

He called help over the train's radio, and the alarm brought firemen, town, provincial and railroad police to the scene.

Robert is the son of airforce Cpl. and Mrs. William Davis.

CN special agent Fred Howard said police children take the bridge as a walkway and also for a game of chicken — seeing who can stay the longest on the trestle as a train approaches.

Bloomfield Firm to Build Roads

The John Leavitt Ltd. contracting firm of Bloomfield will build four new roads in the city at a contract price of $81,790.

The roads to be constructed are an extension to University Ave. to serve the new industrial park area, and on Bond, Hannah Street and Forest Hill Crescent. The Bloomfield tender was the lowest of four received by the city.

The estimated cost of the road building projects was $71,152.

Another contract award at yesterday's special meeting of council was to Frost Steel and Wire Co. Ltd. for the installation of a chain link fence at the city public works yards in the amount of $4,821.

An amount of $4,000 was provided in the current budget of the works department for carrying out the fencing project.

Search Shoreline For Missing 24-foot Boat

TRENTON — The air search and rescue centre at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, is assisting provincial police today in the search for a 24-foot sailboat, last seen at Presqu'ile yesterday.

The craft, being sailed by Cecil Hughes, of Toronto, with a second person aboard, is expected to arrive in Toronto Monday.

Whitby provincial police notified OPP Belleville district headquarters this morning which relayed a request for assistance to the search rescue centre.

Marinas along the Lake Ontario shoreline are being checked and search and rescue spokesman was optimistic the boat would be found without need of an air search.

Campbellford Fair Draws Record Crowd

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Centennial Fair initiated a new program this year which proved so successful it will be considered as a permanent arrangement.

The fair was held at a much earlier date and on Saturday and Monday of a holiday weekend.

A Centennial parade Saturday carried out the idea of an early pioneer country fair. Surrounding communities had entered floats depicting early life and dress. The floats showed pioneer women at work with primitive utilities, such as wash tub and wash board, butter and bread making equipment, a spinning wheel and parlor organ. Early horse drawn vehicles were also shown.

After the parade, the participants, along with a large crowd, assembled on the fair grounds where the fair was officially opened by F. A. Lashley of the Ontario Fairs' Association. The highlight of Saturday afternoon was a softball tournament sponsored by the Campbellford Kinsmen Club in which eight teams competed. George's team from Peterborough were the winners.

On Monday a large crowd attended, the gate receipts of $3,- being the largest for the one fair to this year. One outstanding exhibit was shown by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sloggett consisting of antiques, tools, implements and household articles.

In the evening the Doc Williams show in the Community Centre drew a large crowd. As well as providing musical entertainment the group stayed on to play for a dance following the show.

On Saturday afternoon the members of the Quinte section of the Ontario Saddle Horse Association put on a western days show.

The entries in the horse classes were larger than usual. Showing Percherons was Percy Mountjoy of Oshawa; Keith Hobden of Brooklin took top awards in the Belgian classes. Other exhibitors were Murray Heath of Campbellford; Alvin Mark of Carman and Don Robertson of Lindsay in the heavy commercial horse sections.

In the roadster and carriage class, John Sheridan of Stirling, Miles Benedict of Belleville, L. Hoskin of Burnham, Irma Cochrane of Nesleton and Creighton Carr of Picton were major exhibitors.

A draw sponsored jointly by Campbellford Kinsmen Club and Seymour Agricultural Society for a tent trailer was won by a Toronto contractor holidaying in the area.

Metro Calls for Nationalization To Solve Toronto Housing Crisis

TORONTO (CP)—Nationalization of land is the only solution to Toronto's housing shortage, says a report to be released today by a committee led by William Allen, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto.

Unless immediate change, Toronto's housing prices will continue to be the highest in Canada, says the report, to be discussed at an international conference on urban problems now in progress in Toronto.

However the report is skeptical of the chances of large-scale public acquisition, saying the federal and provincial governments would probably balk at the cost involved.

The committee including area municipality experts and municipal heads, blames restrictance by suburban neighborhoods, excessive red tape in rezoning procedures and outmoded mortgage practices for the housing dilemma here.

The study criticizes the Ontario government's Metropolitan Toronto Development Act, which went into full operation Tuesday. HOME's choice of locations well removed from the city core—the closest is at Bramalea, about 20 miles from downtown Toronto—will burden clients with transportation costs.

"At the very least," the report says, "government housing programs should be expanded to provide directly for the housing needs of the lowest 10 to 15 per cent of the population, rather than the rock bottom two to three per cent as at present."

River Valley Women Sponsor Centennial Day

RIVER VALLEY — River Valley Women's Institute sponsored a centennial day at the school house on Thursday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Glenn Bush, president, opened the program of solos and community singing. Mrs. James Hoard, Mount Pleasant, and Mrs. Percy Hobbis, Stockdale; readings given by Mrs. Percy MacMillan and Mrs. Roy Bush and a short play introduced by Mrs. Jack Bush. Current events were taken from the weekly newspaper of 1910.

The secretary read letters from former members Mrs. Taylor R. Franklin and Mrs. Bill Adey of Belleville and Mrs. Lacy Boulton Oldfield, North Bay.

Mrs. Phillip Conley played a piano medley and Walter Lindenfield demonstrated cutting grain with a cradle. The 4-H girls served a lunch of old-fashioned foods.

An antique display of local items was arranged for viewing.

In the evening Mrs. J. R. Donohoe and her assistants were in charge of a bake table.

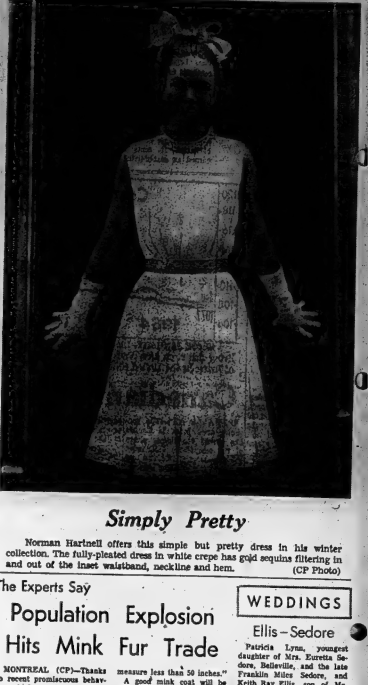
Marriages in the U.S. in the early 1980s are expected to be double those of the 1960s.

MR. AND MRS. MONTY JAMES FLINDALL

Flindall — Sutton

Patricia Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Sutton, Brampton, and Monty James Flindall, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Douglas Flindall, Belleville, were married by Rev. David Jones in Christ Church, Brampton. E. Cuthbert was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of organza. The full skirt had an overskirt gathered at the front with a bow and a Watteau train of organza and Chantilly lace was attached with bows at the shoulder. Matching lace was used for the bodice and lily-point sleeves. Her headdress of pearls and sunburst of pearls and crystals held a four-tiered bouffant illusion veil decorated with seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and yellow sweetheart roses.



Miss Corinne LeBlanc, maid of honor, wore a floor-length gown of buttercup yellow chiffon with Empire bodice, and a Watteau train falling from the shoulders. Yellow and green rose trim was used on the puffed sleeves, neckline and waistline. A yellow chiffon rose held her shoulder-length veil and she carried a crescent bouquet of mauve miniature carnations. The bridesmaids, Miss Pam Flindall, Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Lesley Dobbs, Brampton, cousin of the bride, were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Miss Angela Dobb, Brampton, the bride's cousin, was flower girl. She was attired similarly to the other attendants and carried a white basket of mauve carnations.

Ronald Flindall, Cobourg, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were John Mueller and Richard Ellis, both of Brampton.

To receive the guests at the reception at the Provincial Room of the Skyline Hotel, Toronto, the bride's mother chose a turquoise blue dress with matching three-quarter length lace coat, pale blue accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses and carnations. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a pink ensemble of organza coat over a lace sheath, accessories of pink and white and a corsage of deep pink miniature carnations.

For her wedding trip to Miami, Florida, the bride donned a white linen dress with matching coat, pink accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations. On their return, the couple will live at 47 McMurchy Ave., N., Brampton.

Family Reunions

SMITH FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smith, R.R. 1, Belleville entertained about 40 at a family reunion Saturday.

Mrs. George Compton, Inverarry, received a prize for an authentic centennial dress. Clifford Smith won the man's prize and Miss Jane Horwood, the children's prize.

The most interesting items brought to the reunion were two scrapbooks of newspaper clippings of social events concerning relatives and friends collected since the turn of the century.

The day closed with a fireworks display donated by Dr. and Mrs. N. S. Gage of Kingston.

The Experts Say

Population Explosion Hits Mink Fur Trade

MONTREAL (CP)—Thanks to recent promiscuous behavior of Canada's minks, women this summer can buy luxurious coats at lower-than-ever prices.

"Ranchers have so many minks available," says Morris Keller, a fur expert for more than 41 year, "that pastel minks in particular will cost about 25 per cent less than usual."

If a woman is planning to purchase a mink coat, summer is the best time to do it, advise the experts.

"Next year, prices will rise again because ranchers will have to spend a good deal of money in feeding and caring for the increased numbers of stock," says Mr. Keller.

But he warns women not to grab the first thing they see because, it has a low price tag.

Mr. Keller, president of the Keller and Goodman Fur Co., together with his partner, Herman Goodman, runs the manufacturing house. He pointed out some of the essential things to look for when buying a fur.

"If you want a good quality mink make sure the coat or jacket or stole has been fashioned from Canadian minks. Canadian minks are by far the best on the market due to the climate and conditions under which they are raised. European minks are inferior in quality when judged by Canadian standards."

And "stay away from a coat whose fur has a reddish tinge to it." This indicates a sun-standard fur which is probably several years old and has begun to turn in color.

"Next, make sure you are not paying for a coat in which an inordinate number of furs have been used."

One way to check this point is tape-measure the "sweep" of the coat. "Run the tape along the hemline of the coat. A full sweep will measure about 60 inches; a skimpy item will probably measure less than 50 inches."

A good mink coat will be lustrous in appearance and silky to the touch. Male skins are superior to female skins, even though male hairs are slightly coarser than female.

The male stripes are farther apart than the female stripes.

"If you blow on the hairs of the mink, they will separate but return to their original position. If the hairs remain silvery, the quality of animal skin is poor."

Although the mink is still the most popular dress coat—the most expensive colors are lavender, homo and violet minks—other furs are still in demand for everyday wear.

"The persian lamb cut is a favorite item among most women," says Mr. Keller.

"When buying persian lamb, make sure the coat is lightweight and that the curls on the coat are tight ones. A loosely-curled coat is of first quality. A black persian lamb should have a shiny appearance although grey coats are not quite so shiny. When buying a grey coat, make sure it is a medium or dark shade. Light shades are inferior to darker ones."

Many women like a mink fur collar on a persian lamb coat. It is important to deal with a reliable firm as there have been cases in which muskrats have been dyed and passed off as mink collars.

Furs have changed slightly from the loosely-fitted coat to the slightly-fitted bodice. Collars are smaller and hemlines range from 16 to 18 inches from the floor.

"The length of dresses and skirts does not influence the length of a fur coat," explains Mr. Keller. Sleeves are still long but can be cuffed to three-quarter length.

"A full woman should wear a mink coat in which the stripes move horizontally, whereas a short woman would look better in a vertically-striped coat. Tall women should lean more towards a bolero-styled jacket and heavy-busted women should wear regular coats rather than capes which add fullness."

Never cover furs with plastic as they must breathe. Leave them completely open in a cool area of the house and don't store them in crowded closets.

In the summer, coats and jackets can be stored either in cedar closets at home or in a professional fur storage plant.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The engagement is announced of Carol Anne, daughter of Allan James and the late Mrs. Jones, to George Allan Garnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Garnett, Belleville. The wedding will take place Aug. 19 1967, at 3 p.m. in St. James Bond United Church, Toronto.

* * *

Before her marriage, Mrs. Monty James Flindall, the former Patricia Ann Sutton of Brampton, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Robert Strahan, Belleville, with Miss Pam Flindall and Mrs. Albert Cass as co-hostesses. She was presented with a gift by the Northern Electric Co. of Brampton, and a party was held following the rehearsal at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Flindall, Brampton, uncle of the bridegroom.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Neuma Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Neuma Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender form every graceful curve; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Let this easy way endorsed by many who have tried it, fail and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. Men also, youthful appearing and active.

WEDDINGS

Ellis — Sedore

Patricia Lynn, youngest daughter of Mrs. Eurette Sedore, Belleville, and the late Franklin Miles Sedore, and Keith Ray Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ellis, R.R.1, Havelock, were married by Rev. Robert A. Crooks at Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, July 28, 1967 at 7 p.m.

The bride wore a street-length A-line sleeveless dress of white brocade and carried a bouquet of snowdrifts and mums accented with pale blue net.

The bride's attendant, Mrs. Edward Blake, Oshawa, was a blue sheath street - length dress with a corsage of white mums accented in pale blue.

Edward Blake, Oshawa, was the bridegroom's attendant.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis will reside at 302 Vimy Street, Oshawa, following a wedding trip to Deer Lake.

Dafoe — Berry

FRANKFORD — St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Port Hope, was the scene of the wedding of Sandra Louise Berry and John William Dafoe. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Berry, Port Hope, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Dafoe, Frankford.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length white satin brocade gown with Empire bodice and detachable shoulder train. Her bouffant silk illusion veil was held by a floral headdress and she carried a bouquet of cascading red roses and white stephanotis.

The maid of honor, Miss Margaret Berry, sister of the bride, wore a floor-length peacock blue crepe and lace Empire style gown and headband. She carried a bouquet of cascading yellow sweetheart roses and white miniature carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by Ray Oliver, Whitby, and the ushers were Jack Berry, Port Hope, brother of the bride, and Wayne Whitney.

The reception was held in the church parlor, where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a blue sheath dress with matching jacket, white accessories and a pink rosebud corsage. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a pink linen dress with matching lace coat, white accessories and a pink carnation corsage.

For her wedding trip to Lake Placid, the bride chose a blue fitted linen dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses. On their return, the couple will live at Georgia Courts, Whitby.

Good Is in the Worst of Us If People Stopped to Recall It

DORIS CLARK

DEAR READERS: Gleaned from Newfoundland "News and Views in Welfare" is the following inspiration:

"I KNOW SOMETHING GOOD ABOUT YOU"

Wouldn't this old world be better,
If the folks we meet would say:
"I know something good about you!"
And then treat us just that way!
Wouldn't things be nicer
If we could hear more pleasant
If the good that's in us all,
Were the only thing about us
That folks bothered to recall.

Wouldn't life be lots more happy
If we'd praise the good we see!
For there's such a lot of goodness
In the worst of you and me.

— Author Unknown.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I am 25 years old. From the time I can remember I've been walking with my head down and the upper part of my body leaning forward.

I've tried several times to straighten up but to no avail. Do you know of anything special such as exercise, etc., which may help me? — STOOP-SHOULDERED.

DEAR STOOP-SHOULDERED: Only a doctor can tell you whether your backbone is now too rigid to be straightened by exercise alone.

One little boy I know, who came from a broken home, walked with his head down and thrust forward until he got into a happy home again. Then he straightened up, and now, at 21, is quite erect.

Posture is primarily influenced by self-regard and state of mind. I'm sending you my ten-cent leaflet "For Round Shoulders," which outlines some bends and stretches. Consult your medical man, and, if you need help to straighten up psychologically, try what a social worker can do.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: (1) What does going steady involve? (2) When a boy gives you his ring are you going around or steady with him? (3) When you are going steady, does a girl give a boy her ring? (4) What hand and what finger does she wear his ring on? — INNOCENT ADA.

DEAR INNOCENT: (1) Dating the one-and-only. A convenient way of making sure of a regular date. For the most part, I hate a dim view of it. (2) If he says so and you promise to. (3) Not compulsory. (4) Third finger, left hand. Which should be reserved for engagement ring, in my book.

* * *

To SIT: Go on, ask him! That's what a grown-up would do. There's nothing wrong with showing a friendly interest in what a friend is doing.

Instant Meals Take Magic

By MARY MOORE

Our career girl enters her apartment at 5:35 p.m. and by some kind of magic has dinner on the table by 6 p.m. when her young husband walks confidently through the door with two of his pals in tow.

How does she do it?

FISH STICKS ON RICE WITH CHEESE SAUCE

1 cup raw long grain rice (or use instant for greater speed)
2½ cups boiling water
1 tsp. salt
One 10-oz. pkge. frozen fish sticks (or more)
2 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. flour
½ tsp. salt
1-16 tsp. pepper
1 cup milk
½ lb. grated or shredded Cheddar cheese (approx. 1 cup packed)

First step: Add boiling water and ¾ tsp. salt to rice and simmer covered until tender and water is absorbed.

Second step: In a medium frying pan gently melt fish sticks, 5 to 7 min. until golden, turning once. Keep hot.

Third step: Make Cheese Sauce by melting butter, stirring in flour and ¼ tsp. salt until blended and then stirring in milk until thick. Add grated cheese, pickel relish, onion and pimiento and heat through stirring.

Fourth step: To serve, tip cooked rice out on preheated medium platter, arrange sauteed fish sticks on top in two parallel rows, pour sauce over all and serve.

The fresh and blond girl who prepared this meal managed to make a tossed salad in between above steps.

Ann Landers

Many Overweights In Kindergarten Class

DEAR ANN LANDERS: School will be starting soon and since I am a kindergarten teacher I'll be seeing more of the same — fat little kids.

ANN LANDERS

In last year's class, 18 youngsters out of a class of 32 were anywhere from five to 20 pounds overweight. Mostly girls, I might add.

I have tried to talk to their mothers but I keep hearing the same weak, stupid, defenses: "She'll outgrow it," or "I'm runs in our family." When I tell them that cooking and eating habits run in the family, too, and fat, they look at me as if I am crazy.

One mother "of a grossly overweight child said, "She'll just have to get used to being made fun of and left out of things. I did and now nothing hurts me."

Please print my letter and answer views, Ann Landers. People who refuse to listen to anyone seem to listen to you. — WEIGHTY PROBLEMS.

* * *

DEAR W.P.: Show me a fat little kid and I'll show you a mother who feels inadequate. These disturbed women stuff their kids full of food to compensate for whatever else they aren't getting.

Overeating and eating the wrong foods can become a lifelong habit. Every mother who has a fat child should give that child a break and take him to a doctor at once and get some advice.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was married at 22, to a mama's boy who couldn't cut himself loose from his mother's apron strings. He was only 19, and I should have known better.

That was three years ago, and now I have another problem. Last Christmas I started to go out with what I thought was a mature fellow of 21. We like the same things, got along well together and I want to marry him. When I asked him to set a date he said he owes quite a lot of money and marriage will have to wait. I told him I wanted to be engaged and if he couldn't afford a ring I would buy one — which I did.

Now it has come back to me that he has told people I bought the ring. I'm humiliated to death. When I asked him about it he said, "Yes, I had to tell the people I owed money to because they wondered how I could afford to buy a ring when I had told them I didn't have any money.

Was he justified? What should my next move be? — CAPRICORN.

* * *

DEAR CAP: Take the ring off your finger and the gun out of his rib. This guy does not want to marry you — now or ever. How else do you have to make the same mistake before you learn? Stop going with kids and start looking for men.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am under 30 and I've had three sons in seven years. Needless to say they are driving me nuts.

Lately they have been fighting constantly. I try to track down the reason for the fights and punish the guilty one. This doesn't always work as two of the boys often gang up on the third boy and tattle. The tattlers' stories are not always truthful, I have discovered.

Any suggestion will be greatly appreciated. — I NEED PEACE.

DEAR PEACE: With three boys it's impossible to find out who started a fight. Tell them you don't want any more Gestapo reports and if they fight, they will all get punished, regardless of who started it. This will cut down the battling and the tattling.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "It seems as if we spend most of the trip playing games with Jane. I would love to just sit and watch the scenery, but she gets bored with it."

Mother: "We'll ask Molly to go with us on our trip next week. You can take your dolls and coloring books, so you will have something to do together in the car."

Travelling with an only child will be happier — and easier — if you can take a young companion along.

WEDDING

RIVERS — McCABE

Immaculate Conception Roman Catholic Church, Peterborough, was the setting of the marriage of Colleen Loweta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCabe, Toronto and Joseph Lionel Rivers, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rivers, Belleville. Rev. Chris McCarney officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line Empire gown of silk crepe with long lily-pointed sleeves and a chapel train trimmed with imported Alencon lace. Her four-tiered scalloped veil was held with a cluster of pearlized apple blossoms and she carried a cascade of white stephanotis centred with white and shrimp colored roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Betty Bradshawlie, and the bridesmaids, Miss Darlene Rivers, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Susan McCabe, were identically attired in A-line Empire waisted gowns of shrimp silk crepe. They carried bouquets of white roses with white daisies. Miss Lori-Anne McCabe, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed similarly to the bridesmaids.

Wayne Segsworth attended the bridegroom and the ushers were James McCabe, brother of the bride and Michael Rivers, brother of the bridegroom.

At the reception at Rock Haven, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue lace ensemble with matching hat and shoes and a corsage of deep pink sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a yellow crepe dress with lace coat and yellow accessories, and a corsage of bronze mums.

For travelling the bride chose a two-piece blue bengaline dress and coat ensemble.

On their return the couple will live in Stokbroke.

Mr., Mrs. J. Botting Mark 50 Wedded Years

Mr. and Mrs. John Botting, Camilton, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary July 30th with a reception at their home.

Mrs. Botting received her guests in a pale nylon dress and white carnation corsage. Centering the table was a three-tier wedding cake made by her daughter. Their granddaughter, Miss Linda Lennox, was in charge of the guest book. The United Church Women catered for the event.

Gifts and messages were received from their family, the Hon. John Diefenbaker, Hon. John Roberts, Les Grills MP and C. T. Rollins MPP.

Gertrude Hartin and John Botting were married in Trinity United Church parsonage, Napanee, July 23, 1917 by Rev. C. W. Demille. The late John McConnell attended the bridegroom and Mrs. McConnell attended the bride. Mrs. McConnell was present at the 50th anniversary celebration.

Mr. Botting was employed by the CPR. In Rubin for 34 years and was later transferred to Shannonville, where the couple lived until Mr. Botting's retirement in 1956.

The couple have two children, Mrs. Everett (Myrtle) Lennox, Napanee, and James of Belleville. There are five grandchildren.

Montreal Motel Called Fraudulent

WASHINGTON (CP)—U.S. Post office officials have been instructed to seize letters addressed to the Canadiana 67 Motel in Montreal and return them marked "fraudulent," a spokesman said Tuesday night.

The spokesman said the motel has been fraudulently promising first-class accommodation and demanding advance deposits in full.

(A spokesman for Rawson Rug Linen of Belleville said today Canadiana 67 Motel is not associated with Canadiana Village, where the local business has reserved rooms for its Expo bus tour patrons.)

The official said this is the first such step taken in connection with Expo 67 lodging although there may be three or four similar cases currently involving other kinds of Canadian firms.

This one followed a detailed complaint confirmed by an investigation, he said, Canadiana 67 leased out to be a plywood, barracks-style building which demanded its future customers pay four weeks in advance.

When the U.S. family asked for a refund on arrival, they were laughed at, the official said. The U.S. consul at Montreal apparently advised against any other attempt to get the money back, the official said.

In Quebec City Tuesday night Premier Johnson said he has been told that the U.S. post office has ordered all U.S. mail addressed to a "motel I do not wish to name" will be stamped as fraudulent. The mail, Mr. Johnson said, "will be returned to its sender because the advertising of this motel is fraudulent and dishonest."

"It is not the U.S. government which took the initiative of stopping a situation which we have been told is wrong, but about which we could do nothing."

Mr. Johnson was speaking during debate on a bill that would create a Quebec department of financial institutions.

If the current bill were law, said the premier, there would have been an inspector to look into the motel involved in the U.S. action.

U.S. Ousts Man Posing As PM's Son

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A 25-year-old Canadian who was honored and feted during a tour of the United States while posing as the son of Prime Minister Lester Pearson received a five-year suspended sentence on Burglary charges Tuesday.

Judge Mack Hicks sentenced Donald Gordon Stevens in superior court after Stevens admitted taking several sweaters, records and other items valued at $1,000 from the residence of Larry Willingham June 17.

Assistant Solicitor - General John Stokes said Stevens had travelled through the United States visiting prominent families and claiming to be Lester Pearson, Jr.

Stokes said Stevens is being held for immigration authorities. Deportation proceedings are pending against him and the FBI is investigating a car-theft charge, he said.

"Up-a-daisy!"

Catastrophe Crop Insurance Sought

CLACHAN, Ont. (CP)—A brief proposing province-wide weather catastrophe crop insurance scheme was drawn up Tuesday night at a meeting of about 150 farmers, most of whom suffered heavy losses in a severe hailstorm Aug. 1.

Under the proposed system all crop acreage in Ontario would be assessed a sum of money and the cost of the scheme would be passed on to the producer.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the proposed crop insurance scheme is designed to compensate for future losses.

The brief, which will be presented to federal and provincial ministers of agriculture, the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and the Ontario Farmers' Union, calls for acreage assessment of all Ontario farmers. The assessment cost would be passed on to the consumer in the cost of the finished product.

The scheme would be set up by the department of agriculture.

There would be no benefits unless damage exceeded 30 per cent. Coverage would be against all weather hazards except frost.

Supervision would be by local departments of agriculture and local farmers.

The farmers also are attempting to find some form of immediate assistance for those who suffered losses Aug. 1.

The storm cut a swath about two miles wide and about 15 miles long, affecting more than 100 farmers.

Don Reidenford, Kent County agricultural representative, estimated that between 10,000 and 12,000 acres were affected."

Noted Organist To Give Recital At Kingston

Mr. David Willcocks, one of Great Britain's most distinguished musicians and Director of Music and Organist of King's College, Cambridge, will play an organ recital in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. He is in Canada this summer to lead the British delegation for the second World Congress of Organists as current president of the Royal College of Organists.

King's College Choir is recognized throughout the world as the finest choir of its type and has continued to grow in ability and reputation since Mr. Willcocks took it over in 1958.

Mr. Willcocks, however, is much more than Joal Choirmaster of King's, Cambridge. He is also conductor of the famed London Bach Choir and director of the Cambridge Choral Union. He is a lecturer in music at the university and Editor-in-Chief of the Church Music Section of Oxford University Press.

As a recital organist and service player, Mr. Willcocks is rated with the finest in the world. He will play only two recitals while in Canada; the pre-Congress event in Kingston and another in Montreal during the actual sessions of the International Congress of Organists.

GALES KILL, DAMAGE

HELSINKI (AP)—Gales whipping across Finland the last two days killed at least three persons and caused extensive property damage. Police said Tuesday two persons were killed when their plane was caught in a twisting wind and an aged man was crushed by a falling tree.

Biggest Economic Problem Allocation of Taxes--Robarts

MONTMORENCY, Que. (CP) —Premier John Robarts said today the biggest economic challenge facing Canada's federal and provincial governments since the Second World War is allocation of spending revenues.

"Ontario is deeply disappointed that we have been unable over the years to reach a settlement that would more equitably distribute the collections of tax money among those levels of government which carry the heaviest burden,' he said.

To produce a logical policy, Mr. Robarts told the policy advisory committee of the Progressive Conservative Party, the reports of the tax structure committee and the Carter commission "have to be considered together."

"The question of the division of expenditures and revenues between the federal and provincial governments must still be answered," he said.

Mr. Robarts said the tax structure committee found that by the end of the next five-year tax-sharing period—April 1, 1972—the federal government would have an annual surplus of $750,000,000.

"The provinces and the municipalities together would end up with a joint deficit of $2,100,000,000—a deficit three times the federal surplus.

"Despite this evidence, produced by a committee under the chairmanship of the federal minister of finance of the mounting demands upon the provincial and municipal governments, Ottawa took the view that it could not turn adequate tax resources to the provinces."

Mr. Robarts said the federal government appears to have drawn a line between what is provincial and what is federal responsibility under the British North American Act.

"Each would operate within its own realm and each would be responsible for raising its own taxes.

"However, without the proper redistribution of tax fields, such a policy is surely impractical."

Mr. Robarts added:

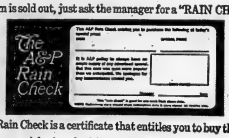
"This position of the federal government appears to be the result of a situation which has developed in recent years and originated, for the most part, from the Interim Arrangements Act which permitted provinces to contract out of various federal-provincial shared cost programs.

"Quebec was the only province to use the provisions for contracting out of shared-cost programs in order to obtain fiscal equivalents.

"One result of this situation was a concern that we would drift into some form of associate state situation for Quebec.

"The change in philosophy by the federal government appears to have been designed to arrest this drift.

"In doing so, it emphasized the desirability of equal treatment for all provinces, so far as possible, in all arrangements with Ottawa."



Premier Robarts said the federal government must alter its approach if it and the provincial governments are to shoulder "adequately" their responsibilities under the BNA Act "and if the federal government is to be the authority of fiscal policy in Canada."

A&P we never "run out" on a sale!

We never advertise a special sale item unless we have an ample supply. Once in a great while, the special is more popular than we imagined. So occasionally, we do run out of the item.

But we never "run out" on a sale.

If the item is sold out, just ask the manager for a "RAIN CHECK".

An A&P Rain Check is a certificate that entitles you to buy the item at the same special price, the following week.

We think that's the fair thing to do. We think that shows "WE CARE".

Not every store can care that much. A&P can...and does.

Shouldn't A&P be your store?

World's Fastest-growing City

This is an aerial view of Sao Paulo, Brazil, the fastest growing city in the world, a title it has held since the early 1940s. During the last 23 years its population has multiplied six times to 6,000,000 people. The city is the centre of the automobile industry of Brazil. (CP Photo)

Cars Are Not Weatherproof

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking as a shameful mechanical illiterate, I'd like to ask a few wistful questions of the auto industry today. I thought of these questions while driving home from work on a hot day, when dozens of cars had stalled on the roadway with "vapor lock" from the heat.

Why is it that with all the super - hyper - car - of - the-future talk, one hot humid day in traffic knocks out so many cars? Or why does one cold wintry day stall thousands of autos? Or one rainy day make spark plugs wet and motors unable to start?

With all our tremendous know-how, with all the incredible gadgets on the new cars, isn't it possible to design and manufacture an auto that is more impervious to the elements?

We've done this with modern clothes, modern housing, modern food. Why can't we do it with the modern automobile, which is supposed to be America's proudest contribution to the world's industry?

What about battery failures in cold weather, which seem to be as prevalent as they were 30 years ago? Or radiators that boil over in summer, just as much as they did when I was a boy. No fundamental improvements here, as far as I can tell.

We hear little about advances in these areas, although we hear a great deal about new grill work and new recessed headlights and new automatic record-players and new seats that will slide 17 ways at the press of a button.

And we hear a great deal about the number of horses that are added to the new models each year — but what good are even 500 horses, gentlemen if a damp spell or a cold snap or a heat wave prevent them from getting out of the barn?

And, while I'm in this querulous mood — those vapor locks made me a half - hour late for an important appointment — what about the possibility of designing an auto body so that each time you get a little dent in the fender it isn't necessary to replace half the side of the car, at a cost resembling the national budget of Nigeria?

Show us a ship is fine, chrome is glittering, long hoods are rakish, matching fabrics are appealing to the ladies. But a car, as they say in England, is to go.

The new cars have some useful and impressive, along with some foolish, features. I appreciate the progress but resent the foolishness, because it takes time, money and energy away from research on some pretty basic problems. Such as simply getting your car started on a miserable morning.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are driving from Cape May to New Jersey on the Garden State Parkway. Could you please tell me how far it is, toll costs and service areas and anything else that would be helpful on my journey.

ANSWER: The Garden State Parkway extends 173 miles from Cape May to its junction with the New York Thruway north of Montvale, New Jersey — New York State line.

Hitchhikers and all other pedestrians are barred. Picking up or discharging passengers is illegal.

Motorcycles, motor scooters or bicycles are not permitted. Trucks are prohibited north of Interchange 97A in Monmouth county.

The speed limit is 60 miles per hour; 65 miles per hour for passenger vehicles only south of milepost 80 near Toms River. These speeds apply unless otherwise posted.

A special hauling permit is necessary for vehicles exceed ing 13 feet, 6 inches in height, 8 feet in width and 50 feet in length; 53 feet overall length is permitted for house, boat or other non-commercial vehicles drawn by passenger vehicles. Application for permits should be sent to the Operations Department, New Jersey Highways Authority, Garden State Parkway, Woodbridge, New Jersey.

There are eight service areas, with restaurants, snack bars and gasoline facilities, along the parkway.

TOLLS

The Garden State Highway is a barrier-type toll road. Under the barrier system, most collection points are spread across the road at scattered intervals. You pay as you go.

Vehicles travelling the full length of the parkway, pay at 11 across-the-road toll plazas. The passenger car rate at each is 25 cents, or $2.75 for the 173-mile-trip, less than 1.6 cents per mile.

At some interchanges, tolls are collected at ramps upon entering or leaving the parkway. The ramp tolls are 10, 15 or 25 cents.

Exact change blinkers stop the booth at toll plazas signify automatic collection lanes where only a quarter or any amount of coins equalling 25 cents can be deposited. Motorists needing change or information (or cars with trailers) must use manned booths.

QUESTION: We were thinking that after visiting Expo we would like to drive down the south shore of the St. Lawrence as far as Riviere-du-Loup or Rimouski. Is there any way of crossing the River so that we can come back by the north shore?

ANSWER: From Riviere-du-Loup there is a ferry service to St. Simeon. The luxury ferry, M. V. Trans-St. Laurent, makes four trips daily having Riviere-du-Loup at 8.30 a.m., 11.45 a.m., 3.15 p.m., and 6.30 p.m. This ferry has a capacity of 70 cars and 450 passengers. Rates are: passengers $2 for adults, $1 for children 6 to 12 years, children under 6 no charge; automobiles $5 (excluding driver). For reservations call Riviere-du-Loup 862-5094.

From St. Simeon you are within a short range of two famous resort areas at Murray Bay and Tadoussac. Tadoussac is reached by a ferry from Baie Ste. Catherine, across the mouth of the Saguenay River. The ferry leaves Baie Ste. Catherine every half hour from 8.45 until 12.45 a.m. Rates are: passengers, 35 cents, automobiles $1.25 (including driver).

Dutch Elm Disease Rampant

Evidence of how Dutch Elm disease is killing elms in the Belleville area is seen in this photo taken on Palmer Road in the west end of the city. The disease has already killed tree in foreground.

Authorities Concerned

Area Dutch Elm Disease on Increase; Removal of Trees Rearguard Action

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A marked increase in the incidence of Dutch Elm disease which in recent years has played havoc with elm stands in Eastern Ontario, has been noted this year in the Bay of Quinte district.

District Forester N. D. Patrick of Tweed, reports that during June and July Dutch Elm disease seems really to have hit the Bay of Quinte district and Kingston area.

The disease has been rampant in Belleville and Picton for a number of years and is making inroads at Kingston despite efforts to control its spread.

This year it has spread to townships outside Kingston and to Tyendinaga township and most areas in Prince Edward county, all of which are now in danger of losing a substantial portion of their shade and hedge trees as well as elm timber in woodlots.

A couple of years ago the city works department on direction from council took local action aimed at arresting the advance of the elm killing disease in the city.

A list of all infected trees both on city and private property was obtained from the local research laboratory and removal of the city-owned trees was included in the annual tree removal contract.

In turn the city parks board negotiated with private owners for removal of diseased elms.

Currently a city by-law is being prepared which will allow the works department to cut diseased elms on private property at no cost to the owner. Cutting of the diseased elms would be undertaken as a winter works project and would be subsidized by the senior governments.

The department offices receive reports about new cases of Dutch Elm diseases almost daily. In most cases the reports deal with diseased trees which are situated in gardens and hedges near houses. These reported trees, however, are only a very small percentage of the affected elms in the area. The owners are asking what they could do to save the already diseased trees. Much less often they ask what can be done to prevent the further spread of the disease.

It is this second question which is so much more important.

Dutch Elm disease is caused by a fungus which as a parasite develops in the water-conducting vessels of the sapwood. Here it produces spores which spread and act to poison the tree.

The spread of the Dutch Elm disease fungus from infected to healthy elm trees is dependent almost entirely on insects. The spores adhere to the bodies of emerging adult beetles and are introduced into other elm trees when the beetles feed on the new twigs.

In spite of the continuing research in Canada, United States and Europe, there is no known cure for the treatment of Dutch Elm disease.

As of today one important measure for retarding the spread of Dutch Elm disease is consistent sanitation, removal of diseased Elms as practiced by a number of parks administrations and by many conservation-minded individuals.

Briefly, sanitation involves the destruction or treatment of material in which bark beetles might breed and which is close to healthy elms.

Freshly cut logs and firewood, dying and recently dead trees, broken branches and stumps of trees recently felled, and diseased trees provide ideal material to support heavy beetle populations. It is much more important to destroy this type of material than it is to remove trees that are in the early stage of the disease; the latter do not become a hazard to healthy elms until enough wood is killed to permit beetles to breed and emerge carrying fungus spores. All such material should be burned, or debarked and the bark burned, or sprayed with DDT before the adult beetles emerge.

Financial aid on a municipal basis may be available for elm clean-up programs.

Unfortunately, there have already been many thousands of Elms lost in the Quinte area, and there are ugly gaps appearing in many a beautiful hedge and in elm groves.

To fill those gaps the landowners are advised to plant other trees available from the department of lands and forests nurseries. Such as the fast growing silver maple and the Carolina poplar.

The Carolina poplar which has a headsome crown seems to thrive on the shores of the Bay of Quinte and annual leader growths of several feet are quite common in appropriate soils.

A popular practice is to plant several species for each elm lost, and later to trim out the imperfect ones.

Just Like Tarzan!

Tree trimmer swings high from a rope as he works on big West Bridge Street silver maple.

Council Requests Hearing on Clinic

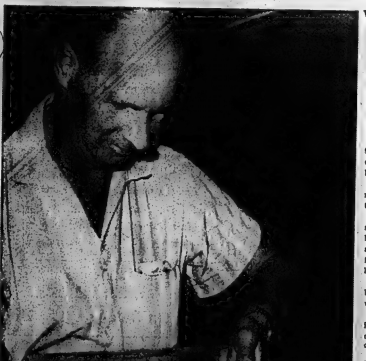
The Ontario Municipal Board will be asked to set a new date for still another hearing on the Williamson medical clinic on East Dundas Street.

But this time the city will be prepared to support its by-law to change the zoning and thus allow legal operation of the clinic.

This was the decision of city council yesterday after hearing the report of Alderman Arthur Keegan, who some weeks ago was named a one man committee to attempt to resolve the clinic issue which has been in and out of council for the past three or four years.

Alderman Keegan said he had been unable to get all the objectors to the medical clinic to sign an agreement under which certain work would be carried out to overcome much of the objection.

Under the agreement Dr. Williamson would agree not to seek access from the clinic parking lot onto Dufferin Avenue; would grade his property to trap all natural surface water and install a storm drain to carry it away, and would erect a basket weave fence around the parking lot.



The agreement calls for the work to be completed within six months after approval by council.

The alderman criticized council's failure to support its own bylaw before the municipal board.

His resolution called for a new hearing on the zoning change and for the city to be prepared to defend its bylaw.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said it was a question of the degree of support which had prompted the OMB to adjourn its last hearing on the city's application for approval of its zoning bylaw. The mayor said it had been left for opposing counsel to bring out points covered in the bylaw.

The motion for a new OMB hearing on the bylaw was passed without objection.

That's Pay Dirt!

It's only a handful of dirt being held by sports dealer Bob Blaind — but dig this: Underneath are simple bait worms recovered from soil with profit to those who pry them by night.

Worms Beware

Green Lawns Are Pay Dirt

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

In these days of gross materialism even the lowly worm can turn — into a tidy bank balance.

They're proving it every night there's good weather in the Quinte district.

Foraging aming the greenswards of local golf courses, busy groups of torch - bearers are plucking enough profit from the soil to make even a hardened farmer wince.

Of course there's a catch — but that's the secret of the whole enterprise.

Worms catch fish and therein lies the connection with one of the least - known local industries — bait marketing.

Right now, business is at its thriving best as the summer sporting season pressurps demand.

A typical unit of the industry is that operated by Belleville sports dealer Bob Blaind who requisitions, retails and wholesales worms by the thousand.

Key to the operation is a work force of youths mixed with a handful of what he calls "professionals", who bring back the bait alive nightly.

Happiest hunting grounds for mush quarry are well-trimmed wide - open spaces — in other words golf and country clubs.

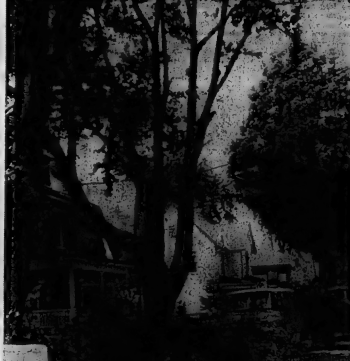
Bob holds the rights to the Prince Edward County grounds at Picton.

He says permission to the Bay of Quinte country club property west of Belleville is held by a Toronto contractor.

Each night, from May to September, providing the weather co-operates, his work crew sets to and scours the Picton course.

Equipped with head-hung miners' lanterns with holding cans strapped to their legs, the foragers pry around the grass, turning the greenery literally into pay dirt.

Payment is based on catches of a thousand and in a good night a teenager can make anywhere between $5 and $20.



"Last week I paid the kids a total of $485," says the dealer.

But that's nothing on the three professional worm pickers in the crew, who can load up to 12,000 worms a night, says Mr. Blaind.

But, for them, it's a full-time, occupation and they must make a year's pay during the fishing season.

However, this even doesn't compare with dealers based in centres like Toronto, says the Belleville sportsman, who loses a string of grassy golf courses around the province, selling at home and in the United States.

Which maybe explains why any color dollar bills green.

Tree Trimmers at Work

Sidewalks and curbside are completely covered by fallen branches as Cedardale Tree Surgeons of Brighton carry out tree trimming contract for city. Each year the city lets contract for trimming and removal of dead trees.

SPORTSLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

December 2 is Grey Cup Day in Ottawa this year and the Rytown buckaroos are hoping it won't be a repeat of that historic Grey Cup Day in 1929 when the last hangover classic was played there.

It has been 38 years since a Grey Cup game was played in the nation's capital, but no matter what transpires this year, it's a moot point if it could match the incredible picture of green yard markings on white snow on a memorable day in 1929.

To the horror of the Grey Cup Committee — such as it was in 1929 — snow began to fall in Ottawa on Thursday, December 7, and continued with only brief pauses until Saturday morning.

Under the direction of Superintendent Eddie Prell, city plows tried to keep ahead of the heavy snowfall and worked around the clock until Saturday morning when the storm suddenly stopped.

On Friday afternoon, in a moment of desperation, somebody conceived the idea of having grounds-men on the field to melt the thin layer of snow which was left by the plows, but to little effect except to turn the turf into quagmire. Falling temperatures then reduced the field to a cement-like mess.

If the events of Thursday and Friday were amply sufficient to queue many hair-raiz, they were minor compared to what happened Saturday. But let Eddie Prie! tell the story:

"In those days we used lime to mark the lines on the field, and when the sky cleared about 10.00 that morning, I suppose I simply panicked. Around 11.30 a little later, when I looked out, snowflakes as big as doughnuts were falling and the whole field was as white as a sheet."

If it was a problem to discourcert a genius, it didn't take the veteran superintendent more than five minutes to resolve it completely.

"One of the directors of the Ottawa Club was the owner of the Supertest Company" recalls Prell, "and one of their best known products was a green-colored treated sawdust for sweeping floors. So I got on the telephone to Jim McCaffrey and told him to call Mr. Pickering and have five barrels sent down."

"What for?" demanded the mystified McCaffrey.

"We're going to mark the field in green" advised Prell, "and bring your shillelagh, too."

As event proved, it was a fruitless effort. The sun came out Saturday about half an hour before the game and not only melted the layer of snow, but turned the field into a quagmire into which the green flues disappeared.

"But for a while" sighed Prell, "it was a beautiful sight. Can you imagine a white football field with green line markings?"

The emergency was resolved finally by placing and if no war erupted over the grounds of ground gains throughout the game, it was merely a tribute to the pacific nature of the Winnipeg and Ottawa representatives on the yardsticks.

Incidentally, in case you've forgotten, Winnipeg defeated Ottawa that horredous afternoon, 8 to 7, before 12,000 semi-frozen spectators.

Meanwhile, no matter what the weather happens to be on December 2, 1967 (and the weatherman gives the game a 50-50 chance of having good conditions) there'll be no green lines on a snow-covered field.

They use a tarpaulin now.

Minor Baseball Results

The local minors were busy last night with the playoffs.

In bantam Farrells whipped Mont.-Johnson 10-4, while Little Oyen blasted the Boilers 22-4 and Lions Club outlasted De-Mille's 11-9 in tyke semi-final action. The ladpoles saw two closely contested games, as Belle Food edged Golden Mile 5-4 and Watkins Texaco nipped Bob's Auto 9-8.

Moe Thompson gave up eight hits and struck out seven in Farrells' bantam win. Mike Coogan struck out seven and allowed 11 hits, for Mont Johnson.

Norman Pope slammed three singles and a double, and Terry Pope two doubles, for the winners. Bill Cole had two base hits, Moe Thompson tripled, Dave Wood doubled,and Darrin Bisaro singled.

Berry Culkin and Mike Auger were best at the plate for the losers. Also hitting were Brad Hall, Brian Coukes, and Grant Coogan.

Rick Bellis and Jerry Cunningham pitched the win for Little Oyen while Rick Sweet toiled the distance for the Boilers.

Robert McKay trampled the Boilers with three home runs, a double and two singles. Ken Graham slammed three doubles, Jerry Cunningham had a homer and double, and Pete Blair and Rick Bellis had lone hits.

Bob Dedine had two of the loser's four hits. Stephen Goode and Greg Crookright added the others.

Rick Culkin hurled a five-hit win for Lions Club, and Steve Kirby and Tim Whelan toiled in defeat.

Paul Meagher tripled twice and Jack Cole had three singles, for the winners. Tony Meagher, Rick Hutchinson, Rick Culkin and Brad Porter also hit.

Tim Whelan homered and singled for DeMille's. Steve Kirby, Scott Sturgess and Glenn Watson added hits.

Jack Doughty and Clyde Routley hurled for Bells Food while Golden Mile's mound chores were handled by Pete Hall and Bob Cunningham.

Mike Kirby singled twice for the winners, Brian Cooke, Rick McMurray and Tim Coates also hit.

Pete Hall and Jim Walsh had two hits each for Golden Mile. Andy Lupenets and Gary Stapley allowed 10 hits in Watkins' win. Leading pitchers Greg MacInnis, Paul Weeks and Pat Mulvihill fanned 21.

Lupenets, Tom Donovan, Terry Kingsman, Gibby Cowell, Bill Gow, Mark Potts and Allen Peacock had the winners' hits. Pat Mulvihill pitched and tripled twice to pace the losers. Roy Garvin had a home run, Paul Weeks and Dale Gallagher two hits each, and Mike Burtyn and Fred Weeds singles.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Buttercotch, ridden by Avelino Gomez, won the featured $3,000 Wildwood purse for three-year-olds and up at Fort Erie race way Tuesday.

Buttercotch charged from off the pace to defeat Ile and Winning Host Jr., paying $7.10 to win. The horse was clocked in 1:39 4-5 over the 6¼-furlong flash.

It was Gomez's third win Tuesday. He also scored with Jet Clipper in the fourth and repeated with Lava Hill in the fifth.

James Kelly also scored three victories, bringing his season total to 49-just 22 less than leading rider, apprentice Richard Grubb.

He won the first race on Gay Andrew and the second with Sky Spark, providing a $17.80 daily double. He also won the fixth with Full Force.

Attendance was 6,197.

Split Twin Bill

Tigers Nip Chisox On Passed Ball!

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tom McCraw's two-run homer helped two home runs, the second with a man on in the eighth inning that tied the game, allowing Chicago White Sox to defeat Detroit 6-5 in the 10-inning second game of a doubleheader Tuesday night.

That ended a four-game Chicago losing streak and kept the Sox' 2½ game league lead intact. Minnesota trails by that margin after whipping Washington 3-2 and Boston is the same distance behind after splitting a doubleheader with Kansas City. The Red Sox lost their fourth straight, 3-2 in the opener, but bounced back with a 7-6 victory in the nightcap.

Detroit, which beat the White Sox 9-1 in the 10-inning first game, in fourth, three games off Chicago's pace and California, which lost 1-0 to New York, is fifth, 6½ behind.

In the only other American League game Tuesday, Cleveland downed Baltimore 5-3 in 10 innings.

Dick McAuliffe dashed home with Dalrick's winning run in the 10th inning of the opener as Hoyt Wilhelm knuckleball fluttered past C. Martin.

Moments before the passed ball, Ken Berry had preserved the tie by fielding out Denny McLain at the plate after Al Kaline had singled. McAuliffe reached third on the play and then scored the winning run. Kaline honored for The Tigers and Pete Ward connected for The White Sox.

Detroit led 4-3 in the nightcap on homers by Bill Freehan and Norm Cash when McCraw's second homer of the game and 11th of the season tied the score in the eighth.

Then in the 10th, McAuliffe booted Ken Boyer's two-out bouncer allowing Don Buford to score from second with the winning run. Rocky Colavito singled home an insurance run, wrapping it up.

The Twins used an eighth inning, two out homer by Rich Rollins to beat the suddenly tough Washington Senators.

Rollins' 375-foot shot ended a string of four straight strikeouts by Washington reliever Dave Baldwin and made a winner of Al Worthington, who had batted Jim Merritt out of a bases-loaded jam in the top of the eighth.

Boston, like Chicago, was on the verge of dropping a doubleheader rallying for three runs in the seventh inning and three more in the ninth to beat Kansas City in the second game of their twi-nighter.

Jim (Catfish) Hunter, with bail-out help from Jack Aker, had won his 12th game in the opener and the A's jumped into a 4-0 lead in the second game.

But the Red Sox battled back, tying it on Tony Conigliaro's double. Then in the ninth, Norm Siebern's home-loaded single and an error on the hit by Jim Gosger brought three runs across.

Danny Cater drove in three runs for the A's in the doubleheader.

Frank Robinson's two-run homer tied the game for Baltimore in the eighth inning but Rocg Powell's error and a sacrifice fly by Chuck Hinton pushed across two Cleveland runs that beat the Orioles in the ninth.

Powell bobbled Vic Davillo's roller following singles by Larry Brown and Jim King as the Indians showed the Orioles back into eighth place.

The Yankees got seven innings of shutout relief pitching by Bill Monbouquette and nipped the Angels, despite 10 California hits.

Tom Tresh singled across the game's only run in the first inning and Monbouquette, who took over for starter Fred Talbot in the third inning made the slim margin stand up.

Leafs Move Closer To Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs continued their red-hot pitching Tuesday in a 3-2 victory over Buffalo Bisons to move closer to second place in the International League.

Starter Gary Wasiowski and relief ace Fred Wenz collaborated to shackle the cellar-dwelling Bisons, who lost in the 10th inning when relief pitcher Joe Pena surrendered successive singles to Bob Montgomery, Jackie Moore and Al Montreuil.

The result left Toronto in third place, 4½ games behind the second-place Richmond Braves and one ahead of Toledo needed three unearned runs in the 11th inning for a 3-0 triumph over Columbus Jets.

In a doubleheader, the league-leading Rochester Red Wings rapped Syracuse Chiefs 3-1 and 7-1.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting—Tom McCraw, White Sox, smashed two home runs, the second with a man on in the eighth inning that tied the score in Chicago's 6-4 second game victory over Detroit.

Expo Track Meet

Continental Athletes Poised, Ready

MONTREAL (CP)—Athletes of Europe and the Americas rested or went through light workouts today in preparation for tonight's first track and field meeting between the two continents.

The weather forecast said there was a chance of a few showers or thundershowers in late afternoon or evening.

The two-day meet, to be a biennial affair, winds up Thursday night at Montreal's Expo Autostade where the all-weather track is of rubberized asphalt.

Final lists supplied by meet officials showed the Americas team with 53 athletes, 42 men and 21 women. The European team has a total of 70, made up of 47 men and 23 women.

For the Americas team the U.S., big winners at the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg, has a massive entry of 36 men and 14 women for a total of 50. Canada follows with athletes—four men and five women, Mexico and Brazil have one man each and Jamaica and Venezuela one woman each.

The European squad embraces athletes from 18 countries. West Germany is the heaviest numerically with 11, six men and five women. Hungary has 10, eight men and two women; France nine, all men, and Poland also nine, four men and five women.

Host Germany has four men and four women, Britain four men and two women, Italy an all-men entry of four, Czechoslovakia two men and one woman, Belgium two men only, and Sweden one man and one woman.

The remainder are Austria, Yugoslavia and The Netherlands, with one woman each and Norway, Greece and Spain with one man each.

The European team came in Monday night by air from Frankfurt. The Americas team flew in from Winnipeg.

Both teams worked out yesterday at the Autodrome, the Europeans in the morning and the Americas in the afternoon.

Britain's Lynn Seymour, Lyuba Davies and Mary Rand, Olympic winners in the men's and women's long jump.

Bill Crothers and Brian MacLaren of Canada, silver and bronze medal winners at Winnipeg in the 800-metre run, will face Franz-Josef Kemper of West Germany and Jean-Pierre Dufresne of France Thursday night.

North American Rowing

Favor Canadian Fours

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) —Canada is favored to win the opening last heat of the fours with oar on the North American rowing championships get under way here Thursday morning.

The Canadian team of John Ross of St. Catharines, Geoff Wright of Toronto, Ray Barr of Oakville, with Neil Campbell of Vineland, Ont., as stroke and Joel Finley of Toronto, as cox, posted a time of six minutes and 26 seconds at the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg last week.

On the strength of that showing, the Canadian team appears as top contender against the Australian crew that won the Royal Canadian Henley regatta here recently in 6:45.5.

Yugoslavia, which won a bronze medal at the world rowing championships in 1966, is also entered in the heat, along with Switzerland and Peru.

Midgets Stop Petes In Opener

Belleville's Ellis' Midgets took time out from the Lazside Baseball tournament on Sunday to hand Peterborough an 8-6 setback, in the first game of a best-of-three EOBA semi - final series between the two teams.

Terry McTaggart gave up six hits and struck out 11 for the winners' while Peterborough's mounduman allowed eight hits and fanned 18.

The losers held an early one lead, but Belleville pulled even in the fourth. Both teams added five more runs to make it 6-6 after seven frames. Ellis' then grabbed the win with two runs in the final inning.

Doug Gean slammed two doubles and Ron Jury one double to pace the winners. Steve Moore, Ted Shaw, Mike Healey, Bob Luffman and Brian Coughlin also had hits.

The second game of the series will be in Belleville this Thursday night.

BONANZA AT RACES

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—Bugged and Carusa II combined Tuesday to pay $2,256 for $2 in the daily double at Saratoga trops/track. Bugged won the first race to pay $18.40 for $2. Carusa took the second at $87.40 for $2.

Reds' Pappas 2-Hits Houston; Dodgers Hit Cards; Cubs Nip Bucs

MILT PAPPAS

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Milt Pappas, fired Cincinnati 5-0 over Houston with a smoking fastball and effective change-up Tuesday. He walked none, yielded just two hits and struck out nine.

Pappas, who retired 16 straight men before hitting Joe Morgan with a pitch in the seventh, gave up singles to Jim Wynn in the first and Julio Gotay in the ninth.

In other National League action, Los Angeles beat first-place St. Louis 6-2, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 5-4 in 10 innings, New York nipped Atlanta 3-2 in 11 innings and Chicago topped Pittsburgh 8-4 in a day game.

"I felt real good tonight," said Pappas, who won his 11th game against seven defeats.

He won 12-11 in 1966, his first season with The Reds since being acquired from Baltimore in a deal that sent Frank Robinson to the Orioles—a deal that didn't make Cincinnati fans feel real good.

Cincinnati, snapping a three-game losing streak, scored a run in the third on three singles and then clinched it with three more in the fifth, two coming on Lee May's and another on Tony Perez' single. Perez slammed his 30th homer in the seventh.

Los Angeles tied St. Louis 2-2 in the third and then clinched its second straight victory over Cardinals with three runs in the fifth on pitcher Don Sutton's RBI sacrifice bunt and Ron Hunt's two-run double.

Ron Fairly homered for one Los Angeles run in the third. Los Brock extended his hitting streak to 15 games by singling in the first when the Cardinals scored both their runs.

New York held to just one hit over seven innings by Denny Lemaster, tied Atlanta 2-2 in the ninth and then won on Bob Johnson's first-pitch homer off Jay Ritchie in the 11th.

Johnson also singled in the ninth when The Mets broke through against Cecil Upshaw, who relieved Lemaster in the eighth and got out of a bases-loaded jam. The runs came on Ed Kranepool's double and Ed Charles' single.

Philadelphia gained its eighth straight victory on Johnny Callison's two-out single, which drove in Johnny Briggs.

The Phillies tied the game 4-4 with two runs in the sixth on consecutive doubles by Rich Allen and Gene Oliver and a single by Bill White.

Dick Dietz clouted a three-run homer in the fourth as San Francisco staked Ray Sadecki to a 4-0 lead. The Phillies came back with a pair of runs in the bottom of the inning.

Ernie Banks two-run double and Ron Santo's two-run homer, his 24th, sparked Chicago past Pittsburgh as the Cubs snapped a seven- game losing streak and moved back into second place.

Randy Hundley's solo homer in the second put the Cubs ahead to stay, 3-2, en route to their 60th victory, one more than won all last season.

Warners Stop Lightfoots

Cheesemen Whip Hotel

Black Diamond have caught a hold of the top rung in the Commercial softball league ladder, although it may again be a temporary stay. The Cheesemen beat league-leading City Hotel 7-3 last night to pull even with Hotelmen at 30 points.

The City, which has enjoyed a long and luxurious stay at the top of the standings, have a chance to go ahead again tonight, when they meet Stewart Warner.

In another game Stewart Warner remained alive in the battle for a playoff berth as they defeated Lightfoot's 4-2. Warner trail in fifth place four-points back of Stinson's and Lightfoot's with two games left to play.

Sonny Holoway continued to mow down Commercial-league opposition for Black Diamond. His allowed seven hits, struck out eight and walked four.

Mark Sheridan and Gerry Genereaux shared the loser's pitching chore. They gave up five hits, fanned four and walked six.

Jack Francis slammed a home run, and Pug Kellar had a home run and triple, to pace the winners at the plate. Jack Gilbey - doubled, and Gene Francis added a base hit.

Bob Smith, Jim Hall, B. Brooks, B. Lloyd, Tom Coolen and Tom Meeker had the City's hits.

Stewart Warner notched single runs in the fifth and sixth innings to pull ahead of Lightfoot's.

Doug Ellis showed his old form with a four-hitter on the winner's mound. He threw third strikes past five and walked one.

John French took the loss, allowing nine hits and fanning two.

Gary Gow and Doug Ellis each slammed a pair of hits for Stewart Warner. Cliff Hinesman added a home run, Jim Sopha a double, and Moe Hawkins, Chuck Rowbotham and Gary Gee a single each.

Terry Casselman, Don Smith, Lee Hall and John French had Lightfoot's hits.

Commonwealth Golf

S. Africa Whips Australia

VICTORIA (CP)—South Africa faced Canada today in the second round of the fourth Commonwealth Golf matches, buoyed by confidence gained Tuesday in a crushing victory over favored Australia.

The South Africans trounced the Aussies, 1966 Eisenhower Trophy champions, by a decisive 7½ to 1½ while Britain and New Zealand played to a 4¾ to 4¼ draw.

The win left South Africa eager to meet the Canadian, idle Tuesday.

The other pairing today had Britain against Australia. New Zealand had the bye in the five-day, round-robin amateur tournament.

The Canadians were not anxious to oppose the South Africans and their momentum, said veteran Nick of Burlington, Ont.

The best Canadian performance in Commonwealth play was a second-place tie in 1954.

The South Africans 'allowed Australia to win only one of nine matches.

They swept all three Scotch foursome matches and remained the rout in singles competition where they won four and tied one of six contests.

John Fourie and Rod Mullan recorded the most lopsided win, 8 and 1 triumph over Dennis Bell and John Bulgin of Australia.

Minor Softball

Tigers swamped Rangers 10-2 and Kinsmen Hawks edged Canadians 5-4 in a pair of tyke finals for the West and East Hills respectively.

In a deciding peewee semi-final contest, Barrett's Furniture defeated ANAF Vets 9-3 to advance to the finals.

Carmel Whips Frankford 18-4

Carmel whipped Frankford 18-4 to grab a 2-1 lead in their best three-of-five EOBA peewee series.

Carm McCaffery hurled a 12 strikeout effort and slammed a homer, triple and double, for the winners; Jeff Bamber had two doubles and a triple, while Rodger Ruckstal and John Masterson had three base hits each. Bob Allison cracked a base-loaded double.

Conley, Payne and the Hoyle brothers had the losers' hits. Conley also hurled for Frankford.

Next game is slated for Saturday, at Frankford, at 10 a.m.

Ellis Midgets Lose In Semi-Finals

Ellis' Midgets downed teams from London and East York before bowing to Hamilton in the semi - finals of the Leaside Annual Baseball Tournament on the weekend.

The locals whipped London 14-3 in a first - round game as Ted Shaw hurled a four hitter. Then in the second game on Saturday Randy Castellarin turned out one of the best pitching performances of the tournament, as he blanked East York 4-0. He allowed four men on base, all on walks, struck out 20, and did not give up a hit.

Ellis' themselves ran up against a hot pitcher in the encounter with Hamilton, and were beaten 13-0.

The score is not indicative of the play, however, as Belleville were outhit 7-4. Two walks given up by the losing pitchers Shaw and Castellarin hurt Belleville's chances.

Shaw, Mike Healey, Brian Coughlin and Ron Jury had base hits for the locals.

Ted Shaw slammed a pair of hits in each of the first two contests. Brian Coughlin had three singles against both London and East York, and Doug Geen had a total of five base hits.

Soccer Youths Arrive Here

TORONTO (CP)—A total of 94 bantam and junior soccer players from Scarborough, England, have arrived here to take part in an international tournament Saturday.

The players, ranging in age from 14 to 17, will play against teams from Etobicoke, Oakville, Toronto, Scarborough, Ont., and Rochester, N.Y.

INJUNCTION ISSUED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rick Barry, top scorer in the National Basketball League last season, was ordered by Superior Court today not to play for any other team than the San Francisco Warriors until Sept. 30, 1968. The court investigating the legality of Barry's attempt to play for the Oakland Oaks in the new American Basketball Association.

Girls Golf

Canada Ties Scotland

DUNBAR, Scotland (Reuters) — Canada tied Scotland 2-2 here Tuesday on an under-21 girls' international golf match that preceded the Scottish open championship starting today.

The Canadians' first defeat came when Jocelyn Bourassa, 20, physical education student from Shawinigan, Que., and 1963 Canadian senior amateur champion, was beaten three and two by Scottish champion Gillian Huston.

Canada tied it at 1-1 when Sandra Post, 19, Canadian junior champion for the last three years and current Ontario Senior champion, beat Kathleen Cumming three and two.

Miss Post, from Oakville, Ont., went out in 40 to go one up and scored a brilliant birdie at the long 14th.

Canada went 2-1 up when Pamela Miller, Ontario women's open champion for the last two years and runner-up to Miss Post in the Canadian junior championship last year, beat Norma Moyes five and four.

Miss Miller, from Oshawa, Ont., was three up at the turn and never in danger of losing her lead.

But Scotland levelled the match when Isa Walker beat Jane Kirkpatrick a 19-year-old Toronto student, five and three. Miss Kirkpatrick was fourth in the Canadian junior championship last year.

Eskimos, Ottawa Tonight; Western Coach Not Too Confident

OTTAWA (CP)—Edmonton Eskimos go for their first points of the young Canadian Football League season against Rough Riders here tonight, and Coach Hank Ilesanmy is saying nothing but a picture of confidence.

"I think right now our offence is not as good as it was a year ago," he said gloomily while reporting on Kelly' 60-0 loss to Winnipeg in their opener a week ago.

"Our defence is better overall than last year, but of course if you don't have the ball, the defence looks bad.

"We're going to have to start running the ball better to help our defence."

If anything, Rider coach Frank Clair sounded more optimistic than Armstrong about Edmonton's chances in the Ottawa opener, which starts at 8 p.m. with CTV television coverage.

He observed that Eskimos have been troubled with shifts in the offensive lineup but said they "could start to click any time."

Armstrong left the impression that the shifts aren't over yet—at quarterback, anyway.

Frank Cosentino, seven-season veteran with Hamilton Tiger Cats, will start at quarterback tonight—Terry Baker will be waiting in the wings at left half.

Cosentino has had trouble with a pulled leg muscle and has been running the ball himself only rarely. Armstrong said he'll start at quarterback partly because of his Eastern Conference experience against the largely-unchanged Riders.

At the same time, the motion coach handed out a high rating to Baker, the onetime college great who was released by Los Angeles, Rams mid-way through last season after three years with the National Football League team.

Armstrong described Baker, a 6-3, 215-pounder, as basically a halfback but a player who could step in anytime and do a job at quarterback, putting a strong arm to work.

Randy Kerbow, who started most of Edmonton's games last season, also has seen some action in the slot this year and a reporter suggested Armstrong was fairly well fixed with three quarterbacks in uniform.

"It just one of them works out well for us, that'll be fine," said Armstrong.

Eskimos will be playing without offensive tackle Brent Berry, also from Los Angeles, who was operated on Tuesday for an injured knee and is expected to be out for at least six weeks. Defensive end Don Forwick will be playing with a cast on a broken hand.

The only doubtful starter for the defending eastern champion Riders if halfback Bo Scott, who tore an ankle ligament in exhibition play. He has been going full out in practice but Clair said he will wait until just before game time before deciding whether to play him. One of the few newcomers in the Ottawa lineup will be halfback Don Sutherin, who joined the club last week from Edmonton. New import Margene Adkins will be in at split end in place of Ted Watkins, while Rick Black will go at fullback.

Russ Jackson will be at his old quarterback stand and that's one of Armstrong's first causes for gloom.

Asked where he figured the Riders' toughest threat would come from, the Edmonton coach hardly knew where to start.

He observed that the Ottawa team is well balanced offensively, but passed for thought before adding:

"Of course, there's Jackson to begin with—that's enough for anyone to worry about.

"When Riders hit you, they hit you from every department," he concluded.

Cuban Charges "Malicious Decisions"

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Radio Havana charged Tuesday night that there were "malicious decisions of judges" at the Pan-American Games, completed Sunday in Winnipeg, in baseball, fencing, boxcer and boxing.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said that politics were more influential than sports during the games.

"Some judges at times of crucial decisions were inclined against Cuban athletes," the broadcast said.

"Our delegation has been unlucky, but despite that, we have won because we surpassed by four times our record that we gained in Brazil."

Havana Radio said the list of injured Cuban athletes was extensive.

"No one knew anything about that because they the athletes hid it in order to play. Only Enrique Figarola Cuban track champion) left the field because he couldn't run with a seriously injured muscle."

The broadcast said three baseball players, three boxers and one Olympic wrestler were among the injured athletes.

"Such a thing shows the courage of the Cuban people," it said.

"We are not looking for any justification since we really won because we gained four times as many medals as we did in the last competition."

Lombanks Do-or-Die Tonight !.

It's DO or DIE for the Lombanks tonight.

The series with Kingston has come down to a nine-inning contest, at the fairgrounds at 8 p.m.

A loss tonight means the end of the road for senior baseball this year in Belleville, whereas a win advances the Lombanks on to the league finals against Brockville.

Bill Latchford will likely be Coach Geegan's choice for second duty. Bill has been pitching consistently good ball of late.

With The Trotters

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Ross Furness, a Milton, Ont., veterinarian, drove Lounge Term's Guy Stone to a 1¼ length victory in the featured sixth race at Greenwood Raceway Tuesday.

Dilly's Knave finished second to combine for a $92.40 exacta. Ambro Harvey showed.

Guy Stone, purchased in April for a group of Toronto businessmen in Kentucky for $12,000, paced the mile in 2:05, returning $5.20 for the win.

Harry Ingles, 72, the oldest driver active in Ontario tracks, took Squadron Leader to a win in the first.

Moby's Report won the second for a $27.60 daily double.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Keystone Pride, driven by Billy Haughton, sped to a three-length victory in 2:03.4 in the $14,000 trotting stake for three-year-olds at Batavia Downs Tuesday.

Lucy G., from the Alta Vista stable, Ottawa, Ont., won the sixth with Lloyd Gilmour driving. Flashy Flic, owned by John and Marion Reid of Allen Creek, Ont., took the fourth.

The daily double combining Perfect in the first and Dead Aim in the second paid $10.20.

RELEASE TWO

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Beavers of the Continental Football League's eastern division release Mike Payne, a defensive halfback from Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League, and Jim Smith, an offensive lineman from Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Shannonville Takes Second From Latta

Shannonville walted until late in the game to begin scoring runs as they whipped Latta 9-0, in the second game of the best-of-seven semi - final playoffs between the two teams.

The win gave Shannonville a two game lead in the series.

Dave Lewis controlled the game for the winners, as he set back Latta on four hits. He struck out 11 and walked a pair, and his mates played errorless ball in support of his shutout effort.

Howard Meeks gave up 10 hits and fanned four in taking the loss. Weak fielding by his team, as they had five errors, did not help his cause.

Doug Dafoe slammed a home run and single to pace the winners. Rod Hill had a double and single, Bill Barberstock two singles, and Larry Lewis, Mike Grant, Wayne Sager and Dave Lewis lone base hits each.

Doug Chisholm, Bob Smith, Doug Geen and Howard Meeks had Latta's hits.

Next game in the series will be played Thursday night at Shannonville.

Archery Records Broken

AURORA, Ont. (CP)—Canadian records were broken Tuesday in four of five events held on the first day of the Canadian championships at St. Andrew's College here.

The five events were all part of the 28th round, the standard form of international competition, in which archers shoot at a stationary target from distances of 90, 70, 50 and 30 yards.

Elmer Ewert of Kitchener scored 1086 in the men's free-style, breaking the old record of 1041.

Joan McDonald of Toronto set a mark of 1086 in the ladies free-style. The old record was 1084.

In the junior boys free-style, Louis Van Meyl won with 1056, shattering the old mark of 795.

Paul Richardson of Ottawa won the men's barebow with a score of 911, 22 more than the old record.

Lavioiette's son Marc won the junior boys barebow with a total of 756, well off the record of 900.

The 90 archers shoot here today, then move to nearby Baltestreet, Ont., for the final two days of competition Thursday and Friday.

Departmental Softball

The Combines sewed up at least second place and keep their hopes for a first-place finish alive in the Departmental Softball League by downing The Intelligencer 14-8 last night.

Five runs in the top of the seventh padded a slim 9-8 Combines' lead after The Intelligencer had stopped away at an early 9-6 deficit.

Garry Reid hurled the win, allowing ten hits, while John Edwards and Ron Colloden gave up 11 hits for the shortstaffed losers.

Bob Dafoe sparked the Combines' attack by hitting a home run and two doubles, and Gerry Preity was the only other Combine with two hits.

Garry Wood paced The Intelligencer with a home run, triple and double. At Lee also homered while Terry Hiddlestan singled twice.

The Combines' two clubs hook up in another postponed game on Thursday.

Intelligencer coach Garry Alexander was ejected from the game in the fourth inning by plate umpire Charlie Horne last night.

With four postponed games yet to be played, following is the standing with games remaining in brackets: Fire Department 20 (1), Combines 17 (3), Intelligencer 14 (1), Electric Motors 12 (1), Police Department 2 (2).

Ellis Girls Win Over City Hotel

Richard Ellis' pulled out of their slump to defeat City Hotel 21-16 in a ladies' softball fixture last night.

Yvonne Mendl hurled the win, while Evelyna Maracle took the loss.

Ellis' received good hitting from the entire team, and the City was led by the clouds of Donna and Nora Barberstock.

Handguns

Don Parks was best marksman at the Quinte handgunners' outdoor shoot last night, as he led the pack with 282. Louis Kulcsar followed with 254, D. Charlton 244, C. Smith 235 and J. Hotsbock 228.

Stamps; Defusing Bombers Won't Be Cinch

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ron Allbright has been a Calgary Stampeder longer than anyone else.

In his 13th and likely his last Western Football Conference season, he is receiving high marks from coach Jerry Williams for his performance at an important post.

At Calgary's left offensive guard, the 225-pound Canadian is an important cog in the wall of protection given quarterback Peter Liske.

That wall was impregnable eight days ago, giving Liske the precious seconds needed to throw three touchdown passes in a 35-7 season-opening triumph over British Columbia Lions.

"We didn't lose one yard passing," boasted Williams at a post-game news conference as he also paid tribute to Allbright's linemates—left tackle Roger Kramer, centre Chuck Zickrotze, right guard Bob Lonck and right tackle Lenny Mendonca.

But Williams thinks tonight's clash with Winnipeg Blue Bombers—who chilled Edmonton Eskimos 20-0 to open the 1967 campaign—won't be as easy.

"We'll try some passing . . . and some running . . . but I don't think we'll do as well," Williams said. "The Lions had an extremely difficult time protecting against the pass."

Liske has an obvious target in the Blue Bomber backfield—rookie safety Chip Barrett—but Williams noted the University of British Columbia graduate "didn't get bombed in Edmonton."

On defence, the Calgary head man discussed the possibility of being forced to take "some of the emphasis" off Dave Ramsey, Winnipeg's always dangerous halfback.

Some attention, Williams said, may be switched to fullback Butch Pressley, a halfback-type guy who replaces his former Edmonton teammates by rushing for more than 100 yards.

The injury bug attacked both clubs in their first games, forcing roster changes for tonight's 9 p.m. kickoff.

Al Miller, Winnipeg's efficient middle linebacker, is limping on a sprained arch and rookie end Bob Howard has a swollen knee. This forces a three-way adjustment, with Phil Minnick replacing Miller, Morley Rollins moving into Minnick's linebacking slot and Gordie Brown taking over for Howard.

Stampeders are forced into changes because of linebacker Jerry Campbell's sum knee ligaments and halfback Ian Sparks' groin injury. Ron Pegus will substitute for Campbell, making way for Skippy Spruill at defensive right end.

Since his squad had an easy time with Edmonton, Winnipeg coach Joe Zaleski looks at the Calgary game—which will be a battle for first place—as "our old test."

"We'll know a lot more after Wednesday's game," said Zaleski, who stepped into the head coach's shoes after nine years as an assistant to Bud Grant in Winnipeg.

Ontario Junior Tennis

TORONTO (CP)—John Williams of Wales, the first-seeded foreign player, Tuesday defeated two opponents to reach the quarter-finals in the under-18 division of the Ontario Open Junior tennis championships.

Williams, British junior champion, defeated Kirk Andrews of Toronto, 6-3, 6-0 and downed Jim Ebbitt of Montreal, 6-2, 6-3.

Dale Power, the top-seeded Canadian and a native of Toronto, also advanced to the quarter-finals, defeating Phil Fenwick of London, Ont., 6-2, 6-4 and Neil Longhurst of Ottawa, 6-0, 6-2.

Top-seeded Corinne Molesworth of England trounced Petti Parker of Southampton, Ont., 6-0, 6-0 and second-seeded Janice Tiedke of Vancouver ousted Dani Hakman of London, Ont., by the same scores in the girls' under-18 division.

Cadet Sailing

England Holds Lead

MONTREAL (CP)—Paul R. Whitehead, both of Broxbourne, England, held a slim lead in the standings following Tuesday's competition in the International Cadet Sailing championships.

The pair finished second in Tuesday's race but still managed to hold on to first place with 24½ points in the standings. Close behind were Z. Kania and crewman Konrad Fick of Warsaw, Poland, in second place with 39½ points.

Colin Wolz and crewman Andrew Harrison, also of the Broxbourne, was in third place with 39½ points and Robert and Doug MacDonald of Winnipeg were the top Canadians in the standings with 51 points, good for fourth place.

Timmy Edmonds and Dalton Tobey of Halifax were the top Maritimers with 15 points, one less than William Simmonds and M. McDowell of Annapolis, Md., who were sixth.

Three teams were tied for seventh place with 18 points each. They were Wally Green and Mike Bowe of Annapolis, Md., Cathy Circo and Elizabeth White of Montreal, and Lorne Carmichael and Chris Joyce of Deep River, Ont.

In 10th were David and Peter Hooper of Bermuda with 20 points.

NHL Expansion

Calls Talent "Meagre"

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Bill Hicks, the third draft choice of California Seals in the National Hockey League's expansion draft, criticized the league Tuesday for "the meagre talent" made available to the six new teams.

The new teams are Celotex, Los Angeles, Minnesota, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

"I don't think the new owners got a fair shake in the draft," said Hicks, visiting Oakland from his home in Regina.

"The league was charitable with the goaltenders who were available, but that was all. Of the 20 players each team drafted, only six or seven were of National Hockey League calibre.

"When they first were talking about the draft, they said the new clubs would protect only eight players. Then, when it came down to the actual draft, they were able to protect 11. Even that is misleading, because in reality they were able to protect 15 out of the first 20 players on their rosters.

"When the new teams play each other, they'll see excellent hockey. The goaltending will be just as good but the defencemen won't be as good and the forwards will be slower, but I don't think the general public will know the difference.

"Of course, when the new players play the old, it will be one-sided."

GOT FIGURES ON YOUR MIND?

Small wonder. His wife just finished her weekly shopping at Food City. The bill came to $31.78. Last week the identical items cost her $36.48 at a regular supermarket. By comparison shopping, like the ladies in the Food City ads, she discovered for herself how pennies saved, item by item, add up. Husband may have figures on his mind .... but wife has an extra $4.70 in her purse .... because she shopped Food City.

No 'Harmless' Dose of Liquor For Person Driving an Auto

OTTAWA (CP)—Delegates attending the All Canada Conference of Young Drivers were told Tuesday there is no such thing as a "harmless dose" of liquor for the automobile driver.

Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, director of the medico-legal institute of Quebec province, said that is the reason "progressive" countries such as Norway and Sweden forbid driving when the alcoholic content of the blood exceeds .05 per cent—equivalent to the consumption of two small bottles of beer.

Canadian legislators must formulate a definition of what constitutes drunkenness and specify an admissible rate of alcohol concentration in blood as determined by breath analysis, he said.

More than 130 young people are attending the four-day conference sponsored by the All Canada Insurance Federation which represents about 120 companies. They are discussing the driving habits of young Canadians in an effort to reduce the number of the accidents caused by drivers 25 and younger.

Magistrate C. A. Sherwood of Ottawa, president of the Ontario Magistrates' Association, told the convention certainty of detection and prosecution is a better deterrent to bad driving than heavy fines.

"We must be willing to pay for enough good police officers to secure a high and uniform standard of enforcement. The more police officers and police cars a motorist sees, the more he pays attention to his driving."

The Ottawa magistrate said he believes in unmarked police cars and well-concealed radar. An insurance executive pointed ut that young men erring their own cars, who had a good record—three or more years said without an accident—make more claims, and more expensive claims when they do get into an accident than any group of adult drivers. They cost the insurance companies more than the worst of the older drivers.

T. O. Maskin, vice-chairman of the Automobile Committee Insurance Bureau of Canada, said the big improvement seems to come when the young man gets married. Perhaps this is because he presumably quits trying to impress girls with his superior ability as a driver, he said.

Art Swindle Ring Smashed at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal fraud squad detectives said Tuesday they have smashed an art swindle ring that has tormented European art dealers since 1966.

More than half of an estimated 1,200 oil paintings, purchased in Europe with worthless cheques and flown here, were recovered in a series of police raids on private homes, art stores and restaurants Monday and Tuesday.

Police said 448 were seized and Monday and another 178 Tuesday. More were expected to be located shortly.

Det.-Sgt. Henryk Howak of the fraud squad said there were three principals in the gang.

"One of them, the ringleader, is serving two years in a jail in Sweden. . . . The others are at our disposal here in Montreal. That's the best way I can put it.

"We know who they are, but we're not planning any immediate arrests."

No Hope Seen for Canada if Ottawa Continues to Pass 'Unacceptable' Laws

QUEBEC (CP)—Montreal financier Marcel Faribault warned Tuesday night that "there is no hope for the country" unless Canadians admit the federal government has been passing "unacceptable" legislation on property, civil rights and social matters under the guise of tax law.

In an impassioned speech during a debate on constitutional change, Mr. Faribault said that because there has been no response from English-speaking Canada to French Canada's demands for talks on constitutional change, French Canada generally has moved to the point of demanding special status.

"It is still possible to put in the constitution something that will not be particular status as you fear it," he said, directing his remark to English-speaking participants in the Progressive Conservative party's policy advisory conference.

"Put down that there are two founding people. You call them peoples, we'll call them 'deux nations.'"

The root of the trouble was that in recent years the federal government has passed legislation on property and civil rights and social matters under the guise of tax law.

"And this is unacceptable," said Mr. Faribault, who is president of Trust General du Canada.

Guarantees of provincial jurisdiction over property and civil rights were as dear to Quebecers as the monarchy is to English-Canadians.

The author of essays on constitutional questions, the Montrealer clashed sharply with R. A. Bell, MP for Carleton and former immigration minister and parliamentary secretary to the finance minister, who shouted "that just isn't true" to one statement by Mr. Faribault.

"It is true," insisted Mr. Faribault, maintaining that federal legislation ignores the traditions of Quebec civil law. He said that, for example, mortgages as such do not exist in Quebec and when Ottawa legislates on them "we just don't understand."

The federal revenue department showed "abysmal ignorance" of the civil code and this was "unacceptable to Quebec."

Debate on the constitution was sparked by a report from Gordon Fairweather, MP for Royal and chairman of a small group of conference participants discussing constitutional matters.

Mr. Fairweather said the constitution group has not rejected the "two-nation" theory of confederation but hopes through other means to encourage complete self-fulfilment of both French and English groups.

The constitution group had recommended that Conservative policy at September's leadership convention assert as fundamental the right of French-Canadians to use their language in the courts and legislatures and to educate their children in French in every province of Canada.

On the future of the monarchy, French-speaking participants had suggested that the monarchy is divisive and inhibits constitutional advances.

Mr. Fairweather said, "This is an issue that is not negotiable."

He was encouraged that the group also proposed a federal parliamentary committee to study constitutional change.

Mr. Faribault refused "to be told that the paramountcy of the federal government is not negotiable.

"If you say that, you will lose the country.

Egan Chambers of Montreal, former national PC president, said the objection to accepting the theory of two nations, not one, in Canada was the possibility of a misunderstanding of the expression outside Quebec.

Marcel Lambert, MP for Edmonton West and a French-Canadian, said the two-nation idea "is not acceptable in that sense" among the people where I come from."

As a special status for Quebec under a revised constitution, Mr. Lambert said Alberta would find it unacceptable that it be in a secondary position compared with any other provinces.

Rev. Gordon Ross of Toronto said:

"Our function as Conservatives is to recognize we're in the presence of a national crisis and do something about it and that means we are going to have to accept change.

"We simply cannot say to ourselves and to our French-Canadian brethren, 'The decision was made in 1867 and that's it.' It's not it. . . .

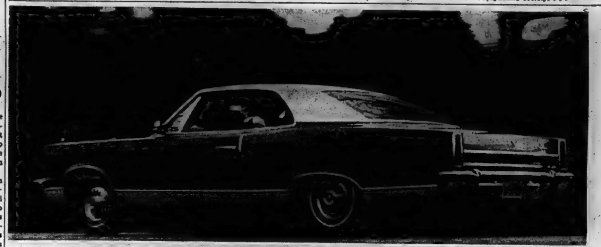
"We're in a new situation and you'd better believe it," he remarked directly to English-speaking participants.

Howard Graffrey, MP for Brome-Missisquoi, Que., said:

"What Mr. Faribault says is mild to what I hear in my part of the world. . . . We must set up a forum for dialogue or we're in trouble."

Bring Constitution Home--Robarts

Ontario Premier John Robarts said today the time has come for Canada to bring its constitution—the British North America Act—home from Westminster.



"If we are to achieve the full degree of our maturity of nationhood, Canada must be able to make changes in the constitution without consultation to any other government," he said.

"I am firmly convinced that based upon the spirit of Canadianism generated by this centennial year, the people of Canada would welcome this severing of the last statutory tie with England."

Mr. Robarts, in a speech to the policy advisory committee of the Progressive Conservative Centennial Convention, emphasized that Ontario does not seek major changes in the constitution.

"Substantially, we are satisfied with the present situation with the proviso that we are given adequate financial resources to meet our constitutional requirements.

"None the less, we recognize that others may have differing views and that any constitution must have the ability to evolve and keep pace with the changes and demands of a developing, dynamic society. . . ."

Sundown Showing At Park

Otto Preminger's Henry Sundown is based on the best-selling novel by K. B. Gilden, the epic-length picture of the economic and racial tensions confronting the South immediately following World War II.

Henry Warren, portrayed by Michael Caine, is a virile, bigoted and avaricious young man who used the time gained by evading military service in soldierly himself in business. His wife, Julie Ann (Jane Fonda), independently wealthy, becomes a pawn in his relentless drive for wealth and position.

Rod McDowall, played by John Phillip Law, is a returning serviceman who finds his farm in danger of being gobbled up by a monster corporation. His wife Lou, who stands by him, is played by Faye Dunaway.

Reeve Scott is a young Negro ex-serviceman, a neighbor of the McDowells', whose farm faces the same fate as theirs. Robert Hooks is Reeve and Diahann Carroll plays Vivian Thurlow, the schoolteacher who is in love with him.

These are the three couples caught up in the swirls and eddys of the rapidly shifting southern community and whose lives are irrevocably altered by economic, social and sexual drives.

This is the kind of picture producer-director Otto Preminger thrives on. An intense personal story which paints a picture of a locale and of an era is sweeping dramatic strokes. It is a meaty, but not a message picture.

In order to capture the true flavor of the events dramatized in the film, the entire feature was filmed on location, in and around Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

The Preminger touch is evident in the casting, with the company divided between young, talented newcomers and seasoned veterans. In addition to the stars playing the three couples, "Harry Sundown" also stars Burgess Meredith as the bigoted Judge Purcell. The list of featured players includes Robert Reed, George Kennedy, Frank Converse, Loring Smith, Sean Richards, Madeleine Sherwood, Rex Ingram, Steve Sanders, John Mark, Doro Merande, Lola Ashew, Donna Danton and Jim Backus.

The explosive motion picture features a musical score by the talented Hugo Montenegro.

It is playing at the Park Aug. 9 - 12.

Sexy Doll Actresses In Fight

MANILA (Reuters)—Philippine film star Lucita Soriano is in danger of losing the sight of one eye following an angry fight with another screen vixen on location.

Miss Soriano, 26, filed charges of slander and assault Tuesday against Stella Suarez, 22.

As well as the eye injury, Miss Soriano has cuts in her cheek, nose, and forehead.

The fight occurred Monday while the two actresses were shooting a film called Sexy Dolls at a beach resort here.

Miss Soriano says in her suit that Miss Suarez screamed insults and attacked her with a broken coffee cup after a dispute about Miss Suarez's less appearance on the set.

Miss Suarez said she would file a counter-suit for slander against the other star.

Queensboro

QUEENSBORO — Miss Minnie Green and Miss Jessie Green of Peterborough spent a few days at their home here last week.

The members of the Queensboro Women's Institute held their July meeting in the form of a picnic at the home of Mrs. John Moore in Peterborough and visited several places of interest in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Fitzgibbon of Belleville spent the weekend with Mrs. R. A. Sager.

Mrs. R. A. Sager, Miss Roberta Sager and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Cassidy and family attended the Devras reunion at Vanderwater Park Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Pike of Toronto are spending this week with Mrs. R. A. Sager.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rousborn, Whitby, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Holmes and family this week.

Shaw to Answer Charges Logexpo Has Failed

MONTREAL (CP)—Robert Shaw, deputy commissioner-general of Expo, will issue a statement today replying to charges that Logexpo has not done a proper job in providing accommodation for visitors to the world's fair.

Mr. Shaw's carefully-prepared statement will come in the wake of an announcement by Montreal's Queen Elizabeth Hotel that it will provide an emergency service to aid visitors seeking accommodation in Montreal and Premier Daniel Johnson's charge that Logexpo apparently has not fulfilled its role.

Logexpo, a world's fair service set up to locate accommodation for Expo visitors, has been under almost constant criticism because of complaints by many tourists that accommodation provided during their visit to the fair.

Donald M. Mumford, president of Hilton Canada Ltd. and managing director of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, announced Monday the setting up of a new emergency accommodation service in the hotel's lobby to assist visitors in finding accommodation.

"We are extremely disturbed by the damage being done to the reputation of our community and to the reputations of responsible members of the hotel, motel and lodging industry," said Mr. Mumford.

Mr. Johnson threatened Tuesday night that the provincial government "will have to intervene" if hotel associations and similar groups in the Montreal area do not try to solve the accommodation problems facing visitors to Expo.

Expo sources said some of the downtown hotels are having as many as 80 vacant rooms a night because personal booking reservations in advance fail to show up at the hotels.

They said many tourists presume the hotels are full and accept accommodation in the suburbs without checking with downtown hotels to see if space had been made available through cancellations.

The sources partly blamed the hotels themselves for the situation they are finding themselves in because, they said, the hotels had done little to make advanced plans for visitor accommodation.

Today is Monroco's national day at the world's fair and that country's delegation will be headed by Ahmed Seounane, minister of fisheries, who will represent King Hassan at the flag-raising ceremonies at Place des Nations.

Movie Stars Find Pavilion Rules Apply to Them as Well as Public

MONTREAL (CP)—Robert Wagner, the Hollywood movie star, winds up three days of movie-making at Expo today across the worse for the bum's rush he had been given at one of the theme pavilions at the world's fair.

Mr. Wagner, starring with Anstice-born Michael Caine in the two-hour feature film The Crooked Man, took it all in stride when an official of the pavilion of Man the Producer ordered him and his cohorts out of the structure Monday afternoon.

The movie star and Miss Berger were filming a 15-minute sequence using the fair as a backdrop to the U.S. film by writer-director Leslie Stevens when the incident occurred.

The film is scheduled for the next television season on the American Broadcasting Co. network and later will be released for general theatrical distribution.

The star of the spy-thriller ran into his biggest challenge of the Expo sequence when Christian Sicard, floor manager at the pavilion and a former major in the French army, failed to recognize him during the filming of a scene at Man the Producer.

The knottiest began when Mr. Sicard discovered that his staff of hostesses and guides was not in the right places shortly before the scheduled tour of the pavilion by Pierre Mobsley, who represented President Leon M'Ba of Gabon, following a Gabon day flag-raising ceremony at Expo.

Wondering what had happened to the pavilion staff, Mr. Sicard eventually found the lot clustered in a group at a section of the pavilion.

"Then I found out," he said, "they are making a movie. I told the kids to get back to their jobs. I asked what was going on."

"We're making a movie," Mr. Sicard was told.

"What do you mean?" he inquired.

"Don't you know this is Robert Wagner?"

"Who is this Wagner?" assisted Mr. Sicard. "I don't know him. And besides, I don't have him marked down in my book. What is he doing here?

"If he wants to be making a movie here he has to have a permit from Mr. Hutchinson," said the pavilion official, referring to John Hutchinson, manager of the pavilion.

Mr. Sicard then explained that nothing must stand in the way of visitors to the pavilion —and promptly ordered the movie-makers out of the premises. "Nothing must interfere with the visiting public."

The incident apparently popped up at the closing seconds of the scene and Mr. Wagner and the entourage headed out of the pavilion, Miss Berger giving a big smile and waving good-bye to Mr. Sicard.

Indian Lass

Four-year-old Suzanne Phillips attracted many a glance when she attended a weekend ceremony opening a 14th century Indian stockade at the Caughnawaga reserve on the outskirts of Montreal. When finished, the stockade will show how Indians lived in the 14th century. (CP Photo)

Director Has Trouble Keeping Two Children Quiet on Set

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The nine-year-old Jones girl was perkily and somewhat noisily rocking and singing to herself in an aluminum chair.

The eight-year-old Whitaker boy, a furrow of concentration on his forehead, was trying to skip rope on one foot with a rope that was too long for him.

The director was loudly and somewhat fulsidly appealing for silence on the set.

Anissa Jones and Johnny Whitaker now are real into their second season as television stars, since CBS's Family Affair promoted them as two nearly irresistible children.

Johnny was working Tuesday in a scene with Brian Keith, who plays his uncle. The boy was having trouble pronouncing some words, like "hamburger" and "Venus fly trap" to the satisfaction of the sound man, so Jy were repeating the scene.

His freckled face screwed up in frustration when the words came wrong. But, on the sidelines, Anissa silently mouthed both Johnny's and Keith's lines as they spoke them.

The scene over, introductions were made, and Anissa greeted the stranger with the poise of an adult. Asked about her activities, Anissa said: "Oh, I always know everybody's lines—even my own, except when I miss them."

There was a little pause, and her chubby hands reached up to two fat, blonde curls on each side of her head.

"Of course, they all miss their lines too, once in a while," she said.

Paula Jones, Anissa's mother, is at the studio each day. Johnny, one of eight little Whitakers, Tuesday was in the charge of a woman designated by his mother who cannot always be away from home.

Johnny and Anissa get along together nicely and earlier this week, in lessons time, wrote a "script" together which they plan to act out for the crew.

Family Affair is Anissa's first acting assignment, although she did "four or six commercials before that," her mother said. Mrs. Jones, a former teacher with no theatrical experience, says the whole thing started casually at the suggestion of a friend.

"I'd never go into a thing like this seriously," she said.

"The odds against what happened to Anissa in television are ridiculous to contemplate.'

Weekend Accidents All Minor

NAPANEE — The Napanee detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated only three accidents, all of them minor, with only superficial abrasions, over the holiday weekend.

The Napanee police investigated a car-bicycle accident Monday, which put an eight-year-old boy into the local hospital, apparently not badly hurt.

Saturday saw two minor accidents, one at Odessa when two cars collided at the corner of the village, and the second on Highway 401, Dawson Road, when a car overturned in the gas pump at Jack Ballance's service station at the Vorsperver Inn on Highway 401. Damage to the gas pump will be about $75 and to the car, about $15.

Monday a small boy, John Harvey of Original Road, collided with a car on Williams St. but no bones were broken.

RCAF Families In Tents

OTTAWA (CP)—The housing situation at he RCAF's home base at Lahr, West Germany, is so desperate that at least 100 airmen and their families are living in tents.

The reason is that the French air force is still using the base alongside the Canadians, and because of the former RCAF base at Marville, France, is empty.

The RCAF had to give up Marville in April after France's order evicting all NATO troops from French territory.

Canada also had to abandon the RCAF air division headquarters at Metz, France, but now is located in the downtown section of Lahr because there is no room for it yet at the air base.

A defence department spokesman said Tuesday the situation should ease next month when the French start their evacuation from Lahr. But the official handover of the base to Canada isn't scheduled until early October and some informants said French military personnel will likely be around until December.

Poison Ivy Victim Relates Treatment

Since (I have learned) a great many people are very much interested in poison ivy I think the following letter from a victim will be useful. The writer is using and has successful treatment to minimize future attacks — but she observes what to me is the most rude of all:

If you are subject to ivy poisoning, stay away from ivy!

Dear Doctor: Until I was a senior in high school I was apparently immune to ivy and poison oak, and abused the shrubs. When I was a freshman that fall, I had a fairly severe reaction and have been especially sensitive since then.

Under the care of dermatologists I have received injections to lessen sensitivity. Each series did have the effect for varying lengths of time.

In 1958 I was unknowingly and badly exposed to poison ivy or oak, and was treated by an Army dermatologist who prescribed (1) antihistamines (2) wet compresses for 20 minutes every four hours, using a saturated solution of the purpose; (3) when dry, apply a cortisone ointment as sparsely as possible over all lesions; (4) when showering, use cool water and as little friction as possible on affected areas.

This reduced the usual two or three months of abject misery to less than four days. After all lesions had been gone for a few weeks I was given a deep intramuscular injection for five weeks and was closely observed for about an hour each time for any reaction.

Since then I have had no serious incidents. Occasionally I find a blister or two with "red halo" that only by can produce. I promptly apply a tiny amount of my cortisone ointment; it is gone within four further development.

Of course I avoid all poison ivy and oak exposures and am ever on the lookout to find ivy where many have no idea they have it — in flower beds and such.

I find the aforementioned treatment most effective for me, but do not plan to test my present immunity. — J. D. R.

In view of this, I quote: The best protection is avoiding poison ivy or poison oak — exposure, for some people, does not seem to work for others, but in every case must be used with close medical attention, frequent adverse reactions — as bad as a severe case of ivy poisoning— can occur. ;

Prompt washing, if you know you have been exposed, is the best immediate first aid. Use a generous amount of soap, dry soap, Rubbing alcohol also can be used to wash off the sticky ivy oil.

A variety of soothing lotions can help. Also antihistamines.

Cortisone is useful in severe cases, but must be used as directed by a physician.

Workmen had completed the project just last week, but the pool could not be opened to the public because it had not yet passed inspection by Ontario Hydro and the Health Department. However, the Rotarians and their wives held a private worse when I get up in the morning. — I. W. M.

Eye infection or allergy might be at the root of it. I don't think self-treatment of eyes ever is wise and think my medical for you is to see a physician's preference (ophthalmologist (eye specialist). Obviously, if the trouble is infection, allergy treatment will be good; if it is allergy, treatment for infection might be even worse.

Note to R. J. F.: Rather than trying to find a "sturdy maidbrace, consult a rehabilitation service. Many large hospitals have them, and nearly all large medical centres. You live in a city which has both. Braces rarely have to be fitted.

Rotary Club's Swimming Pool Opened

NAPANEE — The Rotary Club Centennial swimming pool opened to the public on Civic Holiday.

In the morning it was the Ivy Leaguers swimming class and their instructors who had been "making do" with the water at Flat Rock by the Napanee River opposite the Allan MacPherson house.

In the afternoon it was thrown open to the public, and 171 people, mostly children patronized it between 12.30 and 8.30 p.m.

Children under 12 can use it for 25 cents each day, receiving a pass so that they may come back after supper. Anyone over 12 pays $1 each time. However season is so short there will be no season tickets this year, but the plan is to have them in the future.

The pool supervisors are Walter Gerow, who looks after finances and other business matters; and Eric Poulsen, whose responsibility it is to look after maintenance. The pool is filled only once a year, but at the end of every seven hours every drop of water in it has been recirculated as it has gone through the filters and been chlorinated. Such again is the process.

Seven young people act as lifeguards, all of them Red Cross leader patrols: Heather Dean, splash party there last Thursday evening.

Contrary to report, no benches are to be placed at the poolside for spectators. No one will be allowed inside the pool area proper, in street clothes.

Seven Men Seen in Running For Two Top Positions in CBC

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is reported close to a decision on the two new men who will head the CBC.

Some of the individuals whose names are most prominent in the speculative spectrum could be discovered at the cabinet holds a series of meetings this week to map out the autumn legislative program.

Sources say the top posts in the publicly-owned corporation could be filled from this list:

—Jules Leger, 54, Canadian ambassador to France.

—Mavor Moore, 48, actor, playwright, producer and theatrical administrator.

—Claude Ryan, 42, publisher of Le Devoir, influential Montreal newspaper.

—Sydney Newman, 50, former CBC director and producer and head of the drama section with the British Broadcasting Corporation.

—James Gilmore, 50, CBC vice-president and acting chief of day-to-day operations.

—Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien, 39, businessman and director of operations for Expo 67.

—G. G. E. Steele, 47, undersecretary of state, a member of the committee under R. M. Fowler that made a study of broadcasting.

One job inevitably must go to someone with French-Canadian background, sources say, under the new system that will divide the responsibilities currently held by President J. Alphonse Ouimet.

The main reason for this is the sensitive dual language operation in both television and radio.

But another factor is that Mr. Ouimet, a French-Canadian, holds one of the top positions in the public service and replacement by two English-Canadians would be sure to bring criticism from the French community.

The government's white paper on broadcasting, precursor to new legislation expected this fall, suggested the CBC have a president responsible for over-all policy and a general manager to run the big organization day to day.

The salary of each likely would approximate the $40,000 annually now received by Mr. Ouimet, among the highest-paid policy servants in Canada.

Most observers say the presidency will be filled by a French-Canadian, the post of general manager by an English-Canadian.

They note that Mr. Moore, who stepped down last week as director of the Charlottetown Summer Festival, Mr. Gilmore, Mr. Newman and Mr. Steele all have backgrounds that include administration and experience in or around broadcasting.

Mr. Gilmore has been acting as CBC general manager since the retirement of W. E. S. Briggs, senior vice-president, early this year. Mr. Newman won awards as a director and producer with the National Film Board and the CBC before going to Britain.

Mr. Steele, besides his work on the Fowler committee, was secretary of the treasury board before going to the secretary of state department and then had a first-hand look at CBC spending plans.

These backgrounds are contrasted with those of the French-Canadians.

Mr. Leger holds a doctorate in literature and was a newspaper associate editor and bibliography professor before joining the external affairs department. He served as ambassador to Mexico and Italy before his move to France.

Mr. Ryan studied at the University of Montreal's school of social service, took history at Rome's Pontificial Gregorian University and joined Le Devoir as an editorial writer before becoming publisher.

Mr. Beaubien is more business-oriented. He went into sales and marketing after graduating from the University of Montreal and taking a master's degree at Harvard. He founded a cookie company which he sold before his Expo appointment.

Some observers claim the general manager's post will be the key seat of real power and that the president will be a sort of figurehead.

But others note that as the man responsible for over-all policy the president will be called on by the public and the government to answer for the CBC's actions. To do this he should be clearly aware of the thinking involved.

Another point made is that while Mr. Moore, who has acted, directed and produced for the CBC, Mr. Gilmore, Mr. Newman and Mr. Steele all have some knowledge of the CBC's workings, the others do not.

A corporation source says this would not deter a new president who really wants to institute changes.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 10

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You get preview of some upcoming pressure responsibility. Do not fix yourself in immovable position. Realize the necessity for being flexible. Deal with mate, partner.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): What previously appeared under cover now comes into open. Accent today on work, health. Ability to gain co-operation of associates. Keynote is moderation. Avoid extremes.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): If you made promises in past, today you may be called to fulfill them. Keynote is responsibility. Act in mature manner. Applies especially in romantic area.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Finish what you start. Realize that some within family circle need attention. Be mature. Build on solid base. Take nothing for granted. Double check details.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): No day for unnecessary travel, moving about, fruitless discussion. Many with these on their hands tend to "drain" you. Discount rumors. Refuse to be drawn into disputes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Stress today on how best to utilize assets. Realize there are limitations. Work with tools at hand. Don't reach too far afield. Possessions should not be permitted to possess you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Don't battle those who are set in their ways. Instead utilize natural charm. You can win rather than force your way. Dealing with in-laws may be frustrating. But you'll survive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Control tendency to act on impulse. Your natural inclination is to jump to conclusions. This could prove costly today. Check apparent matters. You could make valuable discovery.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Accent on friends, hopes, wishes. Exchange ideas. Know that one who is enthusiastic deserves attention. Changes are due — most of them favorable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Take long-range view. If shortsighted, you repeat steps. Conservative family member should be respected. Move ahead without being domineering. Stress on career, advancement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): You receive message or information which directly affects any travel plans. Day to be analyzed. The more you seek, the more you discover. Minor disappointment does not count.

PISCES(Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Emphasis on other people's money. Means mate, partner, close associates may ask you to do the investing, planning. Of course there is pressure. But you can handle it.

If today is your birthday. . . you are independent, an original thinker, inventive and an individual to your fingertips. Current cycle indicates marriage if single.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius. Special word to Aries: Keep weather eye on relations with public.

Two Hold Woman Hostage

TUCKER, Ga. (AP)—Two escaped prisoners held a terrified young woman hostage for nearly three hours Tuesday, most of the time with a gun at her throat. Police talked them into surrendering on a crowded highway.

The woman, docile receptionist Martha Ann Mobley, 20, collapsed into the arms of police and ambulance attendants screaming, "Thank God!" after her captors freed her.

Officers said the leader of the two convicts, James S. Lowe, 23, cocked and uncocked the gun he held at Miss Mobley's head as they pleaded with him to let her go. They said he also threatened to kill his fellow escapee, Bobby Joel Terry Yarbrough, 22.

State Patrol Maj. Porter Weaver said Lowe told him: "You don't think I'll kill this girl, do you? I think I'll just kill this fellow with me to show you that I mean business."

Miss Mobley's ordeal began when the two State Mountain prison camp convicts were taken to the office of a Tucker dentist, Dr. Robert D. Hiller.

At Hiller's office, police said, Lowe pulled a knife and forced a guard to hand over his pistol. He and Yarbrough forced Miss Mobley, Hiller's receptionist, to flee with them in the prison's pick-up truck in a high-speed chase through evening rush-hour traffic.

Police from Norcross shot three of the truck's tires, and it swerved to a halt just off the highway.

Lowe fired several shots at police then held them off with the gun at the woman's throat. He ordered a police car moved, threatening to kill the girl.

Lowe said he would talk with FBI agent Richard Davis, who had been questioning him in recent days in connection with a federal violation. Police summoned Davis and the agent and Weaver pleaded with Lowe.

Weaver said Lowe finally surrendered after he was promised some minor concessions such as being taken to the west wing of the DeKalb County jail where he said he has some friends, and being allowed to talk to a special solicitor he considers a friend.

Shulman Probe Near End

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Morton Shulman is to return to the stand at the Parker Royal commission hearings today to expand on the last of the 11 specific charges he has levelled against the government.

Participants in the oft-adjourned, complicated inquiry—which had its first session May 2—could finally sense an end as the commission reached the 12th point Tuesday afternoon.

Then everything came to a halt for the day as Dr. Shulman was suddenly called away to deliver a baby for a patient who had reached hard labor several hours ahead of schedule.

The final point on the commission's list is Dr. Shulman's charge that there is a waste of public funds in connection with coroners' fees, mandatory coroner investigations and cremations.

The inquiry was called by Premier Robarts to investigate Dr. Shulman's charges of government interference and suppression of evidence relating to inquests. He made the allegations soon after he was fired as Metropolitan Toronto's chief coroner following a report in March with Ontario's supervising coroner, Dr. H. B. Cotnam.

Before Tuesday's adjournment, Dr. Shulman testified that he was refused permission to hold an inquest into the cancer death of a Toronto woman whom he said had stopped taking hormone injections for her illness while she negotiated with a "Mr. M." about a cancer serum.

He said he wanted to hold the inquest, in 1963, to "expose a tragic racket." And, warn the public against Mr. M. He said he understood Mr. M. now is operating in Ottawa "and offering his services."

Dr. Shulman also said he was refused permission to hold an inquest into the death of another woman in Toronto in 1963—Margaret Power.

Tito Flies to Cairo

Jordan Plans to Seek Accord With Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Talks between Jordan and Israel are reported in prospect today as Yugoslav President Tito seeks to work out a Middle East peace formula with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Jordan's former development minister, Ismail Hejazi, told a reporter for the Jerusalem Post that Jordan would announce to the coming Arab summit conference its intention of negotiating with Israel.

Asked when plans for such talks would be made public, Hejazi replied: "Within 10 days, perhaps, Allah willing."

Tito is flying to Cairo today.

The Yugoslav president is reported to have worked out a plan calling for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory it conquered in June and the guarantees of Israel's borders as they were before the war by the big powers or the United Nations Security Council.

Tito generally is regarded in Cairo as a "most acceptable peace mediator." There are abundant indications that his mediation is also favored by the Soviet Union and the United States.

Nasser told an Egyptian rally recently, that Egypt will "not slam the door to a political settlement."

Informed sources in Cairo said that while Nasser appears prepared to accept a peaceful settlement, he will spare no effort to bar Israel from scoring any gains detrimental to the Arab's dignity and security.

In Tel Aviv, Defence Minister Moshe Dayan told cheering Israelis at a political rally that Israel should not return to its 1949 armistice borders.

Jordanian officials in Amman reported the Israelis have delayed delivery of repatriation forms for Arab refugees who want to return to homes in Israeli-held western Jordan. But Israeli officials in Jerusalem said Israel has delivered 10,000 forms to the Red Cross for distribution.

The number of refugees in Jordan is estimated at 235,000. Authorities in Amman said at least 130,000 are expected to apply to return.

Production Is Crippled In Manchurian Centres

TOKYO (Reuters)—Bitter fighting has crippled production in main centres of the heavily industrialized northeast China region bordering the Soviet Union, Japanese correspondents report from Peking.

One report says some blast furnaces at China's biggest iron and steel town—Anhsn, near the North Korean border—were paralyzed by fighting which involved the army, rival revolutionary groups and anti-Maoists.

The situation is said to be so serious that the Chinese Communist party is sending a special envoy to the area.

The Japanese reports said all three provinces of Manchuria are affected in this latest outburst in the power struggle between followers of Mao Tse-tung and supporters of disgraced Head of State Liu Shao-chi.

A big part of China's coal and steel comes from the area.

The Japanese daily Sankei Shimbun's correspondent, quoting wall posters, says the Manchurian clashes are on the same scale as those reported early this year in Nanking and other cities in the last.

However, later reports from Peking said the Nanking incidents were on a much smaller scale with only a few persons injured.

The report does not mention any casualty figures in the Manchurian fighting but says Harbin, capital of Heilungkiang province bordering Russia, and Kirin province, where the major cities of Changchun and Kirin were the scenes of bloody incidents between rival revolutionary groups.

Tokyo Shimbun's correspondent says anti-Maoists and "revolutionary forces clashed at Mukden, capital of Liaoning province. Army units are also reported involved in the fighting.

Courts Warned

OTTAWA (CP)—The president of the Ontario Police Association has warned that "unnecessary restrictions" by police even may result if the courts do not adopt sterner measures against persons found guilty of assaulting police officers.

Speaking Tuesday night to more than 250 delegates at the association's convention, Sgt. Ronald Bevan of St. Catharines, Ont., urged the courts to adopt stiffer penalties in cases involving the assault of police officers.

He said some courts fail to understand the gravity of the situation.

Fugitive From U.S. Faces Deportation

OTTAWA (CP) — The self-taught engineer who built the German pavilion at Expo 6 is being deported to the United States where he faces a charge of prison escape.

The immigration appeal board dismissed an appeal against deportation by George Ben Edmondson, who has been living in Canada for two years under the name Alex Bormann.

A spokesman said Immigration Minister Marchand, who has power to over-rule board decisions, has declined to intervene in the case.

As a result, Edmondson has been ordered deported "at once." The spokesman said, however, it would likely take until the weekend to turn him over to U.S. authorities.

Edmondson escaped Aug. 3, 1965, from Missouri State Penitentiary at Jefferson City while

Biafra Bombs Lagos

LAGOS (CP)—The forces of secessionist Biafra bombed the Nigerian capital Wednesday night in a bold follow-up to their lightning invasion of federal territory and capture of key areas in Nigeria's midwestern state.

Civilians scattered in panic when a Biafran Second World War B-26 bomber swooped over the capital and bombed three building suburbs. Several persons were reported injured, at least one critically.

Radio Biafra, heard here, said today the garrisons at the midwestern towns of Asaba, Auchi, the oil centre of Ughelli, and two midwestern ports, Sapele and Warri had "totally repatriated" after Biafran troops crossed the Niger River separating Biafra from the midwest.

Contact between Lagos and Benin was still cut today and there was no news about midwestern military governor Brig. David Ejoor.

The spread of the Nigerian fighting to the midwest region is threatening the federal government with the loss of the rest of the country's oilfields.

Shooting was heard Wednesday in the streets of Benin, a city of 120,000 about 150 miles southeast of Lagos.

Repeated bursts of anti-aircraft gunfire shook the federal capital Wednesday night as the Biafran plane dropped two bombs on the Apapa and Surlere suburbs five miles from the city centre and a third on the Ikeja district.

The boom of quick-firing anti-aircraft guns echoed across the city and the sky blazed with tracer fire as a federal Nigerian navy base at Apapa opened fire on the bomber.

The war began after Nigeria's eastern region declared itself the republic of Biafra May 30.

Chicago Man Shoots Mother Dying in Agony in Hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — Robert Waskin, 52, a retired motor heavy guard Wednesday in Cook County jail after he was ordered held without bond on a charge of murdering his mother who was dying in a hospital of leukemia.

"I'm not ashamed of what I did," Waskin told reporters after his brief appearance before Judge Daniel J. Ryan.

Warden Jack Johnson said he ordered that Waskin be watched constantly because he was informed Waskin might be depressed and have suicidal tendencies.

Waskin is charged with shooting his mother three times in the head Tuesday in her room at Wesley Memorial Hospital.

A hospital nurse said she saw Waskin leave his mother's room, place the .22-calibre pistol on a desk in the corridor and say to his father: "Well, now she's out of her misery."

His father, Daniel Waskin, 52, said: "The boy loved his mother, I know he meant to do right."

Six Die As Trains Collide

ODENSE, Denmark (CP)—A crack express train rammed at high speed into the rear of another near this central Danish city today. Scores of persons were still trapped in the wreckage of tangled coaches hours later.

At least six persons were reported killed.

Rescue officials said some of those trapped may still be alive, but the exact number of dead and injured was not known.

The two trains, both headed west from Copenhagen on the same track in separate runs, carried about 350 Danes and a number of foreign tourists, officials said.

The other train was speeding at 70 miles an hour when it hit the first.

The crash occurred at a railway overpass. Passengers had to be carried down from the wreckage by crane.

Forty Civilians Killed by 'Copter

SAIGON (AP)—Forty Vietnamese civilians were killed and 36 were wounded when a U.S. Army helicopter returned ground fire in the Mekong Delta nine days ago, the U.S. command announced today.

The U.S. command said the helicopter gun crew was supporting a militia outpost that was being overrun about 70 miles south of Saigon and "received permission to return enemy fire being received from a large group."

"On Aug. 9," the announcement continued, "a report was received stating that a number of civilians were in the group from which the fire had originated."

"Forty Vietnamese civilians were killed and 36 wounded."

The command added an investigation is being made.

The command also announced that U.S. Navy fighter-bombers shot down two MIG-21 jets over North Vietnam today in the first dogfight in two weeks.

The Soviet-designed MIG-21s, the most advanced plane in North Vietnam's air force, were brought down by air-to-air missiles fired by F-4C Phantoms.

Pilots spotted a third MIG-21 but said it was out of reach of their missiles. The pilots reported the third jet was heading for Hanoi.

The latest confirmed kills were the first since July 21 when U.S. Navy pilots downed three of the earlier model MIG-17s.

Dief's Wife Wants Him to Run

TORONTO (CP)—John Diefenbaker's family would like him to join the fight for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party at next month's convention in Toronto, but Mr. Diefenbaker won't reveal his decision until the last moment, says Mrs. Donald C. Weir, his step-daughter.

"I doubt if he has ever told mother," she said in an interview Wednesday. "Mother would like to see him run for the sake of not backing out, but she doesn't want to see him go through all that political backing-biting again."

De Gaulle Losing His Popularity

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle's popularity in France has dipped 10 per cent during the last two months to its lowest point this year, says a public opinion poll published in the newspaper France Soir.

The poll, undertaken for the paper by the French Institute of Public Opinion, said 55 per cent of Frenchmen now are satisfied with de Gaulle as president, compared with 65 per cent early in June.

Eleven per cent are "very dissatisfied," 26 per cent "quite dissatisfied," and eight per cent had no opinion.

But the new poll, following the storm over the president's visit to Quebec and the rejection of France's social security system, reflects only a three-per-cent drop on the average—38 per cent satisfied—from past readings.

France Soir says the high June figure reflected approval of de Gaulle's general stance on the Middle East war.

Today's poll followed a more detailed survey published Wednesday, which said 45 per cent of Frenchmen disapproved of the president's position on the Quebec issue and 18 per cent approved.

Heavy Traffic Reported

Canadian National today marked the arrival of the 1,000,000th passenger on the Montreal-Toronto service this year. The passenger was presented with a set of luggage by J. F. Roberts, Area Manager, Special Duties. The 1,000,000 mark last year was reached only in early November.

The Data Processing department had indicated that the 28th passenger in step into the station concourse after coming off the morning Rapido from Toronto would be the 1,000,000th.

CN passenger services have recorded an extremely heavy volume of traffic as all its lines this year and particularly since the opening of Expo 67.

For instance the Montreal-Quebec service has shown a 167% increase this year to-date; the week of 22-31 July this year was 324.6% heavier than the same week last year on the same service.

The Montreal-Toronto service is showing a 37.5% increase to-date over last year; the transcontinental service is showing a 15.4% increase and the Montreal-Ottawa service a 11.7% increase.

Blood Donor Clinic Opens On Friday

Belleville Red Cross holds another blood donor clinic today hopeful of receiving two specific types of blood among the many attending.

Red Cross chairman Archie Lewis says there is a shortage of both types at the central blood bank in Toronto.

They are RHA positive and RHO negative.

The clinic will be held at the Kiwanis Centre on East Dundas Street from 3.45 p.m. to 4.30 p.m. and in the evening from 6 to 8.30.

New donors are being sought by the Red Cross, not only to increase the amount of blood supplies but to fill vacancies among regular donors caused by summer vacation.

Youth Given Two Years on Theft Charges

Burkhard Bateman, 18, of Palmerston, Ontario, was sentenced to two years less a day definite and two years indeterminent in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate T. Y. Wills today.

Bateman had pleaded guilty last Friday to a charge of car theft and a charge of stealing $3,500 from Foley Foundry. The money was in the automobile.

In other court action charges were dismissed against Donald Campoli and George McFarland of Belleville. The two had been charged with abducting two Shannonville area girls last January.

Missing Boat Located at Port Hope

TRENTON — The case of the missing sailboat has been solved. C.F.B. Trenton search and rescue unit and provincial police yesterday located Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hughes of Toronto, whose 24-foot sailboat was reported missing Wednesday.

The craft was reported missing to Whitby provincial police after Mr. and Mrs. Hughes failed to arrive at Frenchmen's Bay Yacht Harbor near Toronto.

The Hughes' boat had last been seen at Presqu'ile Tuesday afternoon.

C.F.B. Trenton personnel and area provincial police checked the numerous marinas along the Lake Ontario shore and located the Hughes and their pet dog in Port Hope harbor.

The errant sailors said poor wind conditions had stalled their trip to the Toronto Yacht Club and that they were proceeding as planned.

Youngster Bitten by Rabid Bat

TRENTON — A one-and-a-half year old boy took the first of 14 daily rabies shots today because his curiosity got the best of him.

The youngster reached out to touch a bat resting on a door casing at his Wooler cottage Sunday when it bit his finger.

After seeing that his son received a tetanus booster at Trenton Hospital, the boy's father took the bat to Belleville veterinarian Dr. J. F. McCorquodale.

The family learned this morning that laboratory tests performed in Hull, Quebec confirmed the bat had rabies.

"I never dreamed we'd have this kind of thing happen - we're half a mile away from the nearest barn but we hope other parents will be on the lookout for this," said the boy's father.

Pro Hockey Team to Train Here

The Jacksonville Rockets hockey club of the Eastern Hockey League will do its preseason training at the Belleville Arena this year, according to Alderman Don Williams, chairman of the Recreation-Arena Committee.

Alderman Williams said the Jacksonville team will come to Belleville on October 6-7 for a minimum 10-day training camp utilizing a minimum of three hours per day ice time.

In addition the club would be willing to play a number of exhibition games in the city. Last year the Jacksonville team trained at the Trenton Arena.

Alderman Williams said the Jacksonville's team decision to come to Belleville was just a start of what could be several teams training here.

He said that when the new arena complex planned for the fairgrounds is built, many other teams would be interested.

Alderman Kenneth Soden, another member of the Recreation - Arena Committee, said committee members were happy to see Jacksonville train in Belleville.

He added that it would also be a benefit to the local senior hockey team.

Arena Manager Robert Burrowes said training time for the Jacksonville club has been confirmed. Three exhibition games have already been arranged.

The Jacksonville club, Ray Miron is manager of the Tulsa Oilers and will bring that club to the city for an exhibition game with the Belleville Senior club on Oct. 6 Other games scheduled one between the Rockets and Belleville with one other club, possibly Kingston.

Passing-out Parade Scheduled

This evening Lieut. Col. E. Fairman, former Commanding Officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will inspect the troops at a graduate parade in front of the Belleville armoury.

One officer, five non-commissioned officers and 47 candidates who have graduated from the extended local summer training course will form up at 7:45 for the inspection at 8:00.

The course was started in 1956 when Col. Fairman was the commanding officer of the Hasty Pees. It is designed to give young men (in this case high school students) standard army training through the summer months. The actual period of training is six weeks.

Officers in the regiment have found that summer training is much better because of superior equipment which is made available to them for the course.

The candidates taking the training receive basic private's pay, and like the regular army, can be promoted.

The course consists of military subjects of course. The candidates take periods of drill, lessons in field cooking, field movement, first aid, grenade handling, fire fighting, hunter safety, hygiene and sanitation, various types of weapons, map-reading, military law and tactics, national survival, nuclear warfare and physical training.

At the conclusion of the course the candidates are given tests.

It is expected by officers of the Hasty Pees that many of the candidates will remain in the regiment after the completion of the six-week training course.

In previous years the candidates have joined various cadet corps in their high school. This practice has been discontinued and it is suspected that the cadet potentialities will enlist in the Hasty Pees Regiment.

After the parade tonight the candidates will have one more day of training, described as the toughest day of the course.

Saddle Horse, Struck by Car

TWEED — Believed to have gotten loose from its stable or overnight pasture, a saddle horse owned by Newton Kincaid of Madoc was struck by an auto on the village, 401 night and had to be destroyed.

The driver of the car, Lorne McTaggart of Bancroft, said he came onto the horse suddenly as he drove over a hill on the way out of the village and had no chance to avoid the animal. Damage to his late model car amounted to only $140.

Trent Road Surveyed

Provincial department of highways surveyors are at work on the Trent Road checking measurements for a proposed four-lane road between Belleville and Trenton. However no start on construction is expected for a few years.

Fewer Farmers Now Growing Raspberries

Where have all the raspberries gone — long time passing. More and more farmers in the area are pulling out their raspberry crops or at least cutting them down to a smaller size.

Of course raspberries were never a dominant commercial crop in this area although there are some large growers in Prince Edward County.

A shortage of pre-season help needed to spray, fertilize and prune the bushes and a drastic shortage of pickers is the main reason for the dwindling crop according to Mrs. R. L. Redner of Century farm in Rednersville. Her husband has taken out five acres of bushes and replaced them with crops not requiring so much outside help.

Mr. and Mrs. Redner have uniquely solved the problem of obtaining pickers for their remaining raspberries by advertising for people to come and pick berries for their personnel use at 45c a box. "The days of going to Belleville and picking up a truck-load of pickers are gone," said Mrs. Redner. However, the pick-em-yourself system seems to be working out quite well and it might help stop the habit of pilfering out the raspberry bushes.

Nine Questions Asked

Alderman Petitions for Go Slow Policy on Proposed Arena

A petition for Mayor J. R. Ellis to "proceed more deliberately and orderly" on the proposed civic centre at the Belleville fairgrounds and not to incur further expense at this time, has been made by Alderman John Deacon.

In a brief addressed to the mayor but also circulated among council members, Alderman Deacon claims that more information with respect to the over-all cost of the "Area project, anticipated or confirmed grants, net capital cost to the community and annual amortization costs should be known before a specific submission is made to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

"The idea sounds good," notes the alderman, "but everyone wants to know more about it. What has been heard so far are just the attributes of the proposal and these are accepted."

"The cost of the proposed arena complex at the fairgrounds has been estimated at $637,000 of which the city would have to raise $467,000 by debenture.)

Alderman Deacon feels, however, that a project of this magnitude should have considerably more study and development, and claims that the mayor's special committee, together with the local architects, is not competent enough to develop the project.

The alderman asks why this is suddenly inserted as an immediate and urgent project after council has worked on a capital works program year after year.

He pointed out that the new College Street bridge was projected before it was brought forward with months of preparation by highly-qualified engineers in the bridge business.

Also, Alderman Deacon claims that the support of the Belleville Fair Board, through which it is expected to attract handsome grants, has not been generated. Board members are piqued over the minimum amount of consideration they have been given in the matter, it is claimed.

"When council approaches the OMB it should be prepared to justify its position and considerable facts and schedules should be assembled so that we are not defeated by our ignorance."

Validated answers to many questions were necessary before council makes its submission to the OMB, according to Ald. Deacon.

In petitioning the mayor to develop the project in an orderly and knowledgeable way, Ald. Deacon said there would be enough opposition without inviting it because council did not know what it was doing.

The questions which Alderman Deacon wants answered are as follows:

- The total overall cost including site, construction, paving, equipment and furnishings, et cetera?
- Anticipated or confirmed grants?
- Net capital cost to the municipality and the annual amortization charges?
- Project annual operating statements?
- Sources and educated guess of probable income?
- The annual cost to the taxpayer?
- The total cost of hockey and skating per year?
- What influence such charges will have on our parks program?
- How much additional capital will be required to complete the Hospital?

Moving Day at General Hospital Rescheduled to Early in '68

General moving day at Belleville General Hospital is being set tentatively for some time early in the New Year.

That is when patients and the many hospital departments hope to move into the $3,000,000 hospital wing now nearing final stages of construction.

J. E. Buchan, chairman of the hospital building committee, says it is unlikely the big move will be before the New Year although the general contractor is optimistic of completion before that time.

The original completion date for the hospital was November of this year but Mr. Buchan says a few unforseen contingencies have come up and completion is likely to be slightly delayed.

Although general moving day is not anticipated until the new year, one department — the pathological laboratory — is already working from new quarters.

The reason for the early move was that the existing laboratory building had to be demolished to allow completion of the west end of the new structure. The old laboratory building has already been demolished and the contractor is starting cleanup in preparation for the final phase of new construction.

Hospital departments to be located in the yet to be built new level section are emergency, outpatients and radiology.

Work has already commenced on final cleanup operations about the new hospital wing. Additional parking lot layout and ambulance entranceways to the south of the new wing have been graded and curbs installed in readiness for blacktopping.

Old Laboratory Gives Way for New

Old laboratory building at the west of the new Belleville General Hospital wing has been demolished to make way for final construction phase. Ambulance and service entrance will be to the right of the new building.

Canadian Guards Welcome New Commanding Officer

PICTON (Staff) — Bearskins were wet and flags drooping, but spirits were high in spite of heavy rain for yesterday's changing of command ceremony at Camp Picton.

The event was the change of command of the First Battalion the Canadian Guards. Commanding Officer for the past two years, Lt.-Col. J. G. W. Haynes, handed over the battalion to his successor, Lt.-Col. J. L. C. Entwistle.

A small crowd attended the function which was held out of doors. Included in the group were Warden of Prince Edward County Robert Boyer; Norris Whitney MLA and Mayor H. J. McFarland.

Parts of the ceremony were omitted because of the rain and the signing of the change of command certificates was postponed. The inspection of the troops was carried out, however, and the commanding officer received his colors.

In bidding farewell to his troops, Col. Haynes said "one of the greatest things in an officer's life is to take over command of a battalion such as this." He voiced his approval to the men of the battalion, thanking them for their support and also he thanked the men of the latino who gave up some of their leave to participate in this change of command ceremony.

Col. Entwistle said it was the realization of every infantryman's dream when he becomes either a regimental sergeant-major or a commanding officer of one of his battalions." He continued, saying that he was very conscious of the privilege of taking over the command of a battalion which has such an enviable reputation, "I'm looking forward to renewing old acquaintances while I'm here and I will do all I can to maintain this battalion's high standard of efficiency."

The Playgrounds

AVONDALE

On Aug. 8, the Avondale playground featured a Neighborhood Night. Included in the events of the evening were a baseball game between the park and playground team, a craft display, a cake draw and a Miss and Master Avondale contest.

The playground team was successful in defeating their parents 7-4. Mrs. M. Fleguhon of 158 Avondale Road was the winner of the cake draw. The parents voted Miss Heather Cameron to be Miss Avondale and Timmy Bennett to be Master Avondale. Miss Cameron was received a bouquet of roses, a crown and a bazoor. Master Avondale received a boutonjiere, a crown and a banner. Special thanks goes to the two volunteer helpers, Brenda Tweedy and Debbie Carr.

RETARDED CHILDREN

On Aug. 4 the children were taken by bus to Zwicki's Island. A swim was enjoyed in the morning and again in the afternoon. A picnic lunch was eaten under a shady tree.

Quiet games and baseball were played after lunch. Then a free play period when the children played on the swings, slides, merry-go-round and teeter-totters.

PRINCE OF WALES

On Aug. 8, Prince of Wales playground held its Neighborhood Night. The program included a puppet show, Hansel and Gretel, skits, songs, demonstrations of singing games and individual acts. Then, the beauty contest was held. Miss Prince of Wales this year is Megan Macauley and Master Prince of Wales is Jimmy Gibbs. They were presented with roses. Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Eves were judges.

Diefenbaker's New Inner Peace Hard to Accept

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — You just wouldn't believe it how lovable John Diefenbaker has become in recent weeks.

Some people say that he has found inner serenity and nothing bothers him any more — well, not much.

Actually the Conservative leader during this continental summer has been almost always in good humor, friendly and amiable.

This is a far cry from the angry, fighting Diefenbaker who lashed out invective as recently as a year ago.

What's happened to him?

He confided the other day that he hadn't a worry in the world and that he slept like a log — nothing was bothering him.

Certainly, he is looking very fit and relaxed. But how does the leader of the Conservative party look happy when Tory colleagues are telling their best to take that title away from him?

It either has to be that he is certain he can retain his leadership or, more probably, that he has made up his mind not to stand at the Conservative convention in Toronto in September.

The man just seems to be at peace with the world. There are journalists, for example, who have attended Mr. Diefenbaker grievously and who now have been forgiven.

You can tell you are at Dief's Doghouse because you don't get into his office for those press conferences or story sessions. Somehow, you just don't get in.

But a number of reporters who have not been in the Opposition Leader's office for months now find they are welcomed by a smile and an invitation to sit down. They do that, warily at first, fearing the great man has been replaced by a zombie.

It is all true though — he is in a forgiving mood, he is serene and even placid.

Right here of course it is important to trace the "on the other hand" declaimer that at any time Mr. Diefenbaker could conceivably slide back into the old black mood when he thundered and rumbled and castigated with devastating effect.

Those blue eyes, so mild these days, could possibly become hard and icy again to turn on some unfortunate with unnerving consequence.

If it does happen, surely the occasion would be the speech Mr. Diefenbaker could make at the party convention obviously called to replace him.

Yet Mr. Diefenbaker is such an attractive person now that most people who know him hope he won't revert to that fearsome form of old.

It has not been just informally that the new Diefenbaker has been noticeable. Even in the closing days of the Commons session, while he was firm and effective in his speeches, he was not nasty.

Not that he can't turn on a formidable display of bombast and criticism when the occasion calls for it. Thus he mounted effective criticism of Prime Minister Pearson's handling of the de Gaulle controversy.

And he can still level a broadside at the CBC, the New Democrats, or the United States with consummate ease.

Again, though, he does not have that venom — it is almost as though he really isn't angry inside anymore.

A Liberal wit suggested that Dief has got religion which of course is a naughty thing to say because all these years Mr. Diefenbaker has been a good Baptist.

Mr. Diefenbaker himself volunteers no explanations for his new approach to life. He just goes on his amiable way as though he had discovered the real secret of life.

Just about everybody has thought that what he wanted more than anything else in the world was to be prime minister once more. It was considered that his intensity, anger and frustrations of recent years related to his attempts and failures to achieve that goal.

He may now have put away that ambition and in so doing has revealed again the delightful personality that is the real John Diefenbaker.

Indians' Destiny

The cartoon on this page today is symbolic of the winds of change that are motivating the Canadian Indian today.

The process of evolution among the descendants of the original inhabitants of this continent has been slow, and it has been hampered by reason of the Indians' essentially mystical, close-to-nature temperament being in conflict with the material and technological ways of the white man's way of life.

But evolution there is — slow though it may be. And a ceremony at the Mohawk reserve in Caughnawaga, Quebec, last Saturday, was indicative of the conflict the modern Indian faces as he seeks identity amid two cultures, his own and the white man's.

The ceremony marked the opening of a 14th century Indian stockade. When completed the stockade will feature teepees, curio shops and picnic tables. Festive events will be held during the year and in general the exhibit will reflect the way of life of the Indian long before the coming of the white man.

A significant factor was the attendance of Blackfoot Indians from Alberta and Crees from Saskatchewan, and indicative of the Indians' mystical attachment to natural forces was the raising by Chief Andrew Delisle of a flag, containing among other things, illustrations of the sun, water and grass.

Of most importance, however, were Chief Delisle's observations on the ultimate need of the Indian to enter more determinedly into the modern world. Materialist and oriented toward scientific progress this world may be, but it is the only one that offers full rein for the development of mankind's resources, whether material or spiritual.

Mr. Delisle said the Indians of this continent were becoming increasingly aware of their rights and their identity. Although they took cognizance of modern technology they were also anxious to preserve their own culture and traditions. He added that the time had ended when "they would plan for "us" and the time had arrived when "we would plan our own destiny."

However, two things will be essential in the achievement of this destiny. And they are maintenance of existing links between Indians and the white population — and the assumption by Indians of increasing responsibility for their own affairs, as suggested by the Mohawk chief.

Computer Trouble

"They really have a system here," This remark by a visitor to Expo last weekend summed up perfectly the very smooth-functioning operation that the world exhibition is.

It is a system the Protestant school board in Quebec may envy. Exam results for students in this group have been more than a week late going out.

A spokesman for the provincial education department blames the delay on a number of factors, including breakdowns by computers processing the marks.

Jokes about computers are innumerable, because although at their best they are admirable these machines are still fallible creations. A recent example was Britain's southern counties being thrown into disorder by faulty computer programming.

It seems the machines can go wrong on two fronts — either through incorrect programming or straight mechanical breakdown. Either way can prove a headache for people.

Congo Europeans' Plight

The plight of European citizens in the city of Bukavu in the Congo is a harrowing one.

The city has been entered twice in about the last month by white mercenaries and Katangan troops. Each time the troops have withdrawn, to be supplanted by Congolese government forces who earlier had fled before their advance.

Returning to the city the government soldiers have sacked the city, looting, destroying and attacking European men and women.

Some escaped by boat across Lake Kivu to the Rwanda republic. If anything, the European in the Congo is even more vulnerable today than in the period following Independence in 1960. Then at least some measure of security was restored when United Nations forces were flown in.

Today President Mobutu's ill-disciplined forces seem incapable of defending the country or offering even minimum security to the civilian population in face of Katangan forces. The latter apparently are acting in support of former President Tshombe of Katanga, the mineral-rich province which broke away from the Congo proper some years ago. Tshombe is currently in Algeria, facing possible extradition and a death sentence for activities against the central Congo government.

School Board Interegation

Will Children Benefit From Larger Administrations?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Sir: The aims of the proposed larger integrated area of educational administration is becoming a major topic of conversation when parents and civic-minded people meet. Many people are asking pertinent questions and to date few satisfactory answers have been forthcoming. Although we have been led informed of the general overall advantages to our public school students.

However, we can not generalize where children are concerned and the aims of education is of vital concern to every parent, educator and trustee. I read with interest the recent article by Mr. Smith, chairman of the public school board, and would appreciate clarification by him of the following points:

Precisely what advantages would this integrated area offer? (We in Ameliasburgh township have a new central school. It is well-equipped and anthe other advantages it provides the services of an excellent teaching staff; modern equipment; gym; library; rotary system; French, and an opportune class. There is a competent board of trustees doing a fine job and a good relationship exists between parents, teachers, principals and trustees. Other rural areas have recently opened new central schools and no doubt have most of the above advantages as well. What more could the integrated area offer?

What are the "improved teaching aids" offered by the integrated area? How would they be used in each school? Would all schools be provided with these improvements?

Would other children continue to attend their "own" school, or would they be transported hither and yon to schools which would accommodate the grade in which they happen to be. Is there any truth in the rumor that one school would house one grade only? Can a young child benefit from being transported from his own familiar neighborhood to a new area as he progresses from one grade to another — how many psychiatrists would be required to work with the children who fail to adjust to new surroundings each term? If schools are to remain housing more than one grade, why are we not informed? Would country children be transported to the city for classes — and if so what grades would be involved?

Rumor has it that "workshops" would be provided. Is it really necessary for public school children to learn a trade before formal education is even half completed? How many children would need such training, and would it not be more practical to erect a central school for this type of student somewhere in the Quinte area than to build such workshops into several public schools at great cost to the taxpayers? What type of workshop is meant?

Also, what is meant by "guidance facilities" in public school? Could one really assess a young child's abilities and desires before he reaches high school age? Many second year university students are not yet aware of where their studies will lead them or what vocations they will pursue after their graduate. Could we expect public school children to select a career? Would it in fact, be unfair, to channel them into a vocation for which they might later have an aversion? How many of today's doctors, lawyers and engineers have always wanted to be bus drivers, firemen or mechanics in the dim past of their public school days? What is the real aspect to "guidance" of which I am unaware?

I would welcome time ago on this matter to your page and the letter was published. I asked many of the same questions and have since asked them of different people on different occasions. I received well-to-do answers to such as "improved teaching aids", "opportunity classes", "newer methods", "better and better qualified teaching staff", but I have never heard any of these things specifically explained.

Two last questions:

(1) Would the board of trustees be appointed by councils or would each trustee be elected by public vote? Fear of loss of autonomy is one aspect of the matter and never have we been assured that we would not lose it in the integrated area.

(2) Will the question of joining integrated area of administration be placed before the voters or will it be dealt with in principle by the boards and councils and the ratepayers, without a voice in such an important issue as this? However, we cannot condemn nor support such a proposal until we are thoroughly informed as to the advantages and disadvantages involved. Will we be informed, in explicit, clear-cut language or will we be smothered in fancy phrases, designed to convince us that, like spinach and castor-oil, integration is "good for us"?

Hong Kong Is the Major Point of Contact Between Red China and the West

Toronto Star Syndicate

Ceded to Britain in 1841 after the "Opium War" and now one of her "last outposts of Empire" Hong Kong is a colony and military base on the southeast coast of China. It comprises the island of Hong Kong, Kowloon Peninsula and the New Territories, a strip of mainland. In 1963 the population was estimated at 3½ million, of whom more than one million were refugees from communist China and thirty thousand were British. The name is applied to white foreigners.

The colony is the major point of contact between Red China and the West; trade is the name of the game; Hong Kong is a tiny spot in the vastness of Asia exists on sufferance and could be choked off at any time by the stopping of fresh water supplies which come from the Chinese mainland at Shumchun.

Political philosophies are important to man, but commerce keeps him alive in this complex and demanding world. For instance, there's a loophole in the United States embargo on imports from communist China. Goods manufactured in Hong Kong are allowed to enter the U.S., though the raw materials may have come from China. In 1962 Nikita Krushchev defended Russia's withdrawal from the Cuba-U.S. confrontation by saying China, too, competed with capitalism by allowing the British to occupy Hong Kong.

In 1965 the colony's foreign trade amounted to $2.7 billion with China her most important customer. The U.S. was second, bringing in about one third of Hong Kong exports, chiefly cotton textile goods.

Communist ideologies can't be underestimated as the causes of unrest, strikes and demonstrations which flare up on real or created provocations. There's no doubt recent strikes are based on genuine economic grievances by workers, who suffer most from rising cost of living. A 1966 flareup was caused by the raising by two cents of the fares toll between Kowloon and Hong Kong.

In December 1966 communist China warned Britain about the "counting disaster" by allowing USSR two ships to "visit" Hong Kong and "use it as a base" for further escalation of threats "illegal" war against Viet Nam. Britain and the U.S. deny the colony is being used for such purposes. Still, the trade goes on.

Editor's Note: The importation of opium into China by foreign traders led to the 1839-42 "Opium War" between Britain and China. In 1839 Chinese officials seized great quantities of the illegal drug from British and other traders in Canton; Britain declared war. The Treaty of Nanking returned trading rights to Britain and gained for her the colony of Hong Kong.

Cosmetics Revolution

Ottawa Journal

"... leg color ($6.50) comes in such exotic shades as Shocking Pink, Violent Mauve, Turquoise Blue and Electric Red, as well as Sun Beige and Nude.

This intelligence comes from the New York Times, not, as one would think, from the CIA-FBI combined Intelligence Agency — For Men). It is part of a story that deals with the body paint women are now using to "color-co-ordinate," as the Times says, with their dress.

It's about time the males of this hemisphere were informed of this recent innovation in the cosmetic field. After all, serious marital disasters could result from nothing more than male innocence in such matters.

Consider the following hypothetical situation at a jet - set cocktail party:

Harry's wife Frieda is talking to her girl friends and displaying the new cosmetics which she's been from tip to toe. Having discussed in detail everything from her false eyelashes to her knee-length boots and foot cream, Frieda turns to her spouse. "Oh yes," the sophisticated lady of the house says, "Harry has seen me in Violent Mauve and Hot Pink but he's yet to see me in the Nude."

Harry overhears. Ten years of marriage ends. Curtain falls.

Hippies Make The Scene

Calgary Herald

Calgary had a close-up look at the new social phenomenon known as the "hippies" when some of the young, unwashed, long-haired proponents of the make-love-not-war philosophy were attracted here by the Stampede

It seemed to be a case of mutual dislike from the start. The hippies thought the natives were downright unfriendly. One even complained of being struck by an elderly woman with an umbrella. Whether it was the rugged appearance of the visitors or their well-known aversion to work, the hippies didn't feel welcome.

No Change in High Interest Rates Predicts Bank Head

VANCOUVER (CP)—An insatiable and growing need for financing by the business world is one root of current high interest rates, says Robert P. McFadden of, New York, president of the Mercantile Bank of Canada.

Capital needs of governments also tend to keep the rates for loans up, and Mr. McFadden predicted in an interview that there is no change in sight.

He said, however, the cost of capital should not hinder growth.

"Interest rates are a small proportion of the cost of a project and they are tax deductible as an expense," he said. "If one or two per cent makes a difference as to whether a project goes ahead, then the project is not valid in the first place."

He explained the high interest situation this way:

Corporations last fall and this year became concerned about their liquidity and charged into the money market to borrow at whatever price they had to pay.

"You will remember that last August and September there was a tight money squeeze," he said. "It caused a lot of corporations to use up their liquidity.

"They normally keep funds on hand, in short term investments, for their capital and working capital needs. But many, like General Electric, had spent it all.

"And now . . . companies need money for expansion of industry.

"Take the computer industry. It has to be financed. And the airlines with their orders for jets and new super-sonic jets.

"The railways need equipment and they just can't get enough money. Look at the development of energy sources. Their demands are insatiable. I see no let-up."

Mr. McFadden said despite the corporate requirements lending to draw money away from the residential mortgage, mortgage money is again turning up.

He said other problems facing industry include plant expansion, automation, production now at about 85 per cent of capacity. A year ago production was at 81 per cent of capacity.

"Profits are off, we have wage negotiations coming on . . . and I don't expect any real improvement in business before the fourth quarter."

He said the business climates in the United States and Canada are about the same.

Mr. McFadden was in Vancouver for a meeting of Mercantile's board of directors. He is a vice-president of the Canadian district of the First National City Bank of New York, owner of Mercantile.

MRS. SAMUEL THORPE (Deseronto)

DESERONTO — Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Thorpe died suddenly at her home on the Bay Shore Road in the Tyendinaga Reserve on Tuesday. She was in her 67th year.

As she had no known relatives in Canada, little can be learned about her early days except that she was born in England, and that her husband was the late Samuel Thorpe. It is believed that she and her husband came to Canada when they were young, living in Toronto, where they brought up two foster daughters. When one of them married Harold Maracle, they all came to the Reserve for a time, where Mr. Thorpe died. She returned to Toronto, coming back here about nine years ago, where she has lived since. She was a member of the Anglican Church.

Mrs. Thorpe was a quiet woman, fond of her home and her garden. She was active and alert until last February when she had a leg amputated, but recovered and was apparently well until the day of her death. Her two foster daughters lived near her. They are Martha, Mrs. Harold Maracle, and Miss Ellen Hinton.

The funeral service was held in the White and Morris Funeral Home Saturday, August 5, the Rev. A. F. Dowdell officiating.

The bearers were: John Johnson, David, Deibert, Dick and Reginald Maracle and Al O'Toole.

Interment was in the Deseronto Cemetery.

400 Hats Donated to Project

Expo-a-Go-Go is really getting a head! Bob Lanning of C. T. Lanning Ltd. have donated 400 centennial hats to the community project which takes place this Saturday.

However, Bob Porter of Unlimited Community Services said that Expo-a-Go-Go needs to go ahead a little further. The fund to send the 250 youngsters to Montreal is still short $400 from its essential goal and the organizers of the project had originally hoped that they might be able to provide some of the teen-agers with spending money so that they could buy refreshments during the day or perhaps go on a ride or two.

The Quinte Kiwanis Club has made a donation towards the project and many private individuals have been contributing through the Bank of Montreal. However the fund is still short.

serving a 10-year sentence for armed robbery.

He came to Canada, convinced a Montreal firm he had the qualifications and got a job as chief engineer in the erection of the striking German pavilion at the world's fair there.

Subsequently he became chief engineer, with the same firm of Ross and Anglin, at a $60,000,000 pulp and paper mill project at Shawville, Que., where the RCMP caught up with him June 30.

Edmondson married while in Montreal and was living in a house with seven children and expectant wife when arrested. He now is in Carleton County jail here.

Edmondson, described here as an escape artist with a serious criminal record in the U.S., has been on the FBI's most-wanted list since 1956.

However, his reputation with his Montreal employer appeared to be sterling, even after it was disclosed that he was a self-taught rather than formally educated engineer.

"More power to him," G. F. Ryan, president of Ross and Anglin, was quoted as saying of Edmondson in a Montreal interview.

The things he did to some juniper berries are unspeakable.

To make gin, you need a number of rather exotic ingredients. Including Italian juniper berries.

So in 1769 Alexander Gordon bought sackfuls of the best Italian juniper berries money could buy. Experimented and experimented. And one day discovered that if you took the berries and ...well, something exciting happened.

You could make the best tasting gin ever. So naturally, he did.

200 years later we still do. And Gordon's is now the largest selling gin in the world.

Still made everywhere to the same secret formula.

And, so that it always remains a secret, what Alexander Gordon did to those berries must always remain unspeakable.

You always could buy a bottle of Gordon's though. And let it speak for itself.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE — LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. THE COUNCIL of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a local improvement the following watermain, with private service connections to the street line where required by individual owners, and intends to specially assess a part of the cost upon the land abutting the work and the balance against the Corporation at large as follows:

Street	From	To	Estimated Cost	Corporation's Share	Owner's Share	Estimated Cost Per Foot Frontage	Estimated Annual Cost Per Foot Frontage	Estimated Rate Per Service Connection	Estimated Annual Payment For Service Connection
Newberry	North from St. Paul Street	Approximately 400 feet	$6,981.17	$1,855.77	$5,125.40	$7.614988	$0.758647	$133.52	$13.30201

EXAMPLE: Lot with 50' frontage would be assessed as follows:
50 ft. x $7.614988 — $380.75
IF PAID over a period of 15 years at 5½% per annum, the cost would be:
50 ft. x $0.758647 — $37.93.

2. The Special Assessment is to be paid in fifteen equal annual instalments.
3. Application will be made by the Corporation to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval of the undertaking of the said work and any owner may within twenty-one (21) days after the first publication of the Notice file with the Clerk of the Municipality his objection to the said work being undertaken.
4. The said Board may approve the said work being undertaken, but before doing so may appoint a time and place when any objection to the said work will be considered.

Brain-Injured Aided by Ego Boost

TORONTO (CP)—To copy a wavy line that someone else has drawn, you must see it accurately, register its image accurately, "hear" what is asked of you and send out the right message to your muscles.

It helps, too, if you have the self-confidence born of experience that tells you that you will not fail.

Such simple exercises, used as diagnosis and teaching techniques, were demonstrated Wednesday at the workshop being sponsored by the Ontario Association for Children with Learning Disabilities and the Ontario department of education.
